RUSSIANS DRIVE THRU NAZI LINES IN 3D OFFENSIVE

Open New Attack on Voronezh Front.

MOSCOW, Dec. 20 [Sunday]—(AP).—Russia's third great winter offensive within a month has struck deep into German defenses along the Don river in the Voronezh area and 20,000 Germans have been killed and 10,000 captured, the soviet information bureau said in a special communique today.

118

Striking from the northwest four days ago, Russian forces southeast of Moscow opened a 60 mile wide breach in the German lines, while another army in the Voronezh region chopped a hole 12 miles wide.

The two spearheads advanced from 30 to 37 miles, capturing more than 200 populated places and a great array of enemy equipment, the communique said.

Nazi Flank Menaced.

The new offensive threatened the extended German flank, which has reached from the region of Kursk, 280 miles south of Moscow, down to Stalingrad, which today entered its 118th day of German siege.

The lower end of the Nazi flank already had been dented by salients driven across the Don bend and from southwest of Stalingrad in the offensive launched Nov. 19.

Now the Russians are striking at the upper flank, while continuing to attack farther north, in the Veliki Luki and Rzhev regions northwest of Moscow, where a second offensive began Nov. 25.

[Obviously referring to the new Russian offensive on the Voronezh front, the military commentator of the German Transocean news agency last night said that "on the upper Don front the soviets launched a new, large scale attack on Dec. 16." He added that "German and Italian troops inflicted extremely heavy losses on the soviets, who lost more than 100 tanks on the first day of the attack. The fighting still continues with undiminished violence."]

In the three offensives, according to the soviet information bureau, 189,000 axis soldiers have been killed and 84,500 captured—a total of 273,500.

Drive in Two Directions.

"The offensive is in two directions," said the special communique of the newest drive, "from the northwest in the sector of Novaya Kalitva and Monastrischina, and from the east in the area of Bokovskaya."

Among the 200 populated places captured, the announcement said, were the towns of Novaya Kalitva, Kantemirovka, and Boguchar, and the district centers of Tali, Radchenskoye, and Bokovskaya. Boguchar is just south of the Don and is 130 miles southeast of Voronezh and about 100 miles west of Serafimovich, where the Russians crossed into the Don bend in their first offensive. Tali is 20 miles southeast of Boguchar.

In the advance, nine infantry divisions and a brigade were shattered and thrown back in retreat, while four other infantry divisions and a tank division were severely mauled.

Meanwhile, on the central front the Russians captured a few more German advance lines. Bitter fighting also took place southwest of Stalingrad.

Gain in Veliki Luki Area.

On the central front the Russians recaptured two populated places and a strategic hill in the Veliki Luki area, where they are menacing this German strongpoint itself, which is 260 miles northwest of Moscow. Five hundred Germans were reported killed on one sector of this front.

The midnight communique said the Russians repulsed a German drive which had pressed them back in one sector southwest of Stalingrad.

Northwest of the besieged Volga city, the Russians consolidated their position on a recaptured hill after a see-saw battle, killing 300 Germans. Inside Stalingrad, 10 German blockhouses and dugouts were captured.

REDS REPELLED: NAZIS.

The Germans said they threw the Russians back to the northeast in the Volga-Don sector, repulsed attacks in the Don bend and inside Stalingrad, and frustrated soviet attacks in the central, northern and Terek-Caucasus sectors. However, they admitted that "the soviets continued their attacks with strong forces."

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—Edward V. [Eddie] Rickenbacker, foremost American airman in the World war, today told the story of the most thrilling experience of his full life—the saga of 21 days adrift in the South Pacific.

He told the story—one of privation and heroism—before an audience of newspaper men in the office of Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war.

It was soon after he had arrived here from the west coast and was reunited with his wife, who never lost faith that he would return.

Rickenbacker [who holds the rank of lieutenant colonel, but prefers to be called "Captain"] was given the seat of honor at the press conference, with Stimson moving back into a corner chair.

Eyes Filled with Tears.

Rickenbacker's eyes were filled with tears at times when he described the epic of air and sea. His voice took on a fervor seldom found in a pulpit as he recounted the reactions of men looking death in the face.

Reporters who had greeted his arrival with a burst of applause paid the supreme tribute of wondering silence at the conclusion of the moving tale, the telling of which required 49 minutes.

Rickenbacker appeared gaunt in contrast with his previous appearance before almost the same audience in September, when he reported on a mission to observe American aircraft in the European theater of the war. But the indestructible hero was as vital as ever, and the ordeal had not dampened his buoyant spirit.

Tells Guadalcanal Visit.

He disclosed that after his rescue he completed his military mission to the Southwest Pacific, going to Australia, New Guinea, and the Solomons and seeing American fighting men at Guadalcanal.

"I found a real hellhole of mud and corruption at Guadalcanal," he said. "If only the people back home could know what those boys are doing for us and putting up with, I think they would take this war more seriously."

He said tremendous successes were being accomplished at Guadalcanal by bomber and fighter pilots, who were destroying vast amounts of enemy shipping, including cruisers and destroyers.

"If it weren't for their tremendous successes in combat," he said, "I don't believe the boys could possibly last physically or mentally very long. But, because of the great stimulus of their successes, they are all happy and anxious to keep going.

How to Double War Output!

"After seeing those boys in the air and on the ground, I've come to the conclusion that if we brought our combat troops back into America officer, Sergt. Michael Leahy.

Last Wednesday Policeman John Crooks of the park district police saw an automobile parked in what he considered a restricted zone outside Mount Sinai hospital, 2750 15th place. He hung a ticket for illegal parking on the door handle.

Sergt. Leahy, who now must either mail a dollar to the cafeteria court or request a bench trial in an effort to convince the judge that he was not parked illegally, was not impressed by his subordinate's zeal.

Reports of the sergeant's whereabouts at the time vary, one being that he was in a nearby restaurant partaking of coffee and doughnuts; the other, more favored by the sergeant, was that he was in the hospital on official business.

Tomorrow Policeman Crooks is to explain to Chief Roger Shanahan.

Defer Elevated Strike Threat Until Dec. 29

The threatened strike of 4,500 elevated railroad employés, which would have tied up the Chicago Rapid Transit company's system at 12:01 a. m. today, was deferred yesterday until Dec. 29 at the request of the War Labor board.

William F. Levander, president of division 308 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Elevated Employés [AFL], bargaining agent for the workers, announced that the union's executive committee had decided to defer action on the strike until after a special meeting of the union's membership.

Certified to WLB.

The dispute was certified to WLB yesterday in Washington by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. Robert Abelow, assistant executive secretary of the board, telegraphed Levander asking that the union halt its plans to strike in an effort to enforce wage increase demands of from 12 to 17 cents per hour.

Levander, in a telephone conversation with Philip Marshall, mediation assistant in Washington, said that the union's executive board was exercising the power granted to it by the membership in announcing the deferment.

"This union has been most patient," he declared. "It has been trying since last June. We have waited a long time to settle our dispute. It is absolutely necessary that the WLB take action at once to resolve the issues in this dispute.

Considered Work Order.

"The WLB may contribute a whole lot by speeding adjudication of this matter and make it easier for use," Levander said. "The WLB telegram is really an order to work, but we have no desire to challenge the board or the government in this matter. So far as our members are concerned, the board [of the union] will make a full explanation to them of all angles in the case at the special meeting Dec. 29."

Levander also notified Bernard J. Fallon, co-trustee of the company, and Mayor Kelly that the strike had been deferred.

Levander said that the union would abide by any decision the WLB might hand down in the dispute.

The WLB telegram asking the union president to halt the strike said that "any work stoppage in this case would result in the interruption of a public service."

The wage increase demands of the union parallel similar raises granted to the street car motormen and conductors, members of another division in the same organization, Levander said.

He said that while the union had reduced its demands to from 9 to 14 cents per hour in recent negotiations with the company, the union had returned to its higher demands when these negotiations broke down Dec. 11.

The company has contended it is financially unable to meet the wage demands.

Dr. Robert K. Burns, acting regional director of WLB, said that the dispute probably will be handled thru the board's Washington office. It is customary, he said, after the workers have agreed not to strike, for WLB to appoint a three man panel representing industry, labor, and the public, to hold hearings on the controversy.

CAPT. BROUK, FORMER FLYING TIGER, AMONG 2 CHICAGO AIR VICTIMS

Capt. R. A. Brouk.

Lt. Sidney Kane.

Two army airmen from the Chicago district were killed yesterday in a pursuit plane collision near Orlando, Fla. Parents of both were notified, but details were not announced by the army.

One of the victims was Capt. Robert A. Brouk, 25 years old, a former Flying Tiger in China, who enlisted in the air forces in 1939. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter F. Brouk, 2120 South 59th court, Cicero. On Nov. 28 he married Miss Virginia Scharer of 1643 North Melvina avenue, whom he met at a celebration in his honor at the Western Electric company in Cicero last August. Capt. Brouk was decorated by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek for his service with the American volunteer group in the Chinese air force.

The other flyer reported killed was 1st Lt. Sidney Kane, 24, son of Mrs. James M. Farrin of 201 East Delaware place. He was a graduate of Alma college, Alma, Mich., and won his wings last May. During his training at Randolph field, Texas, he was chosen cadet commander.

Allies Capture Guinea Cape; Sink a Cruiser

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 20 [Sunday]—(AP).—The allies' ground troops in New Guinea have captured Cape Endaiadere to the east of Buna Village and Flying Fortresses have sunk a Jap cruiser near Madang, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported today.

[Capture of Cape Endaiadere, three miles southeast of Buna, pocketed Japanese troops at nearby Buna Mission and virtually ended the allied Buna-Gona campaign. The Japanese now are firmly entrenched in New Guinea only in the strong points of Lae and Salamaua.]

A third announcement told of the mopping up of enemy remnants in the Amboga and Kumusi river sector, 40 miles above Buna, where the Japs last Sunday achieved landings despite bloody losses.

Since the allies recently captured Buna, Jap resistance in that sector has been split between a group to the northwest at Cape Sananda and another group intricately fortified among the roots and logs of the jungle around Cape Endaiadere and Buna Mission.

Bury 196 Dead Japs.

"On the right in a local attack, our troops broke thru a belt of heavy field fortifications and captured the Cape Endaiadere area," the communique announced.

"We have mopped up enemy remnants near the Amboga and Kumusi river mouths. One hundred ninety-six enemy dead have already been buried there by our troops and many more bodies await burial.

The cruiser sinking occurred off Madang, which is on the New Guinea coast above Lae and Salamaua.

"The enemy's naval forces are active off the northern coast," Gen. MacArthur reported.

Five Warships Attacked.

"Near Vitiaz Straits, several hundred miles northwest of Buna, our heavy bombers attacked an enemy convoy of two merchant and five warships, scoring four direct hits on the deck of a light cruiser, which sank following the explosion of its powder magazine.

"During the attacks, our planes shot down two Zero fighters. The enemy entered the harbors of Madang and Finschafen during the night and then departed to the northeast before morning."

In the vicinity of Portuguese Timor, other allied planes strafed a small cargo ship.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—Harry Hopkins, the White House intimate who has been telling his fellow countrymen what tremendous sacrifices they must make in income, jobs, and living habits to win the war, introduced his wife, the former Mrs. Louise Macy, New York stylist, to New Deal society this week at one of the most lavish and exclusive parties the capital has known.

Sixty guests—the top flight of Washington officialdom—paid tribute to the former Mrs. Macy, nibbled at mountains of food, and drank a golden stream of almost priceless imported champagne.

What "Eat Less" Set Ate.

Here is the menu which was set before those who are pleading with the American people to eat less in order to win the war:

Bowl of Caviar with Trimmings
Pate de Foie Gras
Cheese Croquettes
Baked Oysters Bonne Femme
Celery, Radishes, Olives, Pecans

Liver of Fattened Goose!

For the information of citizens who are having trouble getting beef at their markets:

Pate de foie gras is liver of fattened goose.

Tortue clair en terrine is clear turtle soup in an earthen pot.

Crème au champignons frais is fresh mushroom soup.

Truite en gelee is trout in jelly.

Homard en aspic is lobster in aspic.

Recently Hopkins warned his countrymen in a magazine that they will have to forgo milk and tea and predicted drastic curtailment of all civilian industries except coffin-making.

Baruch Gets the Check.

Hopkins was a smiling host and some of his joy was no doubt due to the fact that he did not have to foot the bill for the function. Altho the party was Mrs. Hopkins' bow to New Deal society, the check—and a sizable one even in the national capital where astronomical figures are an everyday diet—was taken without protest on any one's part by Bernard Baruch, industrialist, a White House favorite under a half dozen administrations.

The fête was not held in the White House, where the Hopkinses live as rent free guests of President Roosevelt.

The champagne served was of the 1926 vintage, one of the two best years for French champagne since the World war. This wine is almost priceless today and is reported to be impossible to get in France.

All the Czars Are There.

Every table was decorated with gorgeous flowers. Each guest was given, on arrival, a flower to match the different varieties at each table, an elegant and unusual substitute for place cards.

The function brought together the various czars of the administration—production, Donald M. Nelson; economics, James Byrnes; prices, Leon

NEWARK CONSIDERS LEGALIZING SALE OF HORSE MEAT IN SHOPS

Newark, N. J., Dec. 19 [Special].—City officials today said they are considering the advisability of legalizing the sale of horsemeat because of the meat shortage. A packing plant in nearby Linden has offered to distribute the horsemeat.

Dr. Charles V. Craster, Newark health officer, said: "Horse meat is just as good as beef. It is palatable and nutritious. It is a little sweeter than beef and a little darker in color. However, we are going to watch it closely because some unscrupulous dealers might try to mix it with other meats."

TUGWELL'S NEW REFORMS ALARM PUERTO RICANS

Puts Government in Private Business.

This is the first article of a series, covering the Puerto Rican crisis and describing Gov. Tugwell's extensive experiments in government, applied sociology, and economic planning.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JUAN, P. R., Dec. 18.—In the last 15 months this verdant, tropical island has become a laboratory for socialistic government experiments such as were unknown to the continental United States even in the early days of the New Deal.

Under Gov. Rexford Guy Tugwell of the 1933 brain trust, more than 30 new bureaus, authorities, and offices have sprung up like jungle undergrowth. Government costs have jumped almost $5,000,000 in a year.

Puerto Rico's government has become the most expensive under the American flag. Taxes are the highest in its history. Dollars by the hundreds of thousands have been appropriated for long range social and economic schemes while famine threatens the island and while half its 1,900,000 population receives food and other assistance at public cost.

Out Deals New Deal.

Tugwell's latest project, however, not only has alarmed Puerto Ricans, but has caused concern among continental Americans. Armed with a development company, a planning board, and a development bank, the insular government has gone into private business. Former Atty. Gen. George Malcolm, dismissed on Nov. 5 by President Roosevelt, declared these agencies unconstitutional before they were submitted to the Tugwell controled legislature.

Tugwell himself has acknowledged that his newest scheme goes beyond even the "accepted New Deal principles." Puerto Ricans see in the development bank and company a two headed agency whose almost unlimited powers have opened the way for government control of private enterprise thru competition amounting practically to confiscation.

Continental Americans see in the scheme a possible blueprint for postwar government on the mainland. They quote a Tugwellian maxim that "complete economic planning is possible only when there is public ownership and control of production."

Just as Spain in 1936-'38 was a laboratory for blitz warfare, they assert, so is Puerto Rico a laboratory now for federal domination of American business and industry after the war.

Commands All Resources.

The bill creating the Puerto Rico Development company was approved by the legislature last May 11 and took effect Aug. 11. In addition to an initial appropriation of $500,000 which it may spend at its own discretion without interference from Puerto Rico's treasurer or auditor, the company may issue up to $5,000,000 in bonds.

The stated purpose of the company is to encourage the development and fullest usage of the human and economic resources of Puerto Rico. In so doing the company is "authorized upon its own account to establish, maintain, operate, and engage in any enterprise for the purpose of exploiting and distributing products manufactured from the following raw materials:

"Silica sands, clay, leather, bamboo, sugar cane fibers, coconut, fish, fruit and vegetables for canning, hogs, minerals, waste, and such other materials as from time to time may be designated by the legislature."

Disregards Public Fund Law.

The company also may acquire, hold, and dispose of stocks, bonds, or other interests in other companies or corporation and may exercise partial or complete control over affiliated, subsidiary, or associated companies to effectuate its purposes. Finally:

"The company is to have complete control and supervision of any and all of its property and activities, including the power to determine the character of and necessity for all its expenditures and the manner in which they shall be incurred, allowed, and paid without regard to the provision of any laws governing the expenditure of public funds and such determination shall be final and con-

BEST GUNS HELP U. S. FLYERS WIN: COL. M'CORMICK

Victories Prove .50 Caliber Fire Power.

Next to the superiority of American flyers, the .50 caliber machine guns with which this country's planes are armed have been the principal cause of the great success of United States aviation in this war, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, asserted in a radio speech last night.

Col. McCormick said that the bullet from these weapons "will penetrate any armor the enemy airplane may carry, destroy any motor, and blow up any gas tank, and the rapidity of fire is such that if at any moment the weapon is correctly aimed, it will strike its target."

The .30 caliber machine guns in the planes of other countries are ineffective, said Col. McCormick, and the 20 millimeter and 37 millimeter cannon likewise have proved inferior to the American weapon.

The address was broadcast during the Chicago Theater of the Air hour by W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

TEXT OF THE ADDRESS

The text of the address:

"The great success of our aviation in combat is due first, of course, to the superiority of our flyers over any other flyers and, second, to the .50 caliber machine guns with which our planes are armed. The evolution of these weapons is strange enough to describe.

"The character of weapons used is determined by the high command. It is, of course, primarily concerned with its own mission, which is the movement of troops; and less interested in the efficacy of weapons because it does not handle them nor suffer from them.

"When smokeless powder and repeating rifles entered the army by way of the sporting world, the primary thought was to obtain weapons and bullets light enough for men to carry them and their other equipment on long marches.

False Impression as to Ranges.

"The Boer war, with its clear atmosphere and expert Boer marksmen, also gave a false impression as to practical ranges, causing an undue amount of the weight of the rifle to be assigned to this purpose.

"The consequence was that all countries adopted a caliber of a little less than a third of an inch and a range of more than a mile. That this bullet was lacking in hitting power was demonstrated in big game shooting, and special bullets of heavy hitting power, called dumdum bullets, were devised, but these were ruled out of the armies in the name of humane warfare as tho such a phrase could be carried into use.

"In the last war, two-thirds of all of the casualties and almost all of the serious ones were inflicted by artillery fire, and those inflicted by bullets were almost all delivered by machine guns. The rifle in the infantryman's hands was little more than an awkward spear.

Development of the Tank.

"Machine guns and barbed wire rendered attack so costly as to be almost impossible. Before the war there had been armored cars, and there had been track laying tractors. The two principles were combined into the tank, which had two main purposes—to cut the barbed wire and to run over machine gun nests.

"The tank was armored to withstand .30 caliber machine gun bullets. Therefore as a tank stopping weapon, the .50 caliber, or half inch, machine gun was invented.

"It is worthwhile knowing that the hitting power of missiles fired with the same velocities varies as the cube of their calibers. Thus the .50 caliber bullet has five times the hitting power of the .30. This in turn has twice the power of the Japanese infantry rifle .25 caliber, which our troops are finding neither shocks nor wounds severely.

"However, before the outbreak of the war in 1939, tank armor had become too strong for the .50 caliber machine gun, so that weapon was turned into an anti-aircraft weapon, for which again it was ill suited, but fortunately some heaven sent man put it into our aircraft in this war.

Rapidity of Fire Effective.

"Its advantages are that at the ranges at which airplanes engage each other, the bullet will penetrate any armor the enemy airplane may carry, destroy any motor, and blow up any gas tank, and the rapidity of fire is such that if at any moment the weapon is correctly aimed, it will strike its target. In other words, there is no chance that the instant of correct sighting will come between two shots.

"Other countries employ .30 caliber machine guns, which can be stopped by our armor and sometimes resisted by our engines, and they employ 20 millimeter and 37 millimeter cannon. The 20 millimeter is a trifle less than one inch and the 37 millimeter one and a half inches in diameter.

"Not only do the fragments of these small shells appear to be less effective than hits by the .50 caliber bullet, but their rate of fire is much slower.

Cannon Too Heavy for Planes.

"The weight of their guns is such that only one or two of them can be carried against many .50 caliber machine guns in our fighters and bombers.

"These automatic machine cannon were also designed as anti-tank weapons and proved too light for that purpose just as, for the present, they are too heavy for airplanes.

"As we now know, our aviators have obtained command of the air in the Pacific. They drove Rommel's aviators out of the sky, bombed him at will, and caused his defeat in Egypt.

"The effectiveness of machine gun fire from airplanes was not made apparent in the last war due, I suppose, to the light armament carried by those planes and their slow speeds. In the last war anti-aircraft guns were hidden for the purpose of stratagem, but not for defense. In this war, the anti-aircraft personnel of the British cruiser Repulse was shot down by aircraft fire before the ship was torpedoed, and you remember from Stanley Johnston's lectures that American fighter planes sank a Japanese destroyer. Now all aircraft cannon on shipboard are armored, and on land are sunk in the ground.

Usefulness of Tank Enlarged.

"As everybody knows, the allies back in 1939 had faulty ideas of the use of tanks just as they had faulty ideas of the use of airplanes. They still looked upon them as wire cutters and machine gun nest destroyers and armed them with nothing larger than 37 millimeter guns.

"The Germans had discovered two other tactics for tanks—first, to use them in armored columns to penetrate the enemy lines and surround his forces; second, to use them as artillery.

"The Germans had three inch guns in their tanks as early as 1939 while their opponents did not begin to get that caliber until a year ago.

"At the present time we have pictures of exceedingly able American tanks carrying a three inch weapon and of a tank destroyer carrying a 105 millimeter gun. It appears that vehicles carrying weapons up to three inch caliber are tanks, and those carrying larger weapons are tank destroyers.

Diesel Engines for Mounts.

"We have pictures of German tank destroyers with guns of six inch caliber.

"When tractors were found superior to horses in pulling artillery, the old style cannon were fastened to the tractor.

"Now we see more and more self-propelling mounts. They appear to be superior to drawn cannon except that the gas tank is exposed to fire whenever the gun is in action. This advantage will be minimized as we learn to use Diesel engines in armored vehicles.

"Fifty caliber machine guns are too heavy to manhandle, altho they can be mounted on tanks. Machine guns mounted on tanks still remain at the .30 caliber. Infantry can oppose these weapons. It is hard to see how infantry could exist in the face of tank-borne .50 caliber machine guns."

'BABES IN TOYLAND' GIVEN

Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland" was the operetta of the evening. Marion Claire and Attilio Baggiore sang the principal rôles. Virginia Sellers sang the part of Bo-Peep. The dramatic cast was composed of Delle Gillis, Rosaline Adams, Bret Morrison, Howard Hoffman, Butler Manville, and Bob Jellison. The musical setting was provided by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and ensemble, with Henry Weber as conductor. Kenneth MacGregor was the producer.

SEE ARTICLE IN HITLER PAPER AS WARNING TO TURKEY TO SHUN WAR

ANKARA, Turkey, Dec. 18 [Delayed]—(AP).—An article appearing in Adolf Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, shortly after the Turkish ambassador left Berlin for Ankara yesterday was interpreted by many Turks today as a thinly veiled warning to this country to observe strict neutrality.

"To those who play with the dangerous idea of holding their territory ready as a platform for Europe's enemies, the fate of Poland should be a warning," declared the Beobachter.

The article took the form of a reply to a question posed by the semi-official Turkish newspaper Aksham, which asked: "It is true, as Germany's enemies say, that there will be no place in the new order for independent nations?" Beobachter replied that "imaginary parliamentarism of small nations will not be permitted to exist in the new order. Europe cannot permit secondary misunderstandings of small nations to set the world afire. European nations will be obliged to make sacrifices."

SAILORS ADOPT JIMMY, 5, AFTER HE SENDS NOTE

Sailors in one of the barracks at Great Lakes Naval Training station have adopted Jimmy Garrick, 5 years old, of Duquesne Heights, Pa., and are sending him a letter a week. This is their response to a letter Jimmy wrote to George Diehl, a service school student at the station, telling about a spinal ailment he has and asking that sailors write to him. Last week the men took up a collection and sent Jimmy a first class petty officer's uniform with quartermaster's insignia. The sailors have Jimmy's photograph bearing the words: "While big boys like you are fighting for little boys like me, little boys like me are praying for big boys like you and for victory."

3 KILLED AND 9 INJURED IN FIRE; 3 LEAP TO NETS

Two Victims Jump from Hotel Window.

Two men and a woman were killed and nine persons were burned or injured yesterday when fire swept thru the five story West hotel at 802 Madison street. Property loss was estimated at $125,000.

Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan said the fire was the worst in Chicago this year. The intense cold, which quickly turned water into ice, hampered firemen. Traffic was tied up by 48 pieces of fire apparatus and 29 police vehicles summoned by a 5-11 alarm.

Two Leap to Death.

Two of the victims, a man and a woman, died when they leaped from a fifth floor window. A hotel clerk said he believes the woman was one who had registered as a Miss LaRue. The third victim was found in a third floor room.

The dead were not immediately identified. The injured are Joseph Speizio, 31; Joseph Nicpon, 35; Carl Klycort, 41; Jerry Gracalone, 31; Joseph Lynch, 54; Harvey Wilson, 47; Ben Galvin, 65; Gay Tata, 56, a Japanese, and John Sullivan, 33, of 6031 South Halsted street. All except Galvin and Tata, who required only first aid, were taken to County hospital.

Clings to Window Sill.

Traffic Policeman Charles Caldwell said the fire spread rapidly. In seconds a dozen guests ran screaming to windows. By the time firemen arrived, 18 men had escaped down the fire escape. Firemen saved as many more by means of ladders, the fire escapes, and life nets.

Three men saved their lives by leaping from upper floors into fire safety nets. One of them, Emil Olson, clung to a fifth floor window sill for nearly five minutes before the net was spread.

"I didn't mind holding on," he said later. "And I didn't mind the jump, except I was afraid I'd land on a big electric sign. I had to throw my body out when I jumped."

The entire second, third, fourth, and fifth floors, occupied by the hotel with the exception of a few dental offices, were burned out, and the first floor, occupied by stores, was damaged by water.

New Fire Escapes.

The 65 year old building, a landmark at the Madison-Halsted intersection, and once an élite hotel, was in good condition, said Commissioner Corrigan and Theodore Rosenfeld, operator of the hotel, who leases the property from the United Jewish charities. Two new fire escapes were recently added to the building, and but for these, said Chief Dell White of the 1st battalion, the death toll might have been higher.

Rosenfeld was one of the first to discover the fire. He noticed it in the elevator shaft. He spread warning thru several floors, and personally helped out Gracalone, and four employés. Rosenfeld said the hotel had 78 rooms and 70 guests, all the latter men except the woman who died.

Jeep Swerves to Avoid Cattle; 2 Soldiers Killed

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 19 (AP).—Sergt. William Kohanek of Minneapolis, Minn., and Pvt. John J. Jean of Epping, N. H., were killed when an army jeep overturned, the Davis-Monthan field public relations office reported last night. The announcement said the accident occurred when the jeep swerved to avoid striking cattle crossing the highway.

PREMIUM ASKED FOR ARMY RELIEF SHOW BOX SEATS

All boxes and 850 seats in the first 22 rows of the Civic Opera house will be sold at premium prices by the Chicago First Nighters committee for the opening night performance of "This Is the Army" on Jan. 4. Altho all proceeds of the Irving Berlin all soldier musical show go to the army emergency relief fund, premium proceeds will be used by the committee to purchase approximately 400 seats for army and navy officers and their wives. Plans for the committee's participation in the opening were discussed at a luncheon meeting in the Blackstone hotel yesterday.

Front row boxes will sell for $330 each, those in the back row for $220 each, and the seats in the first 22 rows for $22 and $11 each. Reservations may be made by calling the committee at Randolph 9229, room 234. All other seats will be sold at regular prices.

Abner J. Stilwell is chairman of the committee of 69, Herbert J. Lorber is vice chairman, and William H. Stevenson, secretary.

STORY OF RESCUE IN PACIFIC TOLD BY RICKENBACKER

Flyers' Water Rationed to Two Sips a Day.

and put factory workers in their position, we'd have production doubled in 30 days."

He said the quality of Japanese fighter and bomber pilots is "going down very rapidly."

"It's quite evident that the great majority of the Japanese pilots are inexperienced and green."

Rickenbacker's story of the rescue of himself and his companions was told to a spellbound audience.

Ground Loops at Takeoff.

"We arrived in Hawaii by Clipper," Rickenbacker said. "We were going to leave that evening for the South Pacific. As we were going to take off the hydraulic equipment didn't work and we had to ground loop to avoid hitting hangars.

"We were told another plane would be available and that we could go on at 1:30 a. m. the next day. I went to sleep in the tail end of the ship, a B-17 [Flying Fortress]. After the takeoff I went into the cockpit and found everything serene. We were due to land at this [unidentified South Pacific] island at 9:30 a. m.

"At 10:30 we hadn't seen it. In the meantime I became a little worried. So did the navigator and pilot. We decided to call for bearings and then found we had difficulty with our radio. The compass was checked and found to be off.

"Then I thought we had overshot our objective. I felt that we had had more tail wind than the boys thought we had. Mind you, we have no weather stations out there linked up by wire such as we have here. Everything is done by forecast and the forecast is not always as perfect as it might be. The forecast showed we had a 10 mile tail wind.

Looked for an Island.

"One of the stations tried to give us what they could and they gave us certain courses to follow, but we couldn't get crossfires on them.

"We kept flying and decided to try the old box method of computing our position. We looked for a ship or an island.

"You know, out there, you get island eyes—you see land from many different angles but they're just cloud shadows. And when you really see land they multiply tenfold.

"We shut off the two outside engines to conserve gas and plugged along on the inside two.

"The last message we got out was that we had an hour's gas left. Then our radio operator started pounding out the S O S for an hour until we hit."

Before the plane hit, the men busied themselves throwing overboard everything that was loose in order to keep the ship afloat as long as possible.

"We went into a trough and alighted in a big swell," Rickenbacker continued. "It might have been unfortunate if we had hit the top of the swell because we'd have gone right down.

Radio Door Knocked Down.

"When we hit we didn't skid. It was a none too comfortable shock. At that moment, a portion of our radio that was on a shelf let go and broke down the door to the radio compartment and that didn't help matters, especially with Col. [Hans C.] Adamson having a sprained back."

Rickenbacker said there was confusion within the ship for a few seconds after it came down. One of the rubber life rafts became tangled in the rope.

"We were all so anxious to get away from the ship that we didn't pay much attention to rations," he said. "We left the water behind. For food we had four oranges—scrawny ones at that—on which we lived for eight days. I carved these up into eight pieces and rationed them out."

Survivors on Three Rafts.

He said the survivors used three rubber life rafts. Rickenbacker, Col. Adamson, and Corp. John Bartek got in one raft. Sergt. Alexander Kaczmarcyk, who died during the ordeal at sea, and Capt. William T. Cherry were in another. On the third raft were Lt. James C. Whitaker, Lt. John D. Deangelis, and Staff Sergt. James Reynolds.

"The small two man boat overturned, and the young man we later lost swallowed salt water," Rickenbacker continued.

"The water was rough. And the boy [Kaczmarcyk] got to drinking salt water during the night. As a result he died of salt water poisoning and starvation.

Weather "Beastly" Hot.

"We tied the boats together. There followed five days of calm. It was beastly hot. Some of the boys threw their shoes and socks into the water. It was unfortunate because they had their feet and legs burnt badly. Three or four had jumpers on but no hats. I was more fortunate. I had an old felt hat that Mrs. Rickenbacker had wanted me to discard for the last 10 years. I also wore high topped boots.

"There was no rain until the eighth night. We saw nothing in the way of searching planes or ships. The boy [Bartek] in my boat had a Bible in the pocket of his jumper and on the second day out we organized prayer meetings in the morning and in the evening.

"Frankly and humbly we prayed for our deliverance.

"After the oranges were gone, there showed up terrific pangs of hunger. Then we prayed for food. We happened to have two little fishlines but no bait.

Seagull Answers Prayer.

"If it wasn't for the fact that I had seven witnesses, I wouldn't dare tell this fantastic story.

"One hour after the prayer meeting, a seagull landed on my shoulder. You can imagine my nervousness as I reached around to get it. But I caught it and we wrung its neck. We feathered it and stripped its innards, which we used for bait.

"Capt. Cherry caught a little mackerel and I caught a spreckled seabass, which we divided up equally. It was delicious. Everybody got an equal share.

"The next day another seagull landed on my shoulder. But I didn't have the heart to wring its neck and I let him go."

Rickenbacker said that it stormed the next night and the rain was most welcome. Ordinarily the eight would have tried to avoid a squall, he said, but they made a business of getting into that rain to get water.

"We used our shirts, our socks, and our handerchiefs," he said. "We got them soaked up and then would wring them out into a little rubber bucket. I was the official wringer in my boat.

"We went on water rations—two sips a day, about a half jigger. As the days went on and we ran into more rain, we were able to build it up.

"Then Capt. Cherry's boat went upside down during a storm and we lost our flares and medical kit."

The boat was retrieved and tied up again with the others.

"Freezing" at 78 Above.

"On the 11th night, this boy that died was getting very low," Rickenbacker continued. "In spite of the fact that the temperature was 78 to 80 and the wind was high, it was freezing. The waves were constantly breaking over us and it was like being doused with ice water. I moved the boy into my boat and cuddled him like a mother. I tried to give him the warmth of my body."

The night that young Kaczmarcyk died he wanted to go back to his own boat. Rickenbacker complied with the request.

"About 3 a. m. we heard his last gasp," he said. "I had been on cinder tracks and burning airplanes, but I had never been thru anything like this. I was afraid to make a decision.

Rickenbacker's "Hardest Job."

"About 6 a. m. we pulled the boats together. I examined him and finally pronounced him dead. Two of the boys were witnesses. Then we lifted him over the boat gently and he disappeared. It was one of the hardest jobs I ever had."

The survivors' minds "began to crack" after that incident, Rickenbacker said.

"I tell you," he said, "I know things about these men's lives that no one else in the world knows. They confessed all their commissions and omissions—all their sins. It's a good thing I didn't get started on mine, or I'd be talking yet.

Plane Seen on 17th Day.

"On the 17th day we saw the first sign of life. This was a little plane that went by about five miles away. We waved frantically and yelled, but he went on by. It was heartbreaking.

"The next day two planes came out and again they missed us. The next day four came out and again passed us up. Altho our boats were painted yellow and we were tied together, it was difficult to see such small objects when the breakers were in action.

"On the night of the 20th day we broke up under protest and every one went his own way. Capt. Cherry was alone now in the little boat. Whitaker, Deangelis, and Reynolds were in another, and I was with Col. Adamson and Bartek. My opinion was we couldn't have lasted another 48 hours.

"Cherry was found by a naval flyer, a machinist's mate. The other boys drifted to an unoccupied island, where they stayed for a day and a half. Natives of another island found them.

"The next day we sighted two planes. One came down low and we could see the pilot smiling. I waved back at them frantically to show them we were alive.

"The planes disappeared over the horizon and I learned later they were running out of gas. But they came back an hour later. Then a squall came up and they lost us, but a half hour later they hit us right on the nose.

Plane Fires Flares.

"The sun was going down and I feared we would be lost again. It was two-thirds dark and one of the planes let go with some flares from a Very pistol. Off on the horizon we saw blinkers from what turned out to be a PT boat. Then one of the planes landed and taxied up to us.

"The pilot, Lieut. William F. Eadie, showed the strength of Hercules in hauling the disabled Adamson into the cabin of the plane.

"The little engineer [Bartek] and I got on the wing. Then we started to taxi for the base 40 miles away. The PT boat came up and it was decided to take the two of us off. Another PT boat came up and took Adamson into the base.

"It was then we found out that Cherry had been picked up and that the other three boys were on an uninhabited island."

"A Real Shangri-La," He Says.

Rickenbacker said the island base to which he and his companions were taken after being rescued reminded him of stories of the South Sea Islands.

"It was a Shangri-La, if I ever saw one," he said.

The navy sent PBY flying boats within 48 hours to pick up the survivors, and they were taken to a navy medical base at Samo. Rickenbacker said the engineer and radio operator were too weak to be moved by plane and Col. Adamson developed complications which subsequently proved to be pneumonia, abscessed lungs, and diabetes.

"Fortunately," he concluded, "I bounced back in the next two weeks and went on with my mission."

The mission was the confidential task assigned him by Stimson. He flew to Australia, New Guinea, and the Solomons.

He paid high tribute to Gen. Douglas MacArthur and termed him one of the greatest air enthusiasts he ever has met. He said Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, commanding air forces under Gen MacArthur, is "one of the hardest hitting airmen any place in the world."

Rickenbacker was met at the airport here by his wife on his arrival from the west coast, where he had embraced his 79 year old mother on his return to this country. Two sons, David and William, also were at the field to greet the flyer.

Lt. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, and Robert A. Lovett, assistant secretary of war for air, welcomed Rickenbacker on behalf of Stimson.

FIND RICKENBACKER DICTATED GREETING JUST BEFORE FLIGHT

Friends of Edward V. Rickenbacker in Chicago yesterday received Christmas greetings which the famous airman dictated on Oct. 16.

The flying boat which carried Rickenbacker and his party on a war mission was forced down in the South Pacific on Oct. 21. The date of dictation indicated that preparation of Christmas greetings was one of the last things to which he gave his attention before starting for the Pacific war area.

The greetings are in the form of a letter on the flyer's personal stationery and are signed "In Shangri-La," with the explanation, "no signature possible." They were mailed in New York Dec. 17.

"Despite the suffering and misery to be endured, I am sure that the New Year will be ushered in with a ray of hope and light of victory ahead," Rickenbacker wrote after observing that we are beginning a second year of global war with our soldiers, sailors, and aviators in all parts of the world. The flyer expressed the hope that 1943, or the not too distant future, "will see them home again with us—happy for the privilege of having served," and closed with best wishes "for as happy a holiday season as this grim war will permit."

F. D. R. OUTBURST CALLED NEW LOW IN VILIFICATION

Correspondents Incensed by Iron Cross Award.

BY PHELPS ADAMS.

[Special to the New York Sun.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—Amazed by the lengths—or depths—to which President Roosevelt has carried his campaign of vilification of those Washington newspaper men who have incurred his displeasure, capital correspondents were deeply incensed today by his action in sending a Nazi iron cross to one of their number.

John O'Donnell.

The decoration, customarily awarded by the German government to those who have served its cause faithfully and courageously, was lying on the President's desk when newspaper men assembled in his office yesterday for the regular press conference. After the conference was over, and when most of the correspondents had left the room, the President handed the medal to Earl Godwin, Blue network news commentator, with a request that he give it to John O'Donnell, columnist of the New York Daily News.

Objects to News Item.

The decoration, the President explained, was being sent because of an item O'Donnell had published Wednesday about George Durno, a former White House correspondent and a Presidential favorite, who is now a captain in the press relation section of the army's air ferry command.

The fact that the President chose to dispatch the insulting medal to O'Donnell by proxy instead of conferring it personally upon the Daily News columnist, who had been present thruout the press conference, did not occasion as much surprise and speculation in the Washington press corps as did his apparent attempt to brand O'Donnell as a Nazi at a moment when a state court in Philadelphia is about to try a $50,000 libel suit which O'Donnell has filed there against the Philadelphia Record, a paper owned by an ardent defender of the New Deal and a close friend of the President, J. David Stern.

Suit Attracts Wide Interest.

Events leading up to that libel suit have engaged widespread interest among Washington newspaper men, and the conduct of the proceedings to date has been so unprecedented as to command the attention of outstanding attorneys in Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

The start of O'Donnell's long battle with the White House came in mid-April of last year when he sent a story to his paper stating that on the following day charges would be voiced in the senate that American war vessels were convoying lend-lease materials to Europe.

Declaring that he spoke for the President, Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, denounced the story as "a deliberate lie." The following day the charges were, in fact, voiced in the senate by Sen. Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.].

Paper Takes Up Battle.

Using Early's words as the title of an editorial, however, the Philadelphia Record took up the battle and in the fourth paragraph of the comment published on its editorial page referred to O'Donnell as a "Naziphile." It added that O'Donnell had on "numerous occasions" been guilty of "broadcasting his sympathy with most of Hitler's aims," and that O'Donnell was in favor of the "destruction of the British empire."

O'Donnell retaliated by filing a $50,000 libel suit against the Record and, after considerable delay, the case was brought to trial last month, but on the second day an article published in the Record was construed by the court to be so prejudicial to O'Donnell's case as to warrant the declaring of a mistrial. Attorneys for O'Donnell did not move to have the mistrial declared, but when they failed to do so, attorneys for Stein's paper made the motion, which was granted by the court despite the fact that the offense had been theirs.

This action by the court was so unusual as to prompt various lawyers not connected with the case to ask for copies of the Record.

The case is now scheduled for retrial during the first week of next month.

Nothing to Get Mad About.

Knowing this background, correspondents here were more than surprised at President Roosevelt's action in conferring the iron cross of Nazi Germany upon O'Donnell so close to the time when the libel action was to come to trial.

Certainly, there was nothing for the President to get really mad about in the item concerning Durno as published in O'Donnell's column last Wednesday. The item consisted almost entirely of two kidding letters written by Durno himself and by Jack Turcott, Daily News war correspondent—both of whom are personal friends of O'Donnell—and is quoted as follows:

"There have been times when this column has pondered over the lack of news from some of our energetic colleagues recently turned war correspondents and assigned to cover the big show from front seats in Australia.

Boys Turn to Piccolos.

"Well, the mystery is solved.

"Take it from Jack Turcott of the News and ex-White House correspondent Durno of the I. N. S., now a captain in the ferrying division of the air transport command, the boys have turned to flutes and piccolos just to keep their fingers nimble for the time when censorship lets them beat the keys of their portable typewriters to turn out tell-all story."

"Writes Jack:

"'I'm having some trouble getting this letter written because Capt. George Durno is sitting next to me playing a flute. Yes, a flute, and Durno, who you know never drinks anything stronger than straight moxie, has become a flautist since he joined the army.

"'He's busy the whole day twisting his mouth up in strange shapes and running slightly rheumatic fingers up and down the damn instrument, making the strangest noises imaginable.

He's Playing a Whistle.

"He tells me that he will write to you today to deny it. But I have proof. I am inclosing a picture showing George with a flute. 'Tis true I'm playing a whistle, but I've been here for 10 months, and in that time it's expected a guy will go slightly nuts. And a whistle isn't as bad as a flute, is it?

"'This Durno thing came about accidentally. Durno pulled in a couple of nights ago, supposedly to inspect something somewhere. Larry Lehrbas, who is busy cutting paper dolls and doodling on perfectly good writing paper, figured out that the best way to get rid of Durno was to send him out to the house where several correspondents, including me, live. Out came Durno and we haven't been able to get rid of him since. He drank all our Scotch [we had two bottles and we were saving it to celebrate the armistice some day] and now threatens to start on Sterno because it rhymes with his name.'

"Writes Capt. Durno [both boys censor their own stuff, it appears]:

"'I have just read portions of that libel Jack Turcott has composed. It sounds like something from the pen of George Dixon. All I can say in rebuttal is to repeat the story current here. [Story deleted by editors.]

"'And by the way of P. S. I just want to tell you about the hardships being endured by Turcott. It is something terrific. Turcott's bath was drawn by his gentleman's gentleman this morning and was two degrees off temperature.

"'Sincerely, George Durno, blood type B.'"

Washington newspaper men have failed thus far to perceive just how the item quoted could have brought aid and comfort to the enemy any more than the President's gesture could possibly serve to promote national unity at home in furtherance of the war effort.

BRITISH VESSEL SUNK BY SUB OFF SOUTH AMERICA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—The navy today announced that a medium size British freighter had been torpedoed and sunk last month by a submarine off the northern coast of South America.

The announcement said survivors had been landed at an east coast port, but details of the sinking were not made public.

The attack brought to 564 the number of vessels sunk in the western Atlantic area since Pearl Harbor, according to an unofficial tabulation by the Associated Press. The sinkings have cost the lives of 3,756 persons, 2,258 are missing, and 16,984 have been rescued.

ROBS TRUCK DRIVER OF $130.

Clarence Taetzmann, a driver for a packing company at 1845 Blue Island avenue, reported to police yesterday that a gunman robbed him of $30 in currency and $100 in checks in front of 3314 Foster avenue.

OWNER OF PARK AND FRIEND LOST ON CRUISER TRIP

Miami, Fla., Dec. 19 (AP).—A wealthy winter visitor from Louisville, Ky., and a companion, missing since Tuesday in a 23 foot cabin cruiser off the southeast Florida coast, were sought tonight at sea and in the scattered islands between Miami and Key West.

Benjamin J. Brinkman, 55 years old, owner of a large Louisville, Ky., amusement park and two skating rinks, and George G. Sedano, 49, a professional dancer who had been teaching the rhumba to service men at a Miami beach recreation pier, last were seen five days ago.

Brinkman's cruiser was known to have developed engine trouble a week ago and had been left in the Florida keys about 40 miles south of Miami. Brinkman and Sedano left the sound Tuesday afternoon, presumably to bring the vessel back to Miami Beach but possibly for a fishing trip.

300 PATROLMEN PRESERVE ORDER IN NAVY DISTRICT

Former Policemen Serve on Shore Force.

The navy's first permanent shore patrol in the 9th naval district, and probably the largest of its kind in the country, has been established in the naval reserve armory here under Lt. Comm. Marvin L. Coon, a veteran of 30 years in the navy and former warden of Michigan state prison at Marquette.

The 300 shore patrolmen quartered in the armory are all former policemen, trained in special shore patrol technique and first aid into a vastly different type of unit from that which policed sailors during the World war.

The shore patrolmen are the naval corollary of the army's military police. Shore patrolmen and military policemen patrol beats in the Chicago area together. This combination of authority results in a man power saving Comm. Coon said.

Week-end Busiest Time.

He estimated that there are 50,000 service men in Chicago week-ends, the busiest time for shore patrolmen. All patrolmen are required to work Saturdays and Sundays.

One of the principal duties of the shore patrol is to maintain order on trains. Yesterday, for instance, shore patrolmen were riding 44 trains out of Chicago.

The patrolmen average 40 years of age and all have specialist ratings. They must have had police experience to qualify. Comm. Coon said that men 30 years old and upwards have been found to make the most efficient officers.

First aid training often comes in handy, Comm. Coon said. One officer, Herbert J. Cassidy of St. Paul, Minn., recently was called upon to act as midwife when a woman on a train he was riding gave birth to a baby.

Range Up to Milwaukee.

The shore patrolmen are trained to be the sailors' friend, and no bullying tactics are tolerated, he said. They protect the sailors' interests and guard their welfare. The patrol, centered here because of the large number of men passing thru Chicago and stationed near by, has jurisdiction over all north shore cities up to and including Milwaukee.

"The people in Chicago who are paying for the service men's centers are making the best possible investment," Comm. Coon said. "They are creating good will for Chicago. No other city treats its military personnel as well."

Executive officer of the patrol is Lt. Carl G. Stockholm.

DIES AFTER FALL IN HOME.

Mrs. Augusta Schuth, 93 years old, 3732 West Division street, a widow, died yesterday in County hospital from injuries suffered in a fall in her home Dec. 2.

Hit with Hammer

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lois Hansen uses hospital telephone after she had been beaten with hammer by her father.

Elmer Hansen, 39 years old, a carpenter-bricklayer, attacked his wife and young daughter with a hammer yesterday in their home at 3424 Paris avenue, then locked himself in his bathroom, took poison, and hanged himself.

His widow, Phyllis, 34, and Lois, 11, were taken to Chicago State hospital, the former in a critical condition.

Lois told police she was awakened at 8 a. m. by a quarrel between her parents. Then she saw her mother run outside, scantily clad. Lois asked her father what happened. "She hit me and I must have gone crazy," he said. Then he struck Lois with the hammer.

Mrs. Hansen's mother, Mrs. Leslie Keeler, 3223 Dickens avenue, said her daughter had recently returned from a sanitarium.

BETTER GET OUT THOSE HEAVIES! WINTER IS NEAR

There are four seasons each year in the temperate zone, the Chicago weather bureau announced yesterday. These are spring, summer, autumn, and winter, beginning respectively at the vernal equinox, summer solstice, autumnal equinox, and winter solstice.

On this basis the bureau warns Chicagoans to be prepared for the start of winter at 6:40 a. m. Tuesday, which will be the shortest day of the year.

The bureau says this is all theoretical but insists that the period of near zero temperatures Chicago has weathered in the last three weeks is still autumn to astronomers, who think up such things.

"From a weather standpoint," yesterday's release said, "winter conditions began some time ago."

GASOLINE STOLEN FROM STATION.

When Arthur Kracow, 4189 Clarendon avenue, returned yesterday to his gas station at 450 East Grand avenue which he had closed Dec. 1, he found that 110 gallons of gasoline had been stolen.

LEVANT WILLING AND ANXIOUS FOR GUIDANCE BY U. S.

Near East Trusts Only Us, with Good Reason.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BEIRUT, Syria, Dec. 13 [Delayed]—Peoples of the Levantine states will accept American guidance, and even domination, because Americans are the only western people they trust completely. All others are suspect in varying degree and for understandable reasons.

Since 1919 the French have ruined any chances they had to win the confidence of these peoples, mainly by their fashion of interpreting the mandate given to them by the league of nations, which to them simply meant that the French empire had acquired one more colony.

Fear British Complacency.

The case of the British is more complicated. Their reputation for honesty and fair dealing still prevails among the Arabian peoples, but it has had some blows. Prominent Lebanese, whom I interviewed, accuse the British not so much with double crossing the Arab in Palestine as with letting themselves be maneuvered to a position where they had no choice but to give the Arab an unfair deal.

So they fear British complacency and Britain's policy of drift. Incidentally, they imagine British motives are not always entirely angelic.

By contrast, we Americans are real plaster saints. Our high reputation isn't built on Levantine ignorance of America, but rather on a close tho limited acquaintanceship.

This began far back at the beginning of the 19th century when Yankee sailing vessels from New England ports carried on a brisk trade with the Levant, and our naval vessels fought Mediterranean pirates along the coast of North Africa. The reputation then founded has been added to steadily, especially since the end of the last war, by American business and philanthropy.

We Have What They Want.

Admiration has gone along with their respect for us because we have supplied just the articles which the Syrians and Lebanese—the most enlightened and advanced of all Arab speaking peoples—most needed and wanted. They've liked our gadgets—automobiles, office supplies, radios, refrigerators, and dynamos—and found them the best in the world.

In this field, our only serious rivalry comes from the Germans but they have lost out because, with rare exceptions, their manufactured products are inferior to ours and German commercial representatives always create the impression they have some aim in view beyond mere buying and selling.

Our missions and schools have been numerous in the near east for more than a century and are the only ones which seem entirely disinterested. This impression is due in large part to the fact that they are not government enterprises, like the Italians'. Italy is our latest and most active rival in this field.

Even archaeological expeditions have added to our reputation. We paid workmen fair, and even generous wages. The others usually did not.

U. S. Averted Famine.

At the close of the last war, when the entire near east was facing misery and even famine, America saved this region from complete calamity and its peoples haven't forgotten. They still haven't recovered from their amazement that no return was asked for the expenditure of huge sums.

But above all, American prestige thruout the Levant—even the entire near east—has been built up by the American university at Beirut, which has been operating for three generations.

The American university is so popular because it doesn't try to educate fifth columnists for some sinister design of the Washington government and because it supplies vital needs. These young people want to be educated, or rather westernized, in the modern way. They want games and sports, some entirely practical training which will enable them to rise in the social scale by increasing their earning capacity, and a few bright tags of information which enable a man or woman to cut a presentable figure in the modern world.

IN TUNISIA, WAR FOR THESE AMERICANS WAS CHAMPAGNE AND LAMB!

WITH U. S. FORCES IN TUNISIA, Dec. 19 (AP).—It was champagne and lamb chops for the tank platoon commanded by Lt. Ben. R. Homecker of Wheeling, W. Va.

Homecker's unit was obliged to move up to a key point in Tunisia so quickly that it was impossible to supply it with regular rations.

The tank crews had to get food where they could find it, therefore, and their ability to make friends with the French and Arabs soon assured them they would not be hungry. Their new friends brought the Americans champagne, red and white wine, dark North African bread, lamb chops, and mutton.

BRITISH ADVANCE 40 MI. IN BURMA; JAPS FALL BACK

Wavell Opens Drive Along Coast to Akyab.

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 19 (AP).—Part of the million-man army of Gen. Archibald P. Wavell has passed to the attack after months of preparation and has advanced about 40 miles into Burma in the first phase of an offensive to reopen the Burma road to China.

A cautiously worded communique telling of this latest addition to the list of world-wide allied offensives said:

"During the last few days some of our troops have advanced southward from the Arakan border into western Burma and occupied the Maungdaw-Buthidaung area about 60 miles northwest of Akyab.

"The enemy, who had been in occupation of this area since our withdrawal from Burma and had prepared defenses, withdrew without offering opposition."

Maungdaw and Buthidaung are about 40 miles south of the Indian border. Akyab, a small seaport and air base on the eastern side of the Bay of Bengal, is to the south down the Mayu river.

May Strike Elsewhere.

While the restraint of the announcement gave no hint as to the scope of the offensive, observers noted the reference to "some of our troops" and wondered if other parts of the huge army which Gen. Wavell has drilled and equipped in India might not be ready to strike elsewhere.

Ever since United States Lt. Gen. Joseph Stilwell came out of Burma at the head of a few score men and American officers from his Chinese army with the acknowledgement that he had taken a "hell of a beating," the recapture of Burma and the restoration of the supply link with China has been high on the list of allied objectives.

The thrust down the difficult jungle shore of northern Burma thru a land inhabited by red-skinned Naga headhunters was accompanied, the communique said, by aerial sweeps in which the village of Rathedaung, half way between Maungdaw and Akyab, was bombed and the Mayu river swept clear of Japanese boats.

Bombers Attack Akyab.

Akyab itself was bombed by big Wellington bombers. Fires were left along the Rathedaung waterfront, it was said.

Before the beginning of the offensive British and American planes carried out a series of intensive day and night bombings of numerous objectives in the Arakan area and for many weeks have been hitting at railways, stations, bridges, and airfields along the Mandalay line of communications and docks, airports and barracks in the Akyab zone.

In turn the Japanese claimed to have sunk seven transports and set fire to four or five others in raids on Chittagong, Indian port 60 miles north of the Burma border, on Dec. 5 and 10.

The British said only relatively minor damage was done in these Japanese attacks. The Japanese also attacked Fenny, near Chittagong, last Wednesday and lost three of their planes. Four British planes were lost in the combat.

Monsoon Season Over.

The push toward Akyab was regarded by observers as a logical step following the incessant campaign which American air forces commanded by Brig. Gen. Clayton L. Bissell and the R. A. F. have been waging against Japanese supply bases, airfields, barracks and railways in Burma since the end of the monsoon season about six weeks ago.

Chinese Skeptical.

CHUNGKING, Dec. 20 [Sunday]—(AP).—Chinese quarters accepted with caution today the news of British operations in western Burma and took the view that the offensive was local in character.

Chinese believed a major offensive aimed at the reconquest of Burma would require a powerful air umbrella and extensive naval forces as protection for the landing of troops, and the present reports from New Delhi failed to mention such forces.

REDS SHOW VAST AREAS OF SEIZED GERMAN VEHICLES

MOSCOW, Dec. 19 (AP).—Soviet newspapers carried striking pictures today from the battlefields southwest of Stalingrad, showing huge areas of the steppe country littered with captured German tanks, automobiles, and trucks.

In one picture the captured tanks were banked solidly for a quarter-mile. Many appeared to be in serviceable condition. A field of seized trucks looked like a huge American junk yard.

KING ZOG WILL LET ALBANIANS DECIDE OWN REGIME, HE SAYS

LONDON, Dec. 20 [Sunday] (AP).—Exiled King Zog of Albania said in an interview in the Sunday Express today that he was willing to let Albanians decide for themselves the type of régime they want after the war.

He said after the Albanians' liberation they would convene a constituent assembly to decide the form of government to be adopted, and added, "but certainly the régime must be democratic and must continue in the path of social and political reform."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull in a statement on Dec. 10 said restoration of Albania was inherent in the Atlantic charter, which "includes the assurance that all peoples have the right to choose their form of government."

French Seize Radios of Algerian Axis Nationals

ALGIERS, Algeria, Dec. 19 (AP).—French military authorities, in a further step toward stamping out axis propaganda and antagonism to the allied forces in North Africa, today ordered all German and Italian nationals in Algeria to surrender their radio receivers to the police by Dec. 24. Considerable numbers of followers of the pro-axis Jacques Doriot party in France previously had been arrested and interned.

SEE NEUTRALITY OF PORTUGAL AND SPAIN AT STAKE

Believe Issue Discussed at Parley.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Altho the visit to Portugal of Francisco Gomez Jordana, Spanish foreign minister, is officially described as a "courtesy visit," extremely important discussions affecting the neutrality of both countries are taking place, it was believed in well informed quarters here tonight.

The visit is occurring at the same time that thousands of Spanish people are demonstrating in Madrid, welcoming the return of Gen. Augustin Munoz Grande, commander of the Blue division, from the Russian front.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the Spanish dictator, left no doubt in a recent speech that he was wholeheartedly supporting the axis war against Communist Russia as vital for the future of European civilization.

Leftists Urge Action.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, however, has informed parliament that the foreign office did not consider it would serve any useful purpose to make an issue of Franco's alleged violation of neutrality when he frankly voiced sympathy for an axis victory.

Leftist elements in parliament recently urged the British government to recognize the hostility of Franco and act accordingly. The Communist Daily Worker has clamored for release of members of the International brigade [a volunteer organization of foreigners who fought against Franco's armies in the Spanish civil war] interned by the Vichy French government in Morocco.

Axis propaganda has claimed that this has been done already and that the Communists are being enlisted with allied forces in that area. There is no confirmation of this here, however, and some of the venom directed against Adm. Jean Darlan may be attributed to the belief that he opposed releasing them owing to his anti-Communist sentiments.

Look for Hitler Attack.

So far there has been little indication of axis intentions toward Spain. Some sources do not doubt that if Hitler finds it to his advantage and has enough troops to try it, he might attempt to seize the Spanish side of the strait of Gibraltar which, if he succeeds, would jeopardize all British and American forces in North Africa.

The whole issue of the war in this theater, it is believed, might well be decided by the attitude of Spain.

The strongest guarantee of Spanish neutrality up to now is the inference from both the allies and the axis that Franco would throw his military forces against the first aggressor. Franco has a sizable army, said to be more than 1,500,000 strong.

ROBBERS SETTLE FOR $3.

Thomas Walsh told Englewood police yesterday that two holdup men who invaded his apartment at 7014 Lowe avenue and demanded insurance money that had been left him escaped with his wallet containing $3.

Axis Bombers Attack Malta After Long Lull

VALLETTA, Malta, Dec. 19 (AP).—A lull of several weeks over this British fortress was broken last midnight when enemy bombers determinedly attacked the airfields for about an hour. The enemy bombers met a fierce reaction and one of them was destroyed.

BOMBERS ATTACK KISKA AND MUNDA BASES; SET FIRES

Heavy Explosions Result in Aleutians Area.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Army bombers smashed Japanese base instalations at both ends of the Pacific ocean late this week, the navy reported today, with heavy explosions and fires on the island of Kiska in the Aleutians the result of one of the raids.

The attack against Kiska, one of two islands in the Aleutians occupied by the enemy, was attacked Thursday by army "Liberator" bombers. The raid was the first since Dec. 11.

Munda Base Attacked.

"Heavy explosions and fires were observed," a navy communique said.

Army Flying Fortresses, accompaned by fighter planes, made two attacks against enemy instalations in the Munda area of New Georgia Island in the Solomons. Results were not reported.

This was the ninth day of American attacks on Munda, site of an enemy airfield which, so far as is known, was first hit at about the time it was ready for the beginning of large scale operations. This field is only 150 miles from the American position on Guadalcanal and would be of considerable value to the Japanese both in bombing the American field and in supplying interceptor planes to ward off American bombing attacks from Guadalcanal against Japanese bases.

Prevent Use by Japs.

It is believed here that the Japanese have used their Munda base only once or twice for aerial operations. They intercepted a group of American planes attacking ships near Shortland Island when the Japs lost five Zero fighters and no American planes were damaged. More recently, on Dec. 16, the Japs sent up a flight of 12 Zeros to ward off a Flying Fortress raid and three of those fighter planes were shot down. One fortress was lost but the crew was rescued.

Since the base has been under almost constant attack since Dec. 9, it appears that the Japanese have not been successful in using it on other than a temporary basis.

NAZIS REPORTED TAKING FRENCH LABOR BY FORCE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Germany has abandoned the pretense of seeking French "volunteers" to work in Germany since the invasion of unoccupied France and has begun taking men by force, Fighting French headquarters here said today.

Based on reports received from the "underground," the Fighting French said the men, principally between 20 and 30 years old, were seized in large numbers and transported to Germany without notice and without opportunity to inform their families. The seizures are said to be made in the industrial centers of eastern France, frequently while the men are at work. As many as 35 per cent of the total force at some plants have been taken at one time, the reports said.

While working in Germany is the ostensible purpose of the seizures, the Fighting French said a second purpose is served by wiping out centers of anti-Nazi sentiment in French territory.

CHINESE CIRCLE JAP FORCE ALONG YANGTZE RIVER

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Japanese in the area of Hosueh, on the middle Yangtze, have been routed and are facing imminent annihilation within a Chinese ring, an army communique announced tonight.

The Japanese, who had held the river port for two days, were reported yesterday to have been driven out with loss of 400 to 500 men. The Chinese recapture of Hosueh again endangered the invaders' communications between their big Hankow base and most westerly outpost at Ichang.

The Japanese were reported also to have been repulsed twice in attacks at Changtung, in Honan province; and in eastern Kwangtung, the communique said.

Chicago Marine Wounded in Savo Battle, Recovering

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 19 (AP).—Three marines, wounded last month in the naval battle of Savo Island [in the Solomon group], are recovering in a naval hospital in the San Francisco bay region. They are Sergt. John M. F. Egan, of Chicago; Pvt. Clifford C. Spencer, Anderson, Ind., and Pvt. Forrest F. Poore, Sacramento, Cal. It was in this battle that Rear Adm. Daniel J. Callaghan lost his life.

REPORTS BANDITS TOOK $150.

Harry Yegendorf, 1400 Roosevelt road, reported to police yesterday that two Negroes who held him up in front of his home escaped with $150.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; SOLDIER AND HIS PARENTS KILLED

An elderly couple and their soldier son were killed early today when their car was struck by a speeding westbound North Western railroad passenger train on U. S. highway 330, three miles east of Geneva, at the Kane-Du Page county line.

The victims were August Thurnau, 70 years old, and his wife, Elise, 69, of Crystal Lake, Lake county, and their son, Walter, 28, an army staff sergeant.

Auto Carried 300 Feet.

Their car, a light sedan, was carried more than 300 feet by the impact and burst into flames when it was thrust from the right of way.

Deputy sheriffs from Geneva removed the charred and mangled bodies from the burning car and removed them to a Geneva undertaking establishment.

Deputy Blames Snowstorm.

Deputy Byron Scott of Kane county said that the automobile was traveling in the same direction as the train as it approached the diagonal crossing. Scott believed that the driver failed to see the train's headlights because of the heavy snowstorm.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 629 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 479 died in Chicago where 18,968 were injured during the same period.

JURY DISAGREES ON SON'S GUILT IN MOTHER'S DEATH

Judge Donald S. McKinlay of the Criminal court yesterday ordered a mistrial in the trial of Joseph Ruff, 53 years old, charged with the murder of his 84 year old mother, after a jury of eight men and four women announced its inability to agree on a verdict. Judge Rudolph Desort is expected to set a date for a new trial tomorrow. Ruff denied on the witness stand that he slew his mother. He found her dying on the floor of their home at 1818 South Springfield avenue last Sept. 4, he said.

BRITISH DRIVE ROMMEL 155 MI. BEYOND AGHEILA

Fleeing Axis Forces Reach Sirte Area.

LONDON, Dec. 19 (AP).—The British 8th army, in swift pursuit of Marshal Erwin Rommel's remnants, pushed its spearhead 120 miles west of El Agheila today, some 35 miles behind the Germans and Italians whose main force reached the Sirte area, 240 miles short of Tripoli, despite intense bombing.

In flight across Mussolini's last African colony the Africa corps abandoned Zauta en Nofilia, a natural defense position, without a fight, but leaving thousands of mines and booby traps to slow the pace of Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery.

The Morocco radio said the most advanced elements of the 8th army had reached a point 19 miles from Sirte, which is 155 miles beyond El Agheila, but there was no confirmation from any other source.

Take Over Air Field.

The British made no mention of the axis troops, said to number 10,000, reported trapped between Marble Arch and the Wadi [gulch] Matratin, indicating the Germans might have broken the block and enabled at least some to continue their flight west with the main body of Rommel's force.

The Berlin radio said that "Rommel's rearguard, in high fighting fettle, has linked up with the main body of the axis army."

The sky ruling British and United States air forces based planes on a new advanced air field yesterday and "carried out successful attacks on the retreating enemy in the Sultan area," 30 miles west of Zauta en Nofilia. British submarines sank three axis supply vessels and damaged another.

Fighting in Tunisia was confined largely to patrol actions and air raids. Bombers of the 8th army heavily attacked Tunis and its port of La Goulette on Thursday night, setting fires and causing large explosions.

Bomb Italian Bases.

Two transport planes were shot down over Sicily, and the axis bases at Trapani and Marsala there were attacked. Marsala is a seaplane base and at both places, the British said, many planes were damaged.

Four troop-laden transport planes flying north from the Tripoli coast were attacked. One fell and the others were damaged. This hinted that Rommel might be moving his men into Tunisia by air.

The 8th army air support of the British 1st army in Tunisia emphasized the squeeze on the axis, but since Montgomery was still nearly 400 miles from the border of southern Tunisia, the day when the fighters could shuttle between the fronts still was distant.

The United States communique said heavy bombers raiding Bizerte harbor hit and damaged an enemy warship and shot down three fighter planes yesterday. Hits also were reported scored at Sousse on the railroad station, the engine shed, a freight train, and other targets. The railway at Mateur and an enemy air field also were bombed.

Four Planes Missing.

In the southern Tunisian sector fighters attacked ground targets and destroyed an enemy fighter, the communique said. It also reported an Italian bomber shot down by a reconnaissance plane on Thursday. Four planes were missing from all the operations.

The British, American, and French forces were deployed in northern Tunisia on a line generally 35 miles from their goals, at Tunis and the naval base of Bizerte, commanding the Mediterranean narrows.

Heavy rains were drying up, but the terrain still was soft, and both forces were drawing up heavy reënforcements for renewal of the battle. The axis has between 25,000 and 30,000 first line troops guarding the northern and eastern Tunisian coast from Bizerte to the Tripolitanian border. They hold Sfax, Sousse, and Gabes on the east coast, but the allies apparently exercise a tentative control over the rest of the French protectorate, which is about the size of Alabama.

Nazis Bomb Troops.

The German communique said Nazi and Italian planes continually bombed enemy troops "in readiness to attack near Medjez-el-Bab," 35 miles southwest of Tunis. They claimed 18 allied planes were destroyed at the cost of three. The Italians said "great damage" was caused to civilian buildings in an allied raid of Sousse where 38 were killed.

The Germans said their "operations" in Tripolitania "continued according to plan," but gave no hint of the extent of their flight. They claimed the destruction of 21 tanks and said Tobruk and the Lucca air field on Malta were bombed. A large merchant ship was reported damaged northwest of Bengazi.

The Italians, however, admitted that the Tripolitanian battle had shifted to the "Sirte area," but said the British did not exert great pressure.

U. S. General Decorated.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 19 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Frank Andrews, commander of United States forces which played a vital part with Britain's 8th army in ejecting the axis from Egypt and most of Libya, was awarded the distinguished service medal today.

One of five United States generals who are pilots, Andrews was in charge of United States air forces in the Panama Canal Zone at the start of the war.

ROMMEL PLOWS UP AIR FIELDS IN DASH THRU LIBYA

Mines and Traps Also Stud Deserted Landing Strips.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 19.—Allied air forces are pressing the enemy so hard in his retreat across Libya that Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel now is plowing up air fields many miles behind his own lines in an effort to relieve the strain on his rear guard from allied air attack.

Our fighter squadrons have been operating from air fields within a few hours after they have been evacuated by the enemy.

The latest practice of plowing up the air fields as soon as he stops using them himself is Rommel's way of trying to make allied fighters and fighter bombers lag behind the advancing allied ground troops.

Dig Trenches Across Fields.

Besides plowing up the fields, Rommel is digging trenches across many of them, and studding them thickly with mines. He also is leaving scores of booby traps attached to anything and everything that can be used to conceal them.

A pilot friend told me that he and two companions found an enemy transport plane, abandoned and undamaged, on an airfield. They looked it over, saw nothing that appeared suspicious, so climbed into it and tried the controls.

They raised and lowered the pilot's seat; wiggled the rudder, ailerons and elevator; tried nearly everything, and found all in perfect order. Then they tried to start the engine, but found the batteries were gone.

Engineer Saves Their Lives.

As they walked away an engineer officer came up and said:

"Don't touch anything in that aircraft. I have disconnected 13 booby traps so far, but there may be more. There were five pounds of high explosive under the pilot's seat, among other things. I've removed the battery in case any were attached to it."

Where our advanced troops now are operating, mines are much less numerous, but extreme caution in advancing still is necessary.

CROWN PRINCE'S SON DIVORCES WIFE AFTER YEAR OF MARRIAGE

BERLIN, Dec. 19 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The grandson of the the late Kaiser Wilhelm II., Prince Hubertus Von Preussen, 32, third son of the former crown prince, has divorced his young wife, the former Baroness Von Humboldt, after a year of married life, Transocean News agency reported today.

Transocean said the baroness was a society beauty, but by Hollenzollern standards was not eligible to marry into the family. The couple was childless.

The kaiser's widow, Hermine, Transocean said, arrived in Berlin from Doorn some time ago and took residence at the so-called Niederlaendische palais on Unter den Linden, owned by the Hollenzollerns. Official Berlin took no notice of her arrival, but she is a "cherished guest" in diplomatic circles and Berlin society. She is still deeply veiled but wearing the famous Hohenzollern jewels.

Costa Rican President to Visit Panama and Mexico

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Dec. 19.—President Rafael Calderon Guardia has been invited by the president of Mexico, Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, to visit Mexico, and with the formal approval of congress, he is contemplating a visit during the ensuing year, including a visit to Panama.

SIX NAZI RAIDERS ATTACK BRITAIN; 3 DOWNED, 3 HIT

LONDON, Dec. 19 (AP).—Three out of six Focke-Wulf 190 fighter bombers which tried sneak raids over the southeast coast of England today were shot down and the remaining three were damaged.

The first group of four came in a cloud cover. British fighters shot one down, while anti-aircraft fire destroyed another and damaged the other two. An hour later two more tried to cross the coast near Selsey. R. A. F. fighters destroyed one, and the other, badly damaged, fled.

Some damage was done by bombs in one town, but nobody was seriously hurt, an official announcement said.

4 Czechs Slain for Treason, Killing Cattle, Swedes Hear

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet reported today that German authorities in Prague had executed two Czechs for treason and put to death two others for illegally slaughtering cattle. The paper also reported that a German welfare worker at Kiel had been hanged for keeping clothes and food collected for the relief of Germans.

HOLDS UP HOTEL CLERK.

A bandit who entered the lobby of the Cedar hotel, 1118 North State street, early yesterday morning held up the clerk, Edward Lane, and took $61 from him.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Mrs. Anna Kosac, 87 years old, 1415 Erie street, died in her home yesterday of a heart attack.

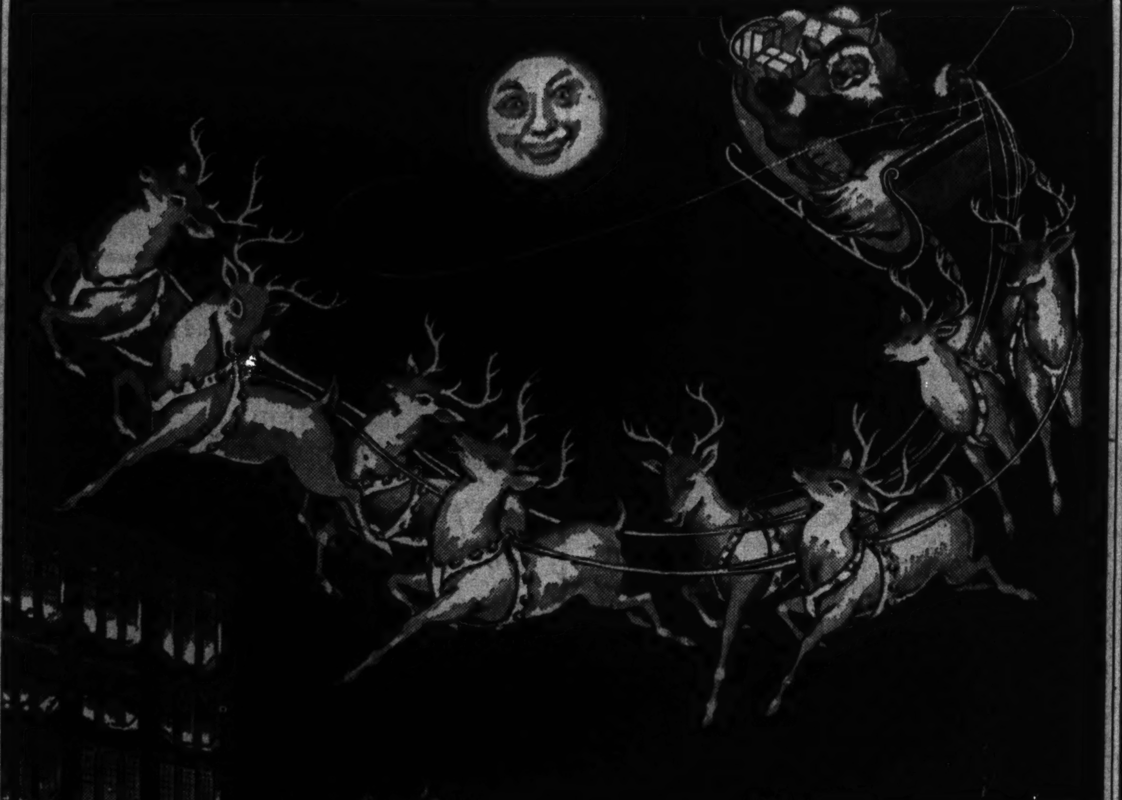
Bring the Children to See Santa—



Gigantic Display Over 100 Feet Long—the Talk of Chicago

SANTA AND HIS REINDEER—At OLSON RUG CO.

Spectacular Sight High in the Skies—Carol Singers

See Santa, and his reindeer, riding high over the tree tops. All beautifully decorated in the gay, bright colors Santa likes so well. It's a natural, larger than life-size display, more than 100 feet long and swings through the air fully 40 feet above the trees. And in the background, a soft fluorescent moon looks down on the jolly scene with kind indulgence. At night, soft lights on the display give an effect of striking reality.

52-Foot Christmas Tree

Adding its gayety to the scene is a 52-foot Christmas tree—one of the largest in Chicago—beautifully decorated.

Lovely Music, Too

Appropriate Christmas music completes one of the most impressive Holiday fantasies imaginable.

Hear Carol Singers

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, December 21, 22, and 23, the famous "Town Tunsters" featuring Viola Dennis will entertain from 5 in the afternoon until 8 P. M. in Olson Factory Salesroom.

On Monday night, beginning at 8:15 P. M., the choir from the Ebenezer Lutheran Church will give a program of Christmas music. Tuesday night, also at 8:15, the men's and boys' chorus from St. Peter's Episcopal Church will sing, to be followed Wednesday night by a program given by the St. Peter's Lutheran Church Choir.

Public Invited

You are cordially invited to see these displays and to hear the concerts at the Olson Rug Co. Salesroom, 2800 Crawford (Pulaski) at Diversey. The displays are open every day and night, until 11, including Sundays. There is no charge.

MEN OF CHICAGO AREA DECORATED FOR VALOR IN AEF

U. S. Flyers in Britain and Africa Honored.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Chicagoland states again were prominently represented in a new list of hero awards announced today by the United States army 8th air force headquarters. Of 55 decorations given, one distinguished flying cross, 11 air medals, and 2 oak leaf clusters [equivalent to a second air medal] went to flyers from that area for achievements in bombing raids over occupied Europe.

The distinguished flying cross went to Capt. Robert C. Williams of Flint, Mich., a Flying Fortress pilot. Leaving the target area, his plane was attacked by Focke-Wulf 190s. Altho members of his crew were wounded, fire broke out in the radio compartment, and his control cables were shot away, Williams "with great courage and exceptional flying skill" finished his mission and landed safely."

Shot Down Nazi Planes.

Air medals were awarded to Sergeants Allan F. Meaux of Madison, Wis., and Parley D. Small of Fairfield, Ia., each of whom shot down an enemy fighter while returning from the bombing at St. Nazaire, France, on Nov. 23. They were crew members of the famous Flying Fortress piloted by Lt. William J. Casey of San Francisco, Cal., whose crew destroyed a total of seven German planes in 12 minutes.

Other air medals were awarded to Col. Stanley T. Wray, Muncie, Ind.; Maj. James W. Wilson, Bowling Green, O.; Capt. Oscar H. Coen, Carbondale, Ill.; Lt. Stanley M. Anderson, Indianapolis, Ind.; and Sergeants Clark A. Ehrhardt, Beecher, Ill.; Robert G. Mumaw of Indianapolis, Ind.; John D. Sullivan, Minneapolis, Minn.; Wilbur H. Elliott, McCordsville, Ind., and William E. Howard, New Boston, Mich.

Oak leaf clusters were awarded to Lt. Carl E. Schultz, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Sergt. Richard S. Sedore, Detroit, Mich.

Doolittle Cites 84.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Dec. 16 [Delayed] — (AP). — Three distinguished flying crosses, two silver stars, and 79 other awards were conferred on airmen of the 12th United States air force today by Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle for outstanding performances in the North African campaign.

Capt. Robert M. Ritchie of Morrison, Ill., was decorated with the DFC by Gen. Doolittle on behalf of Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, allied commander in chief.

Capt. Ritchie was cited "for extraordinary achievement as pilot of a photographic reconnaissance plane on a mission over Bizerte and Tunis Dec. 7," when in order to get urgently needed photographs he spiralled down thru heavy clouds, braving heavy ground fire, and returned home despite a Messerschmitt 109 attack which disabled his starboard engine.

Oak Parker Honored.

An air medal with oak leaf cluster was awarded Spitfire Pilot 1st Lt. Charles C. Kenworthy Jr., Shenandoah, Ia., for courage and ability in operations near Oran Nov. 8.

Col. Lauri S. Norstad, Oak Park, Ill., won a silver star for direction of operations the first three days "at great personal risk" on an airdrome near Oran which was "under constant hostile artillery fire and enemy bombardment."

Air medals were awarded to Sergt. Orville S. Splitt, Ripon, Wis.; Lieutenants B. I. Woodhull, Fort Wayne, Ind.; J. M. Olbinski, 3914 Dawson avenue, Chicago; C. P. Henry, Charleston, Ill.; E. A. Riley, North Webster, Ind., and J. H. Chamption, Chicago; Staff Sergt. G. L. Bahr, Pentleton, Ind.; Lieut. E. F. Humphrey, Flint, Mich.; Capt. Frank A. Hill, Wauwatosa, Wis., and Capt. Charles E. Wilson, Mount Clemens, Mich.

Cripps Takes Over Plane Plant on Worker Complaint

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—The British radio reported tonight that Brittain's new minister of aircraft production, Stafford Cripps, has "taken over control of a big aircraft factory near London after the workers had complained of lack of planning and coöperative spirit on the part of the management." The workers had called for a ministerial inquiry, but it was announced tonight that Cripps has nominated a new managing director from his ministry to take complete charge of the factory, the broadcast, heard by CBS, added.

Report Greek Guerrillas Raid Italians, Kill 60

MICHIGAN FLYER SETS A RECORD FOR HIKING BACK

Makes Longest Trek to Tunisian Base.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AN AMERICAN TASK FORCE IN TUNISIA, Dec. 11 [Delayed].—His trouser cuffs were turned up, from one hand dangled an extra pair of shoes, and his aviator's cap sat at a jaunty angle as he walked into the headquarters of this advanced fighter base today and said, "Hello, Jim," as if he just had come back from down the road.

Lt. R. F. Gustke, of Port Huron, Mich., had just finished the longest trip back of any American pilot shot down in this theater of the war.

Gustke's plane, a Lightning fighter, was shot down near Bizerte on Dec. 5. On that day our planes were jumped by a swarm of German fighters—the greatest number so far encountered. This was only a few days after Germany poured air reënforcements into this front.

Bags Nazi Plane.

Gustke was so glad to get back; had so many pals to see, and so many other things to do, that he had very little time to tell of his experience.

He had shot down a Messerschmitt 109 and twice had turned for home only to return to the fight to help his pals out of trouble. He managed to put some bullets into two other planes before two others shot one of his engines and smashed up some of his controls.

Losing altitude rapidly, Gustke had no chance to bail out. So he picked a small knoll and crash landed, getting a few bruises. Jumping out quickly, he set fire to the plane and then ducked for cover just as a German plane returned to strafe him.

Gustke came down where allied commandos were operating, but not near enough to get help from them, so he started walking. A friendly Arab provided him with food and a horse. For 15 hours Gustke rode the horse, and then a motorcyclist gave him a lift.

Returns on Truck.

His next conveyance was a hospital supply truck, which he rode to an airport, where he hitched a ride on a troop transport. The transport brought him here today.

Gustke's spirit is typical of the youngsters flying our fighters and bombers, in all kinds of weather and often from landing fields ankle deep in Tunisian mud. When Maj. Gen. Jimmie Doolittle recently sent word that the pilots should be relieved they replied, thru their commanding officer:

"Hell, no. Let's stay here and fight. We like it."

Battlefront Is Quiet.

Since the last battle for this mountain pass, the "front" has been quiet—similar to the position in the north, where the combined British-American force is awaiting supplies and more men before continuing their offensive.

But the word "quiet" does not mean any lack of activity. The war here still is very fluid. We hold certain strong points, which represent our front, while the Germans and Italians facing us hold certain other strategic towns.

Meanwhile, the opposing forces meet in patrol activity. To date we have been lucky, not losing a man to axis patrols seeking to learn our strength.

Patrols Take 30 Italians.

Only last night one of our patrols struck into the newest small town to be occupied by the axis, taking 30 prisoners—all Italians. The night before last, a light patrol penetrated the center of the town and found the streets deserted, no outposts, and Italians sleeping in the railroad depot. The following night a stronger patrol surrounded the depot and took most of the enemy force.

REPORTS TWO FUR COATS STOLEN.

Two fur coats valued at $1,700 were stolen from the apartment of Mrs. Claire Hilmer, 190 East Chestnut street, she told police yesterday.

DAKAR WARSHIPS NOW AID ALLIES, BRITISH REVEAL

Join Convoys in Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Adm. A. B. Cunningham.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, Dec. 19 (AP).—Small warships from the French fleet at Dakar already are being used to escort allied convoys both in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean, Adm. Andrew Browne Cunningham, allied naval commander in North Africa, revealed today in an optimistic survey of the shipping situation in this war theater.

Allied ships have "absolute freedom of movement at both ends of the Mediterranean," he declared at a press conference, adding that allied troops in Algeria and Tunis "will not be going short of anything."

The axis, Cunningham asserted, is losing an average of a ship a day, on the other hand, in its efforts to rush supplies and reënforcements to its troops in Tunisia and Libya.

Scuttling Aided Allies.

The scuttling of the French fleet at Toulon undoubtedly eased the Mediterranean position to some extent, the allied commander acknowledged, but he said he personally "never had believed the fleet would be used against us."

Other units of the French flotilla at Dakar will join the allied convoys as fast as they are refitted after their long inactivity, he said.

"Some hundreds of ships both of the United States and the British navy are supporting the effort in this theater," Cunningham said. "Altho to shore observers there may seem to be little happening at sea, we are astonishingly busy.

"Millions of tons of stores have been landed in this area, showing the magnitude of the effort both by the United States and by the United Kingdom."

Subs, Planes Aid Operations.

Among the major contributing factors to the successful operations were the performances by allied submarines and the fleet air arm operating from Malta and by allied air forces based in North Africa, he said.

Altho the admiral was optimistic concerning the Mediterranean situation in general, he discouraged any extravagantly rosy views.

"I do not think you ever can really dominate a sea until you destroy all the enemy's forces," he said. "Our enemy still is strong. The Italian fleet, for example, is as strong as it ever was, except for cruisers."

Methods of combating the submarine menace were improving, he said, but added: "I still think the submarine campaign against us in various waters is the greatest menace the united nations have to face in this war."

Contrasting allied and axis strength in Tunisia, Cunningham said the axis originally had the faster build-up, but now definitely has been outdistanced.

CURRAN NAMED SECRETARY OF STATE IN N. Y.

New York, Dec. 19 [Special].—Gov. Elect Thomas E. Dewey today appointed Thomas J. Curran, chairman of the New York county Republican committee, as secretary of state. The office carries with it a salary of $12,000 a year.

Curran, 44 years old, is a graduate of Fordham university. He served in the first World war as a second lieutenant of infantry. He is a member of the law firm of Curran & Stim. He was an assistant United States attorney from April 2, 1928, to Aug. 31, 1931.

Mr. and Mrs. Curran have two sons, Paul Jerome, 9, and John Daniel, 3.

WAVES TO SCRAP ALL QUOTAS FOR RECRUIT DRIVE

All quotas limiting the number of WAVES [women's auxiliary in the navy] have now been removed, Lt. Mary Daily, officer in charge of recruiting in the 9th naval district, announced yesterday. This statement comes in advance of an intensified drive for recruits which is expected to begin next month when the first groups of women inducted will finish their training courses in the various universities coöperating in the program.

The educational requirement for enlisted personnel [V-10 program] has been changed from a minimum of high school education to two years of high school plus sufficient business experience to make up the difference.

Previously all candidates had to write applications to Lt. Daily, room 1175, New Postoffice building, before being granted an interview. They can now go directly to the office if that is more convenient than writing first.

The enlisted women must be 20 to 35 years old, inclusive.

The WAVES are also recruiting technicians for the hospital corps—dental, X-ray, and clinical technicians, physio-therapists, and occupational therapists.

The WAVES will also accept candidates for officers' training at Smith college in Northampton, Mass. These women [V-9 class] must be 20 to 49 years old, inclusive, have a college degree or two years' college plus business or professional experience.

Claim British Will Not Get French Warships in Egypt

LONDON, Dec. 19 (AP).—The German controled Paris radio broadcast a report today that Vice Adm. Rene Codefroy had refused to place at the disposal of the British the French warships now immobilized at Alexandria, Egypt. [There was no immediate confirmation of the Paris report from any allied source.]

SHELDON CLARK DROPS OUT OF MAYORAL FIELD

Committee Again Studies List of Prospects.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Out of a welter of discussion yesterday emerged the report that Sheldon Clark has withdrawn from the race for the support of the regular Republican organization in the G. O. P. mayoral primary. The oil company executive and sportsman had been considered the leading prospective candidate.

Clark could not be reached and the reasons for his dropping out were not learned. In 1923 and in 1931 he withdrew after entering the mayoral preliminaries.

Almost back where they started two weeks ago, the candidate seekers labored for four hours in yesterday's closed session. Again they reviewed the records and vote getting possibilities of the list of the 15 remaining names. Once more fusionists trotted out their Democratic entries—State's Atty. Thomas J. Courtney and County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki.

Look Ahead to 1944.

With recent Republican successes statewide and downstate on the books, the conferees felt impelled to use the utmost care in picking the man who will challenge the Kelly-Nash machine April 6. But they wanted not only a winner, but one who could be depended upon to help the party on to victory in the 1944 national convention and election.

"The problem still requires a great deal of discussion," said Chairman John T. Dempsey of the mayoral subcommittee. "There has been no consensus. But we know that we have to move along, with Dec. 30 as the date for filing petitions."

The lack of a decision upset the predictions of some outsiders that the choice would be made as soon as Gov. Dwight H. Green and Sen. Wayland Brooks conferred. With Attorney General George F. Barrett and State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder they met with the subcommittee of 10.

Among those considered are Attorney Roger Faherty, who has said flatly that he is eager to run; Attorney General Barrett, who has not made his wishes known, and Speaker Elmer J. Schnackenberg of the Illinois house of representatives.

Believes Kelly Will Run.

The Democrats, who are moving steadily in the direction of reslating Mayor Kelly, jibed at the efforts of the G. O. P. thru Albert J. Horan, chairman of the county executive committee, who said:

"If any party is at a loss for a first class candidate it isn't the Democratic. Not only the branches of local government, but business, industry, and labor are confident that Mayor Kelly will consent to run."

With the fusion movement waning, some Democrats now think that State's Atty. Courtney is sizing up his own party's primary. It is regarded as certain that he would have stronger organized support than he had in the 1939 mayoral primary.

Former Congressman James Simpson Jr., in the uniform of a first lieutenant of the marine corps, gave a "Christmas party" yesterday for a score of his former political associates. Briefly on leave between his 12 weeks refresher course of training and active service, Simpson told his Republican friends:

"While I'm away don't forget that it's up to you to win the war on the home front. If you don't, there won't be much satisfaction in winning the war abroad."

Upon entering the marines, Simpson resigned from the G. O. P. state central committee.

COST OF FOOD IS UP 7.8 PER CENT SINCE THE MIDDLE OF MAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Living costs of city families increased .7 per cent in the month ended Nov. 15, Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, reported today.

Most of the increase appeared in food items and in charges for personal and professional services. New taxes on cigarets, cigars, telephone calls, and transportation also contributed to the general increase. Food costs have increased 7.8 per cent since the middle of May and costs of all other goods and services have risen .6 per cent.

As of Nov. 15, the index of living costs for city wage earners and lower salaried workers increased to 119.8 per cent of the 1935-'39 average and 21 per cent above costs in August, 1939.

In Chicago the cost of living increased .4 per cent between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15. This was 19.4 per cent higher than the 1935-'39 figure.

STORE ROBBER GETS $200.

After terrorizing four women customers and the manager of a clothing store at 6808 South Halsted street, an armed robber took $200 from the cash register Friday.

MARINE ACE, 21, TELLS HOW HE BAGGED 11 JAPS

Kin of Tribune Religion Editor Visits City.

First Lt. Jack E. Conger, 21 year old marine corps fighter pilot who has 11 Jap planes and half a Jap destroyer to his credit, was in Chicago yesterday after 43 days of fierce aerial warfare in the skies over Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons.

Lt. Conger, who was wounded twice during one of the numerous dog fights in which he participated, said his narrowest escape from death came when a Jap Zero flyer attempted to kill him with a concealed pistol as Conger was helping rescue him from the water. The gun, only six inches from Conger's head, failed to fire when the Jap pulled the trigger.

"The Jap was lucky, too," Lt. Conger added. "The gun again failed to fire when he put it to his own temple in a suicide attempt."

The boyish looking marine flyer came to Chicago for a week-end visit with his aunt and uncle, the Rev. John Evans, religion editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and Mrs. Evans. Last night he told of some of his exploits in a broadcast over radio station W-G-N.

Bags Most Prizes on Sundays.

As a member of fighter squadron 212, Lt. Conger bagged most of his prizes on succeeding Sundays. He calls Sunday his lucky day. He is in the United States on a 30 day leave and was accompanied to Chicago by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Conger, who live in Des Moines, Ia. His father is an official of the North Western Bell Telephone company.

Lt. Conger believes the Japs have lost so many flyers that they have been reduced to using "second string" pilots in the southwest Pacific fighting.

The flyer's "closest call" occurred on Oct. 25. While out of ammunition, he deliberately crashed his Grumman Wildcat into a Jap Zero plane which was rushing at him headon with all machine guns spitting fire. The ensuing crash, which tore the Jap plane apart, sent Lt. Conger's ship spinning from 1,500 feet into the bay below. He had scarcely time to bail out before it hit the water.

Another Foe Falls Near By.

On coming to the surface he could see no more of his enemy who had "disintegrated in the sky." But on looking up he saw another Jap ship in flames and the pilot wafting earthward to plummet into the bay not more than 20 yards from where Lt. Conger was afloat.

"It was around 10:30 a. m. when this happened," Lt. Conger said, "and it was not more than a half hour or so before a Higgins boat came out to pick me up. They thought the other pilot was one of our men, too, but I told them I was sure he was a Jap because I had seen the color on his life jacket and knew it was Jap issue.

"We went over to where the Jap was floating and when we got up to him he tried to push our boat away. The marines aboard the boat wanted to kill him. But I said, 'No, let's not do that.' So we got a boathook thru his belt and a couple of marines and I started to pull him up. We got him hoisted about half way when the devil pulled his revolver out of the water and aimed it point blank at my head, not more than 6 inches away. He pulled the trigger but there was only an empty click.

Experience "Terrifies" Flyer.

"I was so terrified and sick I just tumbled back in the boat. The Jap fell back into the sea when we let go of him and then put the same pistol to his own head and again pulled the trigger. But again there was only an empty click.

"We then went at him with an empty water can and hit him over the head with it. He went down but came up and was still conscious and wanting to fight. We had to go to work on him with the grappling hook which we used as a club to hit him over the head. We finally knocked him out and when we got him aboard we found he had been burned on the face and hands.

"I have his flying suit as a souvenir. I looked for the gun he used in trying to kill both me and himself but it had disappeared. He was a sullen fellow. When I went to take a look at him in the prison camp he just sat and stared. All I could get out of him was that he had been attending Tokio university. For a Jap, tho, he was clean cut and pretty good looking."

This incident climaxed an eventful two hours of action.

Jap Zeroes "Fill Air."

"Jap Zeros filled the skies that day and were jumping everything that took off from the field," Lt. Conger said. "They started coming over at 8:30 a. m. and never let up until 5 that night.

"Out on patrol that morning with Lieutenants Stout, Drury, and Faulkner the fun began when we spotted three Jap cans [destroyers] in the harbor. We asked radio permission to strafe them and when it was given we moved right down on the ships and gave them one swell going over. We were using .50 caliber bullets and had only machine guns and no cannon.

"I could see the crews running around on the decks and the next day our colonel got a report from Gen. Geiger that two of the 'cans' had been sunk. The general said we had done the job, altho I didn't see how it was possible. However, I'm only a lieutenant and not one to question a general. With four of us in the attack that gave us half a destroyer apiece."

After the air attack on the destroyers, Lt. Conger and his squadron companions returned to their base because Lt. Stout was running out of ammunition. They got Stout safely home then started back immediately to the scene of the battle which Lt. Conger says "looked like a lot of fun because there were plenty of Zeros around."

"Crazy Dog Fight Follows."

The "fun" they were looking for developed into a "crazy dog fight." The three marines had Zeros shooting at them from all directions and altho the Jap planes had greater maneuverability, Lieutenants Faulkner, Drury, and Conger got one apiece.

Lt. Conger saw the Jap he fought go down in flames and was on the tail of a second Zero when he saw a third Jap ship coming at him full speed.

"I didn't have more than four rounds of ammunition left," Lt. Conger said, "and when I let him have that a crazy notion came over me to see if I could cut his tail off.

"The Jap didn't give an inch until he seemed to be right in front of me. Then he pulled up. When he did that I was right under him. I shut my eyes, ducked down in the cockpit, and pulled on the stick.

"The Jap just seemed to fly apart. My ship went into a spin and out I hopped. It seemed like only two seconds before I was in the water."

Lt. Conger said he got back to base around noon "just at the tail end of mess—and I was hungry." They had given him a glass of grapefruit juice when he was taken from the water. "But the soup we had for lunch that day tasted mighty good," he added.

Still "Raring" to Fight.

Altho he had accounted for two Jap Zeros and half a destroyer in less than two hours, he wanted to go up with the afternoon flights.

"My colonel said I could take the rest of the day off, so I did, altho I couldn't see what I had done to deserve it," Lt. Conger said. "There are other fellows in the squadron like Gunner 'Tex' Hamilton, Maj. Frederick Payne, Col. Bauer, Lt. Stout, Lt. Drury, and plenty of other chaps who are lots better pilots and gunners than I am. I just happened to be lucky and it is embarrassing for me to be talking about the little I've done when the other fellows in the squadron deserve far more credit.

"From the time we got into Guadalcanal on Sept. 13 until we left the second time for the New Hebrides on Nov. 8, our squadron accounted for 91 Jap planes, both Zeros and bombers, and the two destroyers they gave us credit for."

A Philosopher at 21!

Lt. Conger is of slight build. He is five feet seven inches in height and weighs 143 pounds. At the end of the Guadalcanal fighting he admits he dropped to 135 pounds. He has keen blue eyes that seem to light as he snaps out his words. He is not a nervous person, but his hands and fingers twitch as he speaks. Philosophy that does not come from books rolls naturally from his tongue. He got part of it in the air over Guadalcanal, he admits.

For example he said: "When you're up there and the bullets are whizzing around you thick, you know for sure there is some one watching over you." Then again: "You'd go off your rocker if you started thinking about what was going to happen to you every day. You've just got to remember to steel yourself with the thought that you'll die only when your number is up. That may not be true. But you need the thought to get in there and pitch."

Prior to enlisting in the marine corps, which he joined March 15, 1941, Lt. Conger was a student at the South Dakota School of Mines. He was taking a course in metallurgy at the time. Now he is not sure he wants to be a metallurgist. He thinks that possibly he might like to make the marines a lifetime career after the war.

While in school he also took a C. P. T. [civilian pilot training] course. He received his commission as a second lieutenant Dec. 14, 1941, just seven days after Pearl Harbor. His marine training up to that time included instruction at bases in Jacksonville and Miami, Fla. At the latter station he was trained in carrier duty.

His squadron was newly formed when he arrived in Hawaii with Col. Joe Bauer in command. Lt. Conger admits he is "crazy" about Col. Bauer.

"He is one of the fightingest pilots that ever lived," he said. "I hear, however, he was reported missing Nov. 14 after I left Guadalcanal. I hope the report is untrue. If it's true I trust he's down on one of the nearby islands and will be picked up soon. There is a man for you. In one day he got four Zeros and one smoker [an enemy plane hit and trailing fire but not down] and had previously got a Jap bomber.

"Capt. Joe Foss—we called him 'Hollywood Joe'—is another marine pilot who is so wonderful you just can't describe him. Foss is with the 121st squadron. His home is in Sioux Falls, S. D. He has 29 Japs to his credit to date. What a man!"

Gets First Jap in Three Hours.

Lt. Conger got his first Jap, a bomber, within three hours after landing at Guadalcanal from the carrier Wasp on Sept. 13. During the fight he was hit twice by a Zero he didn't see. One bullet creased his left temple, the other his left foot. The squadron lost its second man during that first fight. He was Lt. Dick Haring of Muskegon, Mich. Another pilot, Lt. Clair Chamberlain of Rochester, Minn., was shot down during the scrimmage, but was rescued from a nearby island, where he had been living on coconuts for six days.

Lt. Conger got his first Zero Sept. 27. He says: "I'll never get over the thrill."

The Japs, he adds, are "smart alecks," and try to show off by performing loops and other stunts to taunt their attackers.

"But they pay for it," Conger said. "Their ships may be faster, have greater maneuverability and all that, but ours are armored and we have self-sealing gas tanks. The first Zero I plowed under on Sept. 27 was a show-off. But he got right in front of my guns in a half roll and I let him have it—for keeps."

[In tomorrow's TRIBUNE Lt. Conger will relate the day by day routine of a fighter pilot at Guadalcanal. He will describe the little pleasures and diversions that help keep nerves of heroes from cracking during the constant alert and tension of waiting for the next attack.]

Popular South African General Dies in Air Crash

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Dec. 19 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Dan Pienaar, commander of the famous first South African division and regarded as a brilliant desert fighter and tactician, has been killed in an air crash while flying to South Africa from the middle east, it was officially announced tonight. Eleven other soldiers, including a colonel, two lieutenant colonels, two majors and two captains, died in the crash. Gen. Pienaar was one of South Africa's most popular commanders.

A Brighter Christmas Tomorrow

WILL COME FROM WAR RESEARCH AND PRODUCTION TODAY

TODAY, in this season dedicated to the ideals of Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men, we are all joined in a world struggle to preserve those ideals for the future. With faith in our cause and confidence in our strength, we look forward with hope to the Christmas of tomorrow.

It is no idle wish that gives us this vision of the future. Come what may, we are prepared for the trials and sacrifices which are the price of Victory. And in the miracles which industrial America is performing for war, we see the dawn of a brighter day for all mankind.

With this incentive and inspiration, the men and women of Philco are serving every branch of our fighting forces. Tanks, planes and ships are fighting for freedom today, equipped with ingenious radio communications devices, fuzes, shells and storage batteries made on Philco production lines.

In all this, the special field of Philco's soldiers of production is the science of electronics. Here, their peacetime products have made Philco famous in millions of American homes. Now, under the grim whip of war, their laboratories are creating untold miracles of electronic science that might otherwise have waited years for the light of day. With Victory, their deadly purpose will be translated into new and undreamed-of wonders of comfort, convenience and entertainment. Yes, the life of tomorrow . . . the Christmas of tomorrow . . . will be happier and brighter for the scientific achievements of today.

For Victory . . . for this promise of the future . . . the message of Christmas 1942 is "Buy War Bonds." Buy them, regularly, so that our boys at the front can have the overwhelming superiority of fighting equipment which they need to conquer. Buy them so that, when Victory is won, you will have the means to enjoy the brighter Christmas tomorrow that will come from war research and production today.

DISCLOSE JAPS' VICTORY IN 1919 ON ISLAND CHAIN

Defeated U. S. Move for Marshalls and Carolines.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—The consequences of Japanese possession of the strategic Pacific islands formerly owned by Germany were foreseen and feared as long ago as 1919, the state department disclosed tonight, but a proposal by which the United States might have acquired them came to naught.

The island chains—the Carolines, Marianas, and Marshalls—now screen the Japanese homeland from attack and furnish powerful bases for enemy operations in the Southwest Pacific.

How this country, its hands tied against acquisition of territory at the Paris peace conference, was advised to help Germany regain the islands as a preliminary to their transfer later to the United States was disclosed with publication of official documents pertaining to the end of World War I.

Tied by Commitments.

When war began in 1914 the islands belonged to Germany. When peace came in 1918 it was Japan who had them, and far sighted Americans were perturbed. One of these was Breckinridge Long, then third assistant secretary of state and now assistant secretary.

Long prepared a memorandum for the United States delegation to the Paris peace conference. In this memorandum, which appears among two volumes of state papers issued tonight under the title "Paris Peace Conference, 1919," Long pointed out that the islands formed a screen separating Hawaii from the Philippines and menacing the naval communications of the United States.

In view of the fact that the United States was committed to a peace without annexation, Long could not recommend that this country demand some of the German islands.

Japs Violated Pledge.

Instead he recommended that the United States advocate return of the islands to Germany and that after the peace conference "the United States immediately enter into negotiations with Germany to obtain possession."

But instead the whole affair was settled by leaving the Carolines, Marshalls and Marianas in Japanese hands under a league of nations mandate with the understanding that Japan would not fortify them—an understanding which Japan violated.

The two volumes include hundreds of other documents, many of them never before published, shedding light on various phases of the preparations for the peace conference.

Letters and cables disclose how some of President Woodrow Wilson's advisers tried to persuade him not to sit in person at the peace table.

Relief Work U. S. Burden.

Contrasting with these are documents which might have been written today. Nov. 8, 1918, House cabled the President:

"Probably the greatest problem which will be presented to us upon the cessation of hostilities is the furnishing of food and other essential supplies to the civilian populations of Serbia, Austria, Bohemia, Germany, Belgium, and northern France. This relief work, together with the reconstruction of devastated regions, will have to be done almost entirely thru American effort and with the use of American food, raw materials, and finished products. Difficult questions of priority and the allocation of tonnage will be presented."

The two volumes will be followed by others covering all phases and problems of the peace conference, economic as well as political.

PLAN 5 COLLEGE ARMY AND NAVY CENTERS ABROAD

Plans to establish five overseas service centers for college men in the army and navy were formulated yesterday by directors of the American Alumni council, who are holding a three day annual meeting in the Edgewater Beach hotel. The centers will be set up in London, Algiers, Cairo, Sydney, and Chungking.

They will serve as recreation, entertainment, and information centers and provide an address exchange service and library facilities. The centers will be financed either thru coöperating colleges and universities or by a foundation of the council, an organization of 500 professional alumni workers from 300 large American colleges and universities.

Eugene Wilson of Amherst college is chairman of the planning committee for the centers. Robert Sibley of the University of California is president of the board.

WRIGHT DENIES ADVISING PUPILS TO DODGE DRAFT

Assails U. S. Judge for 'Hearsay' Ruling.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 19 (AP).—Frank Lloyd Wright made public a letter today he said he had written to Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, declaring that "for the safety of this nation such men as yourself should be deprived of any administrative authority whatever, right now."

The letter was in reply to Judge Stone's critical comments from the bench last Wednesday when he expressed belief that the minds of young men at Wright's private school at Spring Green, "Taliesin Fellowship," were being poisoned against the draft.

The court delayed action in the case of Marcus Weston, one of Wright's students charged with failure to report for induction, and urged him to leave the school and "stay away from that man Wright."

Called True Objector.

The architect said Weston was a true conscientious opjector but added that he would never take it upon himself to advise his students "what to do where their own lives were at stake." He added that 19 Taliesin students were now in service.

"As for conscription I think it has deprived the young men in America of the honor and privilege of dedicating themselves as freemen to the service of their country," his letter said. "Were I born 40 years later than 1869 I, too, would be a conscientious objector.

Hearsay Evidence Hit.

"You do not know me. I know you only as you debase your judgeship to throw stones at me. The quality of American fair play is sunk pretty low when a judge uses his office to sound off his prejudice against another man on mere hearsay.

"And we now have too much of it taking refuge under the name of government when it is no more than a passing administration. I have occasion to know well the arrogant prejudice raised against any man who refuses to run with the pack. But it is seldom that it comes from the place all American citizens hoped, and still hope, to keep free and impartial."

REVISE FUEL OIL PLAN ENTIRELY, GREEN AIDS ASK

OPA Relaxes Ration to Supply Dire Needs.

A demand that the fuel oil rationing program be completely revised was made yesterday as the office of price administration ordered further relaxation of restrictions which had created an outburst of protest in the Chicago area.

Developments of the day included:

1. The OPA changed its regulations to permit home owners who have exhausted current heating rations to purchase oil immediately. This new amendment is in addition to Friday's amendment which will permit the use of period 3 coupons on Dec. 23 instead of on Jan. 5 which was the date originally scheduled.

Green Group Urges Suspension.

2. Gov. Dwight H. Green's committee which heard complaints of the Burning Oil Distributors' association Thursday, issued its report calling for deferment of further fuel oil rationing until Feb. 6, while the objectionable system is overhauled. Under the committee's plan all users would receive two-thirds of the amount of oil they used in the corresponding period last year until the new rationing system went into effect.

3. The OPA postponed its deadline for the conversion from oil to coal of apartment houses, office buildings, and other commercial structures where shortage of labor or materials has impeded the changeover.

4. Frank E. Spencer, president of the Burning Oil Distributors' association, said the "piecemeal" remedies offered by the OPA in the fuel oil crisis still are far from reaching the heart of the trouble.

Immediate Relief Limited.

Under the new amendment announced in Washington by the OPA only home owners who have asked their local boards to review their rations and who have exhausted their currently valid coupons are eligible for immediate relief.

As interpreted by the office of John C. Weigel, regional OPA head, the amendment means that the householder may exchange period 3 coupons [which now become regularly usable on Dec. 23] for coupons of a fixed gallonage value which may be redeemed for oil at once.

This exchange is permitted only up to one-half the total gallonage allotted to the home owner for the next heating period. The "3" coupons will be exchanged at the present value of period "1" and "2" coupons—ten gallons a coupon for a residential coupon and 100 gallons for a commercial or apartment house coupon.

Value Not Yet Fixed.

While the gallonage value of period 3 coupons has not yet been set, it is thought that the coupons will probably have a higher value than those of period 1 or 2 in order to meet the weather conditions in this area, which have been colder than OPA expected.

Coupons received under the exchange plan announced yesterday will have, however, the same value as coupons which were regularly issued for the current heating period. The coupons which the consumer will receive in exchange will be those normally used to issue rations for cooking, lighting, industrial uses and purposes other than heating. Weigel's office said the amendment would continue to be effective thruout all the heating periods this winter.

The limitation of the use of coupons to designated heating periods was among the phases of the rationing plan which came under the attack of the committee named by Gov. Green. The governor yesterday, on receipt of the committee's report, immediately dispatched a copy to Leon Henderson, OPA head in Washington, urging immediate action and declaring that the governor agrees "heartily with the findings of the committee."

Cite Widespread Confusion.

The report was signed by Newton C. Farr, past president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; George W. Hubbard, a heating engineer, and Thomas J. Murray, business representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Conclusions reached by the committee from evidence presented at the meeting Thursday were:

"1. Widespread confusion has resulted from the enforcement of a complicated system of fuel oil rationing, which was not actually put into operation until more than two months after the date, Oct. 1, 1942, at which fuel oil rationing took effect.

"2. Because of the delay in issuing coupons, many homes and industrial establishments were left without oil supplies in extreme weather.

"3. Many users of fuel oil have already utilized their entire allotment of oil coupons for periods 1 and 2 and face a serious shortage before No. 3 coupons are available. [This is true even tho the date for using these coupons has since been advanced from Jan. 5 to Dec. 23.]

"4. Fuel oil allotments by the rationing boards have resulted in grave inequalities in reductions demanded of individual consumers, making it impossible for many users on the basis of these allotments to maintain even the 65 degree temperature which is the standard proposed under the federal rationing plan.

"5. Limitation on the use of coupons to fixed periods of time has needlessly increased the number of deliveries of fuel oil to consumers and has forced distributors to use from 25 to 40 per cent more truck miles and man hours to deliver the same amount of oil as formerly.

"6. The operation of the system has prevented proper storage of oil either in the consumers' reserve tanks or at bulk plants with the result that these plants, now depending exclusively on deliveries by truck from pipe lines or refineries, face a serious interruption of supplies in case of blizzards or protracted cold weather."

Favor Deferment of Plan.

With these indictments of fuel oil rationing, the committee listed recommendations for improvement, and in addition appended a plan calling for deferment of further rationing until Feb. 6, the beginning of the fourth thermal period as a method of aiding both consumers and distributors.

In brief, the committee recommended greater discretionary powers for local boards to adjust individual cases not only in accordance with the formula set up by OPA, but with cognizance of the individual's demonstrated needs, changes to permit full utilization of storage facilities, a more efficient distribution system to save manpower and tire mileage, and simplification of the entire system to make it clear to boards, consumers, and distributors.

Deferment of rationing until Feb. 6, the committee set forth, would provide time for the clearing of all applications and the receipt of coupons and allotments, in addition to allowing the distributor to become better adjusted to the rationing system. In addition, the deferment would enable the OPA to review allotments already granted.

In the period up to Feb. 6, the committee recommends that deliveries be made as follows:

"A. Consumers who have not obtained coupons to be entitled to two-thirds of the fuel purchased for the corresponding period in 1941-'42.

"B. Consumers who have obtained coupons where the allotment of oil is less than two-thirds of that purchased during the corresponding period in 1941-'42 to be entitled to two-thirds of the 1941-'42 period consumption; this new restriction terminating Feb. 6.

"C. Consumers who have obtained coupons where the allotment is more than two-thirds of the oil supplied in the corresponding period in 1941-'42 to be entitled to receive the full amount allotted. [This is to provide for all and not penalize those who have obtained coupons]."

The committee also suggested that distributors advise customers of the changes if they are adopted, investigate the amount of oil each customer has on hand at the time the program is placed in effect and give this information to rationing boards. It was also suggested that the distributor, whenever a customer has a tank less than 25 per cent filled at the end of any one period, be authorized to deliver a sufficient quantity of oil to fill the tank, supplementing the amount allotted to the customer in that period with coupons from the succeeding periods if necessary. Dealer authorization for the delivery of oil at any time in case of extreme need also was urged by the committee.

It is pointed out that the amendment made yesterday by OPA takes care to a certain degree of the emergency deliveries mentioned by the governor's committee.

Accompanying the OPA amendment was an announcement that the rationing administration is backtracking on its announced intention of refusing oil to those commercial establishments which do not immediately convert under fuel oil rationing. Previously commercial buildings convertible to coal were notified they would get fuel oil rations only until the end of the second heating period. The new action permits issuance of interim rations in an amount to be fixed by the local ration board, which will base its decision on the estimated time needed to complete the conversion.

Shortages of labor and materials have impeded conversion in many cases. Conversion is mandatory only for commercial buildings, altho home owners have been urged to convert voluntarily to ease the fuel oil demand and for their own comfort.

Spencer, commenting on OPA amendments, said that they are "piecemeal" in nature and still leave one of the principal difficulties of the oil rationing program to be reckoned with.

Must Use All Equipment.

"Our difficulty is in getting the oil to the homes," Spencer said, speaking for the Burning Oil Distributors' association. "The regulations are patently wrong because they do not allow maximum use of equipment.

"The rationers have forgotten the economics of delivery in their recommendations. We can't deliver enough oil at one time. If we had a surplus of man power and plenty of rubber there might be a slight chance for rationing to work from the distributors' standpoint. This little bit of salve from OPA won't do much good. We still can't deliver unless the consumers have the coupons, without breaking the law. The thermal period arrangement may have had some theoretical value, but it prevents getting full economic value from trucks."

RATION BOARD APPOINTMENTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 19 (AP).—Carter Jenkins, state director of the office of price administration, today announced the following appointments to local war price and rationing boards:

Carroll county, Harold Mackenzie, Savanna; Cook county [Barrington board], Mrs. Walter Straman, Barrington; Ford county, J. J. Lyons, Piper City, and W. S. Lamb, Gibson City; Greene county, F. A. Linder and J. E. Clark, both of Carrollton; Knox county, Neil Ritenhouse, Galesburg; Ogle county, Harold B. Walker, Kenneth B. Hamer, and Ken Swanson, all of Oregon; Pulaski county, L. W. Washington, Mounds; Raymond Hale, Grand Chain, and Mrs. Florida Westerman and Mike Winkler, both of Mound City.

TWO "L" STATIONS WILL BE PAINTED RED, WHITE, BLUE

Both "L" stations on State street in the loop are to be decorated in an all-over patriotic splurge of red, white, and blue, officials of the Rapid Transit company have informed Arthuh Thurnan, head of the advertising division of the Illinois war savings staff. The purpose, as is that of many other firms now painting trucks and buildings in the patriotic motif, is to help sell war bonds. Treasury department officials said that painting of a "war bond" bus here last winter has started a nation-wide movement for private firms to do their annual repainting work in red, white, and blue.

GASOLINE RATION COUPONS TRAVEL LONG, LONG ROAD

Lead a Busy Life Before They're Filed.

Your corner gasoline filling station owner can't afford to be a "nice guy" and sell you gasoline without ration coupons, Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan area director for the office of price administration, said yesterday.

The gasoline retailer under the rationing program is held accountable for every gallon of gasoline sold after midnight Nov. 30. He must at all times be able to demonstrate to the OPA that he has inventory and rationing coupons equal to the storage capacity of his gasoline tanks.

If he disposes of any gasoline without receiving the proper coupons, he becomes subject to a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment. So, to stay in business and out of jail, he must ask you for your coupons or deny you any gasoline.

How System Works.

Here is how the coupon system works:

When the retailer registered with his local rationing board, he reported his stock on hand as of Dec. 1 and his total storage capacity. He was given inventory coupons covering the difference between his inventory and capacity. Thus if he had 1,000 gallons in his 5,000 gallon tank he was given an inventory coupon for 4,000 gallons.

The retailer can use his inventory coupons to refill his tank. When he sells gasoline, he obtains the required number of coupons to cover the sale. These coupons are invalid unless they bear the license number of the vehicle for which the gasoline was sold. The coupons are pasted on gummed sheets—a separate sheet for each type of coupon.

When the retailer has his tank refilled, he turns over to his supplier [either a distributor or a gasoline refinery] enough coupons to equal the gasoline delivered.

Board Files Coupons.

The distributor in turn collects the gummed coupons from his customer and swaps them at his local rationing board for an exchange certificate, which represents the value of the bulky mass of coupons he has surrendered. The board retains the coupons in its files.

When the OPA installs its ration banking system thruout the country, the gasoline coupons collected by distributors will be turned in at their banks instead of at their local rationing boards. Each distributor will maintain an account—similar to a checking account—with his bank in which he will deposit his coupons and against which he will be able to write drafts to cover purchases from his supplier.

Banking Officer Named.

Russell Wilcox, formerly state food representative of the OPA in Wisconsin, has been named regional ration banking officer for the OPA with headquarters in Chicago.

When the licensed distributor makes his monthly state motor fuel tax report he attaches to the report exchange certificates covering his gasoline sales for the month. His tax report of gasoline sales will be checked against his exchange certificates by the state motor fuel tax administrator, who will certify the report or indicate irregularities.

The administrator later will send a copy of the tax return and the gasoline exchange certificates to the control and audit unit of the OPA gasoline rationing branch in Washington, D. C.

The OPA unit will audit the return and determine whether any gasoline has been sold improperly.

No Figures on Volume.

Mulcahy said the boards do not have sufficient clerks to maintain an up to date record of gasoline sales. The state motor fuel tax administrator, he said, will continue to be the only central source of statistics on gasoline sales.

He cautioned gasoline retailers to withhold gasoline sales from motorists who do not have their ration stickers on their windshields, who have not properly indorsed their ration books, or who fail to inscribe their license numbers on their coupons.

CONVENT DAMAGED BY FIRE.

Damage estimated at $300 was caused by a fire in a basement storeroom of Our Lady of Good Counsel convent, 3528 South Hermitage avenue, yesterday morning. Twenty sisters left the building while the blaze was being extinguished. None was hurt.

ORDER REMOVAL OF EASTERN GAS BAN TOMORROW

B and C Coupons' Value Cut One Gallon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—As indignation mounted along the eastern seaboard against the suspension of gasoline sales, the administration tonight moved to calm the storm.

Leon Henderson, price administrator, announced the suspension order would be lifted in the 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia at 12:01 a. m. Monday.

However, he announced that the value of B and C coupons would be reduced from four to three gallons. There will be no change in A card values in the 16 states in which their coupons are good for three gallons, but in West Virginia their value will be reduced from four to three gallons.

Act in Storm of Protest.

The administration acted hurriedly to lift the suspension after a storm of protest developed over the fact that the suspension came as congress adjourned, leaving the public without a sounding board.

One consideration reported to have prompted the lifting of the ban was the approaching holiday season.

Lack of gas to take hundreds of thousands of service men around on their holiday leaves could be expected to have a serious adverse effect on army morale, it was said.

The eastern suspension order was reported to have interfered with war production in the day and a half it has been in effect.

Failure to reduce the value of A cards, which are considered largely designed for pleasure driving, was interpreted as showing how anxious the administration was to get out of a hot situation.

Calls for Fuel Probe.

Henderson's new order was released as Sen. Francis Maloney [D., Conn.], chairman of a special senate committee investigating gasoline and fuel shortages, called a meeting of his committee for Monday to plan procedure for an investigation of the fuel snarl. Public hearings, he said, would open Jan. 4.

Earlier today James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, moved to quiet public anger by demanding explanations from three key officials involved in the tangle and calling for suggestions to straighten out the difficulty and safeguard against recurrences.

Calls Ickes and Eastman.

Byrnes announced thru the White House he had summoned Harold L. Ickes, war petroleum administrator; Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation coördinator, and Henderson to meet with him Monday on the problem.

Byrnes called on the officials to indicate "in what respects our existing policies and machinery may not be effective," and "what remedial action should be taken for the present and the future."

The gas sale suspension was ordered at noon Friday after office of price administration officials had disagreed on the wording of an order which they had planned to issue Thursday night halting gas sales to A card holders.

Shift in Viewpoint.

Henderson was asked if any crackdown on pleasure driving in the A classification was contemplated and said it would be enormously difficult to make regulations against pleasure driving. He said the important thing is to insure voluntary coöperation and let the people decide when they should drive.

Until he submitted his resignation as OPA director, Henderson had advocated compulsory rather than voluntary rationing.

Henderson said the program which reduces B and C coupon values also would call for:

1. Increasing emphasis on enforcement of regulations.
2. Immediate suspension from business of any gasoline dealer violating regulations, and withdrawal of ration books from consumers who may be in violation.
3. New controls over inventories of primary suppliers of gasoline.
4. Thoro review of the gasoline delivery system to bulk tanks and possibly tighter control of these points.
5. Requests to military authorities for care in using passenger cars.
6. Instructions to gasoline dealers to exercise the utmost caution.

"Desk Brigade" Is Present.

There was a sizable sprinkling of uniforms, all worn by men who have desk posts. Among them were the former ambassador to Bulgaria, Comm. George Earle; Col. Darryl Zanuck, the former movie production chief; Col. Sol Rosenblatt, ex-White House lawyer, and Maj. Lawrence Lowman, former radio executive. Also present was Robert Sherwood, author of "Idiot's Delight," and chief White House ghost writer.

Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones came back for a third helping of caviar, which President Roosevelt recently told a press conference he was giving up in calling on the nation to make every sacrifice to win the war.

In dancing which followed the eating Baruch led Mrs. Hopkins for the first dance, probably in recognition for his payment of the check.

OPA HEAD DENIES HE WASTED GAS ON ELECTION TRIP

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 [Special].—Leon Henderson, price administrator, today denied at his first press conference since the White House announced his resignation that he wasted gasoline by flying to his Millville, N. J., home to vote on election day. He explained that he accompanied a pilot who had to make the trip anyway, and added, "After all, I'm a human being, too." Henderson was nervous thruout the conference and shifted uncomfortably. He chewed gum instead of smoking his customary cigar, and the phrase "in my remaining days" crept into several of his comments.

RUBBER SOURCE HUNT TURNS TO A TROPICAL VINE

Cryptostegia Rises from Ornamental Plane.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Dec. 19.—At the moment, cryptostegia, a fast growing tropical and semitropical vine, is receiving major attention in a search for natural rubbers to supplement a tardy and speculative synthetic program and to avert a threatened breakdown in civilian transportation and in war production next fall. It is one of several botanical sources being explored by government and industry.

It was learned here today that SHADA [Societe Haitiana Americaine de Development Agricole], a wartime corporation backed by American money thru the Import-Export bank, plans a prompt planting of 100,000 acres of cryptostegia in Haiti, insular, independent republic of colored people, 750 miles southeast of here. It would comprise part of a 40 million dollar three year program that would include a planting of 1,200 acres of hevea, the tree which was the source of 95 per cent of the world's rubber before this war.

Met at Experimental Garden.

Two representatives of SHADA [names suppressed at their request] were met by this reporter at the United States plant introduction garden operated by the department of agriculture 13 miles south of Miami.

Cryptostegia has been grown there since 1925. Experiments in its practical usage have been underway there since 1930 but did not become intense until the Japanese captured sources of 90 per cent of the world's rubber supply. Hevea trees, which take four years to mature, also grow in this garden.

The visitors, Americans en route to Haiti, interviewed Harold F. Loomis, senior agronomist of the department of agriculture, who is in charge of rubber activities for the bureau of plant industry. They also interviewed John H. Heuer, formerly of Glencoe, Ill., a scientific aid, who several days ago returned to federal employment here after a leave with SHADA in Haiti.

18 Months to Harvest.

"From 100,000 acres," said Loomis as we walked between rows of vines with thin shoots from the ground six to nine feet long, like raspberry bushes, "there's an optimistic estimate that mature plants will produce 12,000 tons of rubber. These plants are nine months old and it will be another nine months before it will be practical to harvest them. It's difficult and expensive to harvest, but it's excellent rubber.

"Don't quote me as an expert who knows all about crypto," he added, as he noticed I was taking notes. "No one knows all about it. Those who say they do haven't been at it long. I've been studying it 12 years."

Heuer said that in Haiti a hundred acres have been planted and the first harvest has started.

"A worker with a pair of pruning shears walks between two rows of the vines," he continued. "He clips the shoot about a foot from the end, where it is about an eighth of an inch in diameter. Two or three drops of sap are directed into a bamboo trough. On a second clipping, three or four days later, there's a little ball of dried sap, a little ball of rubber, sealing the old wound, and this too is dropped into the trough.

Costly in Labor Time.

"The worker makes approximately 4,000 prunings to get one pound of rubber. So you see the rubber is pretty costly in labor, even in Haiti where the prevailing wage rate is 30 cents a day."

We came to a plot of mature cryptostegia, luxuriant entanglements on arbors about eight feet high.

"It's a cross between the grandi, the variety being cultivated for rubber, and the variety common in landscaping in Miami and in Mexico known as the purple allamando and as the Madagascar rubber vine. This household variety has less than the 2 per cent rubber which is considered the minimum for commercial production.

"The wild cryptostegia found in tropical Mexico is the grandi. The vines are escapes from domestic plantings. Crypto, the grandi variety, was brought to the western hemisphere in 1906 by Charles S. Dolley and its quick growth and its purple flower made it popular for ornamentation. The escapes are too scattered for harvesting.

"This hybrid has a higher yield. Its leaves are 8 per cent rubber and the entire plant is 2 per cent. But it's difficult and slow to propagate. It doesn't seed itself. It's produced by crossing the grandi with the purple allamanda."

The department of agriculture has another experimental planting near Victoria, Mexico, 250 miles south of Brownsville, Tex., where the New York News is growing 20 acres of cryptostegia. Brownsville and Miami are on the same parallel while Haiti is 400 to 540 miles closer to the equator.

Invents Pruning Tool.

"To increase the yield from the pruning," said Loomis, "we devised this little gadget."

He displayed a hand tool, a handle attached to a roller about 2 inches in diameter. On the rim of the roller were tack points. These were used experimentally to prick a couple of inches of cryptostegia so several little balls of dried sap, rubber, would form for pruning. He said the increase was not substantial because the drip was reduced by this method.

With permission, I pulled off a crypto leaf. A drop of white sap like milk oozed from the wound. I rubbed the drop of sap between my thumb and forefinger. It coagulated.

"That's rubber, good rubber," said Loomis, viewing the results of my experiment. "Cryptostegia produced small quantities of rubber in India and in Madagascar as early as 1856. But we still don't know how to get it out in commercial quantities at a reasonable cost."

17 FEARED DEAD AS FISHING BOAT SINKS OFF COAST

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 19 (AP)—Two lifeboats carrying 24 survivors of the sunken Menhaden trawler Parkins were swamped in heavy seas after they had been taken in tow by a coast guard rescue vessel a mile and a half off the North Carolina coast yesterday, with the probable loss of 17 crewmen, the navy disclosed today.

Bodies of 13 of the men washed ashore at Cape Lookout bight and Shackleford banks after seven others had battled successfully thru the heavy surf. Four were missing, including the Parkins' negro master, Dwight W. Davis of Beaufort, N. C.

The Parkins sank in the heavy seas after putting out a distress call by radio. The two lifeboats were taken in tow by a coast guard vessel but both capsized.

5 Men Smash Glass, Loot Windows of 3 Stores

A five man gang raided three Lawrence avenue stores in quick succession yesterday, smashing show windows and escaping with the contents. The value of the loot was not determined. Robert Goldman, owner of a liquor store at 1708 Lawrence avenue, told police the thieves took all the liquor from his window and the shelves on which the bottles stood. The raiders also took liquor from a store at 4127 Lawrence avenue and merchandise from a shoe store at 3227 Lawrence avenue.

ATTENTION:

Interior Decorators and Furniture Buyers. We will be in Chicago attending the furniture market and are looking for expert advice and consultation in helping us select and buy an initial purchase of unusual and novelty furniture for a new department we are about to open. We are interested in locating best sources of supply in Rockford, Chicago and Grand Rapids. Our store is situated in Michigan, two hours from Chicago. We want unusual furniture that does not compete with the ordinary furniture in so-called furniture stores that sell on time. We are interested in occasional pieces and not overstuffed types, in the popular prices and better grades. It is our desire to be associated with someone who is familiar with the above for at least a week or more. It is our intention to make the entire purchase in Chicago at the show. Matter of compensation incidental.

EXECUTIVE TREATIES.

One of the measures that died with the adjournment of the 77th congress is the joint resolution which would have transferred American title to a sewage system and other properties to the republic of Panama. Panama also would have been paid a couple of million dollars in highway construction costs. Nobody in congress would have begrudged Panama the money or property. It was the method that was at issue. There was an impression in congress that Mr. Roosevelt, with his eye on the future, was attempting to pull a fast one, to which he could later point as having established a precedent.

The agreement, as between two sovereign nations, would properly have been the subject of a treaty. If submitted as a treaty, there is little doubt that it would have been approved by the senate. Then why didn't the President do it that way? The obvious explanation is that he was not interested in the fate of the Panamanian agreement per se, but was trying out a method that might prove useful later if he faced a balky senate with more important international commitments.

Treaties may be passed only with the advice and consent of the senate and with two-thirds of the senators concurring. Joint resolutions, on the other hand, require only a majority vote of each house. Looking backward, as well as ahead, Mr. Roosevelt evidently reached the conclusion that there might be circumstances under which it would be much easier to get a treaty approved by a majority of both houses than by the required vote of the senate alone. It would be necessary, of course, to avoid calling the treaty a treaty, and the Panama business provided a pretext for testing out this device.

There was a rather feeble precedent, altho the circumstances didn't exactly apply. In 1844, after Texas had won its independence from Mexico and had been constituted as an independent republic, the Texans were anxious to be annexed by the Union as a state. President Tyler first submitted a treaty providing for annexation to the senate. It was rejected by a vote of 35 to 16, principally because of the slavery issue, but also because of reluctance to assume Texas' debt.

Tyler, shortly before the expiration of his term, then submitted annexation to congress in the form of a joint resolution. This time he succeeded. On Jan. 25, 1845, the house accepted, 118 to 101, and on Feb. 26 the senate concurred, 27 to 25. On July 4 a convention met in Austin and approved the annexation resolution, but an end to the republic was not proclaimed and the Lone Star flag was not hauled down until the first legislature convened, the following February, after adoption of a state constitution.

Tyler knew very well that he had circumvented the senate's constitutional prerogative, but he argued, feeling that the end justified the means, that "the power of congress is, however, fully competent in some other form of proceeding to accomplish everything that a formal ratification of the treaty could have accomplished." The resolution, nevertheless, had one defect that a treaty would not have possessed. It did not bind Texas. Had the Texans decided to back out after congress had acted they could not have been forced into the Union. They were, however, willing if not anxious.

Mr. Roosevelt, if he has any future intention of resorting to the device of a joint resolution to accomplish his purposes in any post-war settlement, may not meet with a similarly accommodating spirit among outside parties he might wish to bind. They can always point out that a joint resolution, being a unilateral action on the part of the United States, does not compel their adherence. The President, therefore, would have to reach airtight advance understandings with the responsible leaders of the allies or his structure might collapse, even if he got the assent of congress. But, because his benevolent intentions concerning Britain, Russia, and China are well known, it is unlikely that he would face much trouble on this score.

Altho the senate approved the Panamanian resolution [it died because of hostility and indifference of the house], several congressional leaders were at pains to warn against Mr. Roosevelt's attempts to assume personally the senate's treaty making powers. It could not be forgotten that after the St. Lawrence seaway project had failed of approval as a treaty Mr. Roosevelt revived it as a defense measure. Nor were congressmen unmindful that the Atlantic charter, enunciated by Mr. Roosevelt jointly with Prime Minister Churchill, never was submitted to the senate, altho it presumed to bind this country to a policy of granting every other nation free access to our trade and raw materials.

There is abundant evidence that Mr. Roosevelt would like to write the kind of peace he favors without consulting the American people or their representatives. There is hardly less evidence that he will attempt to bring this country into the peace settlement under an executive treaty or something that has the effect of an executive order even tho it may take another form. The settlement with Panama was definitely intended as a trial ascent. It is fortunate that, by refusing the measure approval, congress reminded Mr. Roosevelt of his constitutional obligation when the time comes for a peace after the present war if it is concluded during his term of office.

THE AMERICAN WAY.

Quoting a recent dispatch to THE TRIBUNE from Mr. Noderer on the Buna front in New Guinea:

"It might be well to note that there were more officers in the firing line in Saturday's attack than this correspondent ever saw or heard of in three years of covering the war. . . . One general . . . was firing a tommy gun at a sniper in a tree and another was standing in an exposed position, showing a mortar crew where to fire its bombs. A little later a captain . . . interposed his body between one of the generals and the Japs. This correspondent several times noticed the captain unostentatiously move into a position where he could protect his superior officer, who repeatedly exposed himself to enemy fire. A colonel who knocked two Jap snipers out of trees has a welt on the side of his neck where a Jap bullet creased him. Three other colonels who fought in the front line with their soldiers escaped injury. . . ."

There was more to the same effect but these excerpts give the idea. The fighting in New Guinea is being conducted in the American way, with the responsible officers where they belong, at the front, to inspire their men with confidence and to see with their own eyes what is happening. That was Washington's way, Jackson's way, Grant's way. It was not the European idea and the consequence was that in the last war whole divisions were slaughtered in attacks that never would have been attempted if the man who gave the order to advance had known from personal observation what he was doing.

In armies with an aristocratic tradition the officer is presumed to be of superior clay and therefore may, if he chooses, take special precautions for his safety. Our officers have been reared in a different tradition. Their presence at the front has been an important element in the success of the campaign in New Guinea. More than that, it should inspire similar conduct in the armies of our allies.

DR. WORKS SHEDS SOME LIGHT.

Dr. George Works' appraisal of the reorganization report on the University of Illinois undoubtedly gave the university trustees some welcome light in a situation that recently has been more notable for its heat. The trustees could find no better adviser on questions of educational administration. As dean of students Dr. Works was one of the principal administrative officers of the University of Chicago, and following his retirement from that faculty he was retained as educational consultant for the state finance department.

As Dr. Works pointed out, the so-called efficiency report could hardly have been couched in more unfortunate language. The needless references to the university as an educational business could not help giving offense. Nevertheless, Dr. Works finds that some of the recommendations for the educational department were good. There are too many persons reporting directly to the president and there is too much dependence on faculty committees for administrative work, he finds.

President Willard told the board that some steps have already been taken to remedy these and other defects mentioned in the report. The reforms cannot be accomplished over night and it will doubtless require the close attention of the trustees over a considerable period to see that a proper program is carried thru. Many of the changes are of a technical nature, not likely to interest the public but of vital importance to the efficient functioning of the university.

Dr. Works does not pretend to be an expert on all details of business operation. It is not unlikely that in this field, because it is a subsidiary field, will be found the greatest opportunity for improvement of the university's present practices. It may well be that the trustees will want to seek further advice before accepting or rejecting the proposals of the efficiency report for reorganization of the university's business under a business manager.

As for the odious proposal to employ a vice president of the university in charge of half backs, publicity, Phi Beta Kappas, and bequests, it is to be hoped that the last has been heard of it.

THE BOMBPROOF BOYS GO TO WAR.

THE TRIBUNE feels that it is entitled to some credit for lighting a fire under the pinks of the young slackers in uniform who have been cluttering up the Washington cocktail lounges. The blaze thus started in time attracted the reluctant attention of Secretary of War Stimson, who has finally ordered the progressive mobilization of these male WAACs for combat duty. All army officers less than 28 years old are to be out of the capital by Jan. 31, either on the battlefield or with troops training for action. All less than 35 years old will be on their way by the end of next June.

The start made toward ending this disgrace is encouraging, but it is still only a start. There are other places than Washington which have their full complement of uniformed skulkers in bombproof berths. Chicago, with its overflow of army and navy press agents, is no exception. The project of handing these young gentlemen train tickets that will start them in the direction of the fighting fronts should be extended at once beyond the confines of Washington.

Mr. Stimson in setting 35 as the outside limit for usefulness in combat acquiesces to another view long held by THE TRIBUNE. If men up to 35 are fit for combat, the converse is true. Those above that age are unfit. We have said that repeatedly and we have said in particular that older officers, overtaxed by the rigors of field service, will do neither themselves nor their country justice. If, as Mr. Stimson appears to concede, this is true, it becomes doubly mysterious why in lowering the draft age the war department arrived at the conclusion that all men thru the age of 37 are fit material for conscription.

UNDISCLOSED NEW DEAL LOSSES.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

The losses which the administration suffered in the Nov. 3 election assume their true proportions only when seen in terms of their influence on the committees in congress—the machinery thru which the legislative branch does its work.

When it comes time to organize for the new congress in January, no fewer than five sitting Democratic members will be missing from the senate banking and currency committee. The claims committee now has nine Democratic senators. Four of these will not go back next month. Four of the Democratic members of the senate labor committee were defeated this year. The casualties include three Democrats on the judiciary committee, among them Smathers of New Jersey, sponsor of Boss Hague's tool for the federal bench. The important rules committee loses two Democrats, and other committees lose varying portions of their majority strength.

The administration losses run much heavier in the house, where the Republicans gained a total of 43 seats. The all-important ways and means committee is particularly hard hit from the standpoint of New Deal fortunes. No fewer than seven of its 14 Democratic members in this congress will not return for the new congress. These missing Democrats include the staunchest of the committee's New Dealers—men like McKeough of Illinois, Hill of Washington, and Duncan of Missouri.

The disposition thus far in administration circles has been to act as if little or nothing happened in the election. That is an attitude which will need to be abandoned when the 78th congress assembles.

BEAT JAPAN FIRST

Representative Maas of the 4th Minnesota district returned to congress a few weeks ago from a tour of duty as a colonel of marines in the southwest Pacific. The material that follows was taken from an address he delivered in New York on Dec. 8, under the auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers.

BY MELVIN J. MAAS.

So far, the only evidence of unity among the united nations is a common purpose of defending ourselves against the axis onslaughts. There is no real agreement as to timing of the various offensive actions, nor even as to the methods of fighting the war. There is no real unity, in the military sense, of either political or military command among the united nations.

The Russians want us to create a second front in Europe, to which Churchill will not agree, and the Chinese want us to shift the emphasis of the war to the Pacific. We compromise and go to Africa. I am not belittling our efforts in Africa. What we did must be done sooner or later if we are, in the end, to defeat Hitler. Ultimate victory in Europe must depend upon our gaining control of the Mediterranean.

In the meantime the peoples of the territories we now occupy in Africa must be assured, first, that when our purposes are accomplished we will withdraw, and, secondly, that we will not merely withdraw and turn them over to the British empire to compensate them for their losses in the orient. Of the first they are reasonably sure; of the second they are not so sure. The United States must reassure them, and now, upon both points. We must solemnly assure the peoples of every place we occupy of freedom after peace has been won. We will lose the war, at least all that we are fighting for, if the peoples in rescued territories believe that we are rescuing them only to return them to their former masters, axis or united nations. This applies to Hongkong, Singapore, Africa, the Dutch East Indies, Esthonia, Latvia, the Philippines, and, yes, even to the Solomons.

I do not question the major strategy of the united nations. I do not challenge the necessity of defeating Hitler as soon as possible, nor the desirability of creating a second front in Europe, nor the preliminary step of occupying North Africa now. But I do challenge the strategy that dictates that the Pacific be treated as a secondary area; that it be handled as a holding front while our major forces are busy defeating Hitler first. The assumption is that then all of the united nations' forces will swing to the Pacific and in short order dispose of the Japs. By that time it may be too late.

Let me say that I am not setting myself up as a military expert, nor setting my armchair strategy up against that of the military leaders. I do not possess professional education nor background for that. I would not attempt to try to evaluate these military considerations upon my own very limited layman's knowledge of military matters. But every word I am telling you has been taught to me by nearly every senior army, navy, and marine officer with whom I came in contact out in the Pacific where they are trying to do the job, and by many of those who are still in Washington.

I believe that I have had sufficient military experience and contact to understand their language and to know what they are talking about. They have pointed out that every essential strategic material in which we as a nation are deficient, such as tin, rubber, quinine, bauxite, etc., is denied to us by the Japs; none of these deficiencies comes to us from Europe. Our gasoline ration is made necessary because of a shortage of rubber. We are short on rubber because it is produced in territory captured by Japan. We have a hundred times more at stake in the Pacific than we do in the Atlantic, both in materials and in ideologies.

If Japan wins in the Pacific, no matter what happens in Europe, the United States will have lost the war. Japan, in possession of the most stupendous national resources and the inexhaustible supply of cheap labor that will be available to her in the orient, will have the most fabulous empire in the history of the world. It will be the first truly self-contained empire in all history. Japan, once she is able to translate her new conquests of raw resources in Malaya and the southwest Pacific into war production, may become unbeatable, and in a post-war world she will be able to outproduce and undersell the rest of the world everywhere in the world, including our own home market, the United States.

At best, Europe will not again be a profitable market for our products for a century, if ever. They are now so devastated that anything that goes from us to Europe for a 100 years will go as a charitable not as a commercial transaction. I am not thinking of this in the terms of dollars and cents business transactions, however. The rise of the orient under Japanese domination will mean the spread thruout the world of the Japanese philosophy, which is as deadly, if not more so, than even the repugnant and abhorrent Nazi brand, which is a stench in our nostrils. The rise and dominance of the Japs would mean the end of the white races and all that they stand for in the way of a white race type of western civilization, which is as much the hope of the Negroes everywhere, of the Chinese, and other liberty loving orientals, as it is of the white man himself.

Our strategy of treating the Pacific as a holding front plays right into Japan's hands. Japan is content with the strategy that permits her to hold at the lines she has established. That is all she asks. She has already conquered a great empire, self-contained and self-sufficient. If she can just hold her present lines until she converts her new conquests into war production, she will be satisfied, and the combined fleets of the world will be unable to break thru against her air power, wielded from hundreds of protecting island bases. She needs only aluminum sheet to increase her warplane production from 900 to month to 1,900 a month. She has captured bauxite mines in Selangor alone sufficient to produce the needed aluminum sheets. Six months is all she needs. This war has demonstrated that fleets, no matter how powerful, cannot operate successfully against adequate land based aircraft. Japan now has the bases and a powerful air force. In six months, unless stopped, she will have unchallengeable superiority in the air at those bases.

On the other hand, Japan is vulnerable now. Germany proper does not appear vulnerable for the next six or twelve months. Japan is vulnerable now; but in six months or a year Japan won't be. Furthermore, the rest of the united nations are dependent upon us now. They must follow along and play with us if they are to have even a chance to survive. After Germany is defeated that situation will no longer exist, and we have no guarantee that any but China will go on beside us in the war in the Pacific against Japan. When the threat of Germany to Great Britain and Russia has been eliminated we may very well find ourselves facing Japan all alone. England and Russia will be pretty exhausted and may have little heart to carry on far from home an aggressive war that does not directly involve them.

Equal in consideration with this is the fact that while we may defeat Hitler in battle with our present strategy, we cannot hope to eliminate Hitlerism and its causes from Europe unless we also destroy the companion causes and manifestations in the orient. There is an old military axiom "When fighting two enemies, hold the stronger while you destroy the weaker; then you can concentrate your entire strength upon the stronger." Certainly Japan is the weaker of the axis partners now. She can be destroyed now. By the time Germany is defeated Japan will be very strong, stronger in a military sense than Germany ever was.

SLEEP WALKING AN EMOTIONAL JOURNEY.

HYSTERIA is blamed for many varieties of mental symptoms—loss of memory, somnambulism, a trance, certain phases of delirium, and emotional attacks associated with hallucinations. In other words, the term may be thought of as a sizable basket into which many seeming abnormalities are dumped.

Why do these manifestations present themselves? The answer lies in the failure of the individual to achieve a desired goal. Disappointment and frustration may become anxiety. Later, the combination may emerge as some type of bizarre behavior.

A personal problem, responsible for great psychic stress may be followed by an attempt to escape. The victim then indulges in a flight of fancy, building for himself a new world. But trouble comes when he tries to put his ideas into action. Relatives, friends, and neighbors fail to understand what it is all about.

With sleepwalking, only a slight starter may be required. During the episode, many a confirmed addict will converse naturally with a member of the family. Others seem to be unable to hear voices. If an attendant is near, his presence may not be detected. The incident may arise because the mind of the patient has been poring over some errand or obligation. During sleep this is picked up and acted out as tho he were completely alert.

In the dream state everything may be settled pleasantly. Obstacles are overcome with ease and the subject will think of bright conversational quips which, unfortunately, pass out of mind on waking. Sight seems to be unusually keen and pieces of furniture will be avoided. Should consciousness come when the sufferer is away from the house he has little difficulty in retracing his footsteps. Streets, houses, etc., are recognized as familiar landmarks.

But ordinarily, we think of true hysteria as pointing to the absence of mental control, with the disappearance of certain functions. The skin may lose the power to sense pain. In extreme cases this may involve sight, hearing, smell, or taste. One may be unable to detect foul odors or the bitterness of quinine. The loudest shouts may not be heard. Such a sufferer will not flinch in the immediate neighborhood of an explosion. At the other extreme, there are those who are supersensitive to noise and disagreeable emanations.

Naturally, the most careful investigation must be made to determine whether the cause is organic or can be blamed upon the antics of the nervous system. Before the physician can find the answer, a number of consultations will be needed. An intimate knowledge of the patient's background, wishes, and ambitions may be required. If no part of the anatomy is at fault we must hunt for an unfulfilled wish or longing.

A change of environment or even of occupation may bring relief. At any rate, satisfaction in some minor accomplishment may be all that is necessary. Occasionally, recovery will occur spontaneously and suddenly. Not infrequently, the patient is looking for an excuse to get well. This explains why mechanical procedures, with elaborate apparatus, are so successful.

PUT THEIR HEADS TOGETHER.

F. S. writes: Is it possible to graft the scalp of one person on to another?

REPLY.

Not unless the circulation is maintained, the donor and the recipient lying head to head. Only after the patch has begun to grow and has established its own blood supply can the giver be released. The usual method is to remove tissue from some other part of the patient's body.

BABY SHOES.

Mrs. J. B. writes: My mother-in-law tells me it is very harmful for an 11 month old baby to nap with its shoes on. Is this so?

REPLY.

Babies will slumber, flourish, and live with their boots on. When out for an airing, fully clothed, sleep is the rule.

YOU NEED ONE.

A. C. writes: Can a person live with two collapsed lungs?

REPLY.

Not if both are completely out of commission. Pneumothorax is usually employed on one side of the chest at a time.

Test Your Horse Sense By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 9, part 2.

1. Our patriotic blood donors give approximately how much blood at a single time? 4 oz. 8 oz. 16 oz. 32 oz.
2. Which one of these edibles grows without leaves? Eggplant Mushrooms Horseradish Cantaloupe.
3. A trowel is normally employed by which one of these workers? Carpenter Mason Blacksmith Electrician.
4. Which one of the following is not a woodworking term? Tendon Mortise Rabbet Dovetail.
5. Doggerel should make one think primarily of which of the following? Calf Weed Poetry Wine.
6. You deserve one point for each correct matching below of the leaders with the sects with which they belong:

[a] Roger Williams [w] Presbyterian
[b] John Wesley [x] Baptist
[c] John Calvin [y] Catholic
[d] Joseph Smith [z] Methodist
[e] Ignatius Loyola [v] Mormon

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

TAX POLICY THREATENS LIFE INSURANCE.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 14—Too few realize that the revenue act of 1942, while protecting the social security of the wage earner thru the so-called federal insurance contribution act, tends to destroy that social security for all of the rest of the American people including the small business man, the professional man, the farmer, agricultural labor, and those in domestic service. Social security for all these classes depends to a great degree on life insurance.

For the first time congress and the President have recognized in some slight degree this fact by allowing as a credit against the Victory tax a portion of the amount paid by the taxpayer during the taxable year as premiums on life insurance in force on Sept. 1, 1942, upon his own life or upon the life of his spouse or upon the life of any dependent. But this allowance for the Victory tax is not enough, because the real damage is done by the income taxes and the surtaxes.

An extraordinary portion of the savings of the business and professional classes is invested in life insurance policies. This has proved increasingly true in the period from the depression of 1929 to the beginning of the war. All of the stock exchange regulations of the Roosevelt administration have tended to drive the small investor from the stocks and bonds of American business into what he thought was the safety of the great life insurance companies.

It is already abundantly clear that a great many business and professional men will not be able to meet the enormously increased taxes of the revenue act of 1942 and also continue to pay their life insurance premiums. A man who is confronted either with failing to pay his full tax to the government to carry on the war or with a loss of life insurance policies upon which his social security and that of his dependents rests cannot do his full share on the home front and bear his full part in the maintenance of public morale.

The credit given life insurance premiums on the Victory tax shows that congress recognizes that the wholesale cancellation of life insurance policies is not desirable and yet the Victory tax does not threaten the continuation of these policies to any degree as compared with the income taxes and surtaxes of the 1942 revenue law. The high taxes in this law were urged not only to help win the war but also for the purpose of avoiding the devastating results of inflation. Payments of life insurance premiums are largely savings and certainly are not inflationary. The problem of granting reasonable credits for life insurance premiums for policies taken out prior to the beginning of the war is one which the next congress should deal with properly and promptly.

THE HERO OF THE TALE.

Chicago, Dec. 12—I was interested in the story today about Mr. Roosevelt's pamphlet being dropped from allied planes over France. If the story, related in the pamphlet, had stated the truth, it would have given credit to the guy with the long whiskers rather than the former assistant secretary of the navy for the donation that repaired the cathedral's broken windows. That is a distinction that, as it seems, has never been fully appreciated during the last 10 years.

DANIEL ANDERSON.

MIDDLE WESTERN SPEECH.

Chicago, Dec. 14—"Puzzled," who was worrying about the elision of the letter "R," must be even more confused if he tried to find logic in the philological ramblings of H. E. Smith of Oak Park, who might just as well say that a study of Basque would help in learning the correct pronunciation of Urdu.

The radical of any word is interesting, but not enlightening as to modern pronunciation. To call up the Sanskrit, Arabic, Chinese, and Greek to prove that the New Englander or southerner is right in saying "waw" [with variations] is going pretty far afield.

The Texan's argot may be right in Texas; the Lancashire brogue may be right, but not outside of Lancashire. In America, accents are provincialisms, whether they be New England, southern, acquired Oxford, theatrical, or Dutchess county, New York.

The English spoken in the west and middle west is the purest in pronunciation, and for proof of this listen to the radio announcers, whether they are speaking from Illinois, Tennessee, or Massachusetts. The accepted standard is patently western. "R" is audible, but is not a "burr-r-r."

There are peoples who do roll their "R's," Mr. Smith notwithstanding. The French "R" becomes almost guttural. The fleeing Ephraimites couldn't say "sh"—but we can. And we can pronounce "R" even if the ancients mixed it up with "L." Shakespeare could pun the words beauty, body, and booty, but all three sound different today. This proves nothing except that language is always in flux.

Anyway, I refer Mr. Smith again to the radio, where he will hear middle western English coming from all parts of the country, without the local impurities which he defends. E. E. HARTWELL.

LOOK HERE, PVT. FAY!

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Of all the interesting columns I've read about army life, "Private Fay on Parade" brings me in closer contact with my son's army life than any other. I get a hundred laughs out of it, and find it more informative than even my son's letters. I can't resist the opportunity to express my gratitude and appreciation. I shall have all my friends read it. MRS. O. E. BAKER.

MAKE YOUR GRUMBLING COUNT.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—There seems to be a good deal of grumbling about the ration allotments on sugar, coffee, and gasoline. I believe that any inequalities should be ironed out as quickly as possible. This done, we should all stop grumbling about the rationing of those products. The sacrificing that the average citizen has done to date is as nothing compared with what he will be called upon to bear if the war lasts two or three more years. Nor have the civilians borne any hardships comparable to those endured by our fighting men.

There has been a lot of bungling by burocrats whose primary ambition seems to be the establishment of so complex a government control that the administrators will be indispensable and irreplaceable. What we need now is a deluge of letters to our congressmen asking them to resist any further demands for blanket appropriations and executive control. If the people will devote the same time and effort to writing their elected representatives that they are now giving to complaining about rationing we may come out of this war still in possession of a limited amount of individual freedom.

CARL M. RHODES.

BLAMES RAIL UNIONS FOR GAS RATIONING.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 10—Now, with gas rationing in effect for 10 days, we are really seeing the fight in back of it. In the latter part of November the leading rail unions urged that gas rationing be put into effect. Less than a week later they asked for a 30 per cent pay increase. Why not? From rubber to rails.

G. O. P. MUST FIGHT.

RENO DIVORCE.

Chicago, Dec. 12—[Legal Friend of the People].—Please inform me if [1] an alimony decree in a divorce case at Reno, Nev., has a legal, enforceable effect in the state of Illinois. 2. If a man who, after receiving his divorce in Reno and returning to Chicago, falls behind in his alimony payments, can he be sentenced for contempt of court and receive a jail sentence in this state? 3. When was such an act passed by the Illinois legislature?

C. S.

1. Since it might be difficult, in future, to prove the facts on which the validity of a new marriage would depend, we advise securing a court decree before contracting such new marriage. 2. Yes, if the facts are such that the Nevada court had jurisdiction. 3. The United States Constitution gives full faith and credit to the decrees of other states where the court has jurisdiction. It is not clear whether this is what you have in mind.

FOSTER PARENT REQUIREMENTS.

Chicago, Dec. 12—[Legal Friend of the People].—I should appreciate knowing [1] whether a family is permitted to adopt a child if the father is a Canadian citizen and the mother an American. Also, are there [2] certain financial restrictions concerning the adoption of children? I understand that a couple must be able to show [3] a certain bank account and certain salary. If this is true, will you please tell me the amount. H. G.

1. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned. 2. The court will require a showing that the proposed foster parents are in a position to furnish a proper home to the child. 3. There is no fixed figure.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT

NOT SUFFICIENT REASON.

Chicago, Dec. 12—[Legal Friend of the People].—I have a nephew who works at a nearby defense plant and I should like very much to have possession of the downstairs flat. The tenants refuse to move. Can I have them evicted for my nephew? He would be a great help to me while my husband is in the service.

J. P.

The facts stated would not be enough to put the tenant out.

CEILING ON NYLON.

Chicago, Dec. 12—[Legal Friend of the People].—What is the ceiling price on nylon stockings, regulars and irregulars? I am paying $3 a pair for irregular nylon hose with rayon tops. The salesman will not give me a receipt for the hose. He has been selling them for the last three months at that price. Is he allowed to do so? To whom should I report him.

B. N.

Maximum Price Regulations No. 95, dated Oct. 20, 1942, established specific ceiling prices for various grades of nylon hosiery. Amendment 1, dated Nov. 17, 1942, established maximum prices for hosiery from combination yarns and for substandard grades. Detailed information must be furnished consumers by posting and by mailing. Such information must deal with quality as well as with price. You do not state whether your dealer has posted his prices. Violations should be reported to the OPA.

NINE YEAR OLD GROCERY BILL.

Chicago, Dec. 12—[Legal Friend of the People].—1. Can a grocery bill be collected after nine years? There was no signed note of any kind to show that the debt has not been paid or a promise made to pay. 2. Can a person be brought to court by the grocer and [3] compelled to pay a bill which exists only by the grocer's "say-so?" 4. Can a minor be forced to pay a clothing or food bill which he or she has signed? M. D.

1. Not unless there was a written contract or part payments or new promises such as to extend the period. 2. Yes. 3. If you present your statute of limitations that should defeat his suit. 4. A minor can be held not on his contract but for the reasonable value of his necessary expenses.

Atty. Gen. Malcolm's 23 page opinion holding the act unconstitutional, listed numerous flaws and irregularities and declared it was not only contrary to Puerto Rico's organic act [constitution], but in conflict with United States Supreme court decisions. Nonetheless, it was passed by the legislature in each house, in both of which there is a one vote majority controled by Luis Munoz Marin, president of the senate, founder of the Popular Democratic party, and savior on many occasions of Tugwell's political hide.

The act designates Puerto Rico's executive council [governor's cabinet] as members of the company. They elect a board of five directors for terms of one, two, three, four, and five years. The act provides also that a general manager be appointed on a basis of merit determined by technical training, skill, experience, and other qualifications.

Former Drug Clerk Named.

The man appointed, at a salary of $8,000 a year, is Teodoro Moscoso Jr., whose business experience was gained as a $25 a week dispenser of drugs and sodas in his father's pharmacy at Ponce, Puerto Rico, and during a short period as local coördinator for the federal housing authority at Ponce.

Once launched, the company aggressively assumed charge of the promotion of farming, industrial agriculture, and commerce—a traditional function of the insular department of agriculture. This quickly brought the resignation of Isidoro Colon, who had been appointed as commissioner of the department by a former governor, Adm. William D. Leahy.

It was expected also that the company would take over the operation of the Puerto Rico Railway Light and Power company, recently expropriated by the government, along with the Mayaguez Light and Power company, and the ramshackle White Star Bus Line of San Juan. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston, however, recently held the seizure of the P. R. R. L. & P. to be illegal and ordered its return to the owners.

Meanwhile, during the fiscal year the P. R. R. L. & P. has been held, the government has been deprived of $294,844 in insular and municipal taxes. The Mayaguez company paid $15,980 in 1941 and the bus line paid $150,214 in taxes, franchises and licenses to make up the total loss of more than $450,000.

Only the Beginning.

Money, however, appears to be the smallest of the Tugwell government's worries. Moscoso says the company's initial $500,000 is only a drop in the bucket.

This is obvious, for under the act—also held unconstitutional—creating the Development Bank of Puerto Rico, the development company may be nourished indefinitely with unlimited public funds. The entire income of the insular government may be drained into the bank which may accept government and private deposits, lend money, and issue bonds. The act provides further:

"In making loans or otherwise extending credit, preference and priority shall be given, when all other factors are equal, to the Puerto Rico Development company and to enterprises recommended by said company, so that it may effect the most diverse industrial and commercial development of the island."

The bank's charter, giving it the broadest powers of any financial institution under the American flag, was drawn up by Gov. Tugwell 60 days after the legislature approved the bill. Tugwell was free to write whatever he wished. The bank is a "nonprofit instrumentality of the insular government," which means it may lend money at interest rates low enough to drive private banks from the field.

The bank, whose creation was approved two days after the development company's, was started off with $500,000 pocket money. As in the case of the company, the bank's incorporators are the members of Tugwell's cabinet. Moscoso explained the company's plans with the glib enthusiasm of his drug clerk days.

"It's right in line with Gov. Tugwell's long range policies and those of the New Deal," he said. "Suppose we decide to start a glass factory to make bottles for the rum industry. We'll gather the business men around and say: 'Well, boys, here's our proposition and your opportunity. You need this industry. We'll put in so many hundreds of thousands and you chip in the rest.' That way we'll get things started and supply jobs for the island's 300,000 unemployed." [More than double this number are unemployed].

On May 12, the day after the company was created and the day before the bank came into being, the Munoz-Tugwell legislature brought forth the spectacular Puerto Rico planning, urbanizing, and zoning board [PUZB]. It places in the hands of three men, to be appointed by the governor, Puerto Rico's future physical development. They will determine the uses to which lands, buildings, roads, and waters may be put. Opponents contended the PUZB with its penalties of $200 and 10 days' imprisonment for each day of violation could be a valuable ally of the company and the bank, should they set out to override private enterprise.

The legislators gave the PUZB a bon voyage gift of $100,000 and specified it is to have not less than that sum every fiscal year. Two of its board members receive $6,000 a year and its chairman is paid $8,000. The last is one Raphael Pico who, in the pre-Tugwell days, was a geography instructor at the University of Puerto Rico.

Thus the PUZB becomes the most expensive planning board under the Stars and Stripes. Its appropriation is more than twice the $41,500 which New York—with an annual budget of $385,000,000—allows its planning board. It is four times Illinois' appropriation of $25,000.

When Tugwell conceived the PUZB, he asked and obtained from the federal government the services of Alfred Bettman, one of the nation's outstanding planning experts. Bettman spent several weeks in the island and drew up a 39 page bill, covering Puerto Rico's needs. The governor, who served on the New York planning commission before coming here, found Bettman's effort far short of his own dreams for the island.

Bettman Disowns Bill.

The bill, as rewritten, was promptly declared unconstitutional by Malcolm. Bettman took the next plane for the mainland, warning the insular government not to attach his name to the new version. The Muñoz-Tugwell legislature passed it. After four months of opening bank accounts and surveying the field the three agencies are about ready to begin the social and economic uplift of 1,900,000 people, most of whom just now are more interested in rice, beans, and codfish.

Tugwell, however, insists there is no harm in the bank, the company, and the PUZB. They are as innocent as they are valuable, he contends.

Seated under the high ceiling of the long throne room of Puerto Rico's government house, La Fortaleza [The Fortress] the governor is handsome, genial, and professorial. Here for more than 300 years the royal Spanish governors bedeviled the Puerto Rican people, described by Don Alejandro O'Reilly 177 years ago as "the poorest in the new world." They still are.

Gov. Tugwell is vastly amused at the suggestion that Puerto Ricans and continentals alike are concerned over the vast powers embodied in the acts creating the bank, the company, and the PUZB. For—he explains as tho to a backward pupil—the PUZB, for example, takes powers away from the executive and does not give him powers. [Tugwell will not be quoted directly.]

Run by Three Others.

Operation of the PUZB—which can order a merchant to remodel his store—is in the hands of three other fellows. True, if something happens to the PUZB's chairman the governor takes his place, but no such bridge has been reached as yet.

As to the development bank, it is intended merely to do a job similar to that done by the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the United States. And if the RFC has faults, one must remember it was created by the Republicans—not the Democrats, says Tugwell.

The company, he points out, merely initiates needed island industries to reduce unemployment; industries which private individuals are unable or unwilling to initiate. Take the cement plant, for example. Output: 1,000 barrels a day. And there are bigger things ahead. There is good grade iron ore in Puerto Rico's cloud swept hills. The island's silica sands will make possible the home production of bottles for the rum that is the major source, thru export taxes, of island revenue.

Politics Barred, He Says.

Every effort has been made to keep the three agencies free of political domination, says the governor. The staggered terms of the board members are one safeguard.

As for the suggestion that these projects make Puerto Rico a laboratory for government seizure of private enterprise, Gov. Tugwell declares such a theory is ridiculous. He asserts that Puerto Ricans devised them to fit conditions here.

The governor says that neither these nor similar agencies were or are intended to be transplanted to the continental United States. As a matter of fact, their basic structures originated in the United States and were transplanted, with revisions, to Puerto Rico. The governor has spoken. That is that. Tugwell, whose spending and social and economic policies now are being investigated by three congressional committees, has had rough going ever since he arrived here in August, 1941. He expected to be governor [$10,000 a year] and chancellor of the University of Puerto Rico [$15,000 a year and double the salary paid previous chancellors].

Dislodged by Students.

A tumultus massmeeting was called by students, who demanded that Tugwell either be one or the other, not both. He announced he would serve as governor, taking leave from the chancellorship.

He has been criticized roundly for his refusal to import food reserves in the days before Pearl Harbor. The situation was ominous even then. Now the shipping shortage and bungling—tho not by Tugwell—of such shipping as has been available has created a dangerous shortage of vital commodities. The universal cry in Puerto Rico now is:

"To hell with long range reforms. We are hungry NOW!"

The description "family wedding" was highly applicable to the ceremony in Woodlawn Methodist church last night when the pastor, the Rev. Weldon E. Bradburn, read the marriage service for two sons who are both in the army and for their brides.

Lt. Gordon Bradburn, 23 years old, army air forces, married Miss Romayne McLaughlin, 21, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. McLaughlin, Garden City, N. Y. Pvt. Robert Bradburn, 24, married Miss Joanne Irwin, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence Irwin, 8052 Eberhart avenue. The former Miss Irwin was a Delta Delta Delta at DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind., where her husband and his brother were Sigma Nus.

Lt. Bradburn and his bride will return to Atlantic City this week where he is stationed. Pvt. Bradburn will report at Camp Barclay, Tex., Jan. 1, to enter officers' training school. His wife will join him after he has completed his course. The Bradburn home is at 1412 East 68th street.

CATHERINE TAFT WHEELOCK FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Catherine Taft Wheelock filed suit for divorce in Superior court yesterday morning against Ralph A. Wheelock alleging cruelty. Wheelock, son of the late William W. Wheelock, is superintendent of the A. C. Lynch company, manufacturers of technical instruments and tools.

The Wheelocks, who resided at 210 Golf terrace, Wilmette, were married Oct. 3, 1935, and separated last Nov. 2, the bill states. There are no children. The suit was filed by the law firm of Cassels, Potter, and Bentley.

Mrs. Wheelock cites three acts of cruelty. She charges her husband tripped her in a Wilmette store Dec. 29, 1941 and twice twisted her arm in the presence of her relatives and friends. The couple has agreed on a property settlement in lieu of alimony.

OFFICIALS DENY PERSECUTION OF JEWS IN FINLAND

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 [Special].—The Finnish government, thru its legation here, today declared that Jews were not being persecuted in Finland and that there has been no change in their status.

"Some" undesirable aliens, it was stated, have been interned but the treatment of them "has not been influenced by considerations of race or religion." The government attributed reports of persecutions to Communists.

The announcement was made in a statement to Dr. Simon Federbusch of New York, formerly head rabbi of the Jewish congregation in Helsingfors, who requested information on the subject.

FAKE "BLIND" BEGGAR FINED.

Joseph Amorosa, 25 years old, of New York, who, police said, posed as a blind beggar, and collected $25 a day from sympathetic strangers, was fined $50 and costs yesterday by Judge J. M. Braude in Boys' court, on a charge of disorderly conduct.

CHARGE GERMANS MAKE POLAND A JEWISH ABATTOIR

Shootings, Electrocutions, Gas Killings Told.

LONDON, Dec. 20 [Sunday]—(AP).—The interallied information committee today said the Germans have transformed Poland "into one vast center for murdering Jews" by mass shootings, electrocutions, and lethal gas and that 99 per cent of the Jews who lived in Jugo-Slavia or took refuge there are dead.

The statement by the committee, which represents the allied governments in London, gave a résumé of Nazi measures against Jews in occupied lands. The allied governments recently protested against crimes against the Jews and warned that those responsible would be punished.

The committee repeated the estimate by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, American Jewish Congress president, that since 1939 2,000,000 Jews in Europe have been deported or have perished.

500,000 Put in One Ghetto.

In Warsaw, the statement said, "500,000 Jews were crowded into one ghetto, and their ranks reduced by starvation, disease, and shootings. Deportations were begun on Aug. 17.

"Actual data concerning the fate of the deportees is not at hand, but the news is available—irrefutable news—that places of execution have been organized at Chelm and Belzec, where those who survive shootings are murdered en masse by means of electrocution and lethal gas."

The committee gave this picture of the situation by countries:

JUGO-SLAVIA—"A majority—99 per cent—of the Jugo-Slav Jews and those who had taken refuge in Jugo-Slavia [a total of 86,000] are now dead. About 1,000 have remained alive, tho most all have to live under conditions of internment."

Seizures in Paris Told.

BELGIUM—Increasing stringent anti-Jewish measures, with forced labor and mass deportations.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.—Of about 95,000 Jews in Slovakia at the time of the German occupation, 65,000 have been deported to Polish ghettos;

FRANCE—In a roundup in July, Jews were dragged from homes and hospitals in Paris and thrown into filthy camps; 10,000 "foreign" Jews in former unoccupied France deported.

GREECE—Eight thousand Jews sent to labor camps.

NETHERLANDS—About 180,000 Jews lived here, but "it is the avowed intention of the Germans to see that by the end of 1943 there won't be a single Jew left in the Netherlands."

NORWAY—Jews have been beaten and their property taken; all Jews in Oslo have been arrested.

'HANSEL, GRETEL' WINS APPLAUSE OF BIG AUDIENCE

New Singers Appear in 3 Important Roles.

"HANSEL AND GRETEL."

Fairy opera in three acts with music by Englebert Humperdinck, libretto by Adelheid Wette. Presented in English by the Chicago Opera company in the Civic Opera house Saturday afternoon, Dec. 19, 1942.

THE CAST.

| Peter | Reinhold Schmidt |
| Gertrud | May Barron |
| Hansel | Maria Matyas |
| Gretel | Jeanne Madden [début] |
| The Witch | Dorothee Manski |
| The Sandman | Mary Kampo [début] |
| The Dew Fairy | Jackie Lynn [début] |
| Conductor | Kurth Herbert Adler |
| Stage director | Phillip Fein |

Preceded by Chicago Opera Ballet, Ruth Page, director, in dances from Delibes' "Lakmé," Leo Kopp conducting.

BY CECIL SMITH.

To hundreds of children and their parents, no holiday season would be normal which failed to include a representation of Humperdinck's fairy tale opera, "Hansel and Gretel." Yesterday afternoon the Civic Opera house was well filled, and children of all ages—from 8 to 80, I believe it is customary to say—burst into a salvo of applause when Hansel and Gretel pushed the witch into the oven, from which she was to emerge as gingerbread just before the final curtain.

Three of the important rôles were in new hands yesterday. Of most significant artistic stature was Dorothee Manski's impersonation of the witch. Miss Manski, for many seasons the annual witch at the Metropolitan Opera house, now makes her home in Bloomington, Ind., where she heads the voice department of Indiana university. Her characterization was appropriately snarly and menacing, and at one moment she let forth a strident, high-pitched cackle that ought to have chilled the marrow of the children in the audience. Her musical grasp of the score is complete, and the only serious shortcoming of her performance was a serious inability to make herself understood in English.

Joyous Acting by Jeanne Madden.

Jeanne Madden, seen here in 1939 as the ingénue of the Maxwell Anderson-Kurt Weill musical comedy, "Knickerbocker Holiday," joined the opera company to sing Gretel. Her joyous and stagewise acting created an illusion that was very attractive, and her singing remained agreeable in spite of uncertainities of tone production. Reinhold Schmidt, new as the father, sang with less force, but also with less bluster, than Mark Love in former years. His performance was musical, but pale.

Maria Matyas' bubbling and boyish Hansel retained its familiar qualities of spontaneity and infectiousness. Kurt Herbert Adler, increasingly mature each year in his knowledge of the lovely score, made a cohesive ensemble of an orchestra that was woefully deficient in strings. The staging, while smooth enough in routine, continued to have its usual aspect of an amateur theatrical, and the steps of the magic staircase in the dream scene refused—as we have come to expect them to—to light up at the right time as the angels descended.

Ballet Is Curtain Raiser.

Ruth Page's tasteful and delightful ballet divertissements prepared for the "Lakmé" that never came off were given as a curtain raiser to the opera. Altho Walter Camryn left for the army yesterday and two other men have disappeared from the fold since a week ago, the ballet was still one of the fine achievements of the season.

Beyond the sumptuous costumes, the dances possess an authentic and beautiful oriental quality, which Miss Page has grafted most successfully onto the conventional vocabulary of opera ballet. The chief dancers, in addition to Miss Page, were Vera Mirova, Betsy Ross, Bettina Rosay, Guillermo La Blanca, Sean Marino, and Stanley Herbert. Leo Kopp conducted.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

G. L. writes: "In a recent column you stated the services were seeking men with contracting experience, and commissions would be granted qualified men. Is the offer still open?"

ANSWER: Yes. Men between 21 and 50 with almost any type of construction experience will be given commissions or ratings depending upon their age, skill, and general qualifications. Men who have served as construction superintendents in large unit constructions will receive senior officer commissions. Send us a statement giving your age, birthplace, education, training, and experience. If you will include a detailed employment record it will facilitate matters a great deal. In addition, men with not less than five years' experience in the supervision of highway construction, paving, airport construction, or in the operation and supervision of earth moving or heavy construction equipment will be given commissions. If the candidate has an engineering degree he will receive extra consideration.

C. S. asks: "In order to volunteer my service for the country thru my draft board, would I have to wait until I am a draft registrant? If I am registered, do I have to wait until my number is called before I can volunteer?

ANSWER: If you are under 18 and not registered, you may volunteer for any service accepting persons between their 17th and 18th birthdates. You also may volunteer thru your draft board after you have registered without waiting for your number to be called.

P. C. A. asks: "Will a conviction for certain minor offenses bar one from officer candidate school?"

ANSWER: Not necessarily. The Yank involved sho[illegible] application in the usual way for officer training. If the commanding officer accepts and approves the application, the application is held in abeyance until the Yank writes to the adjutant general's office for a waiver. The application for a waiver contains an outline of the offenses and the civil court's adjudication of the case. If the waiver is granted, it is attached to the application for training and forwarded thru channels. The waivers are not usually granted if a heinous crime, moral turpitude, etc., are involved, but otherwise, if the candidate's civilian and military record has been good, he will receive every consideration.

I. C. F. asks: "How should a man be classified if he married before Dec. 8, 1941, and has a child born in June, 1941?"

ANSWER: If you married between Sept. 16, 1940, and Dec. 8, 1941, and were under 35 years of age, your draft board could rule that you married at a time when your selection for military service was imminent, and therefore, classify you 1-A. If you married before Sept. 16, 1940, you normally would be classified 3-A. The child you mentioned would not entitle you to deferment unless you could otherwise qualify as a normal 3-A man.

ACQUIT WIDOW IN SLAYING OF ARMY CAPTAIN

Miss Herlihy Tells of 'Hazy' Wedding Night.

Bisbee, Ariz., Dec. 19 (AP).—Margaret Herlihy was acquitted tonight of the murder of Capt. David D. Carr, 27 year old Fort Huachuca anti-tank officer, whom she secretly married June 21 and who was fatally shot in the girl's home last Aug. 14. The jury of miners and ranchers was out 37 minutes.

The 21 year old defendant, daughter of Lt. Col. Edward G. Herlihy of Fort Benning, Ga., a former commander of infantry at Fort Huachuca, where he was Carr's superior officer, waited in the courtroom, surrounded by members of her family and army officers.

Miss Herlihy gasped as the verdict was read.

She Thanks the Jurors.

As the jurors were dismissed they filed by the counsel table and shook hands with the red haired girl and wished her happiness.

"I don't know how to thank you," said Miss Herlihy, smiling thru tears.

Altho Margaret said she fell desperately in love with the handsome, often-married officer, she testified that on the night of the shooting he suddenly turned into "a blood crazed beast" who assaulted her without warning and threatened to kill her. She fought off his attacks, she said, until they reached her home from a Mexican night club, then seized a gun from a bureau drawer in her mother's bedroom and shot him.

Hazy About Wedding Night.

Margaret's admission on the stand today that she expects to become a mother next spring and that the man she killed was the child's father provided a tearful and dramatic ending to the three and one-half days of testimony.

Miss Herlihy, under cross examination said she was "very hazy" about the night in Agua Prieta, Mex., when she was married.

The prosecution pictured her as the aggressor. Norman Herring, deputy county attorney, contended Carr had threatened to tell Miss Herlihy's mother of their marriage and her pregnancy, and that this had led the girl to attack him.

Recalling that she testified yesterday that she and Carr had not lived as man and wife after their Mexican marriage, John F. Ross, county attorney, asked Miss Herlihy: "Did you have marital relations with him?"

Consulted a Doctor.

"Not to my knowledge," the girl replied.

"Did you consult a doctor?"

"Yes."

"Did he examine you as to being pregnant?" the prosecutor continued.

"Yes."

"Did he tell you of your condition?"

"He was trying to make certain, but it was too early."

On redirect examination, Margaret, who by this time had regained much of her composure, testified she was "so intoxicated" the night of the marriage she didn't know what happened.

"Who caused you to become intoxicated?" asked Defense Atty. Frank Thomas.

"Capt. Carr," the girl replied.

LET 2 CHILDREN OF SPY AIDS VISIT PARENTS IN JAIL

Federal authorities yesterday permitted 8 year old Esther Froehling and her 6 year old brother, Gordon, to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Otto Froehling, for the first time since the two were seized last July by federal agents for aiding saboteurs.

Froehling, Hans Max Haupt, and Otto R. Wergin have been sentenced to death for treason. Mrs. Froehling and the wives of the other men were sentenced to 25 years in prison and fined $10,000 each.

There were Christmas presents for every one. The children gave their parents each a personally selected greeting card and a handkerchief. From their father, Gordon and Esther each received a candy bar, an orange and a small amount of money. Mrs. Froehling's gifts to the youngsters were a coloring book and crayons for Gordon and an inexpensive packet of paper folders about birds for Esther.

The girl said that the best gift of all, with the exception of seeing their parents, was the one her mother had made for her. It was a group of many colored crocheted bells fastened to a safety pin to form a brooch. "I'll never, never lose this and I won't spend my money because Mommy and Daddy gave them to me," she vowed.

TRIANGLE KILLING FIGURE DIES IN GENEVA HOSPITAL

Harold Luke, who shot his wife and fatally wounded her friend, died yesterday of pneumonia in Geneva Community hospital.

Luke, 32 years old, and a defense plant assistant foreman, shot his wife, La Von, 26, and Vernon Coop, 40, well known Kane county sportsman, after he found them together in the Luke home in Montgomery, a suburb of Aurora, on Dec. 10. Coop, former president of the Aurora Sportsmen's league, died the next day. Mrs. Luke is recovering.

The Lukes had been separated and Mrs. Luke had sued for divorce a few days before the shooting. They have a small son. Luke admitted the shooting.

OWI TAKES STEP TO CENSOR ALL MOVIE SCRIPTS

Letter from Lowell Mellett Stuns Hollywood.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 19 (AP).—Hollywood, which prides itself on knowing all the answers, found itself asking "what's it all about?" today as it scanned a government request that screen treatments and scenarios of all motion pictures be submitted to the office of war information before they are produced.

Lowell Mellett.

The request was contained in a letter which studio spokesmen said was signed by Lowell Mellett, chief of the OWI motion picture bureau. It was laid before the major producers at a session yesterday.

Mellett said in Washington, D. C., today that all the big studios have been sending their movie ideas to the OWI for six months and that his communication was merely a review of existing relationships.

Calls Plan Voluntary.

He said the arrangement was voluntary, originating with the producers, and said he had no idea of making it compulsory.

Mellett told interviewers that "the only new thing in the letter" was a message advising producers of an arrangement between OWI and the army and navy by which OWI will help supervise pictures with a military angle.

Mellett said relations between the government and the film industry had been "extremely harmonious."

Films Defer Decision.

An official of the Association of Motion Picture producers, declining to be mentioned by name, said:

"There was no attempt to come to a conclusion on the request. As we understand it, it is not an order, and decision has been deferred.

Another studio source, likewise demanding anonymity, said:

"I don't think anyone can question the film industry's patriotism, and we are willing and anxious to coöperate with the government in any way to further the war. But frankly, we are caught completely by surprise by this request.

Film Piracy Feared.

"We feel—at any rate we are trying to feel—that the government is attempting to help, not hinder, the film industry by this request."

Another anonymous source pointed to the danger of film piracy if treatments and scenarios were submitted before production.

Producers submit scripts under present practice only if there is direct connection with the war.

GOV. GREEN GIVES CHRISTMAS TALK ON W-G-N TODAY

Gov. Dwight H. Green will deliver his Christmas message to the people of Illinois as a highlight of a special holiday program to be broadcast from W-G-N's main studio Friday, Dec. 25, before an audience of parents of army and navy men now fighting overseas.

The special Christmas program, presenting music in keeping with the day, a drama of Christmas night in a London air raid shelter, and brief messages from leading representatives of religious faiths, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m.

Marion Claire, soprano star of the Theater of the Air operettas, and Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N's operatic tenor, will sing carols and other Christmas music.

The religious leaders who are to contribute to the programs are: Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, resident bishop of the Methodist area of Chicago; Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, founder of the Catholic Youth organization and senior auxiliary bishop of the Chicago archdiocese, and Dr. Charles L. Shulman, president of the Chicago rabbinical association.

Pope Pius to Broadcast Yule Greeting Thursday

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—The National Catholic Welfare conference said today that Pope Pius XII. will broadcast a Christmas message Thursday at 2:45 p. m. Chicago time. The broadcast will last 45 minutes.

[ADVERTISMENT]
If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys
If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.
Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.
Help Kidneys Remove Acids
Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.
Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.
Guaranteed Trial Offer
Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. An iron clad guarantee insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c.
AUTHOR'S NOTE: Cystex is produced under the direction of a licensed physician for The Knox Co., one of the largest drug companies in the world with laboratory connections in the U.S.A., Canada, England, Australia and South America. The guarantee of money back unless satisfied is enforced 100% and is a dependable form of assurance to all users of Cystex.

SEEKS TO REGAIN $500,000 COMPANY HE 'LOST' TO WIFE

Inventor Accuses Mate of Infidelity.

W. Donald Dunkle, inventor of a nonfattening bread and founder of a $500,000 business, filed an amended suit for divorce yesterday against his wife, Eleanor, charging her with living in an adulterous state with a broker, and further charging her with usurping control of her husband's business.

According to Dunkle's lawyer, Ben H. Ehrlich, Mrs. Dunkle is now enjoying an income of $7,000 a month and is living near Crystal Lake in a $20,000 home constructed with her husband's money, while Dunkle is virtually penniless. Dunkle is 38 years old, his wife 34. The broker correspondent in the suit was identified only as "Mr. H."

Ousted as President.

The Dunkles were married April 11, 1936, and separated May 5, 1941. On the latter date, the suit charges, Mrs. Dunkle ousted her husband as president of the National Bakers Services, Inc., 30 North La Salle street, and took over his job.

She was enabled to do so, the suit alleges, by obtaining control of the stock thru fraud and deceit, specifically, by persuading Dunkle to sign over in her name all his stock on the theory she would protect his interests while he was out of the city on business.

According to the bill, Dunkle in 1937 invented a nonfattening bread, which he patented, and which is now manufactured by more than 100 large bakeries. He received a royalty of 1 cent a loaf.

Charges Alleged Intimacies.

In his suit, Dunkle charges his wife with intoxication as well as infidelity. Numerous dates of alleged intimacies with "Mr. H." were recited. The suit says of "Mr. H."—

"He is a broker having business in Chicago, is a married man and is not living with his wife. He is the father of a daughter of the age of 10 years, born to the defendant, Eleanor R. Dunkel, while she was then married to her first husband, and not the plaintiff."

Dunkle asks a divorce and an accounting of the business and also an injunction to restrain her from further barring him from enjoying its proceeds. Dunkle lives at the Versailles apartment hotel, 5234 Dorchester avenue. According to Attorney Ehrlich, Mrs. Dunkle is the third wife of Dunkle.

Sued by Husband

Mrs. Eleanor Dunkle, who was sued for divorce by her husband, W. Donald Dunkle, inventor and business man.

Rob North Shore Couple of Coats and Watches

Four Negro bandits last night forced Miss Virginia Roberts, 21 years old, 2014 Orrington avenue, Evanston, and John Cox, 20, of 1116 Elmwood avenue, Wilmette, to surrender their coats, their watches, and $20 after forcing them into an alley near 33d street and Wabash avenue. The couple were on their way to Illinois Institute of Technology where Cox is a student, to attend a fraternity party.

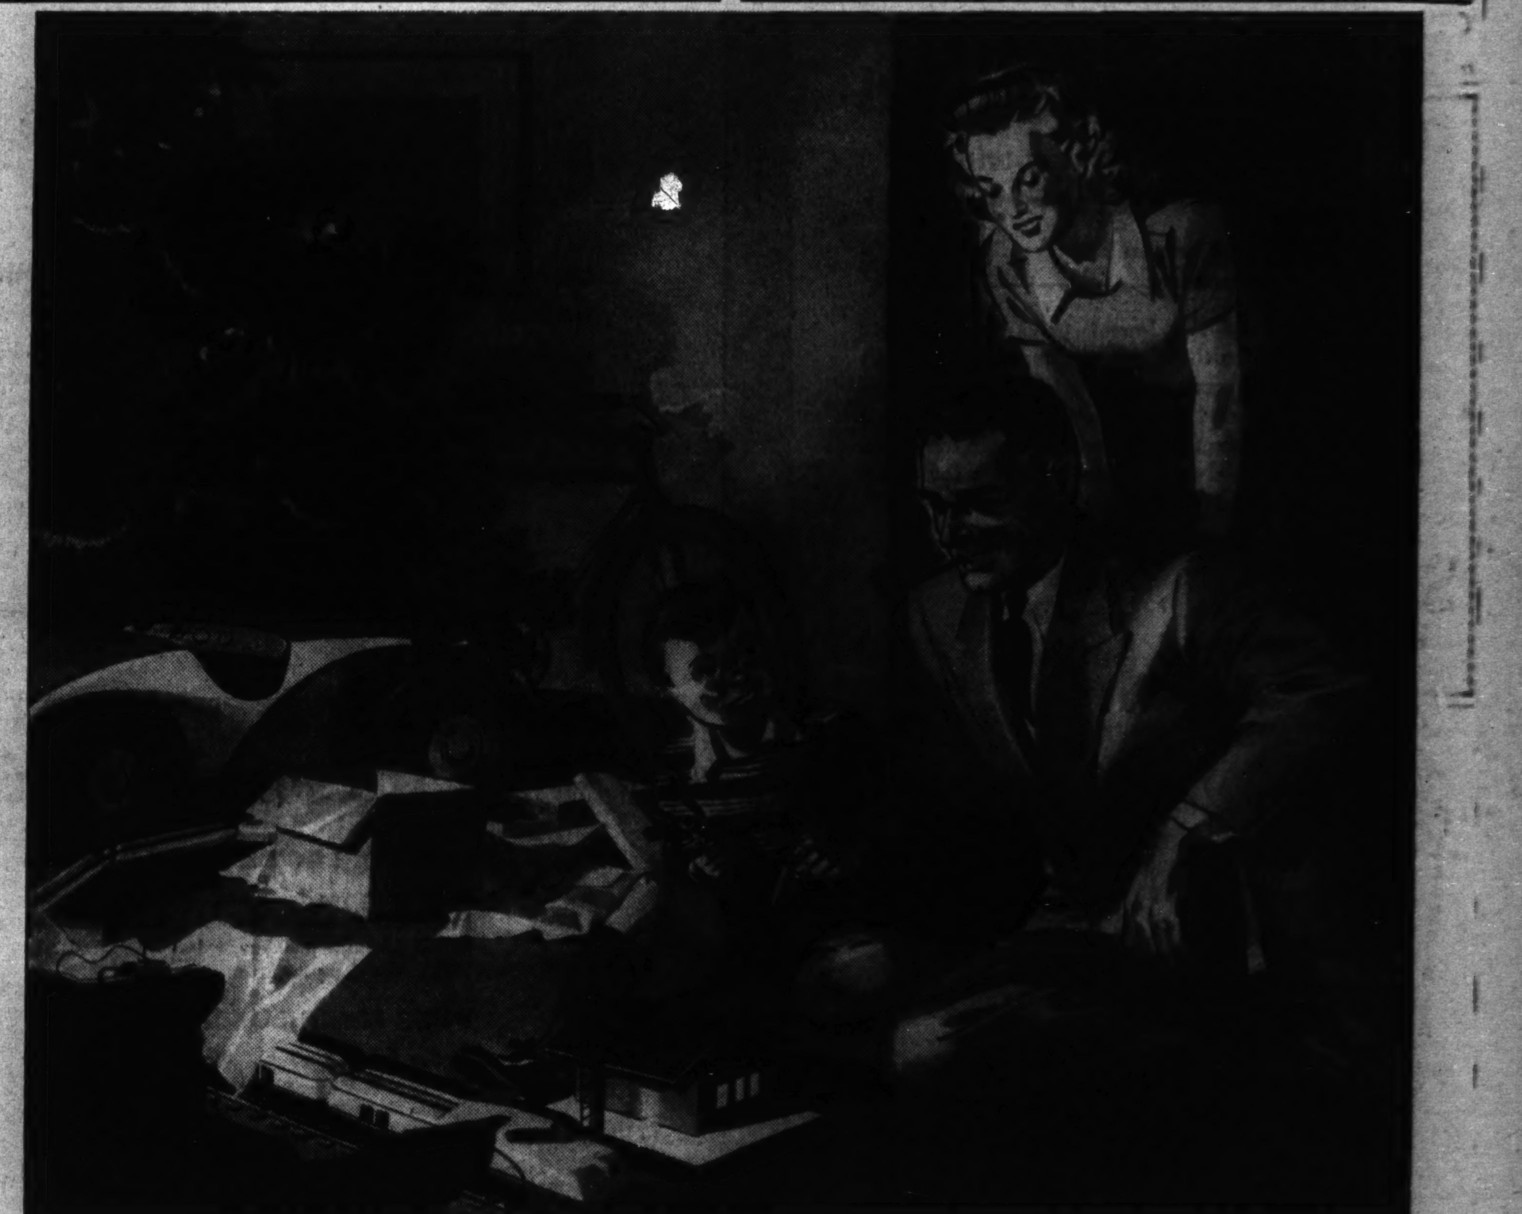
Top That 10% by New Year's —Save with War Bonds



When the lights of the world go on again
Factory noises—the battering, whirring, banging of full-scale war production—are "Jingle Bells" to our ears here at Timken.
We love the old-fashioned Christmas, but this time we're happy to make a lot of sacrifices to speed the day "when the lights of the world go on again." We're working (and buying War Bonds, too) to preserve our Freedom—to again enjoy Christmas as we please—with bikes 'n everything for the kiddies—in the years that lie ahead.
Many of our sons and close friends in the Armed Forces have written home to say "keep the war equipment coming—that's what we need to keep us happy this Christmas!" . . . And, believe us, we're producing!
Timken burners have always been famous for squeezing every bit of heat out of each drop of oil (they save in fuel and electric costs up to 25% or more over ordinary burners).
Timken fuel economy is now lightening the burden of fuel rationing on users and relieving the railroads of a tremendous load.
To insure getting the best out of your burner, phone an authorized Timken Dealer today for an inspection or service.
If you haven't received our new 24-page booklet, "How to Make Your Fuel Oil Rations go Further," you'll find it worth countless times the postcard it takes to get one. Just send us your name and address. It's free.

SCHREINER NAMED MOST VALUABLE IN BIG NINE

ILLINOIS BEATS GREAT LAKES IN LATE RALLY, 57 TO 53

SPURT WIPES OUT SAILORS' 10 POINT LEAD

De Paul Beats U.S.C. in 49-47 Battle.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Quiz Kids from the University of Illinois, defending conference champions, answered the $64 basketball question last night at the Stadium. Behind four points and with four minutes to play, the Illini tied the game in a minute and then drove on to beat Great Lakes, 57 to 53.

In the second game of the double header, which was attended by 13,295, De Paul university outsteadied a Southern California squad to win, 49 to 47, after the Blue Demons had kicked away an advantage that early in the first half had been a margin of 16 points.

The Boys Were Torrid!

The battle of speed and skill between Illinois and Great Lakes had something added. Each squad had moments on end when the players couldn't miss no matter the position of the shot. The total score of 110 points was impressive by itself. The development of the contest was a steady crescendo climaxed by the explosive power of Illinois' closing rally.

The teams were tied four times in the first half. Illinois then took command and at the intermission led, 37 to 32. Great Lakes forced a tie at 39 points, went into the lead shortly afterward, and then built up an advantage of 51 to 45. Six minutes remained and the Bluejackets seemingly were headed for their seventh consecutive victory of the season, a victory which probably was the only gift Lt. Paul Hinkle, Great Lakes' coach, desired for the 44th birthday he celebrated yesterday.

Menke Makes Vital Shot.

Bob Davies and Dick Klein were the scoring stars of the Bluejacket attack. But with victory almost achieved the quintet lost its keen edge on offense, faltered, and the tide turned. The break probably was a missing rebound which Al Menke captured and hooked into the Illinois goal. As he shot he was fouled by Bob Dietz. Menke added that point; Illinois had cut the lead to 51 to 48. Then Klein got a point on Menke's foul to establish Illinois' handicap at four points with four minutes to play.

Just before the final rush big Art Mathisen, captain of the Illinois, had rested 3½ minutes. This strategic maneuver by Coach Doug Mills paid off.

Jack Smiley popped a field goal. Andy Phillip came up with a Great Lakes pass and dribbled in to tie the score as the thousands of Illinois rooters roared approval. Gene Vance duplicated the drive and counted from under the backboard. Illinois then began a delaying action near mid-floor and in his desperation to break up the stall, John Hiller, Great Lakes' substitute forward, fouled Phillip.

One Last Illini Score.

Phillip got the point and while Klein added a penalty shot to the Bluejacket total, Illinois kept possession and just before the timer signaled the end, Phillip dribbled under for a last field goal.

There was little difference between these great teams. Illinois had superior height and splendid balanced scoring strength. Phillip and Menke each got six field goals and Menke added nine penalty points in 10 chances. Ken Parker was the only substitute for Illinois — he relieved Mathisen—and the varsity five accounted for 13 free throws in their total of 17 trials.

Eddie Riska's aggressiveness was a factor in Great Lakes' attack but the former Notre Dame star was expelled early in the second half on fouls. Klein was high point man of the Bluejackets with six field goals and three penalty throws, but Gil Huffman, a Hoosier who played for the University of Tennessee, dropped in four long set shots in as many trials from mid-floor before he missed.

De Paul Starts Fast.

De Paul started as if Southern California was a third rate quintet. The Demons' first five, with John Jorgeson teaming at forward with Jim Cominsky — Jorgenson just became eligible—ran up a 17 to 10 lead and as substitutes were inserted into the lineup the Demons rushed on ahead, 32 to 16. They skidded a bit in the closing minutes of the half but led, 34 to 24, at the rest period.

Gene Rock, little Trojan forward, sparked the losers' rally in the second period. His left hand shot while dribbling across court was unstoppable and he garnered nine field goals and a pair of free throws. Southern California pulled into a tie at 36-all, which was a spur for George Mikan, De Paul's 6 foot 8 inch center, to turn on the heat. Mikan's followups opened a 42 to 36 gap.

Southern California rallied to trail, 44 to 43, and again, 46 to 45. After this latter count only two minutes remained. Dick Starzyk got a point on

Notre Dame Beats Purdue Five, 46 to 43

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special].—Notre Dame won its fifth straight basketball victory, 46 to 43, at the expense of Purdue before a crowd of 4,800 tonight.

After a sluggish first half, in which the Irish moved to a 22 to 12 advantage, Purdue suddenly came to life after five minutes of the final period and soon caught Notre Dame at 30 to 30 midway in the period.

Brennan Gives Irish Lead.

The lead changed hands before the Irish went ahead, 34 to 33, on a sensational long push shot by Tom Brennan, subcenter, and Notre Dame maintained its margin, sometimes by only two points, during a hectic final eight minutes.

Considerably off last Monday's 61 point pace, registered in defeating Wisconsin, 61 to 59, the Irish cooled off during the Purdue rally, making only one field goal, a set shot by Frank Curran, in one seven minute stretch.

Menke Leads Scorers.

Capt. Allen Menke, center, for Purdue, led both teams with 12 points, and Eddie Ehlers, South Bend sophomore guard was next with 11. Bob Rensberger, senior guard, led Notre Dame with 10 points.

It was Notre Dame's third victory in its last four starts against the Boilermakers, but Purdue still leads, 8 to 3, in the series. Tonight's was Purdue's second defeat in four starts this year.

Purdue's downfall lay in its inability to make free throws. The Irish missed only 2 of 14. Purdue missed 8 out of 19.

The Irish do not play again until they meet Northwestern in Chicago Stadium Jan. 16. Purdue will meet Washington of St. Louis in Lafayette Monday. Lineup:

WISCONSIN WINS, 50-38

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 19 [Special].—After a close, fast first half, the University of Wisconsin basketball team pulled away in the last half tonight to defeat Marquette university, 50 to 38, before a capacity crowd of 6,300 in the Milwaukee auditorium. As usual, Forward Johnny Kotz led the Badgers to victory with 21 points, while Marquette presented a new sophomore star in Forward Howard Kallenberger who tallied 15.

The Hilltoppers took an early 4 to 0 lead, only to have Kotz personally tie it and then lead a Wisconsin splurge that put the Badgers in front, 16 to 6. Later they led, 25 to 14, but Kallenberger went on a rampage that helped Marquette cut the Wisconsin lead to 29 to 27 at intermission time.

The second half found the Hilltoppers unable to hit the basket and the Badgers gradually pulled away, altho the reserves weren't called in until the final 90 seconds. Lineup:

GEORGIA SQUAD TIRES OF TRAVEL ON WAY TO BOWL

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 19 (AP).—Coach Wallace Butts and his Georgia football squad stopped en route to the Rose Bowl today long enough to admit a two fold weariness—the Bulldogs are tired of wartime traveling and hearing themselves proclaimed odds-on favorites to whip U. C. L. A.

The party of 68 had plenty of time to stretch during an unscheduled two-hour layover at Kansas City. Butts scoffed at reported betting quotations of 3 to 10 favoring his club, and reminded reporters Duke was similarly rated last year before losing to Oregon State.

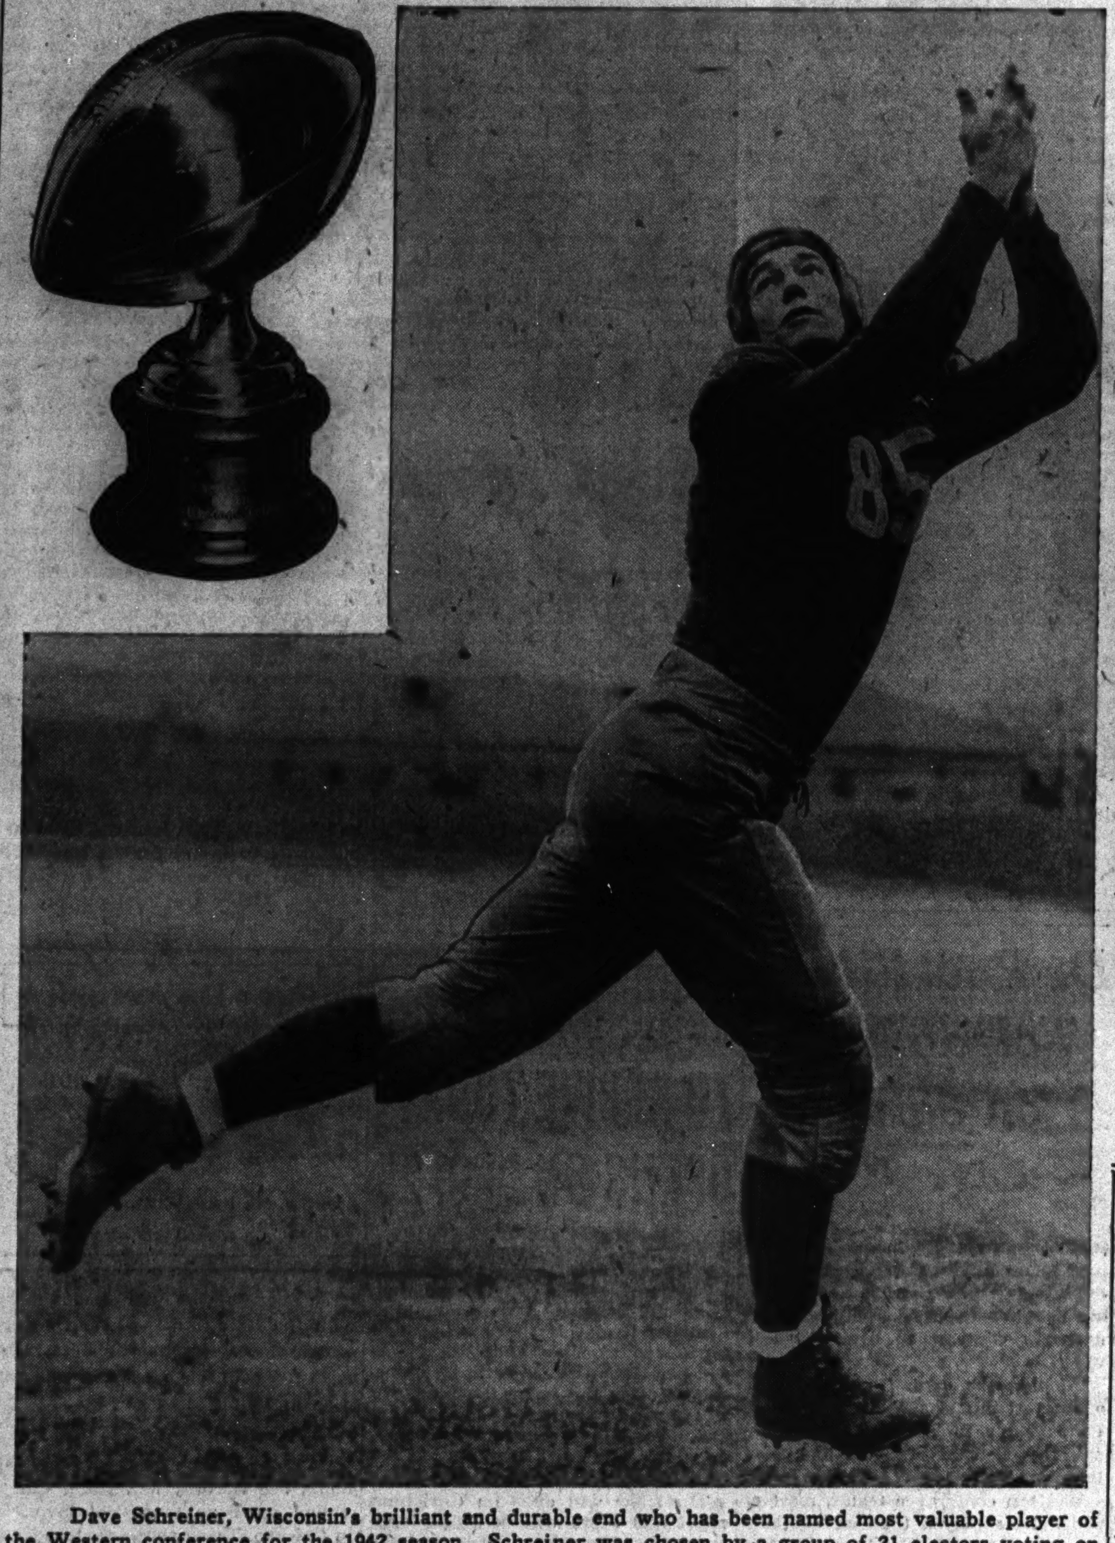
Frankie Sinkwich limped slightly, but the Bulldog back will be ready for the Bowl fray according to one authority—his comely wife, who is accompanying the team.

ARKANSAS PUTS O. K. ON RACING AT HOT SPRINGS

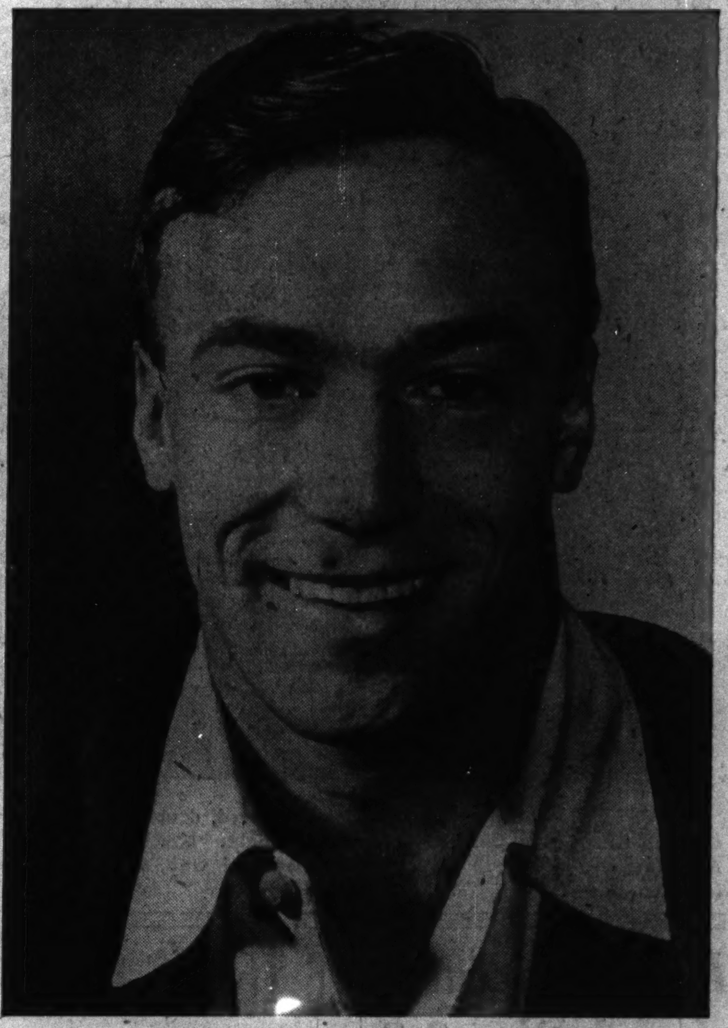
Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Arkansas Racing commission granted the Oaklawn Jockey club a permit today to conduct a 30 day horse racing meet at Hot Springs starting Feb. 22.

In a formal statement the commission took cognizance of Gov. Homer Adkins' announced opposition to racing, but said it believed the Arkansas permit should be granted since the sport was continuing in other sections.

BRINGS MORE HONORS TO WISCONSIN FOOTBALL TEAM



Dave Schreiner, Wisconsin's brilliant and durable end who has been named most valuable player of the Western conference for the 1942 season. Schreiner was chosen by a group of 21 electors voting on nine candidates representing each of the squads in Big Nine play. To Schreiner will go The Tribune's annual award (inset), an actual size silver football. Schreiner is pictured in a characteristic pass catching attitude.



Dave Schreiner, the student. Dave won his most valuable honors with 13 first place votes. Next to him was Tom Farmer of Iowa. The electors were the conference football coaches; nine conference officials; Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the conference; Arch Ward, sports editor of The Tribune, and Wilfrid Smith.

RYMKUS VOTED MOST VALUABLE AT NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special].—Lou Rymkus, senior left tackle from Chicago, today was voted Notre Dame's most valuable player for the 1942 football season. The former Tilden Tech High school star won the honor by an almost unanimous vote of his teammates.

The big Lithuanian boy was prevented by injuries from winning his letter as a sophomore, and he also was hampered last year by recurring injuries. He held the first team left tackle post last fall, however, until he received a sprained elbow before the Northwestern game, missing the final three contests.

Trojans Beat St. Mary's Air Cadets, 21-13

Los Angeles, Dec. 19 (AP).—Southern California closed a long and arduous football season today with a 21 to 13 victory over the Navy Preflight school of St. Mary's college.

The Trojans dominated the game and registered 14 first downs to the Air Devils' 8, but with California's Vic Bottari and Stanford's Frankie Albert throwing passes right up to the finish, it was a highly exciting contest.

St. Mary's Weakened.

The navy flyers showed the effects of a strenuous campaign and the loss of 26 players to the active service, and were not the same team that beat U. C. L. A. early in the season.

The Trojans had a slight advantage in the line. Billy Seixas, 5 foot 7 inch guard was a thorn in the navy's side all afternoon. In leading the way or on end sweeps, he seldom failed to knock down the key tackler, and on defense he broke up the flyers' interference.

Vanzo of N. U., Stands Out.

Fred Vanzo, former Northwestern quarter back, was the bright defensive star for the Air Devils, and his sharp tackling matched that of Seixas.

Only 15,000 persons, the smallest crowd of the year in Memorial coliseum, watched the game. Lineup:

The Air-Devils got their first score four minutes after the opening kickoff by blocking Ralph Heywood's punt, Joe Ruetz, former Notre Dame guard, recovering on the 10. On the next play, Bottari threw one over center to Bobby Grayson in the end zone.

Southern California came back with a rush, traveling 76 yards in 14 plays, with Bleeker scoring and Dick Jamison making it 7 to 6 on his placement.

Trojans March 71 Yards.

In the second quarter, the Trojans marched 71 yards for another score in 13 plays. Jamison's placement made it 14 to 6.

The Trojans went 62 yards in seven plays for their third touchdown, highlighted by a 36 yard pass from McCardle to Heywood, the U. S. C. end taking it over his shoulder in the end zone. Jamison's kick made it 21 to 6.

With Bottari leading the charge, the Air-Devils ran and passed their way 61 yards in seven plays for their second touchdown. From the 6, Bottari shot one into Dale Gentry's arms across the goal line and Delauer's placement added the 13th point.

TROPHY IS HIGH SPOT OF CAREER, SCHREINER SAYS

"The climax to my intercollegiate football career at Wisconsin was receiving the Chicago Tribune silver football. Being an All-American is fine, but there's something a little bit extra in being honored by the fellows you played with."

This was Dave Schreiner's first comment when he was informed that the coaches and officials of the Western conference had voted he was the most valuable player in the Big Nine. Previously, Schreiner had been placed in nomination for the silver football by his teammates, who had chosen him the most valuable of the 1942 Wisconsin eleven that defeated Ohio State and finished second in the Western conference only because the championship Buckeye team played six games to Wisconsin's five.

To Play with Eastern All-Stars.

Schreiner reported Friday at Northwestern university to the Eastern All-Star squad and left that night for San Francisco. W-G-N made a recording of Schreiner's interview by Jack Brickhouse and it will be broadcast tomorrow night on the W-G-N sports review.

Schreiner detailed briefly his athletic career from the time he played for the Lancaster, Wis., high school team until he had completed three years on the Badger varsity as the outstanding end of the 1942 campaign.

Schreiner paid high tribute to Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin's head football coach, and his staff of assistants. Other factors in Wisconsin's splendid record were, according to Schreiner, the remarkable team spirit of the seniors on the squad and the aid they received from four sophomore regulars, Elroy Hirsch, left half back; Ken Currier, guard; Fred Negus, center, and Jack Wink, quarter back.

Starred Against Ohio State.

"From the time I played on Wisconsin's freshman team," Schreiner said, "I had the feeling I would make good on the varsity. You know at once whether you've got it or not. I believe I played my greatest game of the 1942 season against Ohio State," he continued. Incidentally, Wisconsin defeated the Buckeyes 17 to 7, and Ohio State gained only 4 yards around Schreiner's end during the game.

"Ohio State's wide plays didn't bother me much that afternoon," Dave added, "but their power plays inside were hard to stop. Don't forget, it takes more than one man to stop the other team and that's why I know Wisconsin had a great bunch of fellows. I still don't know why they singled me out for the most valuable award, but I certainly appreciate their respect and I'm deeply indebted to the coaches and officals who awarded me the Tribune silver football."

Schreiner is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He recently enlisted in the marine reserve and expects to return to Wisconsin after the East-West game to complete his work for his degree this spring unless ordered to report for active duty.

TRIBUNE SILVER FOOTBALL WON BY BADGER END

Tom Farmer of Iowa Second in Voting.

Honor Roll

WINNERS of The Chicago Tribune silver football trophy, given annually to the player voted the most valuable in the Western conference, follow:

1942—Dave Schreiner, Wisconsin.
1941—Jack Graf, Ohio State.
1940—Tom Harmon, Michigan.
1939—Nile Kinnick, Iowa.
1938—Howard Weiss, Wisconsin.
1937—Corby Davis, Indiana.
1936—Vernon Huffman, Indiana.
1935—Jay Berwanger, Chicago.
1934—Pug Lund, Minnesota.
1933—Joe Laws, Iowa.
1932—Harry Newman, Michigan.
1931—Clarence Munn, Minnesota.
1930—Wesley Fesler, Ohio State.
1929—Bill Glassgow, Iowa.
1928—Chuck Bennett, Indiana.
1927—Ken Rouse, Chicago.
1926—Benny Friedman, Michigan.
1925—Tim Lowry, Northwestern.
1924—Red Grange, Illinois.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Dave Schreiner, right end on the University of Wisconsin football team which finished second in the Western conference race, was the most valuable player in the 1942 Big 9 campaign.

Schreiner was chosen by a group of 21 electors whose vote now has ratified the opinion of the Badger players who had placed the senior end in nomination for The Chicago Tribune silver football. Schreiner will be the 19th western conference player to receive the actual size football that was first awarded in 1924 to Harold [Red] Grange of Illinois.

The honor roll includes some of the finest performers in nearly two decades of Western conference competition. Since 1930 each university has nominated its candidate for THE TRIBUNE's award. Prior to this date any player was eligible in the voting by the 21 electors.

Highest Award in Nation.

Participation by the players in the nominations has made this award the highest in the nation since no player can receive the silver football unless his teammates have chosen him as most valuable to his team. Each of the nine most valuable players—one from each university—will receive a white gold miniature football. These nine players, the honor team of the conference for 1942, are:

Illinois—Elmer Engel, end.
Indiana—Lou Saban, back.
Iowa—Tom Farmer, back.
Michigan—Al Wistert, tackle.
Minnesota—Dick Wildung, tackle.
Northwestern—Ed Hirsch, back.
Ohio State—Charles Csuri, tackle.
Purdue—Bill Buffington, back.
Wisconsin—Dave Schreiner, end.

The vote for the most valuable player in the conference was divided between seven of the above nine men. Schreiner was the overwhelming first choice, however, and received 13 first place votes. In addition he was the second choice of three electors. First place scored two points in the tabulation. Second choice scored one point. The electors were the conference football coaches, nine conference officials, Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the conference, Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, and Wilfrid Smith.

Tom Farmer Second.

Competition for second place in the vote was close, with Tom Farmer, Iowa half back and quarter back, nosing out Al Wistert, Michigan tackle, and Dick Wildung, Minnesota tackle. The latter pair were tied in the point totals. Farmer's passing was an integral part of the Hawkeyes' attack, while Wistert and Wildung were tremendous factors in the play of their teams.

Schreiner is the first lineman to receive The Tribune trophy since the award went to Clarence Munn, Minnesota guard, in 1931. Munn now is line coach at the University of Michigan and serves under Coach Fritz Crisler who, in 1931, was head coach of the Gopher eleven. The Badger end also is the second Wisconsin player to be honored in 19 seasons. Howie Weiss, Wisconsin full back, was the conference's most valuable player in 1938.

It is impossible, of course, for any one player to dominate completely a team's play. Schreiner received the award, for instance, as Wisconsin's most valuable man over Paul Hirsbrunner and Pat Harder. Hirsbrunner played right tackle for the Badgers until the closing games, when he was shifted to left end. Harder was chosen Wisconsin's most valuable player in 1941, his sophomore year, but he was handicapped early this fall by injuries.

Schreiner Outstanding End.

Schreiner was a 60 minute player, an outstanding end whose defensive play inspired a line that at times threatened to crack. Wisconsin's victory over Ohio State, which won the Big Nine title by virtue of a six game conference schedule, was peak of the Badgers' performances and was not reached again until the final game of

HAWKS ARE HOST TO FIRST PLACE BRUINS TONIGHT

Boston Has Lost Only One Game Since Nov. 14.

Games Tonight

Boston Bruins at Chicago Black Hawks.
Toronto Maple Leafs at New York Rangers.
Montreal Canadiens at Detroit Red Wings.

The Boston Bruins, the team everybody was sorry for before the start of the National Hockey league season, will clash with the Blackhawks in Chicago Stadium tonight.

Prior to the start of the 1942-'43 campaign hockey experts and even Manager Art Ross himself, thought the Bruins were, if they had a lot of luck, no better than a fifth place club. And there was good reason to believe that the analysts were right, for the Bruins, who lost their great Kraut line, Schmidt, Dumart, and Bauer, to the royal Canadian air force toward the end of last season, saw Capt. Des Smith, Roy Conacher, and Jack McGill report to the Canadian army prior to the start of this season.

Lost First Four Games.

So bad did the Bruins look in their first four games, which they lost, that it was feared Manager Ross might throw up the sponge and, like the Brooklyn Americans, suspend operations for the duration. Then things began to happen. With all their problems, the Bruins still possessed the most formidable looking combination in the circuit from the blue line to the nets. On performance, and in the opinion of players and coaches, they had hockey's top net minder in Frank Brimsek, and despite the loss of Smith, they still had the game's best rear guardsmen in Johnny Crawford, Dit Clapper, and Flash Hollett, and Ross added a better than ordinary workman in Jack Shewchuk to replace Smith.

The Bruins' youngsters and the supposed has beens commenced to score and the Ross clan began to climb until it now leads the league.

Between Nov. 14 and last Thursday they have gone down to defeat only once in their amazing drive to the top, and have averaged nearly five goals per game with the sensational play maker of the league, Bill Cowley, making six points in one of their recent games.

Cowley Leading Scorer.

Last Thursday's scoring jamboree against the Rangers netted Cowley two goals and an assist and sent him to the top of the league's scoring heap. Two seasons ago the Boston center established a new point record under the present rules by making 62 points, made up of 17 goals and 45 assists.

Another veteran who has had a big part in the Bruins' remarkable run is Buzz Boll, who has over 10 seasons of major league play behind him. Boll became a part of the Bruins' machine only because of the shortage of hockey players. He was considered thru as a big timer by the Toronto team three seasons ago.

Two kids, not out of the kindergarten class very long, Don Gallinger, 17 years old and Bip Guidolin, not yet 17, have become fixtures on the Bruins' club.

The teams now stand even in the three games played thus far.

Wiebe Checks In.

Art Wiebe, the brilliant defense man who had decided to remain out of competition this year so he could operate his bakery in Canada, arrived late last night and will be in a Hawk uniform tonight. Art's plans to arrive by plane were changed for him in Minneapolis, so he made the rest of the journey by train. Tonight's lineups:

CANADIENS, RANGERS TIE, 1-1.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Montreal Canadiens and the New York Rangers battled out to 1 to 1 tie in a National hockey league game tonight and the net result was that the Rangers were still three points down in the cellar.

The Canadiens took a one goal lead in the first period when Dutch Hiller picked up a pass from Elmer Lach and sank an easy shot from a short distance out. The goal followed a headlong rush from the Canadiens' area with Buddy O'Connor carrying the puck. Kirkpatrick was in the penalty box at the time. Jack Portland was in the box earlier but the Rangers had no chance at that time.

When the second period started, the Canadiens held the Rangers at bay for 13 minutes before Alf Pike raced in to make an easy score on Paul Bibeault. Lineups:

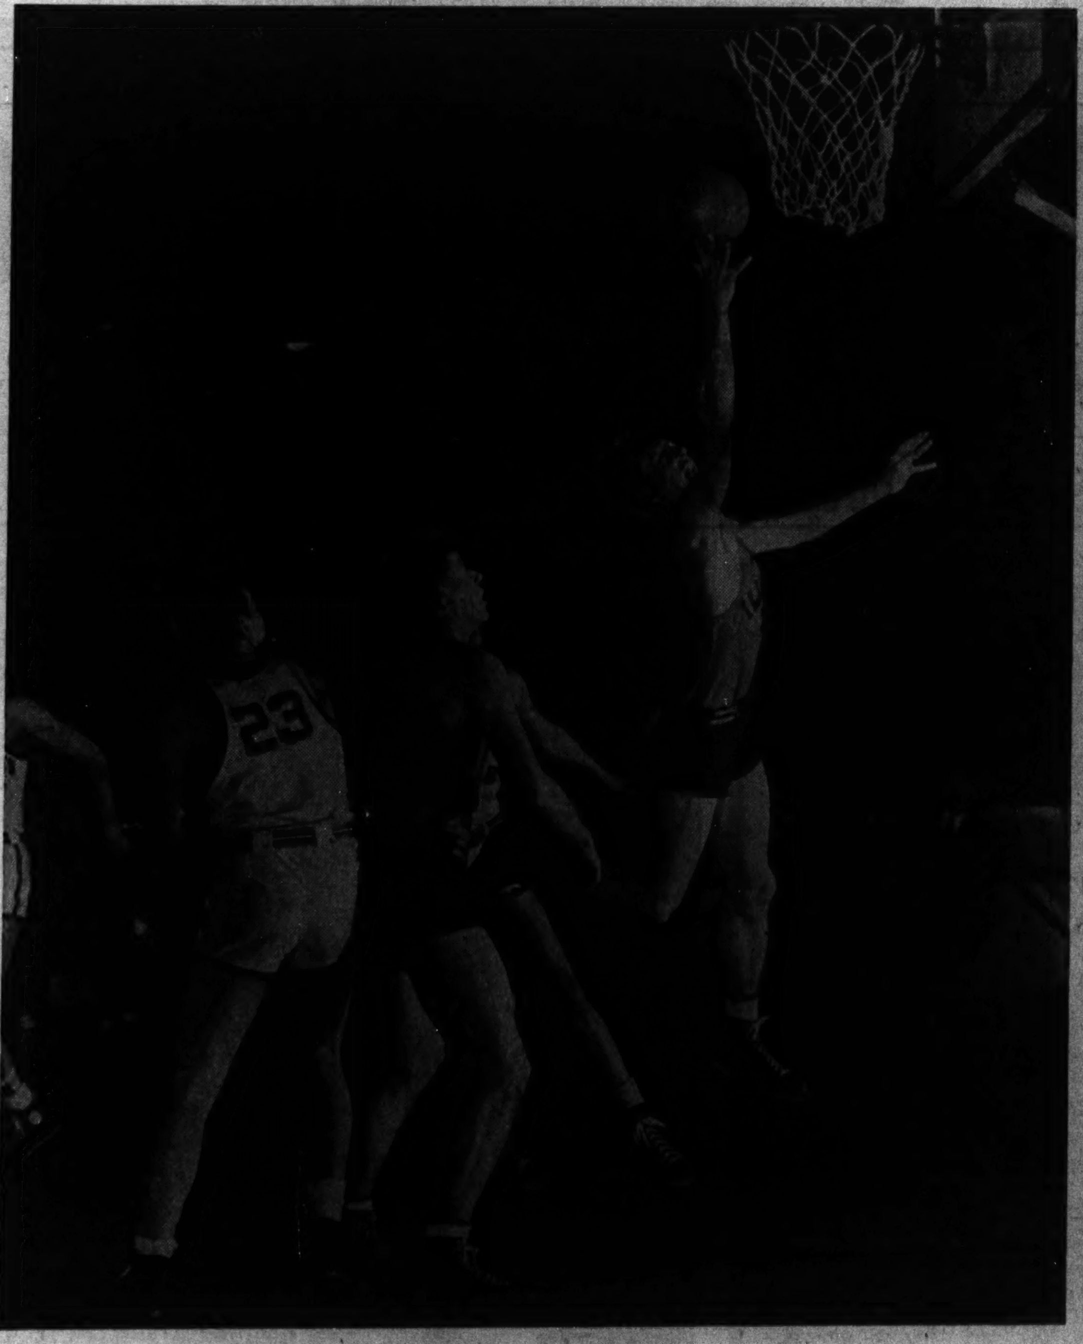
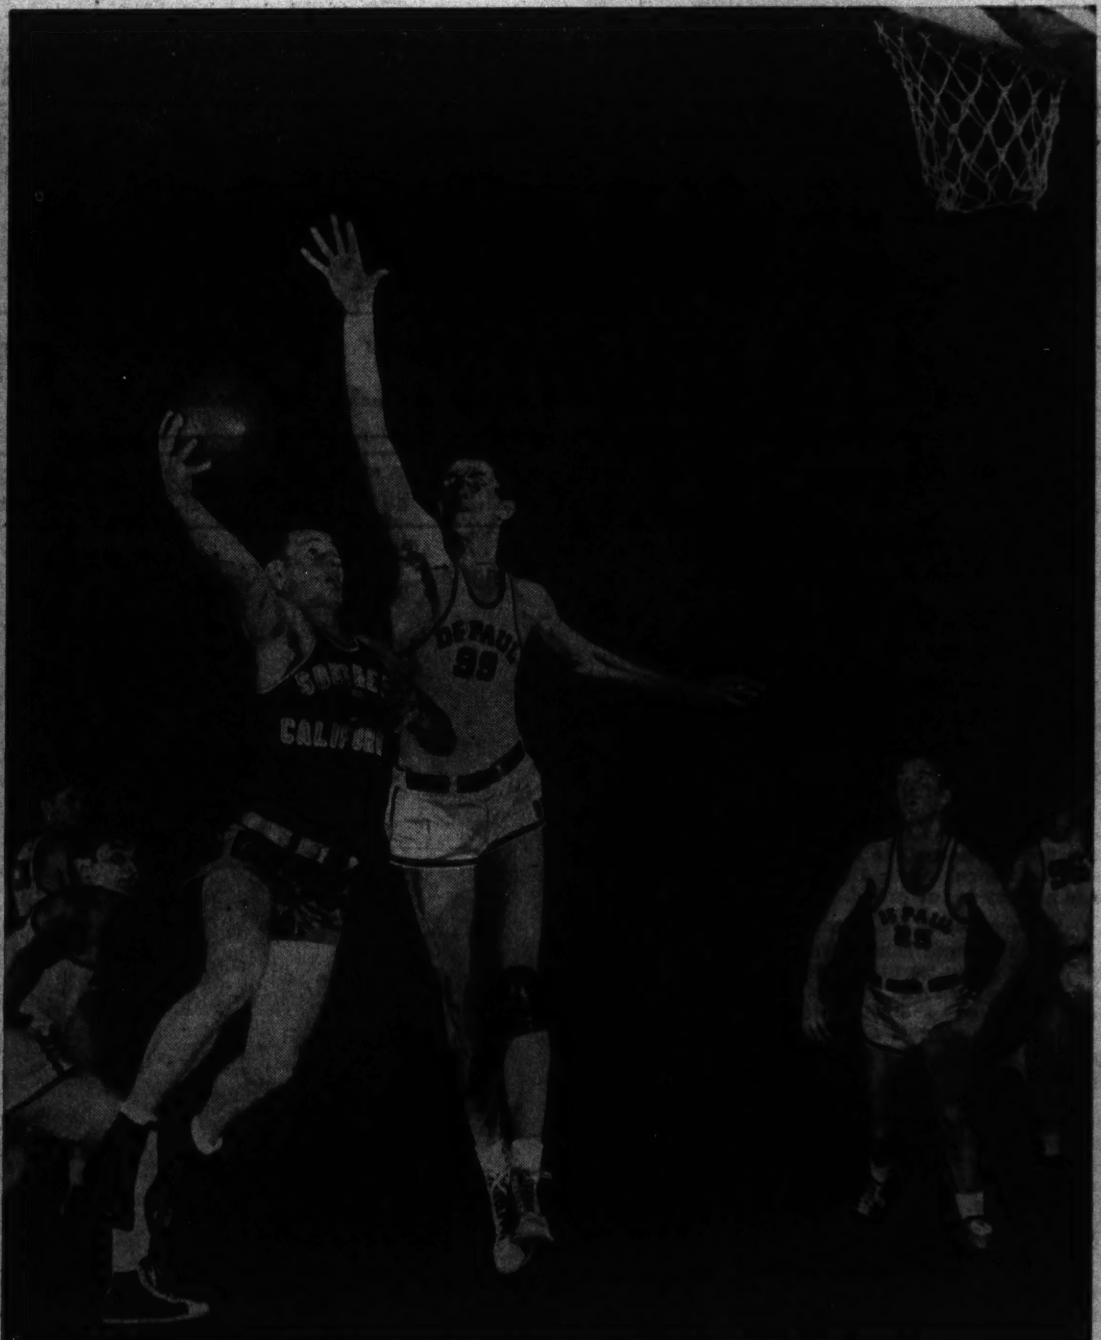
A BIG NIGHT FOR ILLINOIS AND DE PAUL IN THE STADIUM



Ken Menke, University of Illinois forward, drops in a basket against Great Lakes in opening game of double header in Chicago Stadium last night. No. 23 of Great Lakes is Center Dick Klein. Capt. Art Mathisen is No. 19 of Illinois. The Illini won, 57 to 53, to deal the Bluejackets their first defeat in seven games.



George Mikan, towering 6 foot 8 inch De Paul center, thrusts his arm in front of an attempted shot by Jim Seminoff of Southern California to break up the try. Mikan, who played only 14 minutes of the game at the Stadium last night, broke up enough Southern California plays and scored enough times himself to give De Paul at 49 to 47 victory. Other De Paul players identifiable are Tony Kelly (25), Jim Cominsky (31), and John Jorgenson (96). [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Bruins Retain Lead; Play 3-3 Tie with Leafs

TORONTO, Ontario, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Boston Bruins retained their 3 point margin at the top of the National Hockey league standing tonight by battling the Toronto Maple Leafs to a 3 to 3 tie in the third meeting of the two teams this season.

Before a crowd of 12,430 the Leafs three times stormed from behind to protect their home ice record of eight victories in nine starts, but they never could get in front.

Toronto Outshoots Boston.

The second place Toronto club outshot the Bruins, 34 to 30, and only the barrier thrown up in Boston's nets by Frankie Brimsek prevented that margin from showing in the score column.

Two former Toronto players carried a big burden in adding another successful chapter to the great march which has seen the Bruins win 11, tie three, and lose only one game in their last 15. They were Frank T. [Buzz] Boll and Bill [Flash] Hollett, both of whom collected a goal apiece. The third Boston tally was registered by Bill Cowley, giving him a 2 point lead in the individual scoring race.

Carr and Taylor Stand Out.

Lorne Carr and Billy Taylor were the big guns for the Stanley cup champions, who play in New York Sunday and travel to Boston Tuesday for a return engagement with the Bruins. Carr scored twice and drew one assist to move into second place in the scoring standings alongside Taylor, who had a goal and an assist.

MINOR LEAGUE MAY PERMIT USE OF WAR WORKERS

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 19 (AP).—Arthur H. Ehlers, president of the Interstate [Class B] baseball league, said today he would propose that the league adopt a plan which would permit teams to use players employed in defense plants.

As Ehlers outlined the proposal, a player working steadily would be used by a team in home games, but would not make road trips. This system, Ehlers said, would weaken the strength of every team when it played away from home.

Ehlers declared that if the Interstate league adopted the proposal, he would also ask that player limits be broadened and made to apply for the full year so that a number of players from war plants could be carried on the rosters. "When the clubs go on the road," he continued, "they would be travelling light and thus conform with transportation facilities. The clubs would be weaker while on the road, but it's the home games which are important to the fans of each city and they would be watching good baseball from their home clubs."

16 TEAMS OPEN PLAY TOMORROW IN Y. M. C. A. MEET

Sixteen of the best independent and college basketball teams of Chicago will open two weeks of play tomorrow evening in the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. invitational holiday tournament. Eight teams have been selected for the young men's division, for players who have not reached their 21st birthday, and eight teams for the senior division.

In the senior division will be Division Street Y. M. C. A., national champions and C. A. A. U. titleholders; the Fort Sheridan Cooks and Bakers team; St. Cyril C. Y. O.; Blue Seal Food Products; Northern Trust company; Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. Columbias; Studebaker B's, and Ramblers A. C.

Junior Colleges Enter.

In the young men's division will be Wright Junior college; Eicor, Inc.; Lustig's Billiards; Division Street Y. M. C. A. Bullets; Illinois Tech; 111th Street Y. M. C. A.; Morgan Park Junior college, and Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. Bears. The schedule of opening play follows:

TOMORROW.
7:30—Morgan Park Jr. vs. Hyde Park Y Bears.
8:30—Stude B's vs. Ramblers A. C.
9:30—Hyde Park Y Columbias vs. Northern Trust.

TUESDAY.
7:30—Illinois Tech vs. 111th Street Y.
8:30—Eicor Inc. vs. Wright Junior college.
9:30—Division Street Y Clippers vs. Blue Seal.

Four games will be played Saturday night. At 7 o'clock, Division Y Bullets will meet Lustig's Billiards. At 8, Fort Sheridan will meet St. Cyril C. Y. O. Two second round games will follow at 9 and 10 p. m. First round losers will open play Monday, Dec. 28 and second round winners will play on the 28th and 29th. Finals will be played Jan. 2 beginning at 7 p. m.

Two Trophies Offered.

The senior division trophy is sponsored by the National Bank of Hyde Park. The young men's trophy is sponsored by the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. Board of Directors.

Head referee for the tournament will be Joe Freund.

CAMP GRANT FIVE WINS, 47 TO 36, FROM LAWRENCE

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 19 [Special.]—Scheduling Lawrence college as a breather before the important tussle with Illinois Monday night, Camp Grant ran into a tartar last night at Rockford's East High school gym and had to stage a late rally to win, 47 to 36.

Lawrence battled all the way and at no time were the Warriors far ahead. Altho Coach Lt. Robert Harris had planned to give his reserves plenty of work, he had to keep them in check because of the closeness of the score.

Missing the majority of their shots, Grant's floor play was ragged also and the young, fast Vikings took advantage of Warrior mistakes to keep the Soldiers in hot water until the last few minutes.

Dick Miller of Lawrence garnered scoring honors by racking up 16 points, including seven baskets, some of which bordered on the sensational. He did most of his scoring in the first half but was considerably tamed in the second period by Ray Adams, former All-American from De Paul, who held him in check. Leading the Warrior basket-making was Joe Frivaldsky with 13 points.

De Paul Five, Toledo Meet on Saturday

The advent of the holidays signals almost complete cessation of intercollegiate basketball competition in the central states as the majority of college teams adjourn activities for the next fortnight. A bare dozen games are listed on the week's midwest program in contrast to over 100 last week.

Topping the card, from the point of interest in Chicagoland, will be De Paul's game in Toledo on Saturday and that between Indiana and Kentucky in Louisville Wednesday.

Western conference teams, most of which have played the last of their pre-season contests, will start Big Ten competition Jan. 9. Until then most squads will devote scrimmage drills to ironing out offensive and defensive flaws that may have appeared during the early games.

Test for Mikan of De Paul.

De Paul will play Toledo in what may well be its hardest game, for the Ohio team possesses the height that will enable it to meet the Blue Demons on even terms. The game has further significance because it provides a test for George Mikan, De Paul's towering 6 foot 8 inch center, who is being hailed as a potential all-America. The Toledo center, a young man named Glass, is said to possess a height equal to that of Mikan and considerably more experience. The Toledo game opens a tour that will bring the Demons against Duquesne and Marquette before they return to resume their local schedule.

The Indiana-Kentucky game is expected to attract one of the biggest basketball crowds in Louisville's history.

Chicago Plays Loyola.

Tomorrow night Chicago will play Loyola in a game that will find the teams evenly matched. The Ramblers will be led by Jack Dwan, 6 foot 3 inch forward, while Guard Bob Oakley probably will pace the Maroon attack. At the same time, Wisconsin's Badgers will meet the touring Oklahoma quintet that goes against Camp Grant on Wednesday and Bradley on Saturday.

Much of the action in Chicagoland during the week will be supplied by service teams. The Great Lakes Bluejackets will play two games this week, while Camp Grant is listed for the Oklahoma game and two others. Interteam service clashes pit the Warriors against Navy Pier on Tuesday and the Bluejackets against Fort Sheridan on Wednesday.

JACK SALVESON WINS 24 GAMES WITH OAKLAND

The veteran hurler Jack Salveson of the Oakland Acorns rounded out a splendid season by winning his last six games, two of the victories coming on the final day. Pitching for sixth place club he won 24 and lost 12. Salveson was starting pitcher in 36 games and finished 33 of them.

The Dobbs and Dodds Much-Mentioned Clans

Adding to utter confusion, some names mentioned in recent sports items have been Gil Dodds, runner; Glenn Dobbs, Tulsa passer; Bobby Dodd, acting coach, and Bobby Dodd, half back at Georgia Tech, and Bobby Dobbs, Glenn's brother, also a Tulsa back.

HENIE ICE TROUPE TO ARRIVE TODAY; OPENS ON DEC. 25

Chicago Stadium will lose no time after the hockey game tonight in readying itself for the sixth annual Christmas showing of Sonja Henie and her Hollywood Ice revue. Immediately after the game the workmen will begin converting the hockey rink into a miniature lake for the setting on which Sonja and 100 other skaters will display their talents.

The show will open on Christmas night and there will be 13 performances thru Thursday, Jan. 7, with an open date New Year's night when the New York Rangers are scheduled to meet the Blackhawks in a National Hockey league game.

Ice Troupe to Arrive Today.

The ice troupe will arrive in Chicago today and tomorrow from Buffalo, N. Y., to be on hand for rehearsals between now and next Friday.

Miss Henie will not arrive until Wednesday, having left the troupe in Buffalo to visit her husband, Lt. Dan Topping, in Quantico, Va., where he is serving with the marines.

The Sonja show again is setting attendance records wherever it plays. It set a new high in Indianapolis and in Buffalo where it closed last night.

More diversified than previous Sonja Henie revues, this one stars many of the supporting cast. Besides Sonja, there will be Freddie Trenkler, comedian who was starred here with the European show, and an eccentric skating star named John Flanagan from Muskegon, Mich., who has been a big hit.

Has Feminine Attractions.

The feminine attractions besides Sonja are Dorothy and Hazel Caley, a fine precision team, old favorites in Chicago. Three young skaters from the west coast, Iris Gordon, Elizabeth Kennedy, and Jean Sturgeon also are headlined.

Speed skating will be represented by four former champions, Leo Freisinger, the Chicago boy who turned pro with this show; Jimmy Caesar, the world's pro title holder; George Cavaney, Rocky Mountain champion, and Charlie Hadlett, Canadian titleholder.

Sonja Henie appears eight times during the show, which is in two acts and 22 scenes. The show is under the general managership of William H. Burke of Chicago and is directed by Catherine Littlefield of Philadelphia and New York.

EX-BEAR'S WIFE DIES.

Elkhart, Ind., Dec. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Vera L. Brown, 37, wife of Police Lt. Irving J. Brown, former Texas A. & M. and Chicago Bears football star, died today.

RULER OF ICE LAND

Sonja Henie, queen of figure skating stars, executes the stag leap, one of the most difficult feats in skating. Sonja and her Hollywood Ice Revue will open in Chicago Stadium Christmas night.

Rock's intentional foul and then, on a held ball in center court, Starzyk took a long tap to dribble under for a goal.

With two seconds to play, Rock scored and was fouled. De Paul led, 49 to 47, so the Trojans declined the free throw. Almost as soon as Southern California put the ball in play from out of bounds the game ended. Lineup:

NEBRASKA BEATS IOWA WITH RALLY IN 2D HALF, 52-43

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 19 (AP).—A sizzling second half gave the University of Nebraska a 52 to 43 victory over the previously unbeaten University of Iowa quintet tonight. It was the Cornhuskers' first victory of the season.

Iowa led, 22 to 21, at the half, but fell before a Nebraska surge in the third period. Bob Heintyelman, Kenny Elson, Max Young, John Bottorff and Johnny Fitzgibbon collaborated in the scoring spree which felled the Hawkeyes.

Heintyelman, junior ace, led the Cornhusker attack with 23 points. Iowa's aces were Ben Trickey, with 9 points, and Tom Chapman, who scored 18, but both stars fouled out. It was a rough and tumble affair, 42 personal fouls being called.

Defensive star for Iowa was 6 foot 5 inch Jim O'Brien, who spoiled many Nebraska efforts. The lineups:

Southern Net Tourneys Are Limited to Five

The United States Lawn Tennis association has curtailed the winter tennis season in the south to five tournaments, the first of which will be the Sugar bowl event in New Orleans, starting Dec. 26. The other four tournaments will be held during January, all on Florida courts.

GLENBARD LOSES TO MAINE, 44-34; SLIPS FROM TOP

York Beats Riverside in Overtime.

Glenbard, which had been in a tie for first place in the West Suburban prep cage league, was defeated in the heavyweight division last night by Maine, 44 to 34, at Elmhurst. The result dropped Glenbard to a tie for second place with Maine.

The York heavyweights had to go overtime to win from Riverside, 38 to 32. Bill Reisser came up with a field goal in the final minute to knot the count at 32 points. Bob Woldts made the winning basket.

In another game, Downers Grove beat La Grange, 41 to 21. Heavyweight lineups:

Gophers Beat North Dakota State, 50 to 34

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 19 [Special].—The University of Minnesota basketball team was on the verge of conceding a decision to the superior fighting qualities of North Dakota State in the fieldhouse tonight. Then up stepped a couple members of the Gopher fighting gentry themselves to pull the game out of the fire and give Minnesota a 50 to 34 verdict and its third straight victory.

The Gophers displayed a loose exhibition of passing and floor work that was their worst of the season. The Bisons didn't help the situation, either. Regarded as a setup for the Gophers after having lost to Concordia and Moorhead Teachers, the Bisons persistently dogged the jittery Minnesotans all over the floor.

The work of Ruliffson and Exel was evident in the box score, the former scoring 13 points, the latter 10. Again the Gophers were deadly at the free throw line, scoring 10 times out of 13. Lineup:

BLUE AND GRAY ELEVENS BEGIN DIXIE WORKOUTS

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 19 (AP).—Forty-four college football stars began working out today for the fifth annual North-South game here Dec. 26. The squads are in condition except for a few excess pounds that probably will be dropped after three or four days of training.

Indications are that the Southern squad will be heavier than the Northern Blues for the first time in the series and the Blues will be faster, also for the first time.

Allyn McKeen of Mississippi State, head coach of the Grays, and Homer Norton of Texas A. & M., worked with the Southern line while Dutch Meyer of Texas Christian handled the back field.

Creighton Wins 52-36 Over South Dakota University

Omaha, Neb., Dec 19 (AP).—Creighton university's basketball team won its third straight victory tonight, South Dakota university falling before the Bluejay attack, 52 to 36. Creighton held at 22 to 16 lead at the half. Ward Gibson led the winners with 12 points.

HOCKEY SNEAKS INTO BASEBALL WRITER'S PLANS

Tardy Spring Training May Break Custom.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

There are a lot of pleasant aspects about the baseball reporting business, if you like baseball and baseball players, but none quite so gratifying as the spring training trip.

As a consequence, many a baseball expert, too old, too fat or otherwise removed from the possibility of rushing to the colors, is quaking these days of uncertain aspects of the 1943 training season.

The thing we, personally, like most about covering the Cubs and Sox is the escape from Chicago March weather. We haven't experienced a March day away from Louisiana, Texas or California in 17 years. It looks like we'll see one in 1943. Not only one, but many.

May Settle for Hockey Game.

And are we worried sick? We are not, because we may, in 1943, see our first Stanley cup hockey match.

Thirteen years a hockey reporter and nary a Stanley cup game! That's our record and we doubt if any one who ever wrote about some 280 National league hockey games ever did so without including at least one Stanley cup battle among 'em. Truly, we're terribly excited about the prospect.

Three elements, other than our continued good health and employment, will decide whether we are to see any Stanley cup games.

Hawks Must Finish High.

First, the Blackhawks must finish among the first four teams to bring a cup game to Chicago.

Second, the National Hockey league must go thru with a discussed plan to make the regular season more compact than the present March 18 windup indicates.

Third, the Cubs must carry out the discussed plan to cut many days off the spring training season by starting late for California.

So please help us pull for a Stanley cup series beginning about March 1 and a Cub departure about St. Patrick's day.

Will Do a Good Job, If!

For our part, we'll guarantee a thoroly hysterical report of the way the Bentley brothers on offense and Earl Seibert and Goalie Bert Gardiner on defense carry the Hawks thru the several series right into a final cup match with the present world champion Toronto Maple Leafs, the Detroit Red Wings, the Boston Bruins, or maybe another team, like the New York Rangers and the Montreal Canadiens. We would want to have it over, however, in time for us to take off with the Cubs.

President Bill Tobin, with the Hawks during the 17 year existence of the team, is authority for the opinion that the National league season may be shortened.

Could Move Up Games.

If the regular season were to be terminated with the end of February, it would be necessary to move up only two Chicago home games. The Red Wings are scheduled to be here on March 7 and the Canadiens on March 11, which is a Thursday night.

As this is written, the Cubs still are working on their spring plans, with indications that ODT hints have led them to go easy on transportation plans, not only in the matter of assembling players in California from all parts of the country, but in conducting an exhibition season acceptable to the government, and the trip back to Chicago, where the Cubs and Sox are to play exhibition games April 9, 10, and 11, if the street car and elevated service continues reliable.

So we're counting on seeing the Hawks win the Stanley cup and the Cubs the spring city series, all in the same spring.

And we'd prefer to see the Hawks win the championship on the 1943 new Armistice day, then we could really get our mind on baseball.

MICHIGAN CITY TO PLAY CENTRAL OF SOUTH BEND

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special].—Eastern division basketball teams in the northern Indiana High school conference will play five games Monday and Tuesday nights and then will suspend competition for the Christmas holidays until the first week in the new year.

Three conference games are scheduled for the week, South Bend Central visiting Michigan City Monday night. Central is tied with South Bend Riley for the lead, with a perfeck mark of two victories, while Michigan City has won its lone conference game.

Two league games are booked for Tuesday night with Nappanee at Mishawaka and Goshen playing Ft. Wayne North Side. In nonconference games Tuesday night with Rensselaer at La Porte, and Greensburg at Elkhart.

SHAPIRO, PERALTA SIGN FOR GARDEN BATTLE JAN. 8

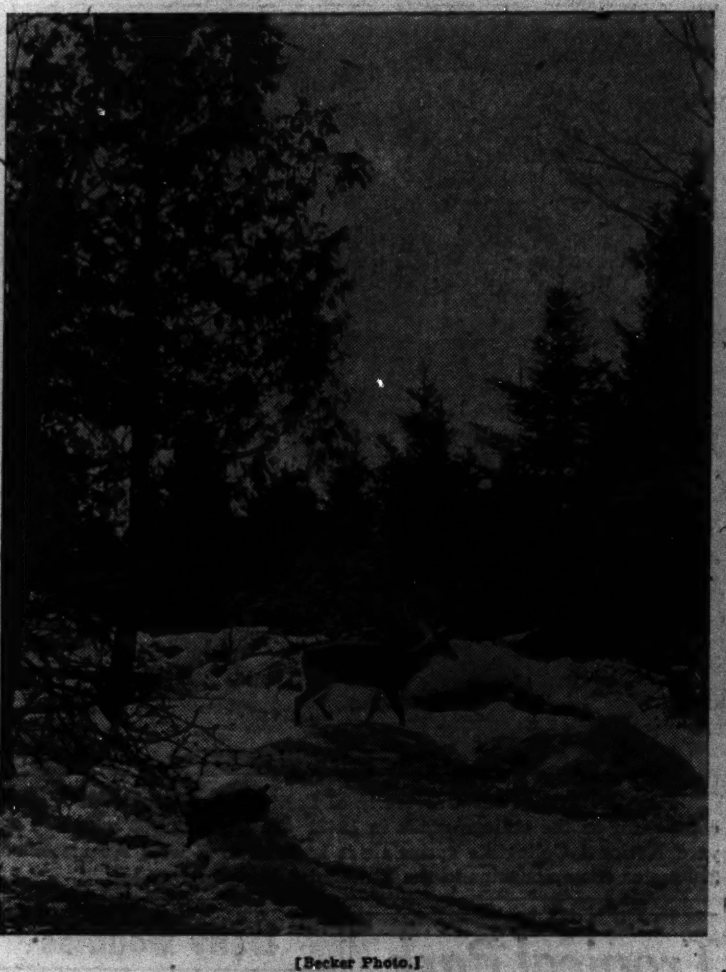
New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Rounding out his Jan. 8 Madison Square Garden card of lightweight eliminations, Promoter Mike Jacobs today announced a 15 round bout between Joey Peralta of Tamaqua, Pa., and Maxie Shapiro, New York veteran.

The bout will be co-featured on the card which also includes a 15 rounder between Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia and Chester Rico of New York.

Both fights are part of the tournament sponsored by the New York state athletic commission to decide a challenger for Beau Jack, who won New York recognition as 135 pound champion last night by knocking out T[illegible] Larkin in three rounds.

NATURE DECORATES ITS TREES FOR CHRISTMAS

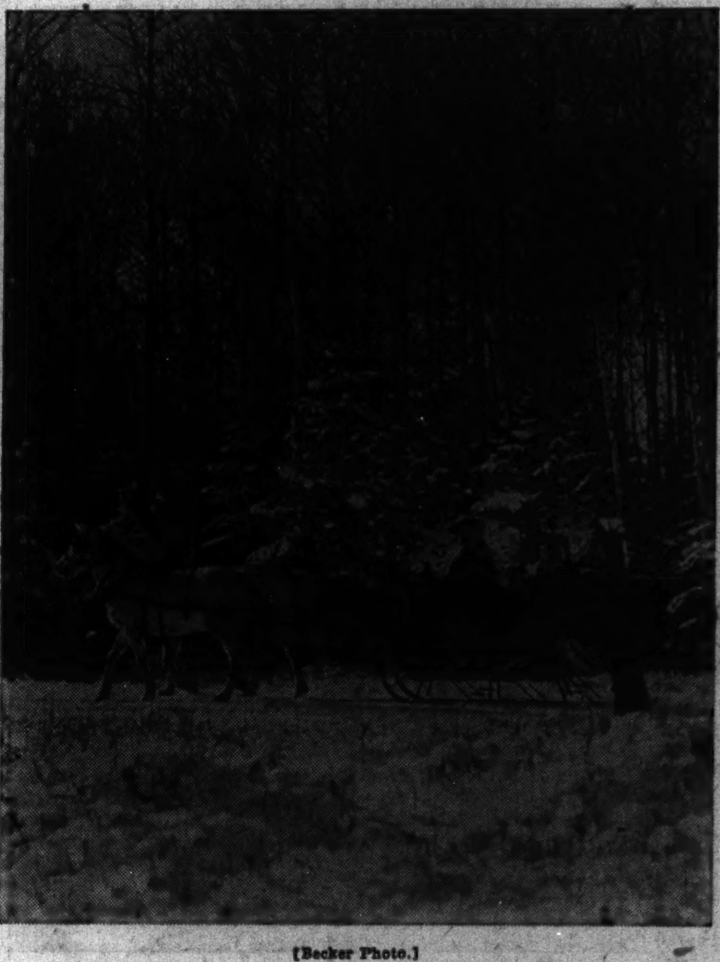


[Becker Photo.]

This deer does not lack for Christmas trees in its home and they're well decorated with snow. The big tree at the left is a cedar from which Christmas wreaths often are made. Behind the deer are balsams and spruces, both favored for Christmas trees.

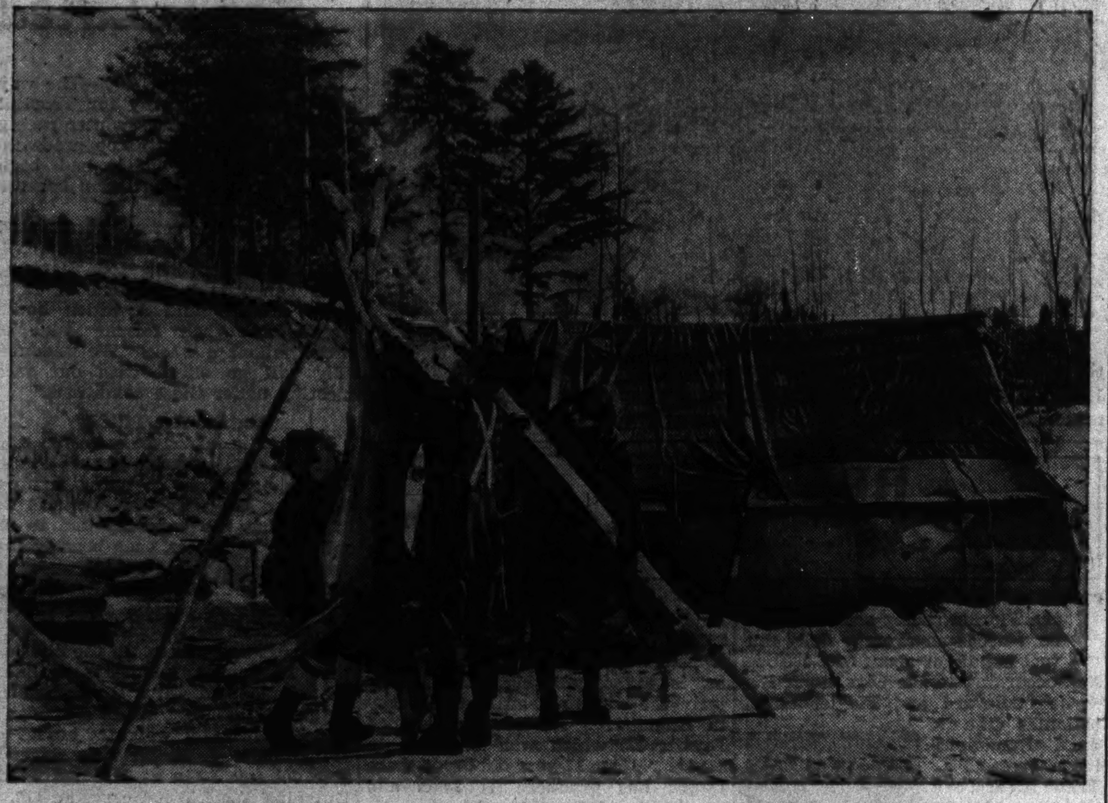
[Becker Photo.]

Just as we decorate our Christmas trees with shimmering white ornaments, so nature uses snow on the growing balsams and spruces in the northland. Note the white frosting on the balsam at the left which almost touches the fresh track of a deer.



[Becker Photo.]

The cheerful sound of sleigh bells will be heard during the holidays in some parts of the north woods as old sleighs and cutters, not seen on the roads for many years, are put into use. Snow covers the trees behind this 50 year old cutter resurrected for travel.



To the outdoorsman the Christmas tree often brings memories of fishing and hunting days in the north woods. Deer hunters recall scenes like this after a successful search for a buck deer.

SPRING TRAINING JAUNT BY MAJORS FRIVOLOUS AFFAIR

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Just what is going to be done about giving the 16 major league ball teams their customary dose of spring training is anybody's guess, but they'll get along one way or another.

They might get to the California, Florida, and other spots selected prior to the travel curtailment hint from Joseph B. Eastman of the O. D. T. and then again they might be denied the privilege of going more than a few miles from their respective home bases.

If they have to do their muscle stretching in their own back yards or in the vicinity, it might be all for the best. The magnates might learn, finally, that an extensive training jaunt, even tho it might look important to the fan, is more or less a frivolous affair.

Players Aren't Fragile.

It is nice to believe, if you can, that a ball player after reaching the major leagues, becomes such a dainty bit of ivory that he must be coddled by soothing, semitropical sunshine during February and March. The players really aren't that fragile. Most of them are as tough physically as rolling mill men. It's the magnates who like to regard them as tender creatures, hence an excuse for the extensive training tours. Of course, there also is the lure of loose change in spring exhibitions, but that seldom amounts to enough to pay expenses.

Could it be that the training trip simply has grown because it became stylish? When the late Charles A. Comiskey hit the jackpot with his White Sox he made a ceremony of the annual spring tour. With Commy it was a case of the farther, the better. Nothing less than special trains with the Old Roman the host. He liked the thrill of it all, altho we never heard him say that a ball player couldn't keep himself in shape hacking cord wood from beneath a snow pile. Commy started something. It wasn't long before they all were doing it.

It's not so many years ago that the Cubs did their preliminary training in West Baden, Ind., going south from there. Once the Cubs trained in Urbana, Ill. Such things as this could be arranged again and, we imagine that the players, knowing conditions would be different, wouldn't come staggering into camp short of wind and tons overweight. On a long training trip, half of them don't even take the thing seriously until the last couple of weeks. Anyway the short trip is worth trying—the magnates might like it.

SKATING RACES TO BE RUN SUNDAY IN GARFIELD PARK

Interest is being displayed in the opening ice skating races of the season next Sunday afternoon in Garfield park at 1 o'clock. Fred Gohl, director of the race, has announced that a full list of events in all age groups for both boys and girls will be held.

Among the entries to date are Marvin Thompson, captain of Northwest Skating club, Don Scheline, Max Kargol, and Lowell Miller, medical student at Loyola university and member of the C. Y. O. skating team. A close battle for team honors is expected.

The senior girls' class may decide the issue in team battle with Shirley Jane Barnett, Northwest S. C., Bessie Laga, George F. Barrett A. C., Bunny Lawler and Helen Kastner of the C. Y. O., vieing for honors.

The Glen Ellyn A. A. A. will put in a strong bid for team honors with 25 skaters headed by Tom Tilden, national outdoor midget champion, Marjorie and Shirley Catlin, and Janet Rudolph.

Chicago park officials say the park lagoon ice has a thickness of nine inches. The Illinois Skating association board of control will hold a meeting Monday night at Mozart park to name officials and work out details for the races.

Baseball Will Grow in War, Says Bob Quinn

Sanford, Fla., Dec. 19 (AP).—"Baseball, the national sport, will emerge from this war more popular than than ever before, in my opinion," President Bob Quinn of the Boston Braves declared today.

"Baseball came out of the last war more in favor than ever," said the 73 year old baseball magnate whose connection with the game has covered many of its more crucial years.

"The best indication, however, of the future of baseball," he said, "comes to me in the form of letters from boys overseas, some of them former players and business acquaintances to whom I write constantly."

Enjoy Short Wave Talks.

"From far off Australia and other places they have informed me how much they have enjoyed the short wave baseball talks. The boys all state they want the game to continue here at home, and from recent indications I believe the government does also."

"Baseball is a great morale builder," he continued, "and a great game for the masses. It is also the most democratic of games, for the governor's son may play alongside the son of humble parents, and the only favoritism that either gets is what he earns by merit in playing."

The vigorous veteran said he believed "that among the service men there are a lot of good young players."

Supply Them with Equipment.

"With the bat and ball fund, proceeds from exhibition games, and saving balls for them that are usually lost as fouls, we are supplying the boys in the service with as much baseball material as possible."

Quinn said it had not been definitely decided whether the club would train here again next spring, pending clarification of the transportation situation.

MAROON FENCERS BEAT IRISH, 17-10, FOR 1ST VICTORY

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special].—Chicago won its first fencing match of the season, 17 to 10, from Notre Dame today, with Art Cohen, Maroon sophomore from Chicago, winning 7 of his 8 counts. The visitors won the foils and epee, each by 6 to 3, and the sabre by 5 to 4.

Capt. Jim Madigan of Notre Dame gave Cohen his only defeat in the final bout of the day in epee. Cohen won 3 points each in sabre and foils, and 1 in epee. Madigan, Angel Gonzalez, and Herb Melton of Notre Dame, mainstays of the team to date, will be graduated tomorrow. Today's was the second Irish defeat in three starts.

Baseball Teams Eye Hot Springs as Training Site

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 19 (AP).—The transportation shortage may make Hot Springs the training ground for two and perhaps four big league baseball clubs next spring, it was indicated tonight.

Blake Harper, in charge of concessions at Sportsman's Park in St. Louis, said the Browns' vice president and general manager, William O. De Witt, telephoned him saying the Browns, and the Chicago Cubs wanted to come here March 8 for four or five weeks training. Harper quoted De Witt as saying Pittsburgh spokesmen had told him the Pirates and Chicago White Sox also would train here if enough diamonds and living accommodations could be found.

Hot Springs has two diamonds at Jaycee Park and one apiece at Ban Johnson field and Fogel field.

Mayor Leo McLaughlin and the chamber of commerce immediately started a checkup to make sure the diamonds would be in shape by March. Due to the large number of hotels in this resort city, it was thought there would be no problem about living accommodations for the approximately 50 man entourage of each team.

All four teams trained in the west in 1942.

CUBS CONSIDER INDIANA, TOO.

The Cubs yesterday also were reported considering French Lick, Ind., as the site for their 1943 spring training activities. General Manager Jim Gallagher and Manager Jim Wilson were visiting the Indiana resort and inspecting accommodations and playing fields.

P. K. Wrigley, owner and president of the Cubs, said the two Cub officials were looking at French Lick, and added that the Indiana site was one of several being considered by the club if the ODT insists on curtailing spring training trips.

Wrigley also spoke with William L. Patterson of the Citizen's Committee for Negroes in the Big Leagues, regarding the admittance of Negro players in the majors. Wrigley told Patterson that it appeared inevitable that Negroes would be admitted to the majors as players, but suggested that the move be deferred until after the war.

Football League to Try to Decide Title Today

The Greater Chicago Football league will make a final attempt to decide its championship in Weber park, Ashland and Wellington avenues, this afternoon at 2 o'clock as Hawthorne A. A., defending champions battle Don's Devils. Snow and cold weather twice have forced postponement of the match. Skulls A. A. will play the Red Devils at 12:45 o'clock for third place honors in the lightweight division.

Slovaks Play Vikings Today in Cup Match

BY OFFSIDE.

After a few weeks' layoff due to the cold and icy grounds, the Vikings, leaders of the International Soccer league major division, return to action today against the Slovaks, Illinois state champions, in one of two second round National Open cup matches, in Winnemac park stadium, Foster avenue and Leavitt street.

The Slovaks, who surprised the fans with a victory over the Swedes in the opening round, will have two important changes in their lineup for today's contest. George Wilson, star center forward from Navy pier, has recovered from an illness and will come in at inside right; Steve Cermak, star against the Swedes, will resume his post at center, and a newcomer to the Slovaks, but an old timer to the fans, Ture Hallquist, of the Linneas, has been signed for the cup series. He plays outside left.

The Vikings, considered the leading team in the west, will need all their skill to overcome the fast young Slovak team. Nels Dalquist, still under suspension, will be on the sidelines. Eddie Camplin will take his place, playing alongside Jimmy McDermott, who since taking the inside left position has been responsible for most of the goals scored by the Vikings. The match will start at 2:30 o'clock with Jack Maher the referee. The lineups:

| VIKINGS. | | SLOVAKS. |
|---|---|---|
| R. Camplin | G.K. | Wisniewski |
| Granquist | R.B. | Ruzich |
| Kuehl | L.B. | Daniels |
| Sebby | R.H. | Misialko |
| Flodin | C.H. | F. Tomecek |
| Jensen | L.H. | D. Jariabka |
| Brostrom | O.R. | A. Jariabka |
| O'Hare | I.R. | Wilson |
| R. Anderson | C.F. | Stevak |
| McDermott | I.L. | Bohm |
| E. Camplin | O.L. | Hallquist |

Substitutes: L. Anderson and Whilborg for the Vikings. Fajnor, Stevak, and Cipra for the Slovaks. Referee—Jack Maher.

The Sparta Ogden Dairy team, which will oppose the Schwabens in a cup match next Sunday in the Sparta stadium, will play the Italian A. C. in a warmup game in Sparta stadium at 2:30 o'clock today.

CHAMBERSBURG STREAK BROKEN AT 38 STRAIGHT

Chambersburg, Ill., Dec. 19 (AP).—Chambersburg High school's basketball team lost its first scheduled game since February, 1941, and ended a 38 game winning streak last night as Bluffs won, 40 to 28.

Chambersburg had won eight in a row this season and on Thursday night won the championship of an eight team invitational tournament at Milton. Chambersburg is coached by Dean H. [Doc] Hobbs, 1928 star on the school team. He is the school janitor.

GREEN TREES OF CHRISTMAS SHED BRIGHTNESS ON TROUBLED WORLD

BY BOB BECKER.

Within a few days Christmas trees will be set up in American homes. Some of these trees will be lighted up even before Christmas eve ushers in one of our most deeply religious holidays, which, this year more than ever before, has an especial meaning to all of us.

We doubt if the world ever will be so chaotic and troubled that the lights of a little Christmas tree will suffer a complete dim-out, for the trim spruce, balsam, or pine which comes into our home is more than a seasonal decoration which delights the eye. To nearly all of us the everlasting green of these trees, a green that has defied the bitter cold of a northern winter, is in some respects a true symbol of the everlasting spiritual meaning of Christmas thruout the entire world.

This Christmas many of us will want to read new meanings into some of the features of our Christmas trees. The illuminated star that will shine from the top of our trees this week will represent to us not only the star of hope and faith but also the star that points to victory and peace which soon will come to our country.

Cathedral Hush of Forest.

To the millions of outdoorsmen who have camped, fished, or hunted along forested trails and become acquainted with the cathedral hush of a virgin forest, or watched a flickering fire in front of a tent or cabin, the Christmas tree also serves as a silent messenger from the great outdoors. It brings reminders of carefree trips into the northwoods now blanketed with snow, of memorable days on wilderness lakes, of snowblown deer trails now in the grip of winter.

This week, when we decorate our Christmas tree, it's going to remind us of Lake Kluane, the big game hunting ground in Yukon territory, recently in the news because there was held the ceremony marking the completion of the new road to Alaska. Many an evening our 16 horse pack train brought us to camps among the Christmas trees beyond Kluane where the sheep, moose, and bear live in a little known corner of the outdoors.

Memories of a Lake.

Our tree also will bring memories of a lake in the virgin wilderness above Baie Comeau, Que., where, as the evening sun cast a saffron glow on the spruces one summer afternoon, the brook trout rose by the scores to take our dry fly and give us unforgetable fishing. . . . Of our guides in the far north who mushed their dogs into town several days ago to get the Christmas mail, a few delicacies for their Christmas dinner, and now are snowbound for the winter. This week lights will illuminate their tree which will brighten the darkness of their very short winter days, and Indians will come in to the trading post to warm themselves at the white man's fire and watch with amazement the white man's Christmas.

The long cold night of midwinter has spread over the northland, the land of Christmas trees, much like the spirit of hate and aggression in Europe has reached out and touched our world. But piercing this dark blanket is the undying spirit of Christmas which to many of us is symbolized by the enduring green and sturdiness of a little Christmas tree from the outdoors.

65 MINNESOTA FRESHMEN TO BE GIVEN NUMERALS

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 19 [Special].—On the recommendation of Francis "Pug" Lund, freshman football coach, 65 University of Minnesota freshman football players will receive their numerals at the end of this quarter.

DE PAUW BASKET SQUAD SHIFTS TO CLASSROOM

Greencastle, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special].—DePauw university's basketball squad, victorious in two of three clashes with service teams but three times beaten by college quintets, has forgotten about basketball temporarily to concentrate on first semester examinations which started Thursday.

Members of the squad will be allowed an abbreviated Christmas vacation following the completion of finals Monday and will return to begin holiday practice sessions Dec. 31.

The Tigers will open their conference schedule on Jan. 9 against Earlham in Richmond. Nine conference and two nonconference games remain on the DePauw schedule which comes to a close Feb. 24 against Wabash in Crawfordsville.

DePauw will clash twice each with Earlham, Franklin, Butler, and Wabash, while meeting the Evansville Aces once. Fort Knox, Ky., and Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., will furnish the nonconference competition.

RESEARCH ARTIST VERIFIES REASON FOR BEARS' LOSS

Statistician Ray Credits Baugh's Quick Kicks.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

This is the first anniversary [week] of the Chicago Bears' downfall and in those seven days the old champions' stunning 14 to 6 loss to the Washington Redskins has been ascribed to about everything except fallen arches and worry over the coffee situation.

During all this time one Hugh [Shorty] Ray, National Football league technical adviser, has been quietly at his figures. Ray takes apart a football game and breaks it up for minute inspection. In each league city Mr. Ray has two observers who put the microscope on all games. The technical adviser then adds up all these odds and ends, which oftimes tell an amazing story of what actually happened.

The Bear-Redskin title game in Washington was no exception. While admitting that the cold figures he juggles made no allowances for such matters as psychology, Ray last night said the three quick kicks which Sammy Baugh sent deep into Chicago territory without a return was the big mathematical factor explaining the defeat.

They Asked for It.

Ironically, the Bears in the last three years had boasted that they wanted the other team to quick kick against them. "When they quick kick they give us the ball," was the way they put it.

To begin right at the beginning with Mr. Ray, the Redskins' Baugh has the best punting average in the league, 45 yards.

"Our research has showed us that the average punt return is 9 yards," said Ray. "This means that Baugh could reasonably expect a 36 yard gain on each kick. Against the Bears his three quick kicks of 59, 57, and 71 yards added up to 187 yards, an average of 62⅓. Against this his average gain on kicks during the year was 36 yards. That would be 108 for three. The three quick kicks gave him an added profit of 79 yards.

"During the season the Bears' average on running and passing plays was 5 yards against lines that could not compare with the Redskins' forwards, admittedly next only to the Bears'. Divide 79 by 5 and you get approximately 16, the number of plays the Bears normally would need to get back those 79 yards."

Ray, an old-time Chicago football official, has been responsible for the most comprehensive system of football statistics ever devised.

For any one who likes to have foot ball fifures thrown at him from all angles, a quiet evening with Technical Adviser Ray is recommended.

No Penalty Involved.

His records show that the average run back brings the kickoff to the 35 yard line. Under college rules a kickoff going out of bounds is placed on the receiving team's 35 yard line. In the pro game it is moved to the 45. Ray points out that under the college rule the kicking team gets no penalty at all, since normally the ball would have been run back to the 35.

"This holds true in all strata of football," he says. "The longer the kickoff the longer the return; the shorter the kickoff the shorter the return, so that the 35 yard line is the average in high school, college or pro."

Tho he has studied football statistics with a fine toothed comb, Ray admits that under the present methods at least 15 per cent of the yardage is unaccounted for. On kickoffs or punts over the goal line, which are brought out 20 yards, this distance is not tabulated in run backs. Neither is the gain on a kickoff to the 45 yard line after it has gone out of bounds. Neither is there a place in the statistics for yardage on intercepted pass returns.

Join one of the most highly skilled and dignified professions in Aviation Maintenance . . . aircraft instrument calibration and service.

Starting Dec. 28th

Chicago School of Aircraft Instruments will accept only 15 men for training in this highly paid field in their classes starting December 28th. The reason for the limited number of openings is because classes formerly devoted to civilian training are now used to train men for the United States Army, Air Service Command. Thus, only one class is left open for civilian training.

Those who complete this civilian training are automatically rated by the U. S. Civil Service Commission and are eligible for Civil Service Aviation appointments without further experience or examination.

Instrument Manufacturers, Airlines, Airplane manufacturers, Army and Navy Air Bases, all need technicians and experts for the calibration, installation and maintenance of aircraft instruments. Starting salaries are often as high as $350.00 to $400.00 a month.

FOR MEN OF ALL AGES

Don't let your age keep you from investigating the opportunities in this important branch of aviation. Be a vital part of our Victory program and the "Air-Age" that will follow. Older men are often adept at this kind of work and master the technique and principles of instrument design and operation quickly and easily.

Since there are only 15 openings in our classes starting December 28th—Write immediately for complete information. If you live in or near Chicago, apply at the school in person. Call Longbeach 6100 for appointment.

WARMERDAM AND RICE DOMINATE 1942 TRACK MEN

Pole Vaulter Rises to New Heights.

Big 10 Champions

WESTERN conference track and field champions for 1942, follow:

100 yards—Hammond, Ohio State, :10.
220 yards—Hammond, Ohio State, :21.5.
440 yards—Owen, Ohio State, :48.8.
880 yards—Kane, Indiana, 1:53.3.
Mile—Kane, Indiana, 4:19.8.
Two miles—Mitchell, Indiana, 9:26.9.
High hurdles—Wright, Ohio State, :14.5.
Low hurdles—Wright, Ohio State, :23.8.
Mile relay—Ohio State, 3:19.9.
Pole vault—DeField, Minnesota, and Williams, Wisconsin, 13 feet 6 inches.
High jump—Hodgell, Wisconsin, 6 feet 4 inches.
Broad jump—Dupre, Ohio State, 24 feet ¼ inch.
Shot put—Beirele, Wisconsin, 48 feet 7¾ inches.
Discus — Fitch, Minnesota, 166 feet 2⅝ inches.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Cornelius Warmerdam and Greg Rice, in the ranks of the post-graduate collegians, dominated track and field for a second year, according to a review of 1942 indoor and outdoor meets. Warmerdam vaulted to record heights while Rice, still dominating middle distance running, had a total of eight marks approved by the A. A. U. at the 54th national convention.

Warmerdam vaulted 15 feet 7¾ inches at Modesto, Cal., on last May 23 after his indoor campaign had set a record of 15 feet 7¼ inches. Probably the best mark by Rice in the outdoor campaign was his 3 mile race in 14 minutes at Travers Island, New York, on last June 6. Rice also won the National A. A. U. 5,000 meter championship and Warmerdam took the A. A. U. pole vault title with a leap of 15 feet 2½ inches.

Davis Best Competitor.

Harold Davis of the University of California qualifies as the best competitor in the college ranks in 1942. Davis won the 100 yard and 220 yard National collegiate sprint titles and then followed with 100 meter and 200 meter championships in the National A. A. U. games. Davis' best mark of the season, a 9 4-10 second 100 yard dash at Fresno, Cal., on May 16, tied the accepted world record.

The athletes representing the New York Athletic club won the A. A. U. games. Southern California, winner of seven consecutive team titles in the Pacific coast, won its eighth straight N. C. A. A. championship. In this meet, Ohio State, Western conference champion, finished second and was outscored 85½ to 44 by the Trojans.

There were no newcomers to the list of track and field elite. Gil Dodds, running for the Boston A. A., sprang a surprise with his winning time of 3:50.2 for the 1,500 meters in the A. A. U. meet. Bob Wright of Ohio State, winner of the 120 yard high hurdles and the 220 yard low hurdles in the Big 10 took the A. A. U. 200 meter championship. Wright was third in the 110 meter high hurdles in the national meet which was won by Bill Cummins of Rice. Wright won both hurdle races in the National collegiate games in Lincoln, Neb.

Dodds Beats Best Milers.

Dodds' 1,500 meter victory in the A. A. U. meet and Bobby Ginn's triumph in the N. C. A. A. mile were of the same pattern. Dodds, now a theological student, showed his heels to the best milers in the country, including Ginn and defeating, among others, Defending Champion Les MacMitchell of New York university; Leroy Weed of Southern California, and Don Burnham of Dartmouth.

At Lincoln, Ginn, running for the Cornhuskers, defeated MacMitchell, defending mile champion, in the 21st annual meet, in the excellent time of 4:11.1.

Bill Lyda of Oklahoma delat the other surprise in the N. C. A. A. races when he whipped Campbell Kane of Indiana in the half mile. Al Blozis, Georgetown university shot putter, who continued to dominate this event on the national scene, was the only N. C. A. A. champion other than Ohio State's Wright to retain his honors. Blozis, victor in the Eastern Intercollegiate meet, won the N. C. A. A. shot put title with a mark of 54 feet 9⅝ inches and then took the A. A. U. championship with a put of 53 feet 8⅜ inches.

Ewell Forced Out.

Minnesota's Bob Fitch won the Big Ten, N. C. A. A., and A. A. U. discus championships. He was most consistent. He won the Western conference title at 166 feet 2⅝ inches, took national college honors with 164 feet 8¼ inches, and then was first in the A. A. U. with 166 feet 10 inches.

Barney Ewell of Penn State, top flight sprinter and broad jumper, who had been picked to battle Davis for the national titles, was injured at Lincoln and withdrew. In the Eastern Intercollegiate meet Ewell won three events for the third time in his college career. He had an all-time meet record of 12 titles indoor and outdoor and scored 25½ points to help Penn State win its first outdoor team championship.

Ohio State won the Western conference team title by scoring six individual victories and taking the mile relay. Ralph Hammond took both sprints to match Wright's hurdle victories.

TRIBUNE EXPERT PICKS 5 WINNERS AT CHARLES TOWN

The Tribune race handicapper had another good afternoon yesterday. The selections carried five winners, four of them in a row, in the final program of the meeting at Charles Town track in West Virginia.

The first choices were Sir Kid in the third race at $4; Residue in the fourth, $4; Pilot Boat in the fifth, $4.60; Overlin in the sixth, $3.20, and Guardsman in the eighth at $11.

TRACK AND FIELD CHAMPIONS OF 1942

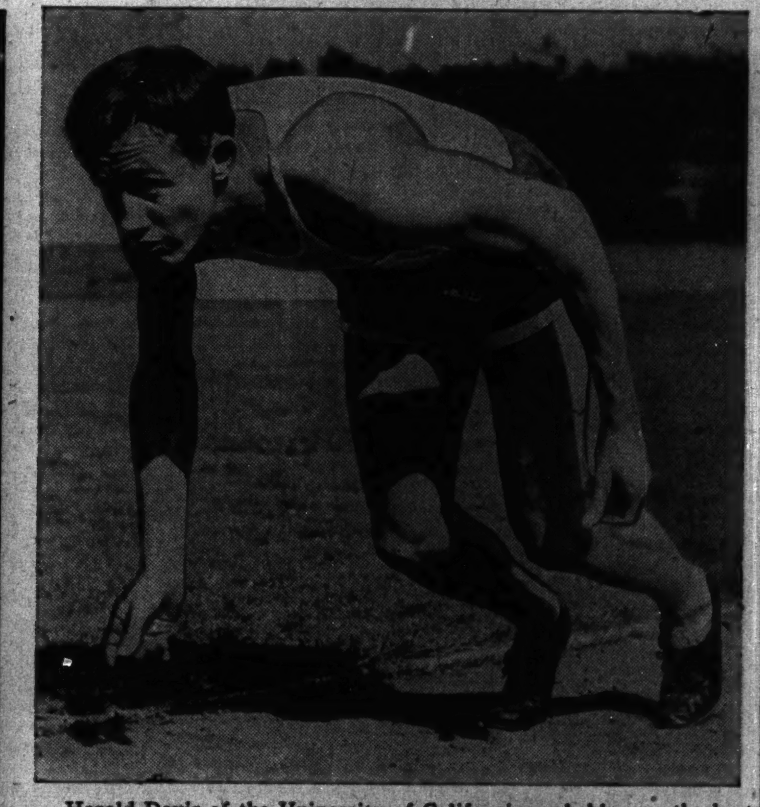
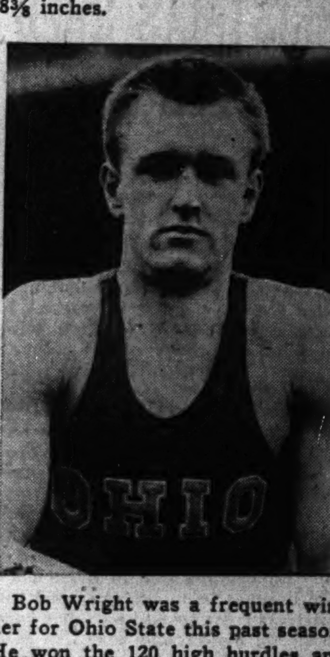
The best shot putter in the business still is big Al Blozis of Georgetown university. He was the only national champion besides Ohio State's Bob Wright, the hurdler, to retain his honors this year. Blozis, victor in the Eastern Intercollegiate meet, won the NCAA title with a mark of 54 feet 9⅝ inches and the AAU championship with a put of 53 feet 8⅜ inches.

Cornelius Warmerdam knows how far is up—and shows how he gets there. Warmerdam vaulted to record heights during the year, hitting 15 feet 7¾ inches in Modesto, Cal., last May after he had set an indoor record of 15 feet 7¼ inches.



Harold Davis of the University of California probably was the best competitor in the college ranks in 1942. He won the 100 yard and 220 yard National Collegiate sprint titles and followed with 100 meter and 200 meter championships in the National AAU games.



Bob Wright was a frequent winner for Ohio State this past season. He won the 120 high hurdles and the 220 yard low hurdles in the Big Ten meet and then took the AAU 200 meter championship.

Greg Rice of Notre Dame just about dominated the track field during the year as he hung up eight records which were approved last week by the record committee at the AAU meeting in Chicago. Rice's best mark in the outdoor campaign was his 3 mile race in 14 minutes at Travers Island, N. Y., last June. He also won the National AAU 5,000 meter championship.

AAU Champions

CHAMPIONS of 1942 in the National AAU track and field meet in New York follow:

100 meters—Davis, Olympic club, :10.5.
200 meters—Davis, Olympic club, :20.9.
400 meters—Bourland, Southern California AA, :46.7.
800 meters—Borican, Ashbury Park, N. J., 1:51.2.
1,500 meters—Dodds, Boston AA, 3:50.2.
3,000 meter steeplechase—De George, NYAC, 9:16.5.
5,000 meters—Rice, NYAC, 14:39.7.
10,000 meters—McCluskey, NYAC, 32:38.3.
110 meter hurdles—Cummins, Rice, :14.1.
200 meter hurdles—Wright, Ohio State, :23.5.
400 meter hurdles—Smith, Southern California, AA, :52.
High jump—Berry, Southern university, 6 feet 7 inches.
Broad jump—Brown, Norfolk naval base, 24 feet 3½ inches.
Shot Put—Blozis, NYAC, 53 feet 8⅜ inches.
Hop, step, and jump—Brown, Norfolk naval base, 48 feet 11½ inches.
Hammer throw—Cruikshank, Camp Devons, Mass., 173 feet 8¼ inches.
Pole vault—Warmerdam, Olympic club, 15 feet 2½ inches.
Discus—Fitch, Minnesota, 166 feet 10 inches.
56 pound weight—Berst, NYAC, 39 feet 3½ inches.
Javelin—Boyd Brown, Olympic club, 216 feet 7½ inches.

NCAA Champions

CHAMPIONS of 1942 in the National Collegiate track and field meet in Lincoln, Neb., follow:

100 yards—Davis, California, :09.6.
220 yards—Davis, California, :21.2.
440 yards—Bourland, So. Cal., :48.2.
880 yards—Lyda, Oklahoma, 1:50.8.
Mile—Ginn, Nebraska, 4:11.1.
Two miles—Cazares, Fresno State, 9:10.
High hurdles—Wright, Ohio State, :14.2.
Low hurdles—Wright, Ohio State, :23.7.
Shot Put—Blozis, Georgetown, 54 feet 9⅝ inches.
Discus—Fitch, Minnesota, 164 feet 8¼ inches.
Javelin—Biles, California, 213 feet 9⅝ inches.
High jump—Berry, Southern U., 6 feet 7⅜ inches.
Pole vault—De Field, Minnesota, 14 feet 1 inch.
Broad jump—Dupre, Ohio State, 24 feet 3¼ inches.

Alabama Drills Hard for Orange Bowl and Boston

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 19 (AP).—Coach Frank Thomas sent the Alabama squad against Boston college's tricky "T" offensive plays for more than an hour today and the two first teams had only mediocre success in repelling the attack.

The scrimmage was the hardest since Alabama opened practice for its Orange bowl game in Miami.

Hughes of Phils, Stralka of Redskins Join Services

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 19 (AP).—Tommy Hughes of Ashley, Pa., star pitcher of the Philadelphia Phils, was inducted into the army here today. He will leave next Saturday.

Another district athlete, Clem Stralka, guard for the championship Washington Redskins, has joined the navy and will report in January at Norfolk, Va.

Kentucky and Indiana Meet Wednesday

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special].—Unconquered in three games, Indiana's basketball team will resume play Wednesday night against the University of Kentucky Wildcats in Louisville, Ky.

The game, first between the Cats and Hoosiers in three years will be played in the Louisville armory before a crowd expected to reach 6,500. Indiana defeated Kentucky, 48 to 45, in the 1941 Sugar bowl game in New Orleans.

The Sugar bowl contest was one of two in which the Wildcats came close to getting their first victory over the Hoosiers. The initial hardwood clash between the two schools ended in a 20 to 18 victory for Indiana. The Hoosiers whipped the Cats, 34 to 23, in 1926; 38 to 19 in 1927, and 48 to 29 in 1928.

Coach Branch McCracken resumed Indiana practices Friday after a three day layoff during which the Crimson netmen took examinations. With balanced scoring divided among veterans Capt. Irvin Swanson, of La Porte; Ed Denton, of Jeffersonville; Ralph Hamilton, of Fort Wayne, and sophomore Ward Williams, of Colfax, the Hoosiers have averaged 59.6 points to their opponents' 33 in winning from DePauw, Wabash, and Fort Knox.

The Indiana coach still is seeking his most potent combination to throw at the Wildcats, who launched their season with a 22 point conquest of the University of Cincinnati. Coach Adolph Rupp, veteran Kentucky mentor, has a big assortment of seasoned material, including three former Hoosier High school hotshots, Muff Davis of Elwood; Marvin Akers, of Jeffersonville, and Melvin Brewer, of New Albany.

BARONS WIN, 2-1.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Cleveland Barons defeated Buffalo Bisons, leaders of the American Hockey league's western division, 2 to 1, before 6,157 tonight.

BREEZING ALONG

Reveille Boy splashed his way to victory in the American Derby at Washington Park and paid off in box car figures? . . . That was in 1930. . . . Remember them?

OVERLIN TAKES CHARLES TOWN'S FINAL FEATURE

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 19 (AP).—W. H. Lipscomb's Overlin, a 2 year old daughter of Dunlin and On Top, scored her third consecutive victory and sixth purse triumph of the year today in the Waterford purse, closing day feature of the Charles Town meeting.

The speedy filly led the entire distance and finished 2½ lengths in front of K. D. Kolseth's Buckle Down in 1:25 4-5 for the seven furlongs.

Overlin was prohibitive favorite, paying $3.20 for $2. Her victory gave Jockey John Hernandez a double victory.

JACK TWINK WINS BLANKET FINISH AT FAIR GROUNDS

New Orleans, La., Dec. 19 (AP).—Five of the nine entries in the McDonogh handicap, Fair Grounds feature today, thundered under the wire in a blanket finish—the closest and most spectacular of the meeting.

The camera gave the decision to Mrs. A. B. Letellier's Jack Twink by a neck when he closed fast from fourth place in the stretch. Happy Note was second and First of All third, only noses apart.

Jack Twink ran the five and half furlongs in 1:05 4-5, fastest time for the distance this season. He paid $12 in the mutuels.

Tropical Park Ready as Gas Ban Is Lifted

Miami, Fla., Dec. 19 (AP).—The way was cleared late today for Tropical Park to open Florida's winter racing season Monday with a top grade inaugural program which had been threatened with cancellation because of gasoline restrictions.

"That's good news," commented Henry L. Straus, president of Tropical Park, when informed that the sales ban would be lifted at 12:01 a. m. Monday and A ration books would have their former value of three gallons a week. "We undoubtedly will go ahead with our race meeting under those conditions."

Entries Are Filled.

Meanwhile arrangements for the opening day program went ahead. Stables poured in so many nominations for the inaugural feature, 27 in all, that the handicap had to be split into two races, each bearing the original prize list of $2,000.

Out of the 1,400 horses already here for the 96 day season, some of the top notchers were named for the six furlong twin features. In the division with 14 entries, handicappers liked the chances of Mrs. R. McIlvain's Bright Willie and J. B. Patridge's Minee-Mo, the top weighted horses at 114 pounds; J. E. Nelson's dependable Johnny J., in at 111, and J. M. Hutchins' Woof Woof, carrying 110.

Blue Pair to Run.

NOW THERE WILL BE BASKETBALL AT PAWNEE HIGH

Pawnee, Ill., Dec. 19 [Special].—Pawnee High school will have a basketball team after all. A few days ago it was announced that Pawnee would have to give up the cage sport because it was impossible to obtain a coach. But Tom Gilbert, who coached a district champion here in the early '20s, has been signed as coach. He is making an effort to reschedule as many canceled games as possible.

Gilbert, a baseball, football, and basketball star at Charleston Teachers college, turned out winning teams at both Pawnee and Auburn, winning the Springfield district title while in charge of the Indians. He also pitched for Danville in the Three-I league.

After moving from Pawnee to Auburn, he returned to his alma mater, Charleston Teachers, where he served for a couple of years. Then came a sojourn in Arizona. More recently he has been in charge of an N. Y. A. program in Mount Carmel.

AMES NAVY SQUAD GETS COACH AND MORE PLAYERS

Ames, Ia., Dec. 19 [Special].—The Iowa State Naval Training school injected new blood into its coaching and playing personnel and immediately won its first game of the year, defeating Central college, 34 to 31. The victory was particularly sweet since the Dutchmen had upset the Typhoons a week ago, 33 to 27, in a game played in Ames.

Ensign Charles Jones, athletic officer, announced that Chief Specialist C. T. Warrington would coach the navy team. Warrington replaces Bob Charles, who found the double duty of coaching and playing too big a load to carry.

The newcomers to the lineup are Bill Friedman, forward; Bob Archer, center, and Don Wandney, guard. The three men counted 22 points in the victory over Central, with Friedman the high scorer.

Ensign Jones also announced that the next Typhoon game would be Wednesday against the Lindquist Cleaners of Ames.

Count Fleet, Occupation Running Neck and Neck.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

At this season of the year, horse racing writers find more ballots waved at them than they see on the first Tuesday of November. There are polls to pick the best horse of the year, the best handicap performer, the best 3 year old, the best juvenile, etc. Publications thruout the country come out with choices. Sometimes the discussions get a bit heated and sometimes the situations are a bit confused.

In the question of first choice among the 2 year olds there seems to be lack of agreement on the basis upon which the decision is to be made. The two horses which have split the opinion of the authorities are Count Fleet, owned by John Hertz, and Occupation, property of John Marsch.

Many Pick Count Fleet.

A great many turf experts have picked Count Fleet for their No. 1 juvenile. The basis for this choice is Count Fleet's apparent superiority over Occupation at distances over a mile, which was demonstrated in the Pimlico Futurity. It is also based on his probable 3 year old form, inasmuch as most of the big events for that division are at a mile and a quarter or more.

Those who pick Occupation base their choice on the contention that racing over a distance of ground is only one phase of the juvenile campaign—and a late and limited one at that. They believe that in picking the juvenile champion, the big 2 year old races should weigh heavily in the calculations and forecasts of probable 3 year old form should be ignored.

Occupation Big Winner.

On this basis, the choice of Occupation would be inevitable. He won three big futurities—the Arlington, the Washington Park, and the Belmont, numbering Count Fleet among his victims in two of them. In addition he took the Breeders' Futurity at Keeneland and the Washington Park Juvenile stakes. He won $192,355, thereby ranking second to Top Flight in all-time juvenile earning records.

Among these accomplishments, Count Fleet, who earned $62,875, shows victories in the Champagne stakes, Pimlico Futurity, Walden stakes, and Wakefield stakes. In the Pimlico he scored his only victory over Occupation.

Illinois Tech Relays to Be Held March 13

The Illinois Tech relays will not be a war casualty, according to an announcement made yesterday by John J. Schommer, director of athletics at Illinois Tech, who said that plans were being made to hold the relays on Saturday, March 13. Decision to hold the games as usual was prompted by a request from the Western conference and allied major universities that the event be continued.

Continuation of the Illinois Tech relays will make the Chicago event the largest indoor collegiate track meet in the nation. Other large indoor track meets, including the Butler relays, have been forced to cancel their 1943 events because of wartime problems.

The Illinois Tech relays have grown from a three team meet in 1928 until now 35 to 40 teams compete in the event. Last year 37 teams, 27 colleges, and 10 universities were entered. Since 1935 the relays have been divided into two classes of competition, college and university. As a result, the meet has been characterized by track authorities as the only middle western meet in which colleges and universities can compete without the killing competition of an open meet.

ST. GEORGE AND ST. PHILIP ENTER SEMI-FINALS

De La Salle, Joliet Also Gain Bracket.

Tourney Results

QUARTER-FINALS.
De La Salle, 27; Loyola, 23.
Catholic [Joliet], 27; Fenwick, 25.
St. Philip, 37; St. Michael, 23.
St. George, 39; Leo, 28.

TONIGHT'S PAIRINGS.
[Semi-finals.]
8 p. m., De La Salle vs. Catholic [Joliet].
9 p. m., St. Philip vs. St. George.

It's St. Philip vs. St. George and De La Salle vs. Catholic High of Joliet in the semi-finals of the St. George tournament tonight. The pairings were determined yesterday afternoon and evening when the four teams emerged victorious in quarter final games in the St. George gymnasium in Evanston.

In reaching the semi-final bracket, St. Philip, with one of the strongest teams in its history, trounced St. Michael, 37 to 23, in the first evening game, and St. George upset Leo, the defending champion, 39 to 28, in the second night contest. Joliet beat Fenwick, 27 to 25, and De La Salle defeated Loyola, 27 to 23, in afternoon encounters.

The De La Salle-Catholic High game will begin at 8 o'clock, followed by the St. Philip-St. George meeting at 9. The final game will be played tomorrow.

St. Phillips Leads at Half, 21-11.

St. Phillip was out in front at the start of the second half, 21 to 11. By the end of the third period it held a 32 to 16 lead. During this period the scoring was led by Tommy Calkins, a guard, whose direction of the team was responsible for its tight defense. Calkins collaborated with Ernie Di Benedetto and Hubert Gibbons. Di Benedetto's five field goals were high for the Gaels, but it was little Chick O'Connor of St. Michael who won game scoring honors with 12 points.

The Leo-St. George meeting offered contrast to the evening's opener, as the teams, for the first three periods, were never separated by more than five points.

George Vinton gave Leo its first point on the free throw he gained when he was fouled by Jim Curran. Curran made it 4 to 1 when he connected on a long shot from the side after dropping in a pair of free throws on Bill Hill's foul. Hill retaliated to cut the St. George margin to a point. Jim Shelley, Jack Rausch, and Jack Mullaney ran St. George's score to 14 points, while Ed Dawson and Vinton were making 10 points. This made it 14 to 13, the nearest Leo came to the Evanstonians.

St. George Begins to Move.

In the second half St. George really began to move. With the score 20 to 17, Mullaney threw in the first points of the period on a free throw and a basket, and from there on St. George had little trouble holding the south siders under control.

Lineup:

Joliet's victory came as much from the inability of the Oak Parkers to hit from the free throw line as it did from the efforts of its aggressive, fast moving forwards, Jim and Bill Stricklen. Fenwick made only three free throws in 14 chances. The final score was in the balance in the final seconds as Bill Stricklen turned in a brilliant display of ball handling which worked the ball thru an impressive Fenwick defense for two one hand shots that gave the Joliet youngsters a 27 to 23 lead. The last seconds were consumed as Joliet froze the ball. Forward Art Thomas, supplementing the work of the Stricklens, captured the scoring honors on five field goals and a free throw.

Loyola Rallies in Last Quarter.

De La Salle started the second quarter behind 6 to 4, then moved to a 15 to 9 edge by the half, and finished the third period out front, 20 to 13. Loyola then launched a drive in the last quarter that brought it into a 20 to 20 tie with the south siders. Johnny Allen and Bob Dermody combined to shove De La Salle to the fore on long set shots, however, that forestalled the momentary threat.

LIONS, EAGLES TIE.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Washington Lions fought to a 3 to 3 overtime tie with the New Haven Eagles in an American hockey league game tonight.

REACH SEMI-FINALS IN ST. GEORGE TOURNAMENT

Joliet Catholic High school's athletic director, the Rev. Edwin McGowan (left), is shown with two of his team's players, Eddie Mikan (center) and Howie Keenan after Joliet defeated Fenwick High school in a quarter-final game yesterday afternoon. The victory put Joliet into the semi-finals of the upper bracket with De La Salle.

Members of the De La Salle High school basketball team which will meet Joliet Catholic High tonight in a semi-final game of the ninth annual St. George High school tournament. They are, left to right: John Kerris, Robert Dermody, Bob Delaney, Coach Joseph Gleason (Notre Dame), Joseph Schultz, John Allen, and Eugene O'Keefe. De La Salle defeated St. Mel in its opening game Thursday and Loyola academy in the quarter-finals yesterday.

Tulsa Arrives at Sugar Bowl; to Drill Today

New Orleans, La., Dec. 19 (AP).—Tulsa's unbeaten football team arrived here in a sunny temper today, ate lunch at a famous French restaurant and left town in late afternoon for what Coach Henry Frnka described as steady drills at the Bay St. Louis, Miss., training camp. Tulsa will meet Tennessee in the Sugar bowl Jan. 1.

Frnka brought a squad of 55, all necessary tackling and blocking dummies, full player equipment and 300 gallons of Oklahoma drinking water.

"We aren't taking any chances," he said. "The breaks of the game are precarious enough without asking for trouble."

Will Loosen Up Today.

"Our first workout," the Tulsa coach said, "will be some time tomorrow, a light loosening up affair. From there on out it's going to be pure work."

Declining to comment on Tulsa's chances against Tennessee when they clash here on New Year's day, Frnka said instead:

"The public accent seems to be almost altogether on our passing attack. I think we have good punting and running, too, and are versatile as college teams go." He pointed out that Tulsa led the nation in kicking this year with an average punt yardage of 41.3.

Take Look at Battleground.

Met at the station by the Sugar bowl committee, Tulsa was three hours late. Laughing and cracking jokes, the squad was taken to Tulane's towering 73,000 fan capacity stadium for an early look at the battleground.

"I can see," said Glenn Dobbs, star Tulsa back, "where a football player could be either awfully happy, or awfully embarrassed here."

After dinner players watched Warren Easton and Jennings high schools play for the state schoolboy championship in Tulane stadium. They entrained for Bay St. Louis late in the afternoon to set up camp at St. Stanislaus college, where they will remain until the day before the game with Tennessee.

BOSTON ON SCENE

Miami, Fla., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Boston College football team of 35 arrived tonight by train and got ready to start practicing for the Orange Bowl game here New Year's day.

Coach Denny Myers hopes to have the team at full strength for the game against Alabama and added that he expects to have Center Fred Naumetz fit by game time.

The training bearing the squad was hours late, but sponsors of the New Year's day battle kept intact their plans for a big reception for the New Englanders. Boston's opponent, Alabama, will arrive a week from tomorrow.

Graduate Manager John P. Curley, who came down early to make advance arrangements for the Eagles, predicted Coach Dennis Myers would give the team a stiff dose of practice beginning tomorrow.

Only 8 Practices.

"We have had only eight sessions since the Holy Cross game," Curley said, "and they weren't satisfactory because of the conditions of the field. Boys can't loosen up in zero weather."

Curley said he thought Boston was wise in bringing the team down this far in advance of the game. He pointed out the B. C. team which beat Tennessee in the Sugar bowl in 1941 arrived in Louisiana Dec. 20, 1940, while the Boston outfit which lost to Clemson in the Cotton bowl game of 1940 arrived only three days in advance.

Condition Team Gradually.

"The boys probably will be dead on their feet the first three or four days in this warm weather," Curley declared, "but they'll work out of it and be ready by game time. We'll get them in condition gradually."

Curley said school authorities also wanted the team to have a few extra days in Miami "because this will be the last football game for a lot of the fellows."

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Navy Pier.

THE Pier basketball tournament, which got under way last October with 320 teams participating and every company at the station represented, will come to a climax this week when the semi-final and final games will be played. . . . Lt. John Murphy, assistant athletic officer and former De Paul athlete, under whose direction the event is being conducted, said the winning team will be given a trophy emblematic of the Pier championship. . . . Individual awards also will be presented members of the victorious quintet, as well as to players of the aggregation which loses in the championship round. . . . Lt. Murphy also is coach of the Pier varsity, which meets Camp Grant in the drill hall and gymnasium adjacent to this establishment. . . . It is a return contest, the soldier players from Rockford beating the Pier previously at Camp Grant. . . . Johnny Blackburn, who is 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 155 pounds, is the smallest member of the Pier team likely to see action. . . . As a member of the Bedford High school cage delegation in southeastern Indiana, Blackburn participated in the state tournament in Muncie last winter. . . . Bedford reached the semi-finals before being eliminated by Washington, which went on to capture the title. . . . The Pier boxers, who held the strong Camp Grant representatives to a 4 to 4 draw on Wednesday, will meet Glenview air base in the fifth round of the Service Men's Amateur Boxing league tournament at the pier Wednesday.

Lt. John Murphy.

Glenview.

LT. BILL CERNEY, former St. Ignatius High school and Notre Dame athlete, who is athletic officer at this air base, last Thursday had his first look at competition in the Service Men's Amateur Boxing league and he enjoyed it despite the fact Glenview was beaten by the 87th Street Naval Training school, 3 bouts to 2. . . . Stars of the fight with 87th Street included Ken Gaby, bantamweight, and Jim Warner, lightweight, each of whom scored knockouts. . . . With the exception of an impending match with the pier boxers, Glenview has nothing of importance on this week's schedule. . . . The station basketball representatives, who have been showing promise of turning in a successful campaign since opening the season by beating the University of Chicago Maroons on Dec. 2, will not resume play until Dec. 29 against Camp Grant. . . . Coach Lt. [j. g.] Tom Scott recently added the powerful Great Lakes quintet to the Glenview schedule. . . . Ensign Walker E. Crosby, native of Kirkwood, Mo., and graduate of Vanderbilt university, has been assigned to recreation duties at this establishment.

Great Lakes.

A NOVICE amateur boxing tournament has been added to the Service school program at this establishment, starting date of which has not ben announced. . . . Service school's all-star basketball team recently scored its most important victory of the season when it defeated the varsity reserves, 43 to 22. . . . Ed Stanczk, former star of a Fort Wayne, Ind., high school quintet, gained high point honors for the Service school by counting 14 markers. . . . Mike Ballard, crack player from Kalamazoo college, and Gene Morenz, formerly of McKinley High school, each scored 11 points. . . . John Hofmann of Long Island university registered 10 points for the reserves. . . . The varsity regulars will meet the Glenview Cadets Tuesday, and Fort Sheridan Wednesday in building 1400 drill hall. . . . Saturday the sailor quintet will face Butler at Indianapolis. . . . Prior to meeting Illinois in Chicago Stadium last night, the Great Lakes quintet had won six games in as many appearances, scoring an average of 65 points per contest. . . . The team's latest road victims were Lawrence college, which it defeated, 76 to 43, in Appleton, Wis., and St. Thomas, which it conquered, 67 to 44, in St. Paul. . . . The 12th regiment basketball delegation dealt the 21st regiment a 66 to 39 defeat recently to retain first place in the Recruit Training division of the Ship's Company league. . . . Chief Specialist L. H. Uhlenhop, erstwhile player from Pittsburg [Kansas] Teachers, led the scoring with 26 points. . . . Bowling hit a new peak at this station last Monday when the new alleys in building 211 were opened and competition was started between 190 teams in Service school circuits and 60 squads in Ship's Company leagues. . . . Boatswain Sidney Fields, officer in charge of the Service school bowlers, still is accepting entries. . . . Chief petty officers also are organizing a league, Boatswain Donald F. Cutler being in charge of entires. . . . Best series opening week was a 614 total, which included a 249 score, put together by Ed Miller of Service school.

Fort Sheridan.

EDDIE O'CONNELL, Golden Gloves graduate and a former Catholic Youth organization champion, has been inducted at this fort. . . . Eddie is the second member of his family to join the service, his brother Joe, also a former C. Y. O. title holder, having enlisted in the navy previously. . . . Another sports personality now attached to this camp is Dave Koslo, New York Giants pitcher. . . . Dave, whose correct name is George B. Koslowski, is a native of Menasha, Wis. . . . Fort Sheridan's boxing team will oppose two Service Men's Amateur league opponents durnig the holiday period, meeting Fort Custer at Fort Custer Wednesday, and 87th Street Naval Training school at Fort Sheridan Dec. 30.

Camp Grant.

THIS camp's boxers, who kept their record clear of defeats in the Service Men's Amateur Boxing league competition by holding Navy pier to a 4 to 4 draw last week, will return to action against the University of Chicago radio school in Chicago Wednesday. . . . Included in the capacity crowd which attended the match against the pier was Joey Burman, the old world bantamweight championship claimant, who was inducted at this reservation two weeks ago. . . . Also in attendance were high ranking officers, including Col. Joseph I. Martin, executive officer; Col. George H. Cushman, assistant executive officer; Col. Thomas H. Reagan, commanding officer of the 6th officers' medical training regiment; Col. John H. Bohlendar, operations and training officer, and Lt. Col. Frank Bush, special services officer. . . . Bobby Vedder, crack jockey, who rode Alsab when the little flyer won the 2 year old championship last year, is the latest recruit to appear at this camp. . . . The basketball Warriors will oppose Illinois in Rockford tomorrow, and Navy pier at the pier Tuesday. . . . Meanwhile, intramural activities are continuing at a brisk pace. . . . Leaders in the various sports include Company D, 26th battalion, which tops the company basketball league; Camp and Medical Replacement center, first in the officers' badminton tournament; Camp and Medical Replacement center, which tops the officers' ping-pong meet, and Company B, 26th battalion, first in League A, and Company B, 31st battalion, first in League B, in the company ping-pong competition.

Chanute Field.

MORE than 56 soldiers have opened training for competition in an amateur boxing tournament which will start at this army air force technical training command school soon after the first of the year. . . . The men are under the supervision of Lt. John E. Laney, once a boxer at Southern Illinois Normal, and Joe Slovin, an enlisted man who fought professionally as a bantamweight two decades ago. . . . Al Butherus of Maryville, Mo., ex-basketball player at Northwestern, was among a group of physical training instructors recently transferred to another station for special training.

2 Former N. U. Stars Tell War Experiences

Tales of hazardous experiences in widely separated theaters of war were related by two former Northwestern university athletes on visits to the campus last week while home on furloughs.

Lt. Cliff Groh.

The two former Wildcat stars were Lt. Jack De Caprio, captain of the 1938 wrestling team, who spent six days in a lifeboat after his ship was torpedoed off Capetown, South Africa, and Lt. Cliff Groh, 1940 Big Ten fencing champion, who was a member of the Flying Tigers.

Lt. De Caprio, whose home is in Evanston, was graduated from the university's naval ROTC unit and reported for active service with the fleet in May, 1941. He was transferred to the merchant marine armed guard service and was assigned to a 11,000 ton ship in the South Atlantic service.

Ship Sinks in Three Minutes.

When 250 miles from Capetown the ship was struck amidships by a torpedo and sank in three minutes. In this brief space of time the crew launched life boats and escaped with the loss of six men. Lt. De Caprio's boat was picked up six days later by a British warship.

Lt. Groh also was graduated from the naval R. O. T. C. in 1940. He took up flying at the United States naval aviation school at Pensacola, Fla., where he was commissioned. Shortly after he received his wings the call came for flyers to join the American volunteer group to fight in China and Burma.

Credited with Two Planes.

During the fighting in Burma, Groh was officially credited with shooting down two planes and four others were believed to have been destroyed. Last spring his plane was forced down when it ran out of gasoline and he was forced to travel overland for 350 miles to reach safety in China.

After the Flying Tigers squadron was disbanded, Groh joined an air line engaged in ferrying supplies from India to China. When he obtained his leave he flew from Calcutta to the United States in five days.

Richmond High Quintet Noses Out Riley, 40 to 39

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special].—Richmond fought off a desperate Riley drive to win, 40 to 39, over the South Bend team here tonight. Riley led, 25 to 22, at the half. Bud Davidson scored 20 points to lead Richmond while Bill Dumont was high for Riley, with 17 points.

RESUME DETROIT SCHOOL SPORTS NEXT SEMESTER

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Detroit public schools, whose spectator sports program was believed to be doomed for the duration, will return to a full schedule of competitive athletics in February, Vaughn S. Blanchard, director of health education, announced today.

Blanchard said there would be championship competition in the Metropolitan league, comprised of 20 large high school, in football, basketball, baseball, track, and probably tennis. Golf likely will be dropped, he said, because of travel restrictions.

Shortage of Instructors.

Activities in the league had ceased with completion of the football season following a recommendation to the board of education by a principals' committee that spectator sports be eliminated in favor of compulsory physical hardening training. The committee contended a shortage of physical instructors and athletic coaches wouldn't permit both.

Activities Are Varied.

While the board of education retained the competitive angle and authorized the hiring of 19 additional supervisors to assist in the program, it was generally believed that competition would be limited to intramural affairs. Blanchard's announcement, therefore, came as a surprise.

Under the new plan the league is divided into four divisions instead of two. This is designed to reduce travel, but playoffs among the divisional winners are to determine city champions.

"Contrary to popular belief," Blanchard declared, "the physical fitness program does not consist of calisthenics. It is organized around seven activities—football, basketball, swimming, track, boxing, wrestling, and hand to hand combat."

IOWA STATE MAT COACH HAS ONLY 2 LETTER MEN LEFT

Ames, Ia., Dec. 19 [Special].—Things just keep piling up on Hugo Otopalik, Iowa State wrestling coach. A year ago he had 10 fine freshmen prospects to bolster his seven returning lettermen. Today he has only two lettermen left of that original squad of 17 men. Nine freshmen are in the service and the 10th, Russell Helms of Madrid, broke his ankle while ice skating.

George Gast, undefeated 175 pounder who goes into the army next month, withdrew from school yesterday. Other losses include Gene Ewoldson, Les Landmesser, both to the army; Roy Reppert, who has an ankle smashed under a falling horse, and probably Jim Rhodes who is concentrating on his studies in veterinary medicine and may not report.

Advocate Mat Training for Combat Men

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 19 (AP).—President Fendley A. Collins of the American Wrestling Coaches association advocates training in wrestling for soldiers, sailors, and marines as a basis for other methods of hand-to-hand combat. The combined course, says Collins, who coaches wrestling at Michigan State college, would "clear up the myth of judo, which despite its reputation is only a Japanese version of 'barroom brawling.'"

Collins gave the navy and the marine corps credit for an "excellent job" of training men for hand-to-hand combat, but said in an interview the army has given a chill reception to proposals for mass training in wrestling.

Outlines Training Plan.

"I shudder to think what would happen to our boys who are sent to do a job like the invasion of the Solomons without thoro training in hand-to-hand combat," the Michigan State coach added.

He recommended wrestling of the college type—"perhaps rougher"—and an advanced course in jiujitsu to develop in fighting men coördination, physical perfection, and a desire for combat. A class of as many as 100 men could be drilled in almost any grassy spot under a single instructor aided by several advanced students, he added.

"I think these two wrestling courses should be taught before bayonet and knife fighting," Collins declared.

The Michigan State coach, whose squad was runner-up in last season's national collegiate wrestling meet, said at least a score of former college grapplers now in the armed services owed life or limb to their experience in the sport.

Other Coaches Agree.

Collins said other coaches had joined him in his campaign for mass training of army recruits in wrestling. He cited the comments of several, which he said were typical:

William Sheridan, Lehigh—"No football player or any other trained athlete has anywhere like an even break when a man he is looking in the eye knows his wrestling."

Edward O'Donnell, Yale—"A knowledge of jiujitsu, wrestling, hand-to-hand combat, and alley fighting, where there are no rules nor friends to help one, is undoubtedly a means to an end for any one during this war period."

Hugo Otopalik, Iowa State—"Wrestling has it on most any other form of athletics in the training of the soldier, and the sooner our army authorities realize this the better; the Japs and Nazis have known this for some time and it is about time we awakened here."

Mickey McCardle (No. 28) brilliant Southern California half back, plows thru the St. Mary's Preflight line. The game, played in Los Angeles yesterday, wound up the 1942 intercollegiate season, except for the bowl and all-star games. The Trojans won, 21 to 13. Mickey fell just short of a first down as Bobby Grayson (22) and DeLauer (82) brought him down. Bill Bledsoe (12), Trojan back, was trying to block out Grayson as the camera clicked and Nello Falaschi of Preflight (28) had just been removed from action by U. S. C.'s Billy Seixas.

YACHT VETERAN WILL REPORT AT WAVES SCHOOL

Mrs. Hobart Olson Enters Naval Service.

Mrs. Hobart Olson, a veteran of three Mackinac yacht races, reports Tuesday at Smith college, Northampton, Mass., for training in the WAVES, according to an announcement of the Milwaukee Yacht club. She is said to be the first Lake Michigan yachtswoman to enter the women's naval service.

Mrs. Olson raced with her husband as one of the crew on their 31¼ foot cutter Duchess. The Olsons circumnavigated the globe in 1938 as passengers on a tramp steamer. Last May Mrs. Olson christened the U. S. S. Strong, a destroyer, at Bath, Me. She is a descendant of Rear Adm. James H. Strong, for whom the vessel was named.

New Officials Named.

New officials of the Lake Michigan Yachting association, to operate the 1943 racing season, include the following committee chairmen:

Sail Squadron Committee.
Racing rules—William Moore, Jackson Park Yacht club.
Racing promotion—Edward Schnabel, Chicago Yacht club.
Measurement rules—Commodore D. E. Rebelman, Chicago Corinthian Y. C.
Junior activities—Edward Schnabel.
Racing schedule—William Moore.

General Committee.
Finance—Commodore Theodore Dunlap, Jackson Park Y. C.
Harbors and waterways—Commodore Raymond L. Greist, Chicago Y. C., and Commodore James Barr, Milwaukee Yacht club.
Public relations—Commodore Theodore Dunlap.
Yearbook—Commodore L. T. Rountree, Chicago Y. C.
Membership—Ed Buker, Jackson Park Y. C.
National defense—Commodore L. T. Rountree.
Navigation—Commodore E. E. Sheridan, Chicago Y. C.

Commodore Rountree was named to succeed David C. Zimmerman of the Columbia Yacht club as head of the national defense committee, formed last year, since Zimmerman has been commissioned a lieutenant in the naval reserve.

Kiehm New Commodore.

Harold G. Kiehm is the South Shore Canoe club's new commodore, succeeding Kenneth Curtis. Commodore Kiehm, who was purser of the American Canoe association's western division seven years, also is a director of the Prairie club.

John T. Emerson is the new vice commodore of the club and John E. McCullough is secretary-treasurer.

Lt. Harry Frey of the navy's amphibious forces writes friends at the Michigan City [Ind.] Yacht club that because the ship he is on is unheated his normal wearing apparel consists of a suit of long underwear, two pairs of wool socks, a pair of khaki pants, a khaki shirt, a flannel shirt, a sweater, a muffler, a suit of oilskins, and a pair of wool lined mitts. But he won't say where he is. He was the club's first commodore and now is one of the 23 members in the services.

ST. JOHN'S BEATS OKLAHOMA, 51-43; 18,000 SEE GAME

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—With 6 foot 9 inch Harry Boykoff accounting for 18 points and doing a fine job on defense, St. John's university's high geared basketball team won its fourth straight game of the season tonight with a 51 to 43 decision over Oklahoma before a capacity crowd of 18,000 in Madison Square Garden.

Thru the opening half and the first five minutes of the second period, the game was a nip and tuck affair. The score was tied four times before they left the floor with St. John's holding a 22 to 21 advantage. The metropolitan boys went on a scoring spree in the opening minutes of the final session, pulling away to 30 to 23 lead. The Sooners, however, struck back on the shooting of Allie Paine and Gerald Tucker to knot the count, 32 to 32, before St. John's went on another 19 point scoring surge while limiting the visitors to two field goals by Tucker.

The Sooners lost Tucker on four fouls with five minutes to play and with him went their last hope of victory. Lineup:

GREG MULLEAVY SIGNS AS 1943 BUFFALO PILOT

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP).—Gregory [Greg] Mulleavy, who piloted the Jamestown Falcons to pennants the last two years in the Class D Pony league, signed a contract tonight to manage the Buffalo Bisons of the International league in 1943.

John C. Stigimeier, Bison general manager, said previously the one year contract provided a $5,000 salary for Mulleavy and a bonus if the Bisons make the league playoffs. Mulleavy, a former Bison infielder, succeeds Al Vincent, who resigned in September.

AL REASONER AND GOMEZ WILL TOP MARIGOLD CARD

Worlds and Fitzjames Also Meet Tomorrow.

Every so often Promoters Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun bob up with a new main bout attraction in their weekly boxing shows in Marigold Gardens.

A few weeks ago these men offered Alvin Gomez, south side lightweight, in a star rôle for the first time and his right to the position proved justified when he upset Joey Pirrone, Cleveland slugger, in Chicago Stadium on Nov. 13.

Gomez to Meet Reasoner.

Tomorrow Gomez will return in a windup spot in the Marigold arena, but his opponent will be a 20 year old prospect named Al Reasoner of Hines, Ill. Al, 1941 Catholic Youth organization 135 pound title holder, not only will be making his first appearance in a featured contest, he also will be appearing in only his second eight round event and in his sixth professional fight.

Reasoner's only defeat since joining the money ranks was suffered at the hands of Vince Turpin of Canton, O., in his debut in that eight round encounter. He won his five other starts, his victims being Gene Spencer, Jimmy Joyce, Doll Rafferty, Jimmy Martin, and Bill Jordan, all tough men for a youth of Reasoner's experience.

Worlds Faces Fitzjames.

An additional eight round engagement tomorrow will involve Clayton Worlds, former city Golden Gloves heavyweight winner, and James Fitzjames of Canton, O. Worlds, who lost to Sergt. Joe Muscato after scoring a surprise triumph over Altus Allen, faces another strong foe in Fitzjames. The latter, whose correct name is James Brown, conquered Zack Robinson and Hubert Hood in previous matches in this city.

Preliminary contests will bring together Robinson and Bishop Murphy, Earl Paul, Indianapolis lightweight, and Al Nedoff, Gary, and Louie Hewitt, 135 pound stablemate of Paul, and Johnny Kruger, Danville, Ill.

Walter Palmer, north side heavyweight wrestler and Charles [Gorilla] Grubmyer will be opponents in the featured bout of Fred Kohler's mat card in White City tomorrow.

Schreiner Is Most Valuable Big 9 Player

the season, when the Badgers upset Minnesota. Wisconsin won eight games, was defeated by Iowa, 6 to 0, on the Saturday after Wisconsin had beaten Ohio State, and engaged in a 7 to 7 tie with Notre Dame in Wisconsin's second game of the year.

Schreiner's finest exhibitions were given against Ohio State and Minnesota. In the contest with the Buckeyes Schreiner caught the touchdown pass that clinched the decision when the Badgers led 10 to 7. He also caught three other passes in this game. Against Minnesota Schreiner caught a touchdown pass from Elroy Hirsch and caught two others that set up other Badger scores.

In the victory over Marquette Schreiner caught three touchdown passes. His conference record in five games was 18 passes for more than 350 yards and six of these scored touchdowns. Schreiner's defensive play was particularly brilliant against Ohio State, when he turned back every attack after the initial Buckeye sweep at his position had gained 5 yards.

The silver football will be presented to Schreiner early next year. It has been customary to make the presentation between the halves of a basketball game. The date will be announced later by Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin's director of athletics and football coach.

AUGUSTANA AND CARROLL FIVES TO MEET THURSDAY

Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 19 [Special]. —Augustana college will play its last basketball engagement of the pre-Christmas campaign Thursday night as host to Cornell college of Mount Vernon, Ia. The Vikings have won two games and lost one, to Bradley Tech.

Ray Ramsey of Bradley that was the main reason for the Augie downfall, altho Byron Swedberg of Augustana was right behind him in scoring. Ramsey collected 23 points while Swedberg fired thru 22, giving him 59 points in three games.

Besides Swedberg, Leroy Karlstrom, his forward mate, and Fred Staack, 6 foot 5 inch center, are the Vikings' other two main scoring threats. At the two guard slots will be Bill Rinek and Capt. Louie Campanaro. Rinck is not a capable scorer, but is valuable for his steady guarding. Capt. Campanaro is a dependable guard, fast floorman, and occasionally a red hot scorer. For reserves Coach John Briley probably will call on Joe Sharpe, the sixth letter man on the team, to work at center or guard, Bud Hanson, lanky frosh guard, and Ernie Johnson, rugged sophomore center.

Marquette Hurdler Invited to Sugar Bowl Track Meet

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 19 [Special]. —Arthur Egbert, senior hurdler on the Marquette university track team, today received an invitation to compete in the Sugar bowl meet in New Orleans. Egbert, whose home is in Gary, Ind., has been timed in 14.4 seconds for the high hurdles and 23.5 seconds for the lows.

SPOTTING THE PINS

A total of 623 five-woman teams, 950 doubles teams and 1,826 individuals will start competition on Saturday, Jan. 9, in the 26th tournament of the Chicago Women's Bowling association, to be put on at Bowling Lanes, 5221 Broadway. The event will run for two weeks.

Goranson's 20 Alleys, leaders in the Congress Ladies Classic league and winners of the recent sweepstakes that preceded the All-Star tournament, will defend their title, as will Laura Stellmacher, a member of the Goransons, who captured the singles last season. Adele Pfeuffer and Frances Gabrich, doubles winner last season, also will compete again.

The Radio Industries Bowling association is shooting for a new high in its tournament which also opens Jan. 9 and 10 at Lakeview alleys. It will be a two-thirds handicap event, with 200 as scratch. John Walsh at Motorola is taking entries, which close at midnight Saturday. . . . Anthony Rinella fired a record series, 712, at Renzino's Tuesday. His high game wah 266. . . . And at South Shore George Morrison came up with a 715 count in the center's major league. Included in his total were two 245 games.

Sixteen Teams Enter Sweepstakes Today.

Sixteen teams are booked in the Chicago Sunday sweepstakes, to be held tonight on the Legion Bowling alleys, 7550 Cottage Grove avenue. All 10 of the Classic league teams are on the program, some shooting on the 7 o'clock squad, others at 9:15. The sweep has been off the last two Sundays to avoid conflict with the Tribune All-Star tournament. . . .

Mary Samuels, a swing shift worker in a war plant and a member of the Original Lawrence Bowl Ladies' league stepped out of her work shoes into bowling footwear and clipped off a 183, 155, 208—546 series last week. She's only one of many, however. War workers leagues take up all of the 32 lanes at the bowl at 8:30 Friday mornings. . . . Women's scores:

CREST [Monday]—Eliza Reich, 527; Lillian Koehler, 526; Marian Drebing, 525. BEVERLY [Tuesday]—Lillian Koehler, 545; Helen Foell, 546; Henrietta Carlton, 538; Marge Covert, 523; Ann Hylander, 521; PLA-MOR—Kittie Gebler, 559; Lillian Koehler, 538 and 552; Clara Skorie, 568 and 525; Florence Baker, 536. Schamberger Bowlers Hang Up 3,312 Series.

The Schamberger Schlitz team dropped 3,332 pins last week to set a new foreign alley mark for the season in the North End Traveling league. The league leading Chapin and Gore team set a high single game record of 1,185, but the game was rolled on its home alleys and is not eligible for a prize. Keeley Beers tied for second place in the standings by winning three games over the Stack and Ryan Bowls. The schedule for tomorrow night's play:

Schamberger-Schlitz and Stack & Ryan bowl at Stack & Ryans, 9 o'clock.

Keeley Beer and Gold Crown Beer at Irving Park recreation, 7 o'clock.

Budweisers and Hunters Bourbon at Samuelson's, 9 o'clock.

Curtiss Baby Ruths and Pepsi-Colas at Goldammers Milford, 7 o'clock.

H. E. Pogue Fine Bourbon and Chapin & Gore at Faeta's recreation, 7 o'clock.

Walter Mathes, with a 617; William Anderson, with a 608 which included a single game of 245, and Paul Kassel with 600, gained the honor roll in the North Evanston league last week. . . . Carl Berger, after changing his delivery from three to four steps, following Andy Varipapa's instruction at Bowling Lanes, fired a 702 series in league play Tuesday night, his string including games of 254 and 236. . . . Cecil Weir, a 123 average bowler at the same house, shot a 227 game, and Marion Buritz, with a 131 average, had a 531 string and a single game of 252 in the Ladies junior competition.

Nancy Murphy, with 536, and Helen Robertson, with 523, led the Tuesday afternoon Ladies league at Ray Schalk's Evergreen Towers last week. . . . Agnes Smutney, with 514, and Adella Dunning, with 506, paced the Oak Lawn Ladies league at the same alleys. . . . The men captured all the honors in the Glen Eagles Sunday Night Mixed league last week, with Fred Harvey's 584, Otto Voyta's 578, and Clarence Labbe's 570 leading the way.

Two Great Lakes Football Players Are Transferred

Breakup of the Great Lakes football squad, picked by sports writers as the nation's best service team, began yesterday with the transfer of two Bluejackets to a gunnery school at Norfolk, Va. They are Vic Marino of Ohio State and Gene Ball of Duquesne. They are chief specialists.

Marino was a star guard under Coach Francis Schmidt in 1939. Ball, who played quarter back for Duquesne in 1941, saw extensive service as a blocking back during Great Lakes' late season streak of seven straight games without a defeat.

Transfer of the football players continued a policy of sending men on their way toward the fighting fronts as rapidly as possible. Three potention football candidates—Paul Christman, Aldo Forte, and Joe Kuharich—departed before the season was under way. Eleven of last year's powerful basketball team have been commissioned and assigned to widely separated duties.

16 TEAMS ENTER 7TH MT. VERNON BASKET TOURNEY

Mount Vernon, Ill., Dec. 19 [Special].—The seventh annual Mount Vernon Christmas holiday basketball tournament will be held Dec. 30-Jan. 1. Sixteen of the best teams in central and southern Illinois will compete. Centralia, defending state champion, East St. Louis, Benton, Champaign, Belleville, Salem, Du Quoin, and Wood River are among the entries. Mount Vernon, the host team, defends the tourney championship. First round pairings:

Centralia vs. Du Quoin, Salem vs. Belleville, Carmi vs. East St. Louis, West Frankfort vs. Taylorville, Benton vs. Granite City, Champaign vs. Christopher, Mattoon vs. Wood River, McLeansboro vs. Mount Vernon.

IRISH STATISTICS SHOW T SYSTEM TO BE EFFECTIVE

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special]. —Any doubts about the effectiveness of the T formation adopted by Coach Frank Leahy were dispelled with the release of 1942 statistics for Notre Dame today. The Irish won seven, lost two, and tied two during the course of the hardest schedule ever played by Notre Dame, and averaged 4.37 yards on every running play as compared with 3.19 in 1941.

Angelo Bertelli, junior quarter back, made 1,039 yards on 72 completions out of 162 attempted passes, as compared with 1,027 on 70 out of 123 in 1941. His percentage drop from .569 to .444 was more than offset by the deception that aided the Irish to 2,211 yards on the ground as compared with 1,282 in 1941.

Such fine runners as Steve Juzwik and Owen [Dippy] Evans averaged only 3.7 and 3.4 yards per play, respectively, in 1941, and Creighton Miller averaged 3.4 yards for 59 trips. This year Miller averaged 5.9 yards for 55 attempts. His brother, Tom, averaged 7.9 for 19 attempts. Bob Livingstone, 168 pound sophomore averaged 4 yards, and Corwin Clatt, soph full back, averaged 5 yards.

Notre Dame gave up 99 points, 9 a game, as compared with 64, or 7 a game in 1941 and made 184 or nearly 17 a game as compared with 1941's total of 189 or 21 a game.

MACK RETURNS FROM INSPECTING BASEBALL CAMP

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 19 (AP).—Connie Mack, president and manager of the Athletics, returned last night from Savannah, Ga., and expressed satisfaction with the A's new training camp there.

Connie, who will celebrate his 80th birthday on Wednesday, said he had arranged for the players to live at the General Oglethorpe hotel.

The field is located some six miles from the hotel, Mack said.

Studebakers, Sheboygan to Meet Tonight

The Studebaker Champions will engage the Sheboygan Redskins tonight in the Armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue. Newest team in the National Basketball league, the Studebakers have recorded three consecutive victories.

Sheboygan defeated the Chicagoans in the league opener, 53 to 45, but Coach Johnny Jordan, former Notre Dame star, believes he has collected the right combination to reverse that decision. The Oshkosh All-Stars, defending champions, boast of the only other defeat dealt the Studebakers, 41 to 40.

Price Leads Chicagoans.

Bernie Price, former member of the Harlem Globe-Trotters, leads the Chicago quintet with an average of 11 points a game. Price is only 11 points behind the league leader, Bobby McDermott of the Fort Wayne Zolliners. At the other forward position is Duke Cumberland, with Mike Novak at center.

At guards, Chicago has the two highest scoring defensive players in the league. Sonny Boswell's 43 points are only 7 behind the total compiled by Roosie Hudson of the Studebakers. The latter is in third place among league scorers.

Sheboygan Adds Two Stars.

Sheboygan, only National league team unbeaten by Chicago, will present strong opposition again tonight. Doc Schuette has added two new stars to the team. Warren Schrage, former University of Wisconsin player, and Kenny Buehler, high scorer with the Milwaukee State Teachers, give Sheboygan added power. Buehler scored 14 points against the Studebakers at Sheboygan. Big Ed Dancker is at center and veterans Bill McDonald and Kenny Suesens complete the lineup Moose Graf and Rube Lautenschlager, Bob Schwartz, and Pete Lalich are in reserve.

A preliminary game between the Collegians and the Studebaker B's is scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

OLLIE HUNTER TAKES AWARD AT NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special]. —Ollie Hunter III., Erie, Pa., distance runner, has proved in the classroom as well as on the cinder paths his worthiness to follow Greg Rice, 1939 track captain. Hunter today was awarded the Byron V. Kanaley prize, won by Rice in 1939, for being adjudged "the senior monogram athlete most exemplary as a student and a leader of men."

The award was announced at Class day exercises, preceding tomorrow's 99th annual commencement exercises. Hunter will leave with his mother Monday for New Orleans where he will run in the Sugar bowl two-mile.

Last fall he won the N. C. A. A. cross-country championship in the record time of 20 minutes 18 seconds, 14 seconds under Fred Wilt's old mark. He won the Drake relays' two-mile as a sophomore, and has won the Central Collegiate conference indoor title twice and the outdoor crown last spring. He will be graduated next May.

HARRISBURG STAR GOES TO WORK; HIS TEAM LOSES

Harrisburg, Ill., Dec. 19 [Special].—The Harrisburg Bulldogs were upsetting the strong Benton Rangers in a Big Seven basketball game here last night until Charley Hunsinger, Harrisburg star, had to go to work.

Harrisburg was leading by eight points with five and one-half minutes to go when Hunsinger was forced to report for his job of driving a bus. The Bulldogs then blew up. The final score was Benton, 35; Harrisburg, 33.

Hunsinger is married, altho only 18.

Eight Teams to Compete in Pana Basket Tourney

Panna, Ill., Dec. 19 [Special].—Eight high school teams will compete in the annual Pana holiday basketball tournament, Dec. 28-30. Decatur's Reds will defend the championship. First round pairings, Monday, Dec. 28:

Game 1—7 p. m., Nokomis vs. Kincaid.
Game 2—8:10 p. m., Ramsey vs. Pana.
Game 3—9:20 p. m., Shelbyville vs. Hillsboro.
Game 4—10:30 p. m., Vandalia vs. Decatur.

Private Home Building Is Declared Best

BEATS FEDERAL WORK IN BOTH SPEED AND COST

U. S. Bans Kill Business, Says Builder.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

War housing should be done by private home builders because they can do it quicker, cheaper, and better than any public agencies and their work appeals more to the general buying and renting public, Fritz Burns, new president of the National Association of Home Builders, asserted yesterday.

Competent builders, he added, are being put out of business at a "terrific rate" by war production board limitations on materials and federal housing administration regulations as to the kind of residence on which it will insure mortgages.

Asks Only an Opportunity.

"The private builder can do war housing far better, said Burns. "He can do it with less materials and more quickly than the cumbersome procedures involved in any job run in Washington. He isn't asking for subsidies; he isn't asking for cost plus contracts, but for the opportunity to build the greatest amount of decent war housing with the least materials and with the minimum of government ownership and a minimum of post-war repercussions."

Burns declared that as a result of uncertainty after uncertainty loaded on the private builder by WPB, FHA, and other government agencies, the existence of one of the biggest industries in the country is being threatened unnecessarily at a time when it is vitally needed in the war.

"Private builders are being killed off like flies, needlessly and wastefully, by the conditions which have been put upon them in the vital job of producing accommodations for war workers," Burns asserted.

Lists Private Building Benefits.

Here are six reasons Burns gave as to why private building during the war period is preferable to public construction, and why every effort should be made to give it conditions under which it can work:

"1. Lack of monotony. The personalizing and individualizing of privately owned homes thru landscaping, fencing, and other exterior adornments such as trellises, is a factor in keeping war workers satisfied.

"2. Less wastage in maintenance. Greater care taken of the home, which represents a private investment.

Becomes Permanent Resident.

"3. Less likelihood of 'ghost' communities. An immigrant becomes permanently installed.

"4. More efficient use of priorities by private builders. In fact, the private builders have been much more successful in procuring materials than public housing projects, which in many localities were stymied until additional priority ratings were granted.

No Waiting for Occupant.

"5. Greater public acceptance of privately built war homes. Private housing doesn't have to 'wait to fill up.' Local experience has been that private war housing sells or is rented during the construction stage. Qualified occupants are already waiting for houses for which the builders are just pouring the foundation.

"There are many public housing projects thruout the country that have large percentages of vacancies. These may be filled because of continued demand, but they don't have spontaneous public acceptance.

"6. Privately built housing is less apt to be wasteful or excessive beyond the actual need in areas subject to fluctuating populations. It is meticulously programmed and allocated thru the national housing agency and is further screened thru the economic judgment of the lending institutions which must provide the capital. Most important, it is guided by the acutely keen localized judgment of the private builder who contributes the enterprise and the financial risk."

Realty Miscellany

Oscar W. Rosenthal, president of the Chicago Building congress, has been renominated for another term. Other officers nominated are vice presidents, Hubert Burnham, John A. Holabird, J. Soule Warterfield, Henry Crown, and John Cummings Lindop; secretary, Paul D. Angell; treasurer, Charles M. toe Laer. Three new directors for three year terms each are H. P. Reger, Norman Hoag, and Sangston Hettler. The election will be held early next month.

CHICAGO SYNDICATE GAINS CONTROL OF NORTH PARK HOTEL

With the negotiation yesterday of a 15 year loan of $250,000 by Irvin Jacobs & Co., on the North Park hotel, 1936 North Clark street, a syndicate of Chicago hotel men which has been acquiring land under the building for the last five years, now owns the land and structure.

The funds from the loan were used in part payment on the last parcel of land, it was reported. Interest on the loan was 4½ per cent. Title to the property is held by the Liberty National bank, trustee for the hotel syndicate.

Built in 1925 at a reported cost of 2½ million dollars, the hotel has 359 rooms and 11 stores.

Realtors Hail OPA Easing of Sales Orders

Modification of the office of price administration real estate sales order so far as it affects flat buildings of four or more units was hailed by Chicago realtors yesterday. The order, issued several months ago, restricted no-down-payment sales of dwellings; and required purchasers of real property to make a down payment of one-third of the price.

Following this down payment, the OPA area rent director had to supply a certificate authorizing eviction, after which there was a waiting period of three months before the tenant could be forced to vacate and the new owner take possession.

Loren D. Sexauer, chairman of the brokers' division of the Chicago Real Estate board, explained that the modified order made it possible for owners of properties containing more than four units to sell them without regard to present OPA sales restrictions, provided the buyer wished to occupy one of the units.

The new OPA interpretation, in response to nation-wide requests, provides that the one third down payment and the 90 day period of waiting are both waived when the buyer wishes to occupy one of the units and applies to the local rent administrator for relief.

Machinery Concern Pays $120,000 for Building

J. W. Droll company, manufacturer of mattress and bedding machinery, yesterday bought the building at the southeast corner of Jackson boulevard and Sangamon street, a three story concrete fireproof structure containing 60,000 square feet of floor space, for a reported $120,000. The seller was the Joseph E. Otis estate land trust. William Kaplan was broker for the buyer and Willoughby & Co. for the seller.

ARRANGE SEAT SALES.

Arrangements have been made to sell two New York Cotton exchange memberships, each at $2,900. One transaction represented a decline of $75 from the last sale, while the other was unchanged.

Work Is Begun on War Homes in La Grange

Construction has begun on 25 additional homes for war workers in the La Grange development of Wallen Homes, Inc., where 60 units have been completed. All the new homes are being built to rent. The Aluminum Company of America, which is building a big aluminum rolling mill nearby, has leased 20 houses from the Wallen concern for its employés, 10 of the original group of 60, and 10 under construction.

All the Wallen homes are in the area bounded by 48th and 51st streets, and 6th and 9th avenues. This is one block east of La Grange road and within reasonable walking distance of the big Electro-Motive corporation's Diesel engine plant and the aluminum mill.

Attic for Expansion.

Designed by Architect Carl J. Kastrup, the 25 rental homes each will have four rooms—living room, combination kitchen and dinette, two bedrooms, and bath, all on the first floor. There is an attic and a place where a stairway may be built later if the tenant wishes to have the attic finished into bedrooms. Each house has a full basement with hand fired coal burning warm air furnace.

Scheduled for April 1 completion, all the homes have solid masonry brick walls, backed up with light weight tile blocks, with firred and plastered interior walls. The houses are being built on lots 50 by 134 feet.

Builders of Suburban Homes.

The project is being financed with federal housing administration insured motgages negotiated thru the Prairie State Bank of Oak Park.

The Wallen organization has built 396 homes in various suburban communities in the Chicago area during the last few years, according to Garfield Anderson, president, who with his brother, Lester R., are in charge of the construction of the La Grange project.

At the Realty Boards

Edwin W. Chase, Lombard realtor, was installed as new president of the Du Page County Real Estate board at a meeting held in Elmhurst. He succeeds Edward Blatter of Villa Park. T. A. Sumner, Oak Park realtor, and vice president of the Illinois Association of Real Estate boards, was in charge of the induction ceremonies. Other officers for 1943 were: Vice presidents, Earl Whidden, Downers Grove, and Blatter; secretary, Wesley Luehring, Itasca; assistant secretary, Hattie Glos, Wayne; treasurer, Robert Wilcox, Glen Ellyn.

CHICAGO LEADING NATION IN OFFERS OF WAR HOUSING

Submits 600 Properties for Conversion.

Chicago is leading the country in the volume of applications submitted by property owners to the new war housing center, 120 South La Salle street, for conversion of homes and other structures into additional living units for war workers, Waldemar Weichbrodt, WHC director for metropolitan Chicago, announced.

This city is one of 65 communities thruout the country in which the homes conversion program is being directed by the national housing agency and in which it was found necessary to provide additional living quarters as rapidly as possible for war plant employés.

Weichbrodt said that so far more than 600 property owners who want the government to rebuild their properties thru the HOLC without cost to them and rent the converted units to workers, paying them [the property owners] an agreed rental and returning it to them within seven years.

A second WHC regional office has been opened at 608 Davis street, Evanston, where owners may submit their properties.

BARTLETT BUYS 115 ACRE FARM FOR SUBDIVISION

Frederick H. Bartlett & Co. yesterday bought the 115 acre Gilmore farm on the south side of Butterfield road, a quarter mile east of Highland road, for about $18,000. It will be laid out with winding roads and sold in five and 10 acre tracts.

Leroy J. Keneval, sales director, said that his concern recently sold out 77 acres on the north side of West 31st street, west of Wolf road, in Westchester, all in 10 acre tracts. He also reported practically all of 99 acres on Irving Park road, a half mile west of La Grange road near the Douglas plant, have been sold in one, two, and five acre tracts.

FEDERAL AGENCY TAKES FLOOR OF BLUM BUILDING

The United States department of interior, office of petroleum coördinator for war, district 2, headed by Wirt Franklin, has moved its offices from 120 South La Salle street to the Blum building, 624 South Michigan avenue. According to W. G. Sanderson, building manager, the government occupies the entire 12th floor, with 8,000 square feet of floor space. The Blum building is now 100 per cent occupied, he said, with a waiting list of prospective tenants.

WAR WORKERS' HOMES READY IN TWO PROJECTS

Fifty-four war workers' homes in the 200 unit program of the Commercial Home Building corporation, under way in Westchester, were reported yesterday to be completed and occupied. It is expected 100 will be finished by the first of the year. Each will have a uniform rental of $39.95 per month, according to Sudler & Co., managing agents. The homes are east of Mannheim road and south of Harrison street.

REVEAL WILSON HAS VAST WAR OUTPUT POWER

Control Wider Than First Announced.

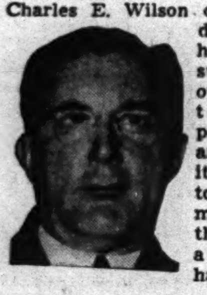
Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Charles E. Wilson of the war production board has been given supreme control over scheduling the production programs of the army and navy, it was learned today, by orders more sweeping than an earlier announcement had indicated.



Charles E. Wilson.

One order provides that Wilson, president of General Electric company and vice chairman of WPB in charge of production, "Shall be responsible for and shall direct the scheduling of the various production programs of the army and navy and maritime commission and other agencies participating in the national war production program."

Defines Authority.

This was one of four orders defining Wilson's authority signed 10 days ago by Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the WPB but not officially announced so far. Its broad wording was disclosed by a reliable source who preferred to be anonymous.

Nelson's public announcement a fortnight ago of an "agreement" between WPB and the army and navy on the subject said that Wilson was authorized to "exercise general supervision" over scheduling. This agreement was approved, before release, by Secretary of War Henry Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

The order declares that Wilson shall exercise his scheduling powers "to insure that program schedules do not conflict, are in balance, are consistent with maximum production possibilities of the national economy, and are in accord with the strategic requirements of the chiefs of staff."

Wilson received authority to "inquire into any feature of the war production or procurement program," and is to be furnished by the army and navy with "schedules, records and information in such form and at such intervals as he may designate."

Better Balance Sought.

The WPB's move to recover scheduling powers from the army and navy resulted from Nelson's belief, never publicly expressed, but reported by lesser WPB officials, that production of aircraft and some other items was lagging because of lack of balance in the production schedules of the various war plants making parts and assembling completed weapons.

In exercising these functions, Wilson will work thru the production executive committee, but the committee itself received authority only to furnish "advice and assistance," with the final decisions resting with Wilson as chairman.

ELECT BEN BOHAC TO CHICAGO HOME LOAN BANK BOARD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Names of directors elected or reelected to the boards of the 12 federal home loan regional banks were announced today by the federal home loan bank administration. Their two year terms start Jan. 1. Four were elected.

Among those elected [*denotes reelected] to banks in the following cities were:

CHICAGO: Ben F. Bohac, Chicago; *Edward J. Czekala, Chicago; *William E. Hodnett, Lincoln, Ill., and Rilen McConachie, Sparta, Ill.

DES MOINES: H. A. Thompson, Fargo, N. D.; E. Paul Smith, St. Louis; William F. St. Clair, Columbia, Mo., and Walter H. Brown, Joplin, Mo.

INDIANAPOLIS: *Fermor S. Cannon, Indianapolis; Walter Gehrke, Detroit; *Walter H. Dreier, Evansville, Ind., and *Grant H. Longenecker, Benton Harbor, Mich.

North Western's Debt Plan Filed by Road, Not Trustee

Charles M. Thomson, trustee of the North Western railroad, thru an error was reported yesterday to have joined in a court petition asking approval of the use of available cash to pay the road's obligations to the RFC. The road's attorneys, Helen W. Munsert and Luther M. Walter, filed the petition on behalf of the road, but not on behalf of the trustee. The trustee is a representative of the court, and as such holds a position of neutrality in such actions.

President Signs Measure for Substitutes in Coins

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—President Roosevelt today approved an act of congress authorizing substitution of other materials for strategic metals in minor coins. It authorizes the secretary of treasury to prescribe regulations governing weight, dimensions, and shape of new pennies and 3 cent pieces. The only limitation is that they must fit coin operated machines.

Desk Workers Show Aptitude for War Jobs

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Chicago "white collar" workers have proved that they are a versatile group, a progress report made by the Illinois Institute of Technology on its war training course for the executive type of worker desiring to get into war work indicated yesterday. The course is one of many which the institute has offered in training 24,713 persons for war jobs under the supervision of its president, Henry T. Heald.

The course for white collar men was established to help supply war industry with supervisory workers. Lawyers, salesmen, retired executives, or professional workers and persons whose jobs had fallen victims to the demands of war were among those invited to take the course free.

Fourth Class Starts Jan. 4.

Of the first class of 91 more than 70 per cent were reported to have responsible war jobs. The average annual wage of the group was $3,258 in their former positions. Another class has just graduated. The third class—the current class whose members had an average annual wage of $5,000—will graduate in February and a fourth class will start Jan. 4.

The records of the first class disclose numerous instances of how salesmen and others have been able to take important jobs on war work. A personnel manager of a cosmetic company was given an executive job with one of Chicago's most widely known manufacturing companies. He hired four of his classmates.

A man who sold real estate is now a tool designer on machine gun parts. A calculating machine salesman is personnel manager for a large company. An erstwhile wheat trader in the grain pit is an expediter for a radio company.

Ex-Teacher Teaching Again.

A fuel stoker salesman is now a time and motion study man for one of the country's principal manufacturers of precision equipment. A former high school English instructor, who tired of teaching, took the course and then got a job in an ordnance plant. He had occasion to visit the college he had attended and told the president his experience. Before he could get away he was "drafted" as college professor to teach engineers English.

One among the group apparently did not fit into it but talked so smoothly that he was permitted to take the course. He had been a music instructor for 22 years, earning about $35 a week. His background indicated little hope of fitting well into industrial war work, but he is getting $107 a week as a cost analyst.

Several auto salesmen got jobs at Buick's aviation engine plant. A sporting goods salesman is now an expediter for one of the largest Chicago companies. A gas range salesman bought a partnership in a small west coast tool enterprise and is now working for himself as a machinist. A 62 year old man—a French officer in the first World war—who had been selling real estate, became a customs inspector.

Courses Run for 10 Weeks.

Men taking the white collar course are taught rudiments of industrial operation, taking up such subjects as production and inspection, materials of industry, drawings and specifications, industrial organization, supervision and safety, and mathematics. They are given sufficient practical work to give them some familiarity with the type of machines used in industry. The courses run 10 weeks and classes are from 2 to 10 p. m.

An increasing number of women are taking free war courses at Illinois Tech. About 1,700 have either completed courses or are enrolled.

Classes at the institute were organized along mass production lines to turn out executives for war plants in a hurry. The classes are free except for certain books, the government paying tuition.

ONION FUTURES RISE; FIRST EGGS IN WEEK TRADED

January onion futures advanced 2 cents to the highest levels in more than a week on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing at $1.58 a 50 pound sack. The price is 7 cents below the OPA ceiling.

For the first time in more than a week a sale was recorded in the egg futures market, the January delivery changing hands at the temporary maximum of 37.9 cents a dozen. Butter and Idaho potatoes were unchanged.

Chicago Bank Clearings Climb to 464.7 Millions

Bank clearings in Chicago last week totaled $464,700,000, compared with $422,400,000 in the preceding week and $516,300,000 in the corresponding 1941 period, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The report follows:

|  | Clearings. | Balances. |
|---|---|---|
| Monday | $ 70,200,000 | $ 7,300,000 |
| Tuesday | 78,200,000 | 8,200,000 |
| Wednesday | 80,700,000 | 4,700,000 |
| Thursday | 82,900,000 | 6,800,000 |
| Friday | 77,300,000 | 4,800,000 |
| Saturday | 75,400,000 | 6,900,000 |
| Total for week | $464,700,000 | $38,700,000 |
| Last year | $516,300,000 | $48,500,000 |

Candy Supply Termed Small But 'Sufficient'

Many customers have done their Christmas candy shopping early, but enough probably will be available in retail stores to take care of all Christmas demands, retailers said yesterday.

Some stores are limiting sales per customer to stretch supplies cut by government order to conserve supplies of sugar and chocolate.

Others, especially large five and ten cent chain stores, have sufficient stocks to last until Christmas despite heavier demand. One candy buyer in a large loop chain store said some lines the store ordered were not filled, but that substitute lines were obtained.

The situation was different, however, in the Fanny May and Mrs. Snyder's candy stores where sales were limited and checks accompanying mail orders were returned.

Limit Set at Five Pounds.

Mrs. Ora Snyder said her stores were 1,000 orders behind and purchases are being limited to five pounds of candy to a customer. Even by using more honey and maple sirups, she said, the company cannot meet the vastly increased demand.

"Never in my whole business career have I experienced anything like it," said Mrs. Snyder. "People, because of sugar rationing and chocolate shortages, have fewer sweets at home and are turning to candy to fill the need."

Fannie May shop experiences paralleled that of Mrs. Snyder's. No mail orders are being taken, said H. H. Simpson, general manager. Purchases are being limited.

Get Half of Supplies.

In other years, he said, the company has filled large commercial orders for as much as 5,000 to 6,000 pounds, but these have been out for two months. The limit first was set at 50 pounds and later lowered to 25 pounds, with further curtailment in store, he said, if the need arises.

Only about half the supplies ordered by the company are being filled, Simpson said, with the increased demand draining stocks.

The shortages for civilian consumption were caused by curtailment of production thru a limit of 70 per cent of the sugar formerly used and 60 per cent of the former supply of chocolate, along with demands of the army and navy.

In addition to this, an industry spokesman said, larger public buying power has increased the demand. He said wholesale stocks are very low and manufacturers are working on a day to day basis.

1941 STEEL COMPANY SALES SHOW BIG GAIN; PROFIT RISE IS SMALL

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 19 (AP).—Twenty-eight steel companies reported combined net sales of 4 billion 822 million dollars in 1941, compared with 3 billion 234 million in 1940, the securities and exchange commission announced today in the sixth of a new series of industry reports.

Net profits after all charges were 294 million dollars in 1941, a 33 million increase over the preceding year.

Those reporting included the following producers with blast furnace facilities: Alan Wood Steel, American Rolling Mill, Bethlehem, Colorado Fuel and Iron, Crucible Steel, Inland Steel, Jones & Laughlin Steel, National Steel, Otis Steel, Pittsburgh Steel, Republic Steel, Sharon Steel, Tennessee Coal, Iron, and Railroad, United States Steel, Wheeling Steel, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube company. The other 12 reported have no blast furnace facilities.

WEEK AND HOURLY PAY FOR MANUFACTURING SET PEAKS IN OCTOBER

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—The national industrial conference board reported in a survey today that earnings, employment man hours, and pay rolls covering 25 manufacturing industries again reached peak levels in October.

Weekly earnings rose 0.7 per cent to $42.10, highest ever recorded in the industrial board surveys, exceeding October, 1941, by 18.1 per cent; January, 1941, by 37.5 per cent, and 1929 earnings by 47.5 per cent.

Hourly earnings averaged 95.8 cents in October, a gain of 0.1 per cent over September. The rise was 12.3 per cent since October, 1941, 26.2 per cent since January, 1941, and 62.4 per cent above the 1929 average.

ELECTRIC FIRM PAYS BONUSES UP TO $25,000

Cleveland, O., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Lincoln Electric company, target of a house naval affairs committee inquiry last May into its wage policies, today paid "incentive compensation" of nearly 3 million dollars to some 1,300 employés.

The compensation, which included this year's overtime, averaged around $2,300 per employé and ranged from $10 to $25,000 with 90 per cent going to shop workers, President James F. Lincoln announced.

Lincoln said the "incentive pay" was calculated on the same basis as in prewar years. Because of this war labor board attachés here said, the company did not need WLB approval altho the amount paid is larger than in 1941. Counsel Edmund Toland of the house committee said last year that the company paid $5,143,234 in bonuses in 1939-'41 inclusive, and that salaries in the same three years were $2,681,562.

WICKARD NAMES FOOD PROGRAM ADVISORY BODY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard announced today the appointment of a food advisory committee to assist him in carrying out the nation's wartime food production and distribution program. It replaces the WPB foods requirements committee.

Members of the advisory committee named by Wickard, who will serve as chairman, were Maj. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, representing the war department; Rear Adm. W. B. Young, navy; Edward R. Stettinius, lend-lease administration; Edwin W. Gaumnitz, board of economic warfare; M. Lee Marshall, WPB; Abe Fortas, interior department; H. W. Parisius, food production director of the agriculture department, and Roy F. Hendrickson, food distribution director of the department. A state department representative will be named later.

72 CHICAGO AREA FIRMS GET WAR ORDERS IN WEEK

Seventy-two Chicago area companies received 105 war contracts last week, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, announced yesterday. Since the beginning of the war production program, 1,815 Chicago area concerns have received 8,709 federal contracts, worth $1,886,231,000.

Extend Christmas Closing of Mercantile Exchange

Lloyd S. Tenny, business manager of the Chicago Mercantile exchange, announced yesterday the exchange will extend its Christmas holiday by remaining closed next Saturday. The exchange will be open Saturday following New Year's day.

Flour Demand Lifts Wheat to New Peaks

Continuation of a large domestic demand for flour which is estimated to have resulted in sale of a million barrels or more in the last week brought liberal buying of wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. All deliveries sold at new seasonal highs. December sold at $1.37 and went ¼ cent over the May future at one time, compared with a discount of 5 cents a bushel recently.

Wheat futures closed ⅝ to 1⅜ cents higher, with December leading. The upturn was helped by strength in the Minneapolis market, where gains ranged to 2⅝ cents. The Kansas City market was affected by selling said to be hedging against purchases of cash wheat from farmers, but closed ⅝ to 1 cent higher.

Futures Relatively Low.

Part of the buying of wheat futures is attributed to their low price in relation to the cash grain.

No. 2 red winter wheat was quoted up to $1.54 on the Board of Trade, 22 cents over the government loan price, and No. 2 hard at $1.42⅞. The 10⅞ cents premium for No. 2 hard wheat is estimated to be more than sufficient to cover any storage and other charges that have accumulated against the grain.

Reports that the farm bloc would make determined efforts to force an upward revision in parity prices by inclusion of farm labor and other costs is said to be having a far-reaching effect in inducing farmers to withhold surplus grain from market.

Other Grains Join in Rise.

Corn and other grains joined in the rise, the nearby deliveries of corn going to new highs since mid-August. Closing sales were ⅞ to 1⅛ cents higher. Oats gained ¼ to ⅜ cent, rye ⅜ to 1¼ cents, and soy beans ⅞ to 1 cent a bushel.

Cash interests and professional traders led the buying of corn futures, and offerings were relatively light.

The relatively heavy undertone in oats, said brokers, was caused by fears of additional imports of Canadian grain. United States interests are estimated to have purchased about 20 million bushels of Canadian oats so far this season.

J. H. ALLDREDGE, ALABAMA, NAMED ICC CHAIRMAN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—J. Haden Alldredge, native of Brookville, Ala., today was elected chairman of the interstate commerce commission, succeeding Clyde B. Aitchison. The chairmanship is rotated annually. Commissioner John L. Rogers, who was in line for election, declined because of his additional duties as director of the motor transport division in the office of defense transportation.

Senator Says Lend-Lease May Export Horse Meat

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Sen. James E. Murray [D., Mont.], said today that lend-lease officials had agreed to investigate the feasibility of exporting canned horse meat to European countries. "It appears quite feasible to me to send to Europe the kind of meat the people over there have been accustomed to using, and the kind that they relish," Murray said.

BOOTLEG MEAT SUPPLIES RISE, PACKERS WARN

Threat to Equitable Distribution.

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

Meat packers, forced to reduce their sales to civilians, complained yesterday of widespread "black markets" for meat in many sections of the country, which they said are the direct result of allocation orders and price ceilings in federally inspected channels that are "policed." They said it is a difficult task to track down the numerous possible sources of bootleg meat.

A big "legal" leak exists in the thousands of meat lockers located in many sections of the farming country, and packers believe some illegal traffic is carried on under cover of such plants. Since the restriction orders began, lockers have done a banner business. It now is reported practically impossible to rent a locker.

Meat lockers were installed originally to enable farmers to butcher their own animals and store the meat for use when needed. The government encouraged this practice, and it grew.

May Butcher for Himself.

Spokesmen for the office of price administration explained that it is not illegal for a farmer to butcher his own animals and keep them at the locker plant for his own use, but he is subject to severe punishment if he sells more meat to any one else than he sold during the corresponding period of 1941. Some packers located near locker plants assert that meat in these plants has gone far beyond the use of individual owners and advise placing all such plants under federal supervision to block violation of allocation orders.

Packers doubt the tonnage of meat brought illegally into consumer channels will be large enough to be a real threat to any compulsory ration plans the government may adopt, but said such traffic is draining off supplies from packers filling lend-lease and army orders.

Blame Meat "Leaks."

Some packers believe failure of inspected meat production to reach the tonnage the department of agriculture expected this winter can be attributed partly to leaks of meat thru other channels.

Drastic reductions planned for civilian supplies thru regular channels will be a boon to those willing to violate price ceiling and restriction laws, it was asserted, unless the OPA finds some methods to cope with the traffic. This trade is believed to exist mostly in farming regions, smaller towns and on the outskirts of the big cities, where small noninspected killers and peddlers operate.

The increase of noninspected meat reaching consumers is termed a threat to health by meat experts.

Distribution Most Uneven.

Legal distribution is the most uneven that veteran packers can recall. While some large centers and areas where war defense plants are located actually go hungry for meat, consumers nearer the source of supply have more than they can eat. This situation also exists even among individuals in the same towns, especially where meat lockers are located.

The method of enforcing ceiling prices on established trade and blocking sales to civilians leaves a wide open field to the bootleggers which it is said only an army of OPA police could control. One midwest packer said he recently quit answering telephone calls from consumers because he had sold all the meat his plant was permitted. Across the street a meat locker did a record business.

Beef Output Dips Again.

Beef production, which began declining early this month after large sales of cattle at light weights earlier in the season when OPA price action convinced farmers the government would discourage long feeding of cattle, dipped again last week. Only 37,300 cattle arrived in Chicago, the second smallest weekly total since last May and the least for a December week in four years.

Reacting under the new "dollar and cents" beef ceilings, the six day steer average fell 35 cents to $14.65 a hundred pounds, lowest since the week ended Sept. 5. Plain quality steers closed steady with a week earlier, but others showed a 25 to 40 cent loss. Heifers were weak to 25 cents lower.

The hog average advanced 45 cents, to a new 24 year December high of $14.05, compared with $11.00 a year ago and $6.20 two years ago. The lamb average declined 30 cents to $15.05.

Hogs yesterday sold steady at $14.25 and below. No cattle or sheep were sold.

Plan Approved to Reorganize Roberts, Oake

A plan of reorganization for Roberts & Oake, Inc., Chicago pork processor, was approved yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes. The plan was submitted Nov. 30 by James P. Carey Jr., trustee in bankruptcy for the company, and would eliminate the $1 par common stock from participation in the reorganized company.

The maturity of the 6 per cent first mortgage bonds due in 1944 is to be extended 10 years with the interest rate unchanged. The plan calls for payment by next May 1 of 20 per cent of the principal amount of the bonds, and payment of accrued bond interest from Nov. 1, 1940, to Nov. 1 of this year.

Preferred Holders Participate.

A new issue of no par common stock, to be exchanged share for share for the present $1.80 no par cumulative preference stock, is provided.

Roberts & Oake filed a petition for reorganization in federal district court in April, 1941, in which it said it was unable to meet current expenses and provide for two sinking fund payments then past due on its bonds.

The company's earnings are reported to have improved steadily since that time. A large part of its production has been going to government agencies and into lend-lease shipments.

Owes $900,000 in Dividends.

Bonds of the company are outstanding in the amount of approximately $700,000. There are about 97,600 common shares and 48,300 preference shares. No dividends have been paid on the preference shares since 1932, and the unpaid accumulation is approximately $900,000.

Elimination of the common shares from participation was not included in provisions of the original reorganization plan, because of uncertainty over tax matters at that time, Carey told the court when the amended plan was filed. Later the stock was declared to be without value and entitled to no equity.

ROW OVER UNION STEWARD SHUTS DETROIT FACTORY

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company's plant here, engaged in making war materials, was closed today when members of the Independent Mechanics' Educational society went on strike.

Orville Plake, international representative of the union, said the strike was in protest over dismissal of a union steward, "anti-union" policies of a new works manager, and failure of the company to give consideration to a demand for a wage increase for women workers.

Answering the union's charges, H. W. Burritt, president of the company, said the shop steward was dismissed for "gross insubordination."

"The case was carefully reviewed and the union contract adhered to," he declared, adding that the union refused to arbitrate until the steward was back at work.

WAR CONVERSION OF HOMES GIVEN HIGH PRIORITIES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Privately financed conversion and remodeling of houses to create dwelling units for war workers and their families will get the same high priority rating, AA-4, given publicly financed conversion jobs, the national housing agency announced tonight.

John B. Blandford Jr., NHA administrator, said agreement had been arrived at with the OPA clarifying the amount of rent which can be charged for privately converted buildings. Property owners will be permitted to take into consideration their capital expenditures in setting rents, and OPA has agreed to give opinions on whether such rents are legal before the conversion jobs are begun.

Blandford said it would take a few weeks for the WPB to get the necessary orders and forms for the priority rating to its field offices.

RAILROAD TO PAY FIRST DIVIDEND IN LAST 10 YEARS

Directors of the Northern Pacific Railway company yesterday declared a dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock, the first since 1932 when 75 cents was paid. The disbursement is payable Feb. 1. The company paid $4.50 on the issue in 1931 and prior to that had paid $5 a year since 1923.

Worthington Pump and Machinery company, Harrison, N. J., declared a dividend of $14 on arrears on the 7 per cent class A preferred stock and $12 on the 6 per cent class B preferred. The payments were the first since 1932.

JONES PREDICTS 18 BILLION RISE IN 1943 INCOME

Places 1942 Total at 117 Billions.

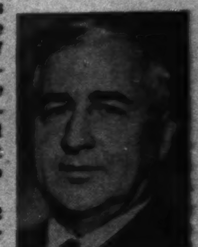
Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones estimated today that this year's national income would exceed 117 billion dollars—nearly three times the depression low—and that next year it would climb to 135 billion.



Jesse Jones.

Part of the 22 billion gain over 1941 can be attributed to higher prices, Jones said, "but the major share represents an increased volume of productive activity."

The estimate for this year compares with the 1929 income of $83,265,000,000, a record until last year, and the 1932 mark of $39,991,000,000, since when the national income has climbed each year except 1938. President Roosevelt set a 100 billion income as the goal for recovery from the depression.

Pay Is Up 19 Billion.

Largest dollar volume increase during 1942 is anticipated for wages and salaries, which Jones said would exceed 80 billion dollars, compared with 61 billion last year. Largest percentage gain was his estimate of 45 per cent for agricultural net income, which Jones attributed to higher farm prices.

Income of business concerns may drop 5 or 6 per cent from 1941 levels because of increased taxes, Jones said, adding that it is difficult to estimate their net earnings for next year in view of uncertainties over new taxes and possible industrial shifts due to the war. One favorable factor for the corporations, he said, is that conversion of most durable goods plants to war production will have been completed and they need not expect interruptions due to changeover from civilian production such as took place in many plants this year. No actual dollar estimates were given for farm and business net income for 1942.

Called Significant Mark.

The sharp upswing in national income this year, Jones said, "is even more significant because it came on top of a record breaking total of goods and services produced the previous year, and because it was achieved despite the necessity of converting many industrial plants from civilian goods produced in war production in the course of the year."

He attributed the sharp rise in wages and salaries to the substantial gain in total employment, longer hours of work and higher wages.

"This upward trend of total wages and salaries," Jones said, "must continue in 1943 as the total of military and civilian employment continues to expand and as extensions are made in the average work week, even if there is substantial wage stabilization during the year ahead."

URGE WAGE RAISE FOR WEST COAST PLANE BUILDERS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—A 5 cent an hour wage increase for experienced workers in southern California aircraft companies and a uniform employé advancement plan to assure experienced personnel an hourly wage rate of 95 cents or more was recommended to the war labor board today in a report by Paul Porter, chairman of a wage stabilization conference for the Pacific coast aircraft industry.

The companies involved are Consolidated, Douglas, Lockheed, North American Aviation, Northrop, Ryan Aeronautical, Vega, and Vultee.

The flat increase of 5 cents would go to employés with four months or more experience. The present starting rate of 60 cents an hour would rise to 80 cents over a period of 16 weeks. The average increase for factory employés in the eight companies would be 6¾ cents per hour. A WLB hearing on the recommendation is scheduled Jan. 8 in Washington.

RALLY SUBSIDES, BUT STOCK INDEX HOLDS WAR PEAK

Week's Turnover Largest in More than Year.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—The stock market took a rest today after one of its best and liveliest weeks of the last year. Profit cashing on the recent rally resulted in mild irregularity thruout the brief session, and the Associated Press average of 60 stocks for the second day in a row ended unchanged at 41.3 but showed a net advance of 1.3 points for the week, biggest rise for any week since July 11. The composite held at the peak mark since Oct. 24, 1941.

While activity in low priced stocks dwindled appreciably, dealings elsewhere picked up moderately and transfers totaled 373,060 shares, compared with 340,730 a week earlier and were the largest for any Saturday since Nov. 7. The week's turnover of 5,055,049 shares was the heaviest of the year to date.

Market Week Reviewed.

The market failed to get anywhere in particular Monday, but lightness of tax offerings, coupled with good war news, inspired reinvestment purchasing Tuesday. Demand broadened Wednesday, with chemicals, rubbers, and specialties contributing advances of a point or more.

Thursday proved the boom day of the week, when trading aggregated 1,307,730 shares, biggest since last Dec. 31. The 60 stock index mounted .8 of a point, widest upturn since July 8. There was another million share day Friday, but the rise stalled on profit selling.

CHICAGO LIST MIXED.

Prices were irregular on the Chicago stock exchange yesterday on turnover of 12,000 shares. Ninety-one issues were traded, of which 31 advanced, 33 declined, and 27 were unchanged. New 1942 highs were reached by Cities Service, Reliance Manufacturing, and Texas company.

INDUSTRIAL BONDS RISE.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Industrial loans competed actively with the long favored rails as bond market leaders today and some of the former rolled up large volumes on a rising trend.

General Steel Castings took turnover honors on the transfer of $162,000 face value, closing at par, up 1½ points. Bethlehem Steel 3½s rose ⅝ to 104⅝, and Allis Chalmers convertible 4s rose ⅜ to 107.

Strong spots among rails were offset by some fairly sharp slides and the closing rail average was unchanged.

CHICAGO HOTELS PLAN NEW YEAR'S PARTIES AS USUAL

Cost Will Be the Same or Lower than Year Ago.

Chicago loop and the larger hotels in the outlying sections, with only three notable exceptions, will hold their traditional parties on New Year's eve on an "as usual" basis despite the war, hotel men said yesterday.

The "as usual" celebrations will include music and dancing, paper hats and noisemakers, floor shows, and other entertainment at prices no higher, and in one or two cases a little lower than prevailed a year ago when Chicago celebrated the first wartime New Year's eve.

Food and Drink Plentiful.

Food and drink will be plentiful, the hotel men said, unless the office of price administration issues an 11th hour order to wreck menus or check the flow of refreshments. One of the hotels said it was substituting roasted fowl for beef on the evening dinner, but the maitre d'hotel contended this would not be a hardship for the guests.

Prices for the evening's entertainment, favors, and food range up to a top of $15 per person at one of the swank hotels. The charge covers everything except the beverages, which are extra, of course, and which will cost more this year because of the higher taxes.

Three Hotels Out of Running.

Lavish parties in two loop hotels will remain pleasant memories for the duration. These were given in the night clubs and dining rooms of the Stevens and Congress hotels, which became army mess halls when the air forces' technical training schools became tenants during the year.

The third hotel closed to parties is the Chicago Beach, on the south side, which has been converted into a hospital for the schools.

YALE PRESIDENT ASKS SACRIFICES TO SAVE IDEALS

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 19 (AP).—All special privileges to persons, class or institution must be submerged in the sacrifice demanded of all Americans if the country's ideals are to be saved, President Charles Seymour of Yale said today at Yale's wartime graduation, six months ahead of time in the college speedup program.

To 570 seniors, 102 already in R. O. T. C. uniforms and more than two-thirds enrolled in the enlisted reserves, he termed the sacrifice of "those things of the mind and spirit which the universities were founded to foster" an experience "inevitably agonizing" to the universities.

"Whatever we of the universities possess is not for our own interest or enjoyment, but for the sacrificial service of the nation," President Seymour declared.

Only the faculty wore the traditional caps and gowns for the ceremony, Yale's 242d graduation. No graduate, professional or honorary degrees were bestowed.

One of the outstanding scholarship prizes went to a marine in uniform, who returned from the officers' candidate school at Quantico, Va., to receive his award. He was Cord Meyer Jr. of North Hampton, N. H., who received the Alpheus Henry Snow prize.

Other prize awards were: The Warren Memorial High scholarship prize to Zeph Stewart of Cincinnati, O.; the David C. De Forest prize for the best oration to Kenneth Rosenberg of Chicago; the Chester Harding Plimpton prize to James M. Potts of Montclair, N. J.; the Chittenden scholastic prize to Lynn Amsden McCabe of Morris Plains, N. J.; and the Edward O. Lanphier memorial prize to Jack C. Shay of Webster Groves, Mo.

AIR FORCE BAN ON PHOENIX TO END TOMORROW

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 19 (AP).—The army air force out of bounds order against Phoenix will be lifted Monday, Col. Ross G. Hoyt, Luke field commander, reported today. In revoking the order, which has kept soldiers out of Phoenix since Nov. 30, Hoyt said the ban would remain against one dance pavilion and a Negro lodge hall.

At the time it was invoked, military authorities said the ban would remain until the city rid itself of prostitutes which they charged were responsible for large numbers of venereal disease cases among soldiers.

Last Monday the city commission, at the insistence of business men, replaced the city manager, chief of police, and city magistrate. More than 60 women have been arrested since the out of bounds order was invoked.

Evansville Newspapers Raise Price to 5 Cents

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 19 (AP).—Evansville daily newspapers, the Press, afternoon, and the Courier, morning, announced today that effective Monday, the newsstand price would be 5 cents—a 1 cent increase.

Tuesday from the chapel at 1701 21st street to St. Stephen's church. Mrs. Zefran, who was 67 years old, died Friday in her home. She is survived by her husband, John, three sons and two daughters, one of whom, Mrs. Tony Blazine, is the wife of the assistant football coach at the University of Illinois.

Robert A. Milroy.

Funeral services for Robert A. Milroy, 300 South 4th street, Aurora, former Democratic representative in the Illinois legislature and former assistant United States district attorney here, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in St. Mary's church, Aurora. Mr. Milroy died yesterday in St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Aurora. He was a University of Notre Dame graduate. He is survived by his widow, Evelyn, three sons, and one daughter.

Joseph V. Kovar.

The funeral of Joseph V. Kovar, 2101 Cuyler avenue, Berwyn, one of the founders and a retired director of the Pilsen Brewing company, will be held at 9:15 a. m. Tuesday from the chapel at 6227 Cermak road to St. Mary of Celle church. Mr. Kovar, who was 68 years old, died yesterday in Presbyterian hospital. He is survived by his widow, Agnes Martinek Kovar, and five daughters.

Charles H. Sykes.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 19 (AP).—Charles H. [Bill] Sykes, 60 years old, a nationally known cartoonist, died today in his home in Cynwyd. A native of Athens, Ala., he worked on newspapers in Williamsport, Pa., and Nashville, Tenn., before coming here in 1911.

DE PAUL HEAD GIVES PLAN FOR LASTING PEACE

The Very Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, C. M., president of De Paul university, outlined three basic points for securing lasting peace in his address at the school's first December convocation yesterday morning. He said this war would not be won and the United States could not feel secure until there was a system for training each generation of young men to defend our institutions, an operating league of nations strengthened by sanctions and an efficient military machine, and acceptance by the United States and its allies of the basic fact that we are our brothers' keepers.

De Paul adopted the quarterly system this year as part of its speeded up war activities. Among the 71 students receiving degrees are Byron H. Webb, 23, a blind honor student; Chief Petty Officer John Peter Byrne, now stationed at Navy pier, and Mrs. Alexander L. H. Darragh, who accepted a master's degree in education for her husband, Lt. Darragh, who is on duty in San Antonio, Tex. It was the Darraghs' sixth wedding anniversary.

DELIVERY DRIVER ROBBED.

Charles Saukup, of 2849 South Homan avenue, a driver for the Consolidated Delivery Service, 329 West 18th street, was robbed of $125 and 70 packages by two men, in an alley near Loomis and Lexington streets yesterday.

MRS. HALL, FIGURE IN HALL-MILLS MURDER, IS DEAD

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, aristocratic principal of the Hall-Mills murder case, died today. She was 79 years old.

Mrs. Frances S. Hall.

The murder 20 years ago of her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, a young choir singer in his fashionable New Brunswick church, evoked nation-wide interest. The trial four years later of Mrs. Hall and her two brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, was a sensation.

The three were acquitted and the Hall-Mills case remains one of crime's major unsolved mysteries.

The middle-aged rector and the church sexton's wife were found slain beneath a crabapple tree on De Russey's lane, a lovers' trysting place.

The clergyman's calling card was against his heel. The couple's love letters were strewn about the scene.

Mrs. Elwyn R. Shaw Rites Will Be Held Monday

Freeport, Ill., Dec. 19 [Special].—Funeral services for the late Mrs. Edith Mary Shaw, wife of Elwyn R. Shaw, former state Supreme court justice, will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in First Presbyterian church. She was found dead in the family's apartment yesterday from a bullet wound believed to have been self-inflicted.

POSTWAR GROWTH.

American industries which are in a position to contribute to the war effort are concentrating into a short period technical developments and advancements which in normal times might require many years. These operations presage a period of post-war industrial activity in which war-time plant expansions and technical progress can be utilized for public consumption.

The chemical industry, to which many others look for new developments beneficial to their own operations, will play an important part in post-war industrial activity.

A wide variety of products based on present developments have been predicted by research directors of several major chemical companies. Among these are a lamination of plastic and wood equal in strength to structural metals, wood which will not burn, unbreakable glass, and glass that will float.

Chemists have predicted that the process of high pressure synthesis of ammonia components for making powerful explosives will be used for the manufacture of chemical fertilizer of such quantity and quality that basic agricultural practices might be changed.

Research directors in the field of petroleum and natural gas chemicals have foreseen the possibility of a vast growth in the development of new alcohols, esters, acids, solvents, perfumes, and pharmaceuticals.

A use for natural gas more extensive than that of a fuel has been seen in the future conversion of hydrocarbons into 100 plus octane aviation gasoline, lubricants, new types of synthetic rubber, explosives, and many chemical derivatives.

Availability of necessary materials is expected to be the dominant factor in the post-war development of plastics suitable for a wide variety of commercial uses. Much of these materials will come from wartime development and increased production of certain petroleum products.

Wartime needs for synthetic rubber provide the major impetus to research and developments in the field of petroleum chemistry. Butadiene, the most important ingredient in the production of buna synthetic rubber, and styrene, another major ingredient, are derived principally from petroleum.

The petroleum industry, thru large producers, has expanded facilities and provided funds in coöperation with chemical manufacturers for the development of large synthetic rubber plants. Both industries will continue to contribute in the post-war period to the growth of synthetic rubber production.

CHICAGO HOTELS PLAN NEW YEAR'S PARTIES AS USUAL

Cost Will Be the Same or Lower than Year Ago.

Chicago loop and the larger hotels in the outlying sections, with only three notable exceptions, will hold their traditional parties on New Year's eve on an "as usual" basis despite the war, hotel men said yesterday.

The "as usual" celebrations will include music and dancing, paper hats and noisemakers, floor shows, and other entertainment at prices no higher, and in one or two cases a little lower than prevailed a year ago when Chicago celebrated the first wartime New Year's eve.

Food and Drink Plentiful.

Food and drink will be plentiful, the hotel men said, unless the office of price administration issues an 11th hour order to wreck menus or check the flow of refreshments. One of the hotels said it was substituting roasted fowl for beef on the evening dinner, but the maitre d'hotel contended this would not be a hardship for the guests.

Prices for the evening's entertainment, favors, and food range up to a top of $15 per person at one of the swank hotels. The charge covers everything except the beverages, which are extra, of course, and which will cost more this year because of the higher taxes.

Three Hotels Out of Running.

Lavish parties in two loop hotels will remain pleasant memories for the duration. These were given in the night clubs and dining rooms of the Stevens and Congress hotels, which became army mess halls when the air forces' technical training schools became tenants during the year.

The third hotel closed to parties is the Chicago Beach, on the south side, which has been converted into a hospital for the schools.

YALE PRESIDENT ASKS SACRIFICES TO SAVE IDEALS

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 19 (AP).—All special privileges to persons, class or institution must be submerged in the sacrifice demanded of all Americans if the country's ideals are to be saved, President Charles Seymour of Yale said today at Yale's wartime graduation, six months ahead of time in the college speedup program.

To 570 seniors, 102 already in R. O. T. C. uniforms and more than two-thirds enrolled in the enlisted reserves, he termed the sacrifice of "those things of the mind and spirit which the universities were founded to foster" an experience "inevitably agonizing" to the universities.

"Whatever we of the universities possess is not for our own interest or enjoyment, but for the sacrificial service of the nation," President Seymour declared.

Only the faculty wore the traditional caps and gowns for the ceremony, Yale's 242d graduation. No graduate, professional or honorary degrees were bestowed.

One of the outstanding scholarship prizes went to a marine in uniform, who returned from the officers' candidate school at Quantico, Va., to receive his award. He was Cord Meyer Jr. of North Hampton, N. H., who received the Alpheus Henry Snow prize.

Other prize awards were: The Warren Memorial High scholarship prize to Zeph Stewart of Cincinnati, O.; the David C. De Forest prize for the best oration to Kenneth Rosenberg of Chicago; the Chester Harding Plimpton prize to James M. Potts of Montclair, N. J.; the Chittenden scholastic prize to Lynn Amsden McCabe of Morris Plains, N. J.; and the Edward O. Lanphier memorial prize to Jack C. Shay of Webster Groves, Mo.

AIR FORCE BAN ON PHOENIX TO END TOMORROW

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 19 (AP).—The army air force out of bounds order against Phoenix will be lifted Monday, Col. Ross G. Hoyt, Luke field commander, reported today. In revoking the order, which has kept soldiers out of Phoenix since Nov. 30, Hoyt said the ban would remain against one dance pavilion and a Negro lodge hall.

At the time it was invoked, military authorities said the ban would remain until the city rid itself of prostitutes which they charged were responsible for large numbers of venereal disease cases among soldiers.

Last Monday the city commission, at the insistence of business men, replaced the city manager, chief of police, and city magistrate. More than 60 women have been arrested since the out of bounds order was invoked.

Evansville Newspapers Raise Price to 5 Cents

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 19 (AP).—Evansville daily newspapers, the Press, afternoon, and the Courier, morning, announced today that effective Monday, the newsstand price would be 5 cents—a 1 cent increase.

Funeral services for Robert A. Milroy, 300 South 4th street, Aurora, former Democratic representative in the Illinois legislature and former assistant United States district attorney here, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in St. Mary's church, Aurora. Mr. Milroy died yesterday in St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Aurora. He was a University of Notre Dame graduate. He is survived by his widow, Evelyn, three sons, and one daughter.

Joseph V. Kovar.

The funeral of Joseph V. Kovar, 2101 Cuyler avenue, Berwyn, one of the founders and a retired director of the Pilsen Brewing company, will be held at 9:15 a. m. Tuesday from the chapel at 6227 Cermak road to St. Mary of Celle church. Mr. Kovar, who was 68 years old, died yesterday in Presbyterian hospital. He is survived by his widow, Agnes Martinek Kovar, and five daughters.

Charles H. Sykes.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 19 (AP).—Charles H. [Bill] Sykes, 60 years old, a nationally known cartoonist, died today in his home in Cynwyd. A native of Athens, Ala., he worked on newspapers in Williamsport, Pa., and Nashville, Tenn., before coming here in 1911.

DE PAUL HEAD GIVES PLAN FOR LASTING PEACE

The Very Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, C. M., president of De Paul university, outlined three basic points for securing lasting peace in his address at the school's first December convocation yesterday morning. He said this war would not be won and the United States could not feel secure until there was a system for training each generation of young men to defend our institutions, an operating league of nations strengthened by sanctions and an efficient military machine, and acceptance by the United States and its allies of the basic fact that we are our brothers' keepers.

De Paul adopted the quarterly system this year as part of its speeded up war activities. Among the 71 students receiving degrees are Byron H. Webb, 23, a blind honor student; Chief Petty Officer John Peter Byrne, now stationed at Navy pier, and Mrs. Alexander L. H. Darragh, who accepted a master's degree in education for her husband, Lt. Darragh, who is on duty in San Antonio, Tex. It was the Darraghs' sixth wedding anniversary.

DELIVERY DRIVER ROBBED.

Charles Saukup, of 2849 South Homan avenue, a driver for the Consolidated Delivery Service, 329 West 18th street, was robbed of $125 and 70 packages by two men, in an alley near Loomis and Lexington streets yesterday.

MRS. HALL, FIGURE IN HALL-MILLS MURDER, IS DEAD

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, aristocratic principal of the Hall-Mills murder case, died today. She was 79 years old.

Mrs. Frances S. Hall.

The murder 20 years ago of her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, a young choir singer in his fashionable New Brunswick church, evoked nation-wide interest. The trial four years later of Mrs. Hall and her two brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, was a sensation.

The three were acquitted and the Hall-Mills case remains one of crime's major unsolved mysteries.

The middle-aged rector and the church sexton's wife were found slain beneath a crabapple tree on De Russey's lane, a lovers' trysting place.

The clergyman's calling card was against his heel. The couple's love letters were strewn about the scene.

Mrs. Elwyn R. Shaw Rites Will Be Held Monday

Freeport, Ill., Dec. 19 [Special].—Funeral services for the late Mrs. Edith Mary Shaw, wife of Elwyn R. Shaw, former state Supreme court justice, will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in First Presbyterian church. She was found dead in the family's apartment yesterday from a bullet wound believed to have been self-inflicted.

WELDING QUIZ:
For You
MEN AND WOMEN
Who Are Interested In WAR PRODUCTION JOBS

QUESTION: What craft is among the most vital to our war production and pays unusually high wages?
ANSWER: It's WELDING.

QUESTION: Can MEN and WOMEN train for such work?
ANSWER: Yes—at Utilities Engineering Institute—now in its 16th year. Many graduates [all ages] hold high pay jobs.

QUESTION: What are the age limits?
ANSWER: Men should be between 18 and 55. Women should be between 18 and 50.

QUESTION: Just exactly what is WELDING?
ANSWER: It is the best known process for the joining of metals in the building of ships, tanks, and armaments of many kinds.

QUESTION: Is WELDING "heavy" work?
ANSWER: No; in production welding the work is set up by a different class of workers known as "set-up" men. The tools handled by the skilled welding operator are not much heavier than a curling iron.

QUESTION: Where are these WELDING jobs?
ANSWER: Locally and throughout industrial America.

QUESTION: How much do U. E. I. trained welders earn?

DON'T BORROW

Borrowing is not alway the proper solution to a money shortage. But there are times when a loan is both provident and wise. For instance, you might borrow to move into a more economical house, nearer to work . . . to buy winter fuel and clothing . . . to clean up past due charge accounts and other bills . . . to buy tools, to pay union dues, or to take special course for a new job on war production . . . and for many other purposes equally worthy. Loans $10 to $300. "While you wait" service to those who phone ahead or come prepared to present proper identification and evidence of employment

WINTER BRINGS ADDED HAZARDS TO CAR DRIVERS

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—The gasoline rationing and the 35 mile an hour speed limit are effectively reducing America's toll of traffic accidents. However, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, today advised that deaths and injuries can be reduced further by extra caution against hazards peculiar to winter.

Children account for a large portion of the victims of winter traffic accidents. With snow on the pavements there's a temptation to play in the streets. A grade school boy was killed by an automobile earlier this month while coasting on a sled near his Chicago home.

"Responsibility for these winter accidents," said Hayes, "sometimes falls to motorists, and sometimes to the pedestrian. Reduced visibility and poor traction are chief causes of these accidents. Motorists must guard against poor traction, but both motorist and pedestrian are handicapped by lowered visibility.

Watch Out for Skids.

"Speeds not lowered to suit weather conditions are apt to cause accidents thru skidding or failure to stop in emergency. Three to 11 times a smuch space is required to stop on pavement covered with ice or snow as is necessary on dry road. Another protection against skidding is use of anti-skid chains.

"As protection against accidents caused by poor visibility, motorist should have defrosters and windshield wipers put into perfect mechanical condition. Snow should be brushed off back windows in order that following cars can be seen in rear view mirror. In addition, enough ventilation should be provided to prevent fogging of windows.

"One of the most dangerous practices is that of hooking a sled on rear of a car. Coasting on sleds in street is only slightly less dangerous.

"Parents are advised to warn children about playing in streets and to emphasize increased need for caution when crossing streets. In bad weather it is more important than ever to avoid crossing between intersections. Motorist is more apt to be prepared for sudden stop at corner than in middle of block, where he does not expect pedestrians to cross.

Tuck in Your Scarf.

"Care should be taken that scarves are carefully tucked into jackets and coats. If allowed to fly free, they are likely to blow across eyes and obscure vision for the few moments required to cause an accident.

"Winter darkness is another factor. The sun rises late and sets late during these months, and light conditions may be poor while children are going to school or coming home from play during late afternoon.

"Enough time should be allowed each morning for child to get to school without too much hurrying. Many pupils will cut across dangerous streets between intersections instead of walking to crossing protected by police or school patrol force members in order to avoid tardy mark.

"Whenever possible, children should have one definite route to get to school. This can be worked out thru coöperation of teacher and parents with aid of safest route to school outline maps developed by Chicago Motor club."

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

AGAINST SUNDAY DRIVING.

Morton, Ill., Dec. 16.—I wish to submit a plan for rubber conservation in the form of reduced driving.

This plan is very simple. I would recommend that each week between the hours of 2 p. m. Saturday and 5 a. m. Monday that driving be limited to those who are traveling to and from work and the necessary driving of doctors, nurses, and others engaged in services necessary to the public health and welfare.

The logic for this plan is very simple. It is necessary that we reduce driving to conserve rubber. I believe that this plan would reduce driving 50 per cent and at the same time allow many of us to use our tires to pursue our usual occupations. I am sure that the week-end pleasure driving could easily be foregone to preserve the stockpile of rubber mounted on our wheels. R. S. SLOAN.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS BURN FUEL.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—With gas rationing reducing traffic about 50 per cent, why all the stop and go signs? These burn up enough energy to supply a good part of the necessary fuel to keep families with small children warm and in good health.

We could in an emergency put up any kind of a stop sign at intersections which would bring any driver to a stop, and if there were no cars coming in the other direction he could proceed rather than wait for the light to change and save some gas in the bargain.

Why do we have to keep coats on in our homes when Chicago and every other city burns up all the fuel to keep these lights burning. E. O. SCHULTZ.

RUSH HOUR WASTE.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Recently the Chicago park district abandoned its express provisions during the morning rush hour on the north division from Devon avenue to the loop. I have no doubt that the park district felt that they would have mileage on their trucks and man hours on their staffs, in this time of labor shortages, by eliminating this service. At the same time I should like to call the following facts to your attention:

This change resulted in an increased driving time of between 15 and 20 minutes while keeping under the 35 miles per hour speed limit and definitely resulted in considerable increase in gas consumption because the whole of this added time was the result of stop and start traffic and waiting for additional traffic signals. In view of this I feel that the increased consumption of time and gasoline on the part of the general public many times outweighs the savings made by the park board. WILLIAM O. CAMPBELLL.

HIGH SCHOOL CROWDS.

Chicago, Dec. 16. — As a taxpayer I would like an explanation from the board of education as to just why they find it necessary to have the Lane Tech boys start school at 8 o'clock in the morning, precisely when the working people usually start work.

Before gasoline rationing I had to leave my home about 15 minutes earlier in the mornings in order to assure myself a foothold on the Western avenue street cars and be at work on time. Even then it was practically suicide for a woman to attempt to get on a car until most of the Lane boys had taken the first three or four. I have let as many as six and seven cars go by before I dared venture to get on. Now, with so many working people riding the street cars at this time in the morning, it's mayhem!

Kindly consider having the Lane Tech boys start school later in the day, if possible, so as to let the working people get to their defense jobs first. I am quite sure you will agree our present day conditions warrant this.

WOMAN WAR WORKER.

NO POSTED WARNING.

Chicago, Dec. 14. — How many war workers wasted precious gas going along south of 103d street on Doty road to find the bridge out? Why aren't warnings posted so one can turn off at an intersection so as not to waste one drop of this rationed fuel? Who is responsible for this? Precious gas, tires, and war workers' time is wasted because of negligence.

CONTINUE PROBE OF SYNTHETIC RUBBER DELAY

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones in a recent report to the President boasted that his rubber reserve company and Defense Plant corporation, subsidiaries of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, arranged for the government's synthetic rubber program prior to the appointment of William M. Jeffers as rubber director last September. His report, submitted on Nov. 30, was made public this week as a senate subcommitte renewed an inquiry into the tardy if not delinquent plant construction.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], next week will continue its probe into charges that the alcohol method of rubber production, from farm and forestry raw materials, has been neglected for the benefit of petroleum as a raw material, delaying output of tire materials for civilian tires.

947,000 Tons a Year.

Jones reported that the two RFC subsidiaries arranged with 67 rubber, oil, chemical, utilities, and other companies to construct or operate plants with a rated capacity of 947,000 tons a year.

"These arrangements," reads the report, "were made prior to the appointment of the rubber director. The President's rubber survey committee [Baruch committee] stated that the program was technically sound and in the hands of capable engineers, contractors and operators."

The Baruch committee also wrote, but Jones did not quote, as follows:

"The committee finds that a number of different government agencies have had overlapping jurisdiction in regard to the synthetic rubber program. This has caused delay and confusion.

Complication from Conflict.

"In particular, the conflict between rubber reserve and the office of petroleum coördinator [Harold L. Ickes] has complicated in recent months the bringing in of new facilities for production of butadiene [synthetic rubber material] from oil. The committee has been unable to determine, in spite of many inquiries, as to where the responsibility has lain for many of the decisions which have been made in the last eight months."

Jones recites his pre-Pearl Harbor dealings with the international rubber monopoly, the British-Dutch combine, which controled 97 per cent of the world's rubber. It was thru the monopoly that Jones accumulated a stock pile of 634,000 tons of natural rubber, which Jeffers said two weeks ago may be exhausted late next year, possibly before synthetic production can take its place.

"No amounts were ever suggested by any authority at any time," Jones writes off his stockpiling, "but we got all we could as fast as we could."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Rules for safe driving under winter conditions were issued in Washington recently in a joint statement made by Robert P. Patterson, under secretary of war, and Robert E. Raleigh, safety director, International Association of Chiefs of Police.

"Winter driving hazards are an important salient on public safety and war production centers which, when severe weather arrives, can hamper home front war activities that are vital to victory," the statement said.

They emphasized that traffic tie-ups and accidents can be avoided by coöperation of essential drivers and certain groups of the public which must "get there safely and on time."

"When dangerous conditions exist during and immediately after snow or sleet storms, drivers must coöperate by driving even below 35 miles an hour, maintaining adequate vision with windshield wipers, and necessary traction by putting on anti-skid chains—or else don't drive," the statement said.

"Traffic will be heavier during severe weather this winter, particularly in areas with important war work, and traffic blockades, semi-blind driving and serious skid-wrecks must be prevented by practical means."

Drivers are urged to slow down gradually on icy streets, to maintain plenty of stopping distance between their cars and the cars ahead.

William E. Holler, general sales manager for the Chevrolet division of General Motors, calls the automobile mechanic the first line of defense in America's campaign to keep its vital transportation system at peak efficiency for the war.

"America is now one vast assembly line," Holler says, "geared to but one objective—the winning of this war. Cars and trucks link man power, materials, manufacture and mass output. And cars and trucks are only as good as the service they get.

"The automobile mechanic always has been an essential civilian, but in wartime the importance of his contribution to our national structure is heightened by the necessity for the preservation of our transportation system.

"The greatest highway network in the world is valueless unless it carry vital war equipment toward our world-wide fronts. The greatest number of cars and trucks of any country in the world, or of all other countries combined, cannot win the war unless they are working to win the war. And only the service man can keep those cars and trucks operating for victory."

"I can do my housework in no time"

"I'm getting a job to help win the war."

The Bible

NOT ONLY has the Bible been a best seller for centuries, as the late James O'Donnell Bennett points out in his article which is reproduced in part on this page, but it has always been a favored subject of artists who specialized in illuminated manuscripts.

Among the many old manuscripts in the rare book room of the University of Chicago's Harper library are the gospels, pages of which are reproduced on this page. Another famous rarity is the McCormick New Testament, a Byzantine masterpiece originally in the possession of Michael VIII. Paleologus, emperor of the last Byzantine dynasty, about 1265. The original has been copied in accurate color reproductions and bound into a three-volume set edited by Prof. Edgar J. Goodspeed.

At right are two pages from the Chrysostom gospels, so named for the school to which the manuscript belonged in [illegible]. The manuscript is dated about [illegible] and contains the four gospels in Greek. The left-hand page depicts the apostle John in his cave on the island of Patmos, writing his gospel. The right-hand page contains the headpiece and the beginning of the gospel itself.

Best Seller of the Ages

The accompanying text is an excerpt from an article written by the late James O'Donnell Bennett, famous Tribune reporter and author, as part of a series that appeared in The Tribune under the title "Best Sellers of the Ages." The series later was collected in a volume, "Much Loved Books."

By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT

THIS FIRST little sketch is about the Bible, which is the premier best seller of Christendom, and has been ever since John Gutenberg first put it into type more than four and a half centuries ago. In 1918, the most recent of its normal years, the American Bible society issued 6,040,707 "volumes of Scripture." But theologians say that we average folk are reading the Bible less than our fathers did. Why is this so? It is a good book, colorful, stimulating, a masterpiece—in the King James version—of English style, full of precept extraordinarily applicable to today, and, notwithstanding all its railing, its incoherences and contradictions, and its occasional tediousness, it is a much finer, more vital thing than a superstitition, a bludgeon, or a sanctified bore. Let us consider.

Two small brothers are wrangling as small brothers, if they be sound and active, ever will. One asserts; the other denies. The first repeats his assertion—some grandiose bit of boyishness which petulance has now reduced to mere mouthing; the second squawks, "O, you're a fool!"

A glow of beatific priggishness envelops the accused and he replies: "But whosoever shall say Thou fool shall be in danger of hell fire. Matthew five, twenty-two."

Smug little imp, no longer little and now grown whimsical, I love thee well, but that day I quailed before thee, as thou meantest I should, and waited sick, weary hours for the fire to consume me.

That is one way not to read the Bible, nor to let it be read. 'Tis to put a bludgeon into the hands of a little child.

Five and thirty years go by.

I am sitting in the presence of an aged rabbi [Dr. Emil Gustav Hirsch, for 43 years rabbi of Sinai congregation, Chicago], soft-voiced, slow-spoken, venerable, but young in thought and sympathies. Liberal he calls himself; some call him radical. An open book lies before him. It is that book which Christians call the Bible, but which to people of his faith is known as the Holy Scriptures. You may remember that the word bible is not found in the Bible proper, nor were the collected writings now known to Christendom as the Bible called the Bible until St. Clement so called them about the year 170 of our era, altho formerly it was said that St. Chrysostom (John the Golden Mouthed) in the fourth century first used the word in the sense we use it. (Continued on page six.)

The "FORTS" Fight 'Em All!

This was written before the author went to Africa as a correspondent assigned to the American invasion troops. His dispatches from that scene of operations have appeared in The Daily Tribune.

By JOHN THOMPSON

Somewhere in England.

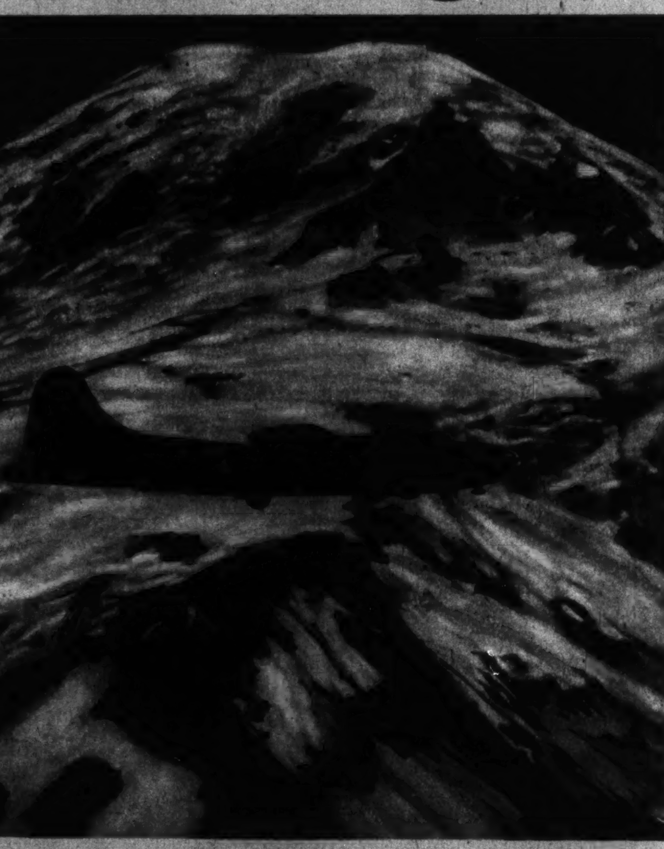
IN THE EARLY morning light the men were piling into their Flying Fortresses ready for the raid on St. Omer, France, Oct. 2. Capt. Aquilla B. Hughes Jr., tall, rangy blond from Center, Tex., who wasn't flying that day, came over to talk to the tail gunner of another plane.

Now, the tail gunner has a vital position—and a lonely one. In a half kneeling and squatting posture in the funnel-like end of the "Fort" he remains for hours on a combat mission, protecting the rear from attack by enemy fighters. Captain Hughes had a particular interest in this gunner, whose name cannot be used. He was tail gunner on the cannon-blasted ship Captain Hughes brought safely back to the home airdrome after an earlier raid. Now the gunner was going out again in another ship, and Captain Hughes had come over to give him advice on what he might expect to encounter. They talked for a few minutes, then Captain Hughes said, "Now, take care of yourself."

"Hell, captain," replied the sergeant gunner, a Pennsylvania boy, "I'm tired of this Hollywood war. I hope the so and so's come after us. I'm going to get me some."

Several hours later, his plane back after another successful raid, they carried the gunner off on a stretcher with severe head wounds and slugs in his shoulder. His life had been saved by the first aid of the bombardier, Lieut. Kermit Beahan of Houston, Tex. Only 20 rounds were found in the guns which left the drome with 1,100. And the sergeant, still conscious, was cursing his luck at not getting "more" Jerries. He had shot down five Focke-Wulf 190s, a record for any gunner.

The sergeant is fretting in a hospital but will soon be out and back to his guns. His experience is cited not to do special honor to him but as a typical indication of the spirit and guts of all the men who are flying the Fortresses on raids over occupied Europe and the men who do the less glamorous but equally important work on the ground before any plane flies.



A Flying Fortress during test flight near Mount Rainier, Washington.

Such as Corp. Julius Goldblatt, 28 years old, Jacksonville, Fla., a bomb handler. On a pitch-black night while loading a "Fort" with 10 500-pound bombs he heard the spring of the tail fuse of one bomb still on the loading trailer pop back against the fin, thus arming the bomb. There were seven other men close by, as well as the valuable ship and nine other high-explosive bombs.

• • •

Corporal Goldblatt had only a few seconds to make up his mind before the bomb would explode. He could run for it or—— Without a moment's hesitation he raced to the bomb, carefully unscrewed the fuse, and hurled it far across the runway away from the plane, where it detonated harmlessly. His mates are trying to see that he gets a medal.

There have been many decorations awarded to this particular Fortress airdrome. The men of this unit were the first Fortress warriors to go into combat in the European theater of operations, and it was on the experiences of their earlier raids that the tactics, training, and strategy of the following squadrons were based. It was these men, too, the pilots, co-pilots, bombardiers, navigators, radio operators, engineers, and gunners, and behind them the complicated arrangement of ground personnel, who fulfilled the American bomber command's belief in precision daylight bombing as opposed to the general British practice of night bombing.

Allied fighter pilots, as well as those who fly the Lancasters and other British bombers, have found it almost impossible to believe the Fortress record of enemy fighters destroyed in combat. To them the claims seem incredible—for example, 48 Nazi fighters shot down in the Lille raid and scores more probably destroyed or damaged.

Yet the bomber command intelligence officers are most careful in sifting the claims of gunners. To be credited with an enemy plane destroyed the gunner or an independent witness must have seen the plane disintegrate, fall out of control in flames, crash on the ground, or the pilot bail out. A smoking plane is not good enough, since the Germans have been known to use smoke pots as a subterfuge to escape. And from my own observation of the working of the intelligence officers after a raid, their announced total of planes destroyed is always on the ultraconservative side.

It's a thrill to walk into the officers' mess at this drome and look at the white wall just back of the commanding officer's chair. On it is emblazoned the battle record of this unit. There are the dates of each raid, the names of the objective, and after each, if there was enemy opposition, a line of swastikas to indicate the number of German planes actually destroyed. It would look as of this writing like this:

Aug. 17—Rouen, France 1
Aug. 19—Abbeville, France
Aug. 20—Amiens, France
Aug. 21—Rotterdam, Holland 1111
Aug. 24—Le Trait, France
Aug. 27—Rotterdam, Holland
Aug. 28—Albert, France
Aug. 29—Coutrai, Belgium
Sept. 5—Rouen, France
Sept. 6—Albert, France 11111 11111111
Sept. 7—Rotterdam, Holland 111111111111111
Sept. 26—Morlaix, France
Oct. 2—St. Omer, France 1111 1111111
Oct. 2—Meault, France 1
Oct. 9—Lille, France 1111111 1111

That's the record for this unit, 56 enemy fighters shot to pieces, against the loss of one Fortress and its crew of 10.

The airfield here provides about the best quarters for any of the Fortress squadrons. Others will soon be as comfortable when construction is completed, but right now this drome, as befits veterans, has better accommodations.

It was turned over intact by the RAF, and flight control still remains a function only of the RAF, which supervises every military airport in the British Isles. After a trip from the nearest town, over miles of winding country roads and lanes, the traveler suddenly comes upon this field, dispersed over a wide area of what had once been farms and fields, and bordering on the pheasant preserves of several estates. (Incidentally, these pheasants and partridges make good eating.)

Behind barbed wire barricades are permanent brick structures for headquarters. Rows on rows of camouflaged wooden barracks for the enlisted personnel, each warmed by two large stoves, and similar in many respects to cantonments at home.

Similar barracks are for officers, while each area has a brick and concrete lavatory building and a bathhouse with hot and cold running water for tubs or showers.

Two vast hangars house planes which are in for repair or other shop maintenance. With machine shops adjoining, these hangars and their ground crew of skilled technicians are prepared to carry on first and second line echelon maintenance. When a "Fort" requires heavier work it is shipped to another drome which does only such work.

Scattered about the perimeter of the landing field, out near the trees into which they blend, are the huge armored gulls, waiting their call to fly against the enemy. Because they are so heavy, and when loaded with two tons of bombs are just so much heavier, they rest on "hard stands," circles of concrete, connected by concrete paths to the runways.

While around the field the visitor notes numerous concealed gun positions. These may be either emplacements for antiaircraft defenses or prepared positions for the soldiers whose job is defense of the airport against attack. Maj. W. R. Freeman of Boston, Mass., among whose many duties is that of ground defense, has organized and trained members of the ground crews into skilled infantry combat teams, trained to repel paratroops or any other invasion force until reënforcements arrive.

Anti-aircraft positions, except for a few RAF personnel manning machine guns, are under the control of Lieut. J. A. Canham of Oakland, Cal. His battery of cannon includes 30 per cent Mexicans and men from all over the United States, including two Chicago officers, Second Lieuts. David L. Mackenzie, 925 Fullerton parkway, and Norman E. Johnson, 5424 Walton street.

• • •

At the gun mounts in the pits I also found five other Chicago gunners: Technical Sergt. Charles W. Baker, 4631 North Malden avenue, and Pvts. Edward J. Halas, 2057 North Leavitt street; Jerry Srdelich, 10404 Baltimore avenue; Louis Ferrari, 2544 Augusta street; and Sigmund S. Sowinski, 830 North Paulina street.

Other Chicagoans were encountered elsewhere in other branches of the services so necessary to keep the planes flying. Quartermaster supply was being handled by two first cousins, Lieuts. William H. Moloney, 27, 620 Forest avenue, Wilmette, and George M. O'Brien, 25, 319 Central street, Wilmette, both graduates of Northwestern university.

A University of Chicago alumnus, Lieut. Robert Leibler, 24, 560 Aldine avenue, is the base photographic officer for this Fortress unit. With a staff of 11 men, he supervises the all-important work of seeing that photographs are made of each target during the actual bombing.

With the big 75-pound reconnaissance camera, mounted on a movable carriage, Lieutenant Leibler went along on three raids. Now the action of the camera is automatic. All he does is install one in each ship which is to carry a camera, and the bombardier turns it on when he wants a picture taken.

Once the planes are back at the base, the films are rushed to Leibler's laboratory, where prints are turned out quickly. These reveal better than any human reckoning just how accurate was the bombing.

All the energies of every man at the drome are of course pointed toward the next raid. But there may be many days in between because of inclement weather. What do the men do then?

Those working on maintenance and the never-ending job of supply continue with their usual work. There may be planes to patch up for the next mission, or any of a million and one jobs so necessary to maintaining an aerial combat team ready for action.

Lectures are held for pilots, navigators, and bombardiers, while the gunners go to class, too. Weather permitting over England, the "Forts" often go on tactical hops for training in cross-country flying. Or if there is nothing to do in the line of their job you may find card games, an occasional crap table, some men shooting pool, others playing pingpong, still others reading or writing letters. And in the evening after mess the usual "bull sessions" of shop talk over a drink. While, as at every camp, the enlisted men, if they can get passes, tour into the nearest town for movies, pub crawling, or a date or a dance with the local beauties. Not that the officers are averse to this pastime, either, but they usually manage to arrange a dance at the drome every so often, or, if lucky, run up to London for a week-end.

But now the time is approaching for another raid. We'll try to give you a little insight into the preparation. We can't tell you very much, for security reasons, but this should give you a rough idea.

In the operations room, where two wall-size blackboards show the condition and availability of every plane, weather reports indicate that conditions over northern France—we'll say—will probably be suitable the next morning. And it looks as if the weather was going to hold off long enough over England to let the Forts take off and return. But then, again, the weather may change abruptly in these climes.

Word has gone out to the crews that there will probably be a morning mission. All night the bomb handlers, working usually in inky blackness, trundle the huge bombs out to the planes on carriers. It's dangerous work, fusing high-explosive and incendiary bombs in the darkness, then fitting them into the hoists for raising into the bomb bays.

• • •

Armorers are busy examining all guns and ammunition. Every maintenance crew has checked over all parts of the ship, and the pilot and co-pilot go out to make their own check.

Late at night word comes down finally from headquarters informing operations that the target will be No. so-and-so. They look up the number in their files, then pull out all the accumulated data on this particular target.

The bombardiers take pictures of the target for close scrutiny until they know every landmark by heart. Meanwhile navigators are plotting the best approach and estimating the fuel load needed for the run in and out.

By morning the crews are ready for briefing by intelligence officers. Intelligence has behind it all of the experience and knowledge of the British, plus information which has been coming in day by day. This forms the basis of the information which is given each crew, how much fighter opposition they can expect, probable locations of anti-aircraft batteries, presence of any convoys in the channel, and other pertinent information. Also they are told where they will rendezvous with the fighter escort.

Zero hour had been set, but some bad weather moved in and it was moved up later in the morning. Every one has breakfast and checks over his equipment to see that he has all the proper warm clothing, oxygen mask, and other necessary items. Then just before takeoff time the crews are given a last-minute briefing by intelligence on the basis of latest reports.

It's time to go. All of the engines have been warmed off. Like some prehistoric winged monsters, the huge Fortresses lumber in line out to the starting runway. In the lead plane a major or perhaps even the commanding officer watches the control tower for the signal. He gets it—a green light—opens his four motors, the tail lifts as he moves off down the runway, and with a roar the green gull is in the air.

The planes circle the airdrome

BORED? Be Careful!

(Tribune Studio photo.)

Fortunately, most girls are too smart to fall for the sophistication role

By MAUREEN DALY
(Author of "Seventeenth Summer.")

THIS IS FOR girls only. It's for girls with long hair and short skirts, all the attributes of smoothness and smartness and what makes Annie run. It is for you only because you are in a class by yourself. No one else could go round in skirts above her knees, jackets well below hip level, hair in pigtails, and wear lipstick and be treated as an adult and get away with it. But you can. You make your own rules.

• • •

If you want to wear a long sweater and plaid skirt and a pink curl of feather pinned in your hair, that's fine. No one will argue with you. In fact, they will argue for you—you're in the groove. If you want to wear flat moccasins, no stockings, and an ankle bracelet, you're right in there pitching and no one will ask any questions. And if you want to trim your hat with a raccoon tail, twist your wrists with bracelets of macaroni rings, and wear trick gold earrings with a sweater, skirt, and sweat socks, go right ahead. You are really in a class by yourself—but don't let it go to your head. This is for girls only—and also for only some girls.

Most high school girls are wonderful—their shiny-clean hair, cute clothes, and general smoothness are a shot in the arm any afternoon. It's the freshness that does it. Enthusiasm is supposed to be one of the characteristics of growing up. And most girls have it.

But what about those sadder Susies who take the whole thing too seriously, who have this smoothness business on their minds all the time till it's become a phobia—how about that? They aren't cooking with gas or anything like that—they're just plain overdone! Their glamor and supersolid sending have got them to the saturation point and they've had enough. They're bored. So they've put on the ultrasophistication act.

The procedure is simple. They just slip everything into a quick classification and leave it there. All the girls who aren't strictly glamor gals are droops, any boy off the beam is a gone cookie from the word go, and any one whose clothes aren't definitely zoot-suitable might as well go home and put his head in a jug as try to crack thru the bored defense line of the girl who has gone super-Lamar on us. For them life in general is just plain stuffy.

In school they regard the teacher with a polite indifference, wondering what she ever did for fun when she was young, if anything; refuse to become interested in bulletin boards or outside exhibits that the teacher may have worked on to stimulate enthusiasm for the course, and struggle thru class suppressing weary mental yawns.

And these glamor-goners carry the same pose outside school. It takes all the tolerance and bored energy that some of the long-haired ladies can muster to ride in buses and street cars with the great working public who don't understand the essentialness of right clothes, long, shiny finger nails, and all the other complexities of smoothness. And they let the world know by the expressions on their faces that they are above all humdrum dullness of ordinary people—that life without a jive jacket must be too utterly boring.

Occasionally some of these gilded Tillies are found working in a store after school or on Saturdays. You can spot them by their attitude there, too. They act as if their very presence is a treat to the public and as if there is no point in making any display of effort, because tomorrow they'll be back in school anyway. The motto of these beautiful-but-boreds seems to be: The customer is always a dope; don't bother. No smiling, no exhilaration, no desire to make a sale. Just a constant pose of boredom. If the customer is past voting age, and doesn't look as if she knows about Harry James; high school hangouts, and Shetland sweaters—then why bother?

• • •

And if they are out shopping themselves and are on the buying side of the counter the attiture is usually the same. The salesgirl doesn't know anything about clothes, just sells them; so why grant her the concession of politeness or friendliness? And try one of these ultra-smoothies even in the corner drugstore. She can order a small coke with the same air of bored savoir faire that she could ask for pink champagne and a side order of broiled peacock tongues with chopped pecans.

But fortunately most high school girls are too smart to fall for themselves in the sophistication rôle. They would miss too much fun, lose too many friends, and get too genuinly bored if they did. Enthusiasm for everything makes everything twice as much fun. So if you've let this glamor stuff get you, if you've gone too, too completely Veronica Lake—just shake your hair out of your eyes and see what you've been missing!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD

WITH HEDDA HOPPER

Merry Christmas! Dimmed Out but Sincere

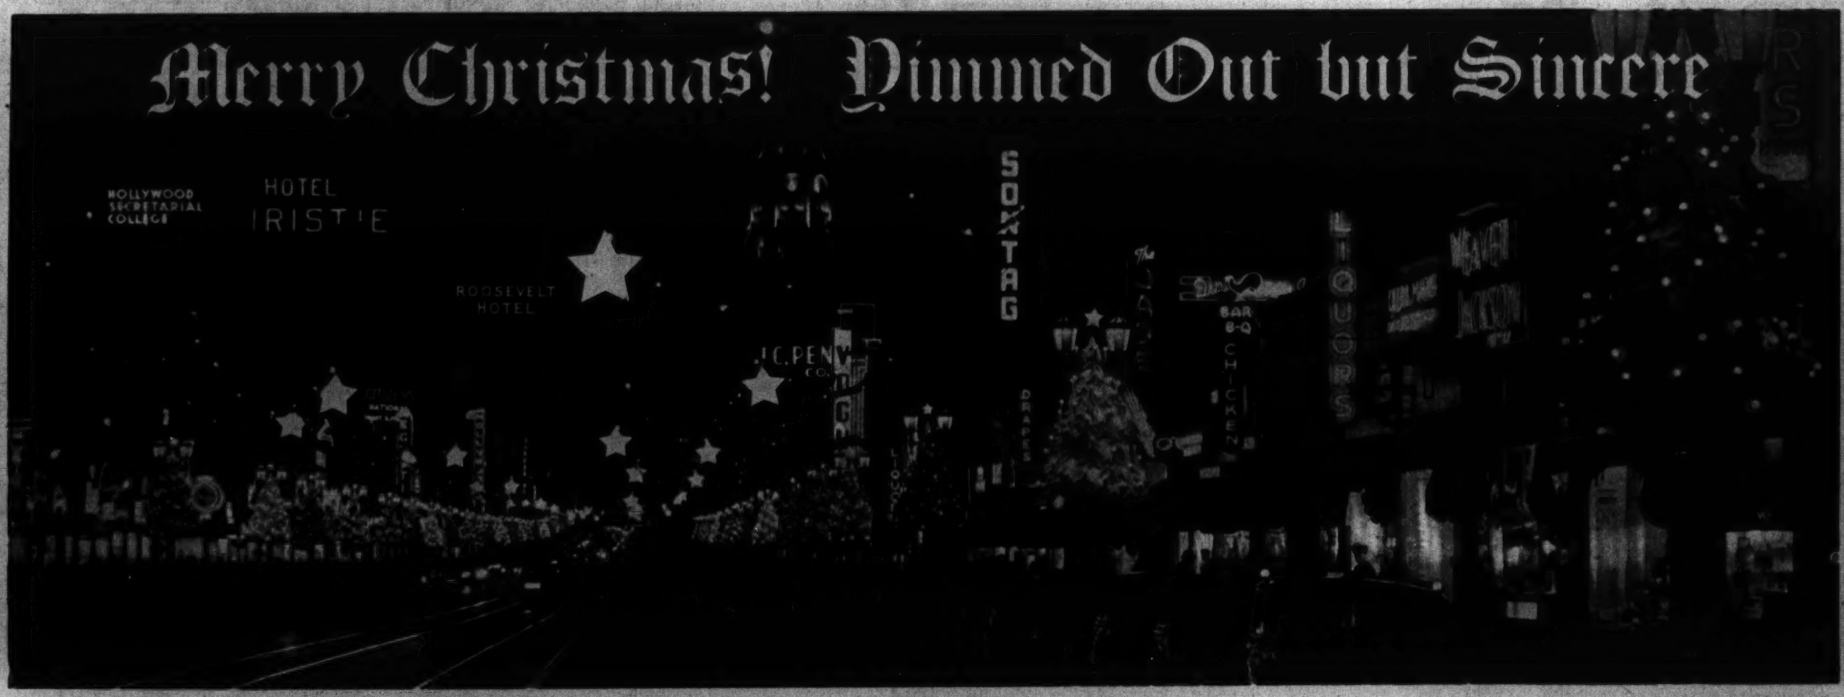
Hollywood boulevard's 1942 decorations don't use up war materials.



Until war dimmed the lights and took away the metal Christmas trees the boulevard looked like this at Christmas time.

The late Tom Mix and Tony used to head the Santa Claus parade.

(Copyright: 1942: The Chicago Tribune.)

Hollywood.

THIS CHRISTMAS season finds Hollywood boulevard looking like a ghost town compared with our brilliantly lighted Santa Claus lane of previous years. What with wartime regulations and dim-out rules, Hollywood's gay white way is dark and murky as Dugan's back alley. The brightly lighted metal Christmas trees which have draped the street lamps for the last few years (ever since they were adopted to save our supply of evergreens) have now been donated to the scrap metal drive, and huge papier-maché figures of Santa Claus have been put up all along the boulevard to preserve the spirit of Christmas and keep the children happy.

But our real Santa Claus, who for the last 12 years has ridden up and down the boulevard each evening for a month before Christmas in a beautiful red and gold sleigh with reindeer, all mounted on a huge float, won't be with us this year, 'cause he's too busy on a war job to ride anything but his trusty bicycle that takes him to work.

This bit of pageantry, which was originally cooked up by the Hollywood merchants as a huge publicity stunt to get the crowds onto the boulevard and into a buying mood, turned into one of our most fabulous and beloved traditions. Mammas, papas, and children from miles around would line up along the curbs each night to watch it, and for a little while at least everybody would believe in Santa Claus again.

• • •

It started each year with a typical Hollywood "opening" the night after Thanksgiving. The stores would keep open that night and every night thereafter till Christmas. A parade which took an hour to pass would form at one end of Hollywood boulevard, move slowly to the other end and back again. Tom Mix, as grand marshal, and his horse Tony, used to lead it in the old days. Since Tom's death Leo Carrillo, who's always been one of our greatest showmen, has taken over. He always had a truck precede him, throwing back a dazzling white spotlight on him and his horse, and even had neon lights on his palomino horse's bridle and saddle (with a battery concealed in the saddlebag). I wonder what Leo is going to do this year. He loves a parade above all things, and since there's no big parade to lead, I wish he'd just put some dimmers on his horse's lights and parade himself down the boulevard.

Santa and his guests: Dorothy Lamour, Rudy Vallee, and the late John Barrymore.

Following the leader would be bands galore, drum majorettes, floats filled with movie stars; some of the more energetic ones would even hoof it. And bringing up the rear would be Santa Claus in his sleigh, with shimmering, diamond-bright artificial snow being blown about by a wind machine ahead, and always two or three guests riding with him. To an accompaniment of "Jingle Bells" and "Holy Night," Santa would call greetings thru his megaphone and wave to the children of all ages lined along the curb, and introduce his guests, who in turn would wave and smile. Hollywood was truly "one big happy family" on that night.

The parade, of course, was only for the opening night. But Santa Claus, with his sleigh and reindeer and guests of honor, kept on riding every evening until on Christmas eve he waved good-by to his friends for another year.

So as Christmas approaches again these heart-warming memories of brighter seasons gave me a fit of nostalgia, and I thought the best person to do a bit of reminiscing with would be Santa Claus—and I was right. It's William McInnis who's been our official Santa here for the last 10 years. Thruout the year he'd work at various studios as an actor, but he says this was the most important part he ever played. He loves it, and has no end of amusing stories about the various stars who've ridden with him.

Mary Pickford, of course, rode as Santa's first guest when the parade was originated. And Pat O'Brien has been an old reliable. He's ridden numerous times, bringing his two youngsters, Mavourneen and Sean—but I doubt if they enjoyed it any more than their dad, who would grin and wave at the exuberant fans, with good old sentimental Irish tears trickling out the corners of his eyes.

• • •

I've had the honor of being Santa's guest myself a couple of times, and I never realized just what this celebration means to the children until I took that first ride several years ago and saw for myself the light and wonder in all those upturned faces. It does something to you—I don't care how sophisticated you may think you are.

I rode again in 1939, with Rudy Vallee, my son Bill and his fiancée, Jane Gilbert (to whom he's now happily married). In fact, I announced Bill's and Jane's engagement that night over Santa's loud-speaker. We all sang "Jingle Bells" at the top of our lungs, and Rudy said to me, "Hedda, I haven't even thought of the words to this song for years—but all this brings them right back!" Rudy outdid himself that night by making up some new jingles as he went along, too, and how the kids loved it!

One year Santa decided to give the parade that bizarre touch everybody expects in Hollywood, so he invited a dozen Earl Carroll beauties to ride with him. The girls turned up swathed in warm furs and sables, which they removed when the ride got under way and dazzled the crowd with their bright smiles and few spangles. But the weather man wasn't on the job that night. It happened to be the coldest night of the year, and the poor girls were so blue and stiff by the time they finished the trip that they had to be practically carried down from the sleigh.

Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable rode with Santa the day after they were married, and he waxed romantic as he introduced them, predicting that here was one marriage, starting off with Christmas spirit, which was sure to last. Which shows that even Santa can make a mistake!

One of Hollywood's fondest memories concerns an evening when Boris Karloff, our A1 monster, made his ride. Just as he was dismounting from the sleigh afterward a woman escorting 30 little orphans came up and explained that they were terribly disappointed over arriving just too late to see the parade, and asked if he would speak to them. Boris not only spoke to them but spent an hour telling them Christmas stories, and then wrote down all their names. And when Christmas morning rolled around there were presents in every child's stocking, with cards thanking them for the pleasure they had given Boris! Don't try to tell any of those kids that Boris Karloff is anybody to strike terror into your soul.

• • •

Walt Disney rides each year, and once brought along the seven little dwarfs of "Snow White," which made the youngsters squeal with delight. Joe E. Brown harked back to his acrobatic days one time and turned somersaults all over the place for them. The Andrews sisters once gave things a novel touch by singing "Jingle Bells" in boogie-woogie tempo.

Besides the well known stars, Santa has always included among his guests a few young newcomers to pictures—which not only adds youth and beauty to the parade but gives the girls some publicity that often helps them along at the studio. Many of our top glamor gals, including Joan Crawford, Olivia De Haviland, and Ginger Rogers, have ridden the route in their more obscure days, and give Santa credit for at least a part of their start toward being known.

One year "Idaho Bill" Pearson, famous stagecoach driver and one of our most colorful western personalities (looked exactly like Buffalo Bill), promised to drive an old-fashioned stagecoach in a special parade, with cowboys and Indians. The coach failed to show up at the last minute, but Idaho Bill wasn't going to let anything like that stop him. He got in touch with Jack Benny and asked to borrow a dog catcher's wagon which Jack was using in a certain picture at the time. Jack sent it over posthaste, and I'll be darned if Idaho Bill didn't hitch his team to that thing and drive down the boulevard, waving and smiling in as grand a manner as if he'd been driving Cinderella's coach of gold.

Yes, we have our traditions—humorous, tender, and fantastic—when Christmas comes along, just as every other city has. And while we're putting aside the usual celebrations this year in favor of the all-out war effort, we have our memories of gayer days and brighter nights. And one fine Christmas again we'll be welcoming Santa Claus back to Hollywood boulevard—when victory is won and "peace on earth, good will toward men" is at last a universal truth.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

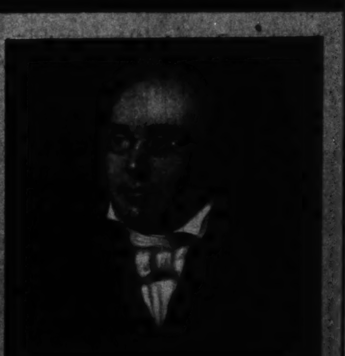
● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.



JOSEPH STORY, celebrated jurist and writer of commentaries on the law, was born in Marblehead, Mass., Sept. 18, 1779, the eldest of a family of 11 children. He enrolled as a student at Harvard in 1795 and was graduated with the second highest standing of his class in 1798.

Returning to his native town, he began the study of law in the office of Samuel Sewell, a congressman, who later became chief justice of the Supreme court of Massachusetts. On the appointment of Sewell to a judgeship Story entered the law office of Samuel Putnam in Salem, Mass., to continue his study. In 1801 he was admitted to the bar and opened his own office in Salem. His ability as an orator, however, had been recognized in the meantime, for it is recorded that he delivered a eulogy on the death of Washington while still a resident of Marblehead.

In 1805 and 1806, and again in 1807, he represented Salem in the state legislature. In the autumn of 1808 he was elected to the national house of representatives, but the following year he refused to stand for reëlection, his duties in congress restricting too greatly his devotion to the law. As soon as he had left congress, however, he was reëlected to the state legislature.

On Nov. 18, 1811, shortly after he had passed his 32d birthday, Story was appointed an associate justice of the United States Supreme court. The salary of an associate justice at that time was $3,500 a year, or approximately half of what Story had been earning at law.

It was not long after Story's appointment that the Supreme court began to bring into plain view the powers that the Constitution had given it over state courts and state legislation. The principal place in this important work has been allotted by historians to Chief Justice John Marshall, but Story is credited with a very important share in that remarkable series of decisions and opinions from 1812 to 1832 by which the work was achieved. Further, he built up the department of admiralty law of the United States courts, devoted a great deal of his time and energy to equity jurisprudence, and rendered invaluable services to the department of patent laws. In all decisions and opinions in which he participated his background of scholarship shone, as also did his talent for logical reasoning.

In August, 1813, he delivered a eulogy in Salem at the burial of Capt. James Lawrence, who had lost his life in the battle between the Chesapeake and the Shannon. An officer of two of Salem's leading banks, he was elected in 1819 to the board of overseers of Harvard. In that same year he attracted attention by his vigorous charges to grand juries, denouncing the slave trade. Altho he made it the rule as a Supreme court justice to avoid active participation in politics, he made one exception to this when, also in 1819, he appeared at a town meeting in Salem and spoke vehemently against the Missouri compromise.

In 1820 Story was a member of the Massachusetts convention called to revise the state constitution. Nine years later he became a professor of law at Harvard, a position which he held, along with his justiceship, until his death in Cambridge, Mass., on Sept. 10, 1845.

Story's writings number many volumes. Works of profound learning, a number of them still remain standard treatises on the subjects that they cover.

Prize Winning Operetta On Air Again

"AMERICA LOVES A MELODY," the operetta by Ross Hastings which won the W-G-N Great American Operetta quest last spring, will be broadcast again next Saturday night between 8 and 9 on the W-G-N and Mutual program, Chicago Theater of the Air. Miss Marion Claire and Thomas L. Thomas will sing the leading rôles.

Hastings' operetta was first presented on April 11, 1942, at the Civic Opera house. Its selection as the grand prize winner brought the 27-year-old Los Angeles composer a first prize of $5,000 in the $10,500 contest.

"America Loves a Melody" was one of 2,232 operettas entered in the contest from 46 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada. The quest was first announced on Nov. 1, 1941, by Col. Robert R. McCormick, because few worth-while American operettas have been written. All but four of the 32 operettas presented on the Theater of the Air schedule were based on themes depicting life in foreign countries or mythical kingdoms.

Judges for the contest were announced as Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, Sigmund Romberg, Oscar Straus, Emmerich Kalman, the late Dr. Frederick Stock, Edwin MacArthur, John Golden, Oscar Hammerstein, and B. G. (Buddy) De Sylva. The judges were to act as an advisory board. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, also served on the board.

The quest was indorsed by the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers and by many musical leaders, including Dr. Edgar Nelson, president of the Chicago Conservatory of Music; Mrs. James G. Shakman, president of the Chicago Women's Symphony orchestra; Hans Lange, assistant conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Izler Solomon, conductor of the Illinois Symphony and Chicago Women's Symphony; Niccolai Malko, conductor and teacher, and Rudolph Ganz, pianist, composer, and teacher.

ROSS HASTINGS

THOMAS L. THOMAS

Three operettas were selected by the judges for presentation on the Theater of the Air on March 14, 21, and 28 of 1942. The listeners were asked to hear these operettas and vote for the one they liked best, giving their reasons in 50 words or less. For doing this the public was eligible to take part in a separate $2,500 contest with $1,000 as top prize. The three operettas chosen were "The Gandy Dancer," by Percy Faith and Jim Pease; "The Lead Soldier," by Lee Armentrout and Fenton Lee, and Hastings' "America Loves a Melody."

The public voted for Hastings' operetta, and it was broadcast from the Civic Opera house before an enthusiastic audience, with Miss Claire and Allan Jones singing the leading rôles. The program was dedicated to those heroes of the United States armed forces who fought at Bataan, and the relatives of the men from the famous Maywood tank corps of the Illinois National Guard were present at the broadcast to hear Colonel McCormick say, "We're going back to Bataan."

Winning Composer Ross Hastings worked with his red-haired wife, Louise, in writing the operetta. Mrs. Hastings, a shorthand expert, set down the ideas and dialog, transcribing them amidst tending to her two children—daughter, Verdi, aged 3, named after Ross' favorite opera composer, and son, Stephen, named for Stephen Foster Collins, whom Hastings regards as America's greatest composer.

Hastings is the son of the late Dr. Ray Hastings, a former Chicago organist. Dr. Hastings supervised the boy's piano instruction from the time he was 7 and later groomed him in counterpoint, canon, and fugue. Ross became an errand boy at the Los Angeles Philharmonic Auditorium, where his father played and where all important concerts were given. Here he heard the world's greatest musical performers free, encouraged in his composing by Carlo Peroni, San Carlo conductor and a friend of his father. He has written many songs, three sonatas, three concertos, and four symphonies.

PERFECT POEMS

The Tribune each Sunday reprints in the Graphic Section a poem selected from the works of all writers whose writing has survived the test of years.

A VISIT FROM ST. NICHOLAS

By CLEMENT C. MOORE

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all thru the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads;
And mamma in her kerchief, and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap,—
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.
The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow
Gave a luster of midday to objects below;
When what to my wondering eyes should appear
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver, so lively and quick
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled and shouted and called them by name:
"Now Dasher; now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet; on, Cupid; on, Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall!
Now dash away, dash away, dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky,
So up to the housetop the coursers they flew,
With the sleigh full of toys,—and St. Nicholas, too.
And then in a twinkling I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head, and turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.
His eyes how they twinkled! his dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow.
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath.
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook, when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly.
He was chubby and plump,—a right jolly old elf;
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself.
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the stockings, then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night!"

GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER Presents Ge

1 Charles Strickland (George Sanders) has just deserted his wife and children in London to seek a career as an artist in Paris. A sidewalk cafe serves as his studio, and here he encounters Geoffrey Wolfe (Herbert Marshall), a family friend, who has followed him to urge him to return.

2 The painter prefers a life of poverty in Paris. Alone and ill, he is befriended by Blanche Stroeve (Doris Dudley), wife of another painter who has recognized his genius. She nurses him back to health, falls desperately in love with him.

3 Ungratefully, Strickland attacks Blanche's husband (Steve Geray) when he is ordered from the house. Blanche announces she will go with him, but he replies: "I don't want love. I haven't time for it. Women can do nothing but love."

WOMAN'S SYMPHONY

(Captions for this picture story were written by Claudia Cassidy, music critic of The Tribune.)

1 Now in the midst of its 17th season, the Woman's Symphony orchestra of 80 players rehearses under its new conductor, Russian-born Nicolai Malko. Trained at the St. Petersburg conservatory, a pupil of Rimsky-Korsakoff, Glazounoff, and other famous musicians, Mr. Malko was at one time conductor of the Leningrad Philharmonic symphony and later of the Danish Philharmonic symphony in Copenhagen.

2 "Three little girls with flutes are we" might easily be the theme song of, left to right, Jane Ricketts (with a piccolo in her lap), Marion Bridgeman, and Caroline Solfronk. Miss Solfronk is first flutist. She also is a crack rifle shot and haunts shooting galleries. Ages of players range from late teens to about 45.

4 Time was when leading conductors did not want women in their orchestras. World War II. stopped that. Alice Lawrence, cellist, is now a member of the Chicago Symphony, but she retains her original job with the Woman's Symphony.

5 French horns are tricky instruments, but the Woman's Sympho is well equipped to handle them; witness (in the usual order) Dorothy Kaplan, Mildred Mendelsohn, Helen May, Elsie Blank, and Ju Woelfle.

7 Percussions awaiting their cue—Ruth Buehler Wencel of the poised cymbals and Emma Nilson at the kettledrums. Miss Nilson also is the head of the percussion section. She is a talented and versatile workman.

8 Two talented principals—Lill Poenisch, first clarinet and ass ciate conductor of the orchestra, an young Janet Reed, second trump During the summer Miss Poenisch of directs a small orchestra in free co certs at the city parks.

"THE GIFT FOR GIVING"

MOST folks have a gift for saying things just right, when it comes to passing out good wishes at this season of the year.

But when it comes to the gift for giving, anybody might have trouble there.

Anybody can pick the wrong necktie or pair of socks for dad . . .

Or send brother Joe, in the Army, some gadget he doesn't need . . .

Or buy grandpa a pocketknife that'll only collect dust in the bureau drawer with the one Aunt Millie gave him several years ago.

But there's one sure way to touch a mighty soft spot in any man's heart.

Give him a box of really fine cigars for Christmas . . . say Dutch Masters, for instance. Reckoned in the long hours of rich pleasure they give him, the cost to the giver is only a pittance.

That is what you call "the gift for giving."

"THE MOON AND SIXPENCE"

Eventually Strickland arrives at Tahiti, where he is welcomed by the natives and introduced to their rituals. The colorful atmosphere and the picturesque people inspire him at the easel.

6 He is befriended by Tiare Johnson (Florence Bates), proprietor of the island's hotel, and thru her meets a lovely native, Ata (Elena Verdugo), whose devotion and simple love touch him deeply.

7 He marries Ata, and for the first time his restless soul finds contentment and peace. They have a child, and for a time their life is idyllic. He works furiously, producing many fine paintings.

8 He falls ill, and a doctor tells him he soon will die. Strickland urges Ata to leave with their child, but she pleads to remain, and with fever racing the painter works at his masterpieces until his death.

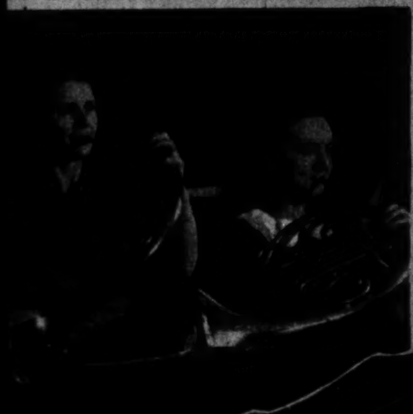
3 A pretty tuba player is certainly something out of this orchestral world. Anne Fritzel demonstrates that the ungainly instrument can be tamed.



6 Concertmaster Evelyn Davis draws a long bow. Formerly a child prodigy, pupil of Leopold Auer, Miss Davis made her debut at 15 at New York's Carnegie hall. Now married to a Chicago violinist, she has two children.

9 Diligence in the bass section, exemplified by Jean Mix, Jean Reicherts, and Estelle Swigart. This devotion is typical of the orchestra. When Margaret Cree, a violinist, left to play with the Indianapolis orchestra, her mother, Winifred Cree, kept the family name on the roster by continuing as violist.

THE BIBLE

In the Greek, from which Clement took the word, it meant merely "little books," and the Greeks in their turn got it from biblos (book), and biblos came from byblus (papyrus), on which books were written.

The forefinger of the old rabbi's brown right hand rested on a passage which, in the English translation of the Bible that was finished in 1611 by the commission of 47 theologians appointed by James I. and Bancroft, archbishop of Canterbury, would be designated as the second verse of the fourth chapter of Genesis.

Musingly he read:

"'And she again bare his brother Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.'"

Lifting his eyes from the page, he seemed as one looking afar, and for a little while silence rested upon him. Then thus he spake:

"The story of Cain and Abel, if taken as the record of individual deeds, lacks not pathos and dramatic power. The picture is a solemn one—the whole earth counting but four human beings, yet among those the spirit of envy has taken lodgment. The craftier of two brothers slays the weaker."

His eyes again sought the page:

"'And I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth; and it shall come to pass that every one that findeth me shall slay me.'"

A quiet definiteness came into his musing tone. The reader became the expounder.

"Of whom, my son, could Cain have been afraid? There were no others on earth save himself, his feeble father, and his grief-bowed mother." Then the rabbi touched on the flight into the land of Nod, which implied population outside of Eden, and, summing up what things are naive and contradictory and incredible in the narrative, he remarked, his sad eyes twinkling a little: "To this we come if we pervert the footprints of humanity's development into notes of personal conversations. But whatever the pathos of the story if taken as a chronicle of the far-off days of the beginning, we know today that Cain and Abel are not personal names. They stand as personified representatives of great cultural movements. This chapter of Genesis is a paragraph in the history of civilization. We have passed beyond the literal, I hope, and we know now that these scriptural narratives were composite documents, unfolding not the history of single families but of great cultural movements. Abel stands for pastoral institutions and habits; Cain typifies agriculture. 'And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.' Here is the beginning of the unending conflict between one civilization and another. The herdsman gives way to the tiller. The nomad loses his right to consideration and the sedentary farmer comes into his own. In these senses we must read the stories of old if we would learn not merely how they rose but what they token. The lowest stage of human development is 'kill,' and of that stage this chapter is an epitome. Pastoral civilization had to pass away when man discovered that to clothe and feed himself he had other resources than his flocks, other resources less capricious. And when man began to see this the shepherd was doomed and a new phase of human progress sprang into view. This is the meaning of the murder Cain did. It is victorious agriculture. We cannot arrest the onward sweep of development, cruel tho its processes are. But one thing we can do! We can remember—we ought to remember—that we are our brother's keeper. That responsibility to God for his brother Cain insolently denied. You see, my son, in how many directions this old legend leads us and how the story, if correctly read, is full of strong, sweet accents."

Hammered silver cover of the Vardon manuscript (pictured in color at the top of page one of this section). It is contemporary with the manuscript, being dated 1881.

Slowly he closed the book.

From that day the Bible has been a different book to me, not provocative any more of rancors, nor of that intellectual insolence which sometimes gets itself called independence, but an ingratiating book, the eager, poignant, excited—and often terribly exciting—record of man's fallibilities and aspirations, of his slow groping out of darkness toward the light, of his first crude conceptions of what is right, of his weary fashioning, as with hammer blows upon hot metal, of that doctrine of monotheism of which Father Abraham stands forth as first champion and which has done more than any other doctrine to purge the human mind of gross fantasticalities and murderous superstition and to lead it out of that slavishness which Thoreau once finely called "pagoda worship."

Such, to his heedful listener, was the counsel of the old scholar. From one to whose people the ancient writing was most sacred that listener had heard interpretation that was most human.

He had made the old book manageable.

That is the great thing. For the tragedy of this extensive collection of writings is that, until the time of men so fortunate as to have been born into our more inquisitive and less credulous age, there has been a kind of conspiracy to talk and think and pray cant about this book and to put under some horrid ban every effort to bring it to the people in a human way. The people of late times resented that—at first by displays of bitterness which were not unwholesome, later by a display of indifference which deprives them of valid entertainment and instruction and of a living part of their culture.

. . . . . .

In short, nobody can enjoy the book without abundant aids and a pretty thoro readjustment of traditional points of view.

To say to the unaided one, "Read the Bible," is like dumping a cartload of bricks at a man's feet and saying, "Here's your house."

Do you know that its chronological arrangement is most inexact and baffling?

Do you know that some of its reputed authors never touched it?

Have you ever paused to consider that, altho primitive man was making stone implements half a million years ago, the biblical account of creation cannot by any chronological juggling be made to credit the race with more than 8,000 years of existence?

Such are certain biblical baffinements.

But the allurements are endless and potent.

Do you know that it contains 20 capital specimens of what we think of as the modern short story? Do you know that an English journal once gravely urged an English statesman to read the 18th chapter of Exodus, beginning with the 13th verse, and that that passage contains a fundamental of successful statecraft and of what we call "efficiency"?

These, and not routine exegesis and pulpit thumping, are the true aids to enjoyment of the Bible.

. . . . . . . . . . .

Were the body of ethics formulated by Jesus applied by universal consent today a distracted and contentious world would be ready for work that matters. Such in potentiality is the applicability of the New Testament; such in reality it may one day be.

Turning back to the Old Testament, there are encountered hundreds upon hundreds of passages fraught with an applicability to our day far less lofty and comprehensive than the code Jesus preached, but coming home to fallible man with a directness at once very winning and very homely.

In truth the Old Testament, altho an intensely racial and in parts almost a tribal product, has come to speak with peculiar authority to the occidental world. Why? Because it was passionately concerned with human conduct—as passionately as it was concerned with the development of a rational idea of divinity. That development passed thru many grotesque and fearful stages, and it has been a sharp misfortune to mankind that some of the discreditable phases of the development of the idea got themselves accepted as its permanent definitions.

. . . . . . . . . . .

The Old Testament will not repel us average folk if we approach it as a tremendous human document dealing with people like us except that they were not tamed, as we are, by the complexities of a social code at once more spacious and more exacting than theirs was. But in essence they were like us. They had, and they explicitly recorded, their scandals that defiled the court and the temple. They had the curse of graft, against which Jesus inveighed, and they had their little ententes and greater ententes, as when Solomon of Israel and Hiram of Tyre made their agreeable political arrangements.

The passionate, hard-pressed, searching, truculent, acquisitive life they led found a voice in a tremendous literature of war songs, laments, sermons, railings—they raised railing to an art hardy and fine—love lyrics, rhapsodies, riddles, proverbs, prayers, biographies, speeches, and stories.

And stories!

Than them the Bible contains for us average pagans, feeling our way into great literature, no lure more potent. They are not forerunners but perfect specimens of what we think of as the modern short story. That form the Bible originated, and in that form it excelled.

PRIVATE FAY ON PARADE!

(William C. Fay, on leave from the Tribune sports department, writes of his army experiences in this weekly feature.)

THIS IS reporting maneuvers army style, five men to a pyramid tent, running cold water if you want to fill your bucket from the spigot behind the field kitchen:

6 a. m.—The whistle blows. You wake up. You were sleeping in g. i. long woolen underwear beneath two blankets and a thick comforter. You push nose beyond edge of comforter. Quickly you retract nose. It's cold. You grope for pants and shirt on the bag beside cot. You drag pants and shirt under covers and start wrestling.

• • •

6:15—The whistle blows. You don field jacket and line up for reveille. You exercise. You touch toes without bending knees. You duck-waddle. You double-time—"KUUMMT-NEEEEEE—DIS-MISSED!"

6:30—Time to shave (assuming this is the morning of mornings you have outgrabbed four other tent companions for the tent basin; otherwise you'll have to wait until after breakfast to shave). You fill the basin from the bucket. You try to make lather with cold water, which is somewhat like trying to make whipped cream from skim milk. You lather, trying to keep soapy water from running down neck. You start shaving, but it's rough going. Your aim is bad, because the mirror—hooked to a rope dangling from the top of the tent—revolves slowly.

6:45—You put the styptic pencil away. You crawl back under the comforter.

7—The whistle blows. You grab mess gear and line up for breakfast. The first cook slaps a fried egg into your meat can (bottom half of mess kit; resembles small, round, deep skillet). Second cook piles fried potatoes onto egg. Third cook throws bacon over potatoes. Fourth cook pitches bread on top bacon, smears jam on bread, sinks chunk of butter in jam. Fifth cook half-fills canteen cup with coffee, adds two drops condensed milk and sugar.

7:07—You sit on ground, start eating down thru jam and bread toward egg.

7:12—You reach egg.

7:14—You finish coffee, get back into line—scrub out mess kit in tub of boiling soapy water, rinse twice in steaming clear water.

• • •

7:20—You return to tent, make cot, sweep floor, brush teeth.

7:30—You get back under comforter. Next 30 minutes you watch four tentmates shave. Very amusing. Tentmate in left corner turns on portable radio. Nashville announcer advises you to lay in an extra supply of coal NOW.

8—Heigh-ho, ten below, it's off to work you go.

THERE is an interesting story behind the old-time Christmas print which appears on page one of today's Picture Section.

The story goes back to Dec. 24, 1933, when Mrs. L. N. La Croix of Elmhurst, Ill., fell in love with the print when it was originally published in The Tribune that day. Carefully she clipped and framed it.

The picture grew to be a great favorite with children who visited the La Croix home. They asked innumerable questions about it. The family prized it increasingly as the years passed.

But one day Mr. La Croix died and soon the home was broken up. The widow moved to Chicago. (She now lives at 3040 Logan boulevard.) The picture was lost somehow in the confusion of moving.

• • •

Albert Fenzel, 1928 North Richmond street, is a brother of Mrs. La Croix. He and Mrs. Fenzel and their daughters, Bernice and Lucille, had often visited the Elmhurst home, and they felt sad about the loss of the picture.

"Maybe the paper would run it again," they suggested. "Let's get up a petition and send it to The Tribune."

And so get up a petition they did. The Fenzels all signed it. Mrs. La Croix signed it. And 39 friends were glad to do likewise.

That was on Oct. 27.

The petition arrived at The Tribune and met with favorable consideration. Filling the order, however, turned out to be a bigger job than any one had suspected.

Reference to the files disclosed that the old print was entitled "Here's a Jolly Christmas Load" and had been executed by F. S. Church in 1886. But dealers in rare prints both in Chicago and New York were unable to locate the original.

Then it was decided that the famous Tribune one-shot color camera, which had worked so many photographic miracles before, should be put on the job. Reproducing a clipping from an old newspaper, even in black and white, is at best a ticklish job. This picture was in color and had a cruelly obvious fold down the center.

But the Tribune color studio staff rephotographed the old print taken from the files. The three separate negatives (one for each of the primary colors) that are an essential part of color photography were painstakingly retouched to eliminate the fold and other blemishes. From these negatives a new, fresh color print was made. It was better than the original.

Then the experts in The Tribune's roto plant took over the job. The necessary plates were made from the three retouched negatives, and after adjustments had been made with the new color print as a guide the great presses rolled off the Picture section for today's paper.

"Here's a Jolly Christmas Load," 1942 version, is presented as a tribute to the timeless spirit of Christmas down the ages.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

MERRY CHRISTMAS
BOB BECKER

Many thousands of comical pups will be given as Christmas gifts this holiday season. The cocker pictured is a red and white one named McTague's Cynthia. It's 4½ months old and is owned by Mrs. J. W. McTague, Elmhurst, Ill.

IT'S THE LAST call to buy a Christmas puppy or go shopping for presents for your dog. After visiting many shops which sell all kinds of gadgets, garments, leashes, dog toys, and other items which can be used for the comfort of the dog itself or the convenience of the owner, an owner can realize that it's fun to buy a gift for his pet.

For example, among the utilitarian gifts which both help the owner in caring for his pet and also give much comfort to the dog are comfortable beds stuffed with cedar shavings, which kill dog odor; brushes and combs, which every dog should be well acquainted with thru the activity of the thoughtful owner; warm sweaters and waterproof garments for short-haired dogs to wear on cold winter days; leashes and collars of many types; all kinds of toys which keep the canine member of the family amused; various patented liquids which are aids in keeping the pet clean; and last, but not least, a good dog book, which directly benefits a dog, because any owner who reads a well written, sensible book on grooming, feeding, and training and follows its advice becomes the owner of a well behaved, neat looking pet that one can be proud of.

• • •

One of the handiest gifts for your dog is a preparation that looks like a bar of soap. It's impregnated with pine scent. This pine-scented cake, which looks like soap but isn't, can be rubbed on a dog to kill all objectionable odor. (We use this 12 months in the year.) Another extremely useful gift, which the dog may not appreciate as much as an owner, is one of several concoctions which clean the pet's coat and skin without the use of water. Most of us owners overbathe our dogs, especially in the winter. We douse them with soap and water when we should be using a comb and brush and then some type of cleaner.

There are several of these preparations which clean without bathing the dog. One that we use with success is a sort of bubble bath. It whips into foam, is applied to the dog's coat and then wiped off. Leaves a pleasant odor on the pet, too. We have used preparations of this type on our nearly all white Sealyham. He won't get more than one real soap-and-water bath all winter. This one comes usually before Christmas when he gets his annual preholiday hair trim.

Every owner should have a good comb and brush for the family pet, and it must be used frequently to keep the animal's coat and skin in good condition.

This very alert little wire-haired terrier looks ready to move into a new home on Christmas eve. The terriers continue to be popular in this country. Very much alive, extremely amusing, and smart, they make excellent companions in the home.

One of the finest Christmas presents that we can suggest for a wire-haired terrier, Scottish terrier, Sealyham, Airedale, Welsh, or other terrier with a wiry, dense coat is a hair trim by an experienced handler. Nothing will make the terrier look better and feel more comfortable than a stripping that removes the dead hair from his body.

We know what our dogs would consider a top-notch Christmas gift, because it pleases their sense of taste. It's a package or two of some kind of "sweetmeat." Several different concoctions of this nature are being made for pets. They are to a dog what ice cream or candy would be to us. The kind that we are giving to our dogs (a dog should have only one or two pieces a day as rewards for good behavior) is rich in vitamins.

If an owner wants to treat himself and also his dog to a useful Christmas present we can think of nothing more helpful than a good book on how to raise, feed, and train a puppy or grown dog. Novice dog owners especially need a helpful, profusely illustrated book like the one just published by The Chicago Tribune entitled "Training the Dog." This tells the inexperienced owner how to train a puppy so it will develop into an obedient, well mannered pet. It's on sale at the Public Service Offices of The Tribune, Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago, for 30 cents by mail. "Feeding the Dog," a companion book to the one on training, is another practical, helpful guide. "How to Raise and Train Your Puppy," on sale at any book store, also has scores of tips on dog care for the novice owner.

FORTS

until each formation is intact, then point their noses south, and another raid has started. Over the south coast the harassed natives, who have taken three years of bombs and machine gunning from the Germans, hear the roar and sometimes can faintly see sun glinting on silver wings as wave after wave of Fortresses passes high overhead. And they smile and nod and look at the sun and say happily:

"This is Fortress weather."

While back here at the drome those left behind sit around tensely, talking and talking and watching clocks. They may gather in the control tower to wait for the first reports. They know how long the run in to the target should take, and how long it should be for the Fortresses to get home if all goes well. But the minutes tick by like hours.

Then it comes, word that the first Fortresses have reached the British side of the channel on the return trip. As more come over the phone rings steadily reporting in each one, and the men in the tower check them off—one, two, three, four——

The homing pilots, free of radio silence once they have tangled with enemy "flak" or fighters, report one air battleship lost over France, but the crew was seen in parachutes. Another Fortress is down in the channel, with a rescue boat racing to take off the crew. And another has landed at a drome near the coast to rush a wounded gunner to a hospital.

Not bad, say the men in the tower. Only two ships lost out of more than 100, and not one from their base. Soon the roar of the four-engined planes is heard, and in they come, landing at short intervals, while the usual crash crews stand by, but are not needed, and ambulances race out to the planes which report injured crew members.

The maintenance crews, gathered in the hangars or out on the "hard stands," cheer lustily as they recognize their own ships. An exultant waist gunner sticks his head out of his open port and holds up four fingers. The ground crew cheers again. Four more Nazi fighters dead.

Then all are safely on the ground, and as soon as the crews have thawed out from the bitter below-zero cold of their high-altitude precision bombing and have had a hot meal they gather in the briefing rooms for interrogation by intelligence officers.

This goes on for hours, and then the intelligence officers gather for conferences on their numerous reports to sift claims of enemy aircraft destroyed, to piece together a coördinated picture of the events of the raid, and, after studying the camera record, to learn how successful the raiders had been in hitting their targets.

Then, with a composite picture in hand, headquarters of bombers command issues a communique. It tells briefly of the raid and points out proudly that the target was smeared with bombs which left huge fires, that 48 planes were destroyed, 58 probably destroyed, and scores more damaged, at a cost of two bombers. None in the big fighter umbrella that fought over, under, and on all sides of the Forts was lost. It's a red letter raid for the allies, and another name for the mess hall battle record of this unit.

And as the weary crews prepare for sleep, dog-tired after the tension of battle, they hear passing overhead the drone of the big British night bombers bound for more enemy targets with more tons of high explosives. It's a soothing lullaby for the Fortress men.

I FLY FOR THE NAVY!

By LIEUT. IRVIN H. McPHERSON

DIARY of TORPEDO PLANE PILOT

Lieut. McPherson

This is another instalment from the log of a young Glen Ellyn, Ill., navy flyer who participated in nearly every Pacific action from Pearl Harbor thru the battle of Midway. He was awarded the navy cross for "extraordinary heroism and courageous devotion to duty" during the latter battle. His journal, originally prepared for his wife, tells in thrilling detail the action and thoughts of our navy airmen during war.

FEB. 23

WE HAD some particularly good news late yesterday. Here we are 10 days back at sea (after having put into base to refit, refuel, and restore the ship and give the crews a few days leave to rest and relax) and we just heard that three men were picked up on desolate Danger Island near Samoa. We are hopeful that it is Dixon and his crew who were lost from our ship on a torpedo scouting hop a month ago. If it is they must have suffered some great hardships to have survived in their little rubber boat. (It was the Dixon party. The story of their 34 day ordeal has been previously published.)

We think we are out this time to attack Wake Island. The weather has been very bad and consequently there has been very little flying—especially by the torpedo squadron. Eversole (Lieut. j. g. J. T. Eversole) went out on the 18th on a scouting hop and got caught in such rotten weather he never did find the ship. He set his plane down in the sea letting us know exactly where he alighted. The next day a scouting group found the crew floating in their rubber boat only 14 miles from the carrier. It was not until a day later, however, before they were finally picked up by a destroyer.

We heard tonight that the Lexington and its task force ran into a flight of 30 Jap bombers and that the Lex fighters shot down nearly all of them. The Lex then turned back instead of going on in to ——— as was intended. To go ahead would have been suicidal since the Japs were forewarned. (This incident of the Lexington was the attack in which Lieut. Edward O'Hare of the Lexington's fighter group shot down five and damaged a sixth Japanese bomber in a few minutes and was credited with having saved the carrier from certain damage.)

At the moment we are traveling southeast to be in readiness for the blow at Wake tomorrow morning.

FEB. 25

A small measure of revenge on the Japanese for their capture of Wake—that's what we took yesterday. Tho it was months ago that our marines finally were overwhelmed there was evidence of their gallant defense still to be seen as we circled the atoll during the attack. Those boys must have put up a wonderful fight. I can appreciate it better now that I've seen the place myself.

I was assigned to the first torpedo plane division, flying wing on Riley (Lieut. P. J. Riley) with Rombach (Ensign Sewell Rombach) the third plane in our section. Instead of torpedos all the nine torpedo planes carried 12 100 pounder bombs. We got away with 37 dive bombers and half a dozen fighters about 7:30 a. m. And for a change we flew high—for the bombing runs. The result of that was to relieve the pressure of my head cold for time, but drive it right back in when we descended.

A bombing run is different for us. You get a wonderful vision of everything below you. Wake is really three islands—one big one where the marines and now the Japs have a long runway, and two smaller ones. All three are enclosed in a coral reef and the water inside the lagoon is very shallow. When we got to the island the dive bombers already were at work, the first of them going down and planting two big bombs right into the middle of the runway. The idea was to ruin it for fighters. We didn't know, when we arrived, whether there were any fighters stationed there or not.

It turned out that we had to face no fighter opposition at all.

Mr. Lindsey (Lieut. Comm. Eugene Lindsey, the torpedo squadron skipper) gave our section the job of hitting some anti-aircraft guns near the airfield, some fuel dumps, and some ammunition dumps. His other two sections did a job of bombing Jap four-engined seaplanes that were anchored inside the lagoon or pulled up to the old Pan American Airways docks. Wake, you remember, used to be a stop on Pan American's trans-Pacific run.

This is how the bombing went for me: As soon as we got in close I talked over the interphone circuit to my bombardier—Chapman. "Get down into position," I told him. "Get your bomb window doors open, all the switches on, and arm the bombs." Arming the bomb is setting the fuse so that it will go off when it strikes the ground after being dropped. If you fail to arm a bomb it probably won't explode even if it hits right on the target. It's easy to forget a lot of little things like that so I remind the men.

Plans for this raid called for salvo bombing. In other words the section leader would be the one who did the bomb aiming. We two wingmen would drop our bombs at the same time Riley did. We were all instructed to set up our switches so that three of the 100 pounders would be dropped at a time. The electrical releasing mechanism was linked to a button on the pilot's throttle. The pilot has merely to hold his formation and then press the release button when he sees a light signal from the formation leader's plane.

We were ready in my ship—long before the first run was made. Riley led us around so that we approached from the south-southwest. The first target was a lot of AA guns that were popping away at all of us.

Riley put us into position beautifully, taking his time about it, and in due course I saw the light signal that indicated he was dropping. I squeezed my button too and looked down between my legs thru the bomb bay window. I could see a sheaf of six bombs—six, not three—sliding away behind me. They make the most beautiful, long, curving arch downward. And they seem to be going so slowly, so leisurely.

What happened was that, as is usual, the bombs I saw were not my own. They were Riley's. His bombardier had set up the electrical circuits so that half of Riley's bombs dropped at each of the first two runs.

We got immediate results from the drop. There were explosions on and all around the anti-aircraft guns and their fire came to an abrupt stop. There wasn't another peep out of that gun emplacement—and there were probably several guns there—after that one salvo of bombs exploded.

Riley turned us slightly more to the east and we made the second drop on a group of big fuel tanks. We could see them clearly and after the bombs exploded fires and thick pillars of black smoke rolled up.

• • •

It was after this second drop that we saw clearly the results of the marines' resistance. There were two Jap destroyers wrecked on the reef. One had run aground after being hard hit by shells. The other was awash close in to shore. Both looked to be stripped and gutted.

Our section began descending and I had a chance to watch Mr. Lindsey's division bombing the seaplanes. They did a good job on them, salvo bombing too. Those big airplanes just flew to pieces as the bombs hit on and around them. There was no fire, they just broke up and sank.

About this time Pete Halsey (Ensign D. W. Halsey) saw a four-engine Jap plane off to the northeast of the island. It had gotten into the air before we arrived or was coming in from some other Jap base. Anyway Pete called over the radio giving its location. Down came two of the fighters—McClusky—the skipper and Roger Mehle. They made two or three runs on the Jap and pretty soon it started to burn and spun into the sea.

I wasn't able to see all that fight because of intervening clouds. I did see the Japs shooting back, tho, using tracer. And I think I saw that two of the Jap engines had stopped before the flying boat caught fire.

There was a very pretty little yacht—converted to an off shore patrol boat, I guess, standing out a little way from the island. Almost every one of the SBDs strafed it. There was some shooting back at them at first, but soon that stopped and not another sign of life was seen from it. All the Japanese apparently dived below and stayed there. (In strafing planes fly low and use both their front and rear machine guns.) It was a wooden yacht and those bullets must have gone right thru it, in thru the deck and cabin walls and out thru the hull on the other side.

Following instructions Riley pulled out about five miles and there we circled, waiting for the rest of the TBDs to rendezvous on us. But nobody appeared. We circled and circled. In all we had been in the target area for half an hour or more, a long time for an air raid. Finally Riley started us home and we were glad to go. You never can tell when the Japs might have fighters in underground hangars. There might even be underground hangars on Wake—tho it's unlikely.

In this action we lost three airplanes and the crew of one. Teaff had some trouble in launching and went into the water. He was banged up a lot, lost one eye, I think, when his head slammed into the telescopic sight. But both he and his gunner were picked up by a destroyer. (Lieut., j. g., Perry Teaff was awarded the distinguished flying cross for shooting down a fighter in the Marshall Island attack. After his recovery he returned to nonflying duty in the navy.)

The second airplane lost was that of a fighter pilot who ran out of fuel fairly close to the carrier. He too was picked up, altho the airplane was of course a loss.

MARCH 6

Right after the attack on Wake Island we began refueling in preparation for an attack on Marcus Island. That is north and west of Wake. Instead of retiring eastward toward Pearl Harbor we kept going west, deeper into Jap waters. That really surprised them, as it turned out. All of us began getting a bit tense. Who could tell, in advance, how much the Japs might know about our plans?

As soon as the refueling was done we picked up to the usual cruise speed—and charged on in to Marcus. When we reached launching position we were within 900 miles of Japan, and within 660 and 700 miles of the powerful island bases of Chichi Jima and Saipan. It put us well under their patrol umbrella and within range of multi-motored shore based bombers.

On the morning of March 4 we were in position. Up to that moment we had seen nothing that would lead us to believe the Japs knew of our whereabouts. None of their four-motored snooper planes had picked us up and our own scouts, constantly busy, had not seen Jap subs or surface vessels. On a raid like this the whole vessel gets worked up. There is a magnificent gamble in the whole thing. It's like Red Dog, the bet is on the turn of a card. And of course we were betting our own skins and our ship.

Once we got in where we could strike no time was wasted. General quarters came very, very early. The first planes began launching when it was still pitch dark with the morning moon showing thru breaks in a heavy cloud layer.

Thirty-two scouts and dive bombers took off with six fighters. The torpedo squadron, as it turned out, didn't fly at all that day. We were on the alert, however, loaded and ready for launching if targets were seen by the other planes. As it happened we spent the whole day in the ready room, just sitting or dozing and playing cards to while away the time. We listened on the radio for anything we could hear, but there wasn't much. It's a queer thing, that waiting.

The last of the group had made the rendezvous and had taken departure, to the northeast. We were then within 125 miles of Marcus. The clouds, 2,000 feet thick, lay at 4,000 feet and extended to 6,000. In some places it was solid and in others broken. This is a condition that makes navigation rather difficult, but the boys were in the groove all the way and hit the island on the head. They were so high by the time they reached it that it looked about the size of a dime. They finally saw it thru a little hole.

The Japs weren't expecting us. It was still dark, with just the pale blue morning moonlight lighting the island when the first dive bombers went down at 6:30 a. m. Each of the scouts and bombing planes dropped three bombs, one 500 pounder with two 100 pounders. And the first pilots down also dropped a few flares for the benefit of the remainder.

They told me, tho, that the flares weren't needed very long. Before a quarter of the squadron had gotten into their dives there were huge fires burning there on the ground. They made plenty of light to show up the rest of the island.

Several of the boys told me they were tuned to the Marcus radio station as the attack began. There was excited Japanese jabbering that suddenly ceased as somebody got a direct hit on the radio masts and the transmitter house. Back on the ship an interpreter who also was listening said that the Marcus radio operator using voice began screaming into his microphone just a few seconds before 6:30.

"Calling Tokio, calling Tokio," the Jap yammered. "We are being attacked by a huge air armada. Marcus under attack by . . ."

The silence that overtook that broadcast was very final.

Over the island the boys were having a field day. They told me: "It was like shooting fish in a rain barrel." There was no opposition and very soon no anti-aircraft. They came down low and strafed everything they could see.

• • •

The operation took on a sort of celebration air when ammunition or gasoline stores that were in the fires began exploding on the ground. These explosions went on for a long time, the last looks at Marcus showing them still continuing, the returning pilots told me.

Some of the boys said they had seen aircraft on the ground, but they all agreed it was difficult to see clearly because of the deceptive light of the dawn. Not a single Jap ship took the air, however, and so if there were any there they probably were damaged by the bombing or machine gunning.

The airport on Marcus appeared to be under construction. Neither the hangar nor the runways seemed to be finished. When our crowd got thru with it the construction job had increased some in scope.

All the anti-aircraft fire from the island was concentrated at the three points in the triangular shaped bit of land. During the brief time these guns were in operation they hit plane No.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph.D.
Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine

If you like to take still lifes you will not miss flash bulbs and flood lamps. Ordinary electric bulbs give ample illumination for this type of picture, as it makes no difference whether you expose for fractions of a second or for several minutes.

WITH flash bulbs gone for the duration of the war and flood lamps becoming scarce, amateur photographers who like to take indoor pictures will do well to acquaint themselves with "hypersensitization." The word sounds formidable, but what is meant by it are simply the various methods used to increase film speed. And film of great speed is necessary for indoor photography with ordinary electric bulbs, especially if you want to snap moderately fast action.

• • •

Unless you are prepared to use ordinary light bulbs of 500-watt or stronger, you will have to compensate for the lack of flash or flood illumination by using the fastest available films. But even these will not be fast enough for many a job, and that is where hypersensitization comes in. It consists of a special treatment given to any kind of regular film you purchase from your dealer. It is possible to triple the speed of medium fast films with proper handling, and even the speed of the fastest commercially available films can be nearly doubled with the right treatment.

Two of the three different methods of hypersensitizing film are entirely practicable for the amateur. The third method, which consists of immersing the unexposed film and drying it before use in the camera, is rather complicated. Most amateurs are liable to spoil their film completely by this method or to end up with negatives which show streaks and scratches owing to uneven drying of the film or to damage while handling.

The simplest method of hypersensitizing film is by "prefogging" it. The film is exposed to a weak, diffused light either before or after the picture is taken. This treatment strengthens the invisible and undeveloped image on the film, with the result that after development the negative shows printable detail even in such portions of the scene as were only dimly illuminated. Consequently you are justified in giving film treated in this manner a higher speed rating.

It may seem odd that such fogging should increase the speed of film, but the fact remains that it does. Fogging after the picture has been taken and just before development is the most effective. It is also the most convenient, because it requires just one extra step. If you want to prefog roll film or film pack before the normal exposure you must unwrap it and wrap it again before placing it in the camera.

(Alma Carroll.)

You can do without flash and flood lights in portraiture, especially if you own a spotlight or two. But even without spots, just by using ordinary light bulbs in reflectors, you can get good results. Fast film will cut down on the necessary exposure time.

The recommended method for fogging is to use a dark green safelight as a light source. The fogging time depends on the distance of the film from the safelight and on the strength of the bulb used in the safelight. With a 10-watt bulb in a Wratten series 3 green safelight a good starting point for experiments is an exposure of 45 minutes at a distance of eight feet. Results vary according to the film which is to be hypersensitized.

• • •

The second, equally simple method for increasing film speed is mercury hypersensitization. By allowing mercury vapor to reach your film either before or after exposure in the camera you can increase the speed of most films considerably.

You can take a roll of film as it comes from the carton or, after exposure, from the camera, place it in a glass jar, put a drop of mercury on a small dish in the same jar, and cover the jar. The mercury emits vapors which will reach the film emulsion and will hypersensitize it. Tightly spooled or wrapped film will have to stay in the jar for a week to 10 days, while unwrapped or loosely wrapped film can be hypersensitized in 30 to 40 hours.

In place of pure mercury, which easily spills, you can purchase in most drugstores for a few cents an ounce of so-called gray powder, consisting of mercury and chalk. Prepare a thick paste from this powder with a few drops of water and place it in a small dish alongside the film in the glass jar used for hypersensitizing. Neither this paste nor pure mercury should come in direct contact with the film.

If you expose your film too long to either the mercury vapor or the green safelight the film will become strongly fogged and you will have spoiled your pictures.

GIFTS FOR BEAUTY

By LOUISE DOOLEY

STILL IN A TIZZY about what to buy for the woman at the head of your Chrismas list? Calm yourself, then, and take a look at the pretties displayed here; one or another of them will please her and make the holiday linger long in her memory.

Perfume or matched makeup, a traveling kit, or fragrant bath accessories are gifts to delight the feminine heart. Luxurious and practical in the same breath, they'll find ready and steady use, with the added charm of being just a bit giddy and out of the humdrum, everyday class.

The ever-welcome beauty kit. A two-tone simulated leather case, compact and easy to carry, holds essentials-plus for a complete beautifying job. The beauty aids have a high reputation with the discriminating. There is even room for slippers and a nightie for the traveler.

It's rather a new perfume, but she undoubtedly knows it and covets it for her very own. It IS beautiful, and you can present it to her in the perfume and eau de toilette versions, nestling companionably together in their attractive gift box.

Know the color of her eyes? Select makeup keyed to eye tones—face powder, rouge, and lipstick in harmonising shades. The handsome box will find extra duty as a handkerchief case.

There's lots of enjoyment ahead for the recipient of one of these perfume sets. The three perfumes, each a lovely scent, will let her match her moods with an appropriate fragrance.

A famous fragrance, spicy and bright, captured in two delightful bath accessories. Bubbles to trim her tub and send the fragrance floating about, and a frilly powder-patting gadget brimming with perfumed talcum powder.

More bath trimmings. Bubbles, scented and abundant; a bath mitt harboring an especially soft and mildly antiseptic soap, and finally a delightful toilet water. The fragrance is a very special one, delicate and quite mysterious.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

EVEN IF THIS weren't graduation day for about 600, first crop of seniors who "accelerated" so they could shorten their college period and dash into the fray, you'd know at a quick glance that Indiana university is embroiled in the war effort.

For one thing, the navy is very much present. Indiana is one of the three universities in the country—Wisconsin and Oklahoma are the others—where the enlisted WAVES are stationed for training. There are 600 of the maids in the Mainbocher uniforms at Bloomington, impressing the authorities with their earnestness and aptitude. An equal number of sailors, some training to be cooks and bakers, but the majority, like the WAVES, earning the arm insignia of crossed keys which is the badge of the storekeeper in Uncle Sam's navy, are also quartered in the once serene section of the campus that is now a bustling, heavily guarded naval reservation.

Joan Browning, I. U. sophomore

And Indiana and its students are most hospitable to their navy guests. WAVES and sailors are encouraged to make free use of the union and to share in school activities as much as their limited free time permits. They even have a midweek dance of their own at the union. Midweek school dances are banned for the regular students at I. U.

The civilian students are as war conscious as any one could ask. All the men, of course, are enrolled in either basic or advanced military training, and hundreds are in the reserves of the navy, army, or marines. The "Watches" (girls in the Women's Auxiliary Training corps) are busy with their war courses. Those in the advanced WATC, all upper classmen, who have stunning dress uniforms with red blouses and white skirts and Sam Browne belts, don't even complain about their drill once a week at 7 a. m.

Social life is not what it used to be. Indiana is no longer a social and a dressy campus. Even the Arbutus candidates forsook evening clothes this year for the traditional parade before the judges who select the "official" beauties of the school yearbook. At all but the most formal functions—and these are few—the costume for girls at Indiana is, in their own expression, "sweater, skirt, and heels." By the simple expedient of substituting French heels for the eternal saddle shoes a co-ed at Indiana is sufficiently dressed up now for the teas, dinner parties, and most dances.

The boys like this fine.

In Meat-Rationed Menus Vegetables Have Their Day

By MARY MEADE

Citrus fruits make excellent tart, refreshing salads. Add a little onion to the dressing—it's wonderful!

FRUITS and vegetables come in for more attention than ever, now that meat isn't so plentiful. They are filling a larger place in our menus than before. Citrus fruits and such vegetables as onions and cabbage are abundant now, which is a comforting fact to meal planners.

Oranges and grapefruit are good salad material as well as breakfast fruit, we should remember. They'll combine with any other fruit and with most vegetables, but they're probably never any more attractively saladed than alone on fresh, crisp greens. Onion in the dressing used on citrus fruits is delicious. Or you can slice onion right into the salad.

• • •

Baked stuffed onions—the big, fat, mild, and sweet ones—are a dish which any family ought to greet with delight. Onions may be stuffed with cooked sausage, chopped leftover meat, browned ground beef, creamed dried beef, chopped mushrooms, bread crumbs, or seasoned rice.

STUFFED BAKED ONIONS

Peel a large Spanish type onion for each person to be served. Gash the root end about half an inch deep several times, then boil for 30 minutes in salted water to cover. Drain and save the cooking water for sauce to serve with the onions, or soup. Slip out centers of cooked onions from gashed end. Chop and mix with the filling you intend to add. For mushroom filling, sauté 6 chopped mushrooms in a little fat for five minutes, combine with chopped onion pulp, and mix with ½ cup thick white sauce. Fill centers of onions, piling filling high. Place onions in a casserole with 3 tablespoons of the cooking water, cover, and bake at 350 degrees for an hour, or until very tender. Serve on a platter with other vegetables, or cover with medium white sauce, cheese sauce, or tomato sauce and garnish with parsley. Don't forget to eat the parsley garnish on onions or any other food—it's rich in vitamins!

Usually cabbage, a strong-flavored vegetable, is cooked uncovered, but here's a delicious way to prepare it covered. The flavor doesn't become too strong if one is careful not to overcook.

You can stuff onions with meat, bread crumbs, rice, or mushrooms and serve them with or without sauce.

BRAISED CABBAGE AND CARROTS

Shred cabbage fine and grate or shred about a third as much carrots. Add, if you like, a little chopped onion and green pepper. Put 2 tablespoons bacon fat, butter, margarine, or other fat in a heavy skillet or pot with ¼ cup water. Add the vegetables, with salt and pepper to taste, cover closely, and let cook until vegetables are barely tender. More water may be added as it cooks off, but it should have been absorbed by the time the vegetables are tender.

This combination of shredded cabbage, carrots, onion, and green pepper is a vitaminous salad if you leave it raw. Try it with diluted cooked salad dressing or the "slaw" dressing of cream, vinegar, sugar, salt, and pepper. Celery is a good addition.

(Stewing chicken in Sunday style)

1 stewing hen
¼ pound salt pork
¼ cup chopped parsley
Salt and pepper

Use stewing hen or any other chicken too tough for roasting. Disjoint as for frying. Cut salt pork in small cubes and place a layer in top section of a large double boiler. Cover with layer of chicken pieces and sprinkle with parsley. Season with salt and pepper and repeat until all ingredients are used. Place over boiling water, cover tightly, and cook three to four hours, or until chicken is tender. Keep water boiling gently in lower part of double boiler thruout cooking period. Serve on platter, thickening strained drippings with flour paste to make a gravy.—R. OVRESET, 4022 Linden avenue, Western Springs, Ill.

DIARY

7. The pilot had been transfered to us some time before, Lieut., j. g., H. D. Hilton. His gunner was J. (Johnny, I think) Leaming, aircraft machinist's mate, 2d class. The ship caught fire and Hilton put it down into the sea five miles from the island.

Some of the boys circled over the airplane and watched both Hilton and Leaming climb out and get into their rubber boat. They waved to indicate they were both okay up to that point. From there on there is no telling. Remember they had just bombed the island. Undoubtedly they could get ashore, but who knows what their reception was. I hope they lay off shore all day and then came in at night. It's their best chance I think. Just hope no Jap planes discovered them on the water and machine gunned them, or turned guns on them as they were landing. Those things happen. The best we can hope is that they are prisoners of war.

Everybody else got home. One of the boys, however, got in by the skin of his teeth. He was one of the fighters. Somehow he got separated from the rest of the crowd on the homeward journey. He cruised around, lost for a time, then made a systematic search thru our area and found us. He was brought on board about an hour after every one else had returned. His tanks had only five gallons of fuel remaining—less than 15 minutes' more flying.

On the outward lap another fighter became separated from the attacking group. In fact this boy never did find our planes in the rendezvous over the carrier, following his takeoff. He did a pretty smart piece of work then. He didn't get panicky or anything and go wandering off alone nor did he break radio silence—which might have given our whole show away.

• • •

Instead he just stayed close to the carrier circling us outside range of our anti-aircraft guns, until after sunrise. That last was very smart because our gunners naturally had itchy trigger fingers and repeatedly fired at our own planes returning from raids. This boy stayed out until he could be readily recognized and then alighted.

When the dive bombers got back on board they were telling us of their difficulty in diving thru the clouds and finding targets. Ordinarily they like to dive from very high—to really get aligned on their targets before letting go. This time they only had about 2,000 feet to get set unless they were lucky enough to find a hole. Not everybody was, yet they did a good job, hitting fuel dumps and ammunition dumps.

Such a raid has several purposes. It gave the Japs something to think about—the fact that it was really in their front yard. It pepped up morale in all the navy and among the home folks.

Last of all it has a certain nuisance value. The Japs have to bring out new supplies to replace those destroyed by the fires and bombings. They have to rebuild everything we destroyed, and they probably will have to spread their airplanes a little thinner and put fighter patrols on the island.

Every care was taken to protect the ship. As soon as the air group left we began retiring at high speed. By noon we were 265 miles from Marcus and by sunset 400. All morning, as soon as the raid was ended, we had combat patrols in the air to be sure that no Jap air force, sent to intercept us, could get us by surprise. For that purpose 18 scout bombers made a wide mile search south and southeast of us before noon and were kept in the air all afternoon, eight separate patrols in all being used.

Scout bomber and dive bomber pilots were kept in ready rooms and on the alert all day to act as low altitude anti-torpedo plane patrols should Jap planes or subs be sighted. As it turned out, there was apparently no pursuit.

A JOLLY CHRISTMAS LOAD: BY F. S. CHURCH

The Greatest Christmas Story

According to St. Matthew

Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem,

Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judea: for thus it is written by the prophet,

And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel.

Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, enquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

According to St. Luke

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be taxed.

(And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:)

To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her first born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

For 402 scientifically conducted tests—under the supervision of 9 doctors—have proved conclusively that in 14 days a new method of using a famous beauty product brings better complexions to 2 out of every 3 women . . . with spectacular ease!

Yes, these doctors report, "Softer, smoother skin! Less oiliness! Less dryness! Clearer skin! Complexions more radiant...glowing...sparkling! And these were just a few of the specific improvements which we found to be true."

Here is the easy method: Just wash your face 3 times a day with Palmolive Soap. Then, take one minute more —a full 60 seconds—and massage Palmolive's remarkable beautifying lather into your skin . . . like a cream. It's that 60-second massage with Palmolive's rich and wondrously gentle lather that works such wonders. Now rinse—that's all.

Here is the proof it works! Yes, in 402 tests on all types of skin—old and young, dry and oily—2 out of every 3 women showed astonishing complexion improvement in just 14 days. Conclusive proof of what you have been seeking—a way to beautify your complexion that really works. Start this new Palmolive way to beauty—tonight.

Palmolive

for PROVED beauty results

NO OTHER SOAP OFFERS PROOF OF SUCH RESULTS!

HUNDREDS OF WOMEN IN HOME TESTS GET SAME STARTLING RESULTS

Hundreds of other women—all over the country—are now using Palmolive's proved new method at home. Far more than 2 out of 3 report the same kind of sensational results—more proof for you that Palmolive brings new skin beauty in 14 days!

Thus, if you want a complexion the envy of every woman you know, the admiration of every man you meet, don't delay. Get Palmolive—and start now on this great new beauty method you know may work wonders for you because it has for others.

WAR FOOD PRICES START BIG DEMAND FOR BETTER FLOUR

"Baking failures too costly," smart women are saying

by Nancy Holmes

Every item in a baking recipe gets a careful eye turned on it nowadays. It's either hard to get, or up in price. Together, they run into money. And a baking failure wastes that money — all of it.

No wonder women are finding cheap, variable flours unsatisfactory. So they're paying a little more. And they're getting a LOT more for that little extra money—in Ceresota.

Ceresota contains correct amount of "stay-up" element — protein gluten

Ceresota contains the exact amount of gluten necessary for "good-luck" baking. Gluten is the secret of springiness and texture in dough. You need just so much—not too much, not too little. You get it just right in Ceresota. And the uniformity of both quality and quantity is scientifically maintained.

That's why you get the same plump loaves of bread every baking day. That's why piecrust, rolls and biscuits turn out so beautifully, time after time. That's why your baking flops turn into baking triumphs!

Of course, Ceresota is right in tune with the Government's Nutrition Program—enriched with valuable Vitamin B1, niacin and nutritional iron. And it's as fine and satiny as modern milling can make any flour.

Ceresota quality is an old story to the best cooks. They know there's more than fifty years of know-how in every package of it. Give it a workout in your own baking pans this week.

Here's two from one. Save time and extra work. Begin with

BASIC SWEET ROLL DOUGH

Into bowl, crumble 2 cakes moist yeast or 2 pkgs. dry granular yeast.
Add to yeast . . . ¼ c. sugar or honey.
Add also . . . . . 2 c. milk, warm, not hot.
Sift, measure, add 3 c. CERESOTA Enriched Flour. Beat smooth.
Stir into this . . . 4 tsp. vinegar. Beat smooth. Let stand in warm place or over warm, not hot, water until very light and bubbly.
Now add . . . . . 2 eggs or 6 yolks
And . . . . . . . ¼ c. melted butter or vitaminized margarine
Also . . . . . . . ¼ c. sugar or honey
And . . . . . . . 1-½ tsp. salt.
Sift, measure . . . 4 c. CERESOTA Enriched Flour. Beat in until dough looks smooth and shiny. Cover with damp cloth. Let rise until double in bulk. Turn out onto floured cloth or board. Divide dough—use half for each of following recipes:

OLD-FASHIONED STICKY BUNS

Into 9-inch square deep pan pour 3 tbsp. melted butter or vitaminized margarine, and cover with ¾ cup brown sugar and 2 tbsp. water or 6 tbsp. each molasses and honey, and pecan halves if desired. Roll about ½ the dough to ¼ inch thick and about twice as long as it is wide. Brush with melted butter or vitaminized margarine. Sprinkle with raisins or chopped nuts and sugar mixed with cinnamon. Roll up like jelly roll, sealing edges. Cut in 9 large or 16 small slices. Place cut-end down into pan. Brush tops with melted butter or vitaminized margarine. Let stand in warm place until double in bulk. Bake on bottom rack of oven. Remove. Loosen edges. Turn out upside down.

BAKE: 375°—40-45 min. MAKES: 9 or 16 rolls.

FRESH ORANGE ROLLS

Have 12-cup muffin pan brushed generously with melted butter or vitaminized margarine. Into each cup put 1 tsp. sugar, a bit of grated orange rind and 2 or 3 small pieces of orange.

Prepare dough as for sticky buns. Sprinkle with 1 cup diced orange, 1 tbsp. grated orange rind, then lightly with sugar. Roll as before. Seal and slice. Place slices cut side down into prepared muffin cups. Brush tops with melted butter or vitaminized margarine. Let stand in warm place until light. Bake—remove from oven. Turn out of pan at once.

BAKE: 375°—30-35 min. MAKES: 12 rolls.

THIRTY MINUTES LATER
YES, JUST A LITTLE CHRISTMAS SHOPPING, MRS. TRUEHEART.
YOU MEN! THAT'S NO WAY TO WRAP A PACKAGE
I'M WRAPPING MY OWN PACKAGES AND I'LL WRAP YOURS! WE'LL DO IT RIGHT.
BUT REALLY—
A FUNNY THING——I HAVE NEVER SEEN A MAN WHO COULD WRAP A PACKAGE RIGHT! NEVER!
EXCUSE ME A MOMENT! MY SILVER CHRISTMAS RIBBON IS IN THE KITCHEN.
QUICK! THIS IS THE CONTRAPTION! TAKE IT TO TRACY! AHA! SO HE AND TESS DON'T THINK WE HAVE OUR EYES OPEN, EH?
HERE'S THE DUMMY PACKAGE! BOY! DID I HAVE TO HURRY TO GET BACK FROM THAT BLACKSMITH SHOP BEFORE HE DID.
ROCKS
THERE YOU ARE.
MRS. TRUEHEART, YOU'RE A WONDERFUL WOMAN. JUST LIKE MY OWN MOTHER
OH COME ALL YE FAITHFUL
ROCKS
PRUNE FACE, YOU DON'T KNOW THE HALF OF IT!

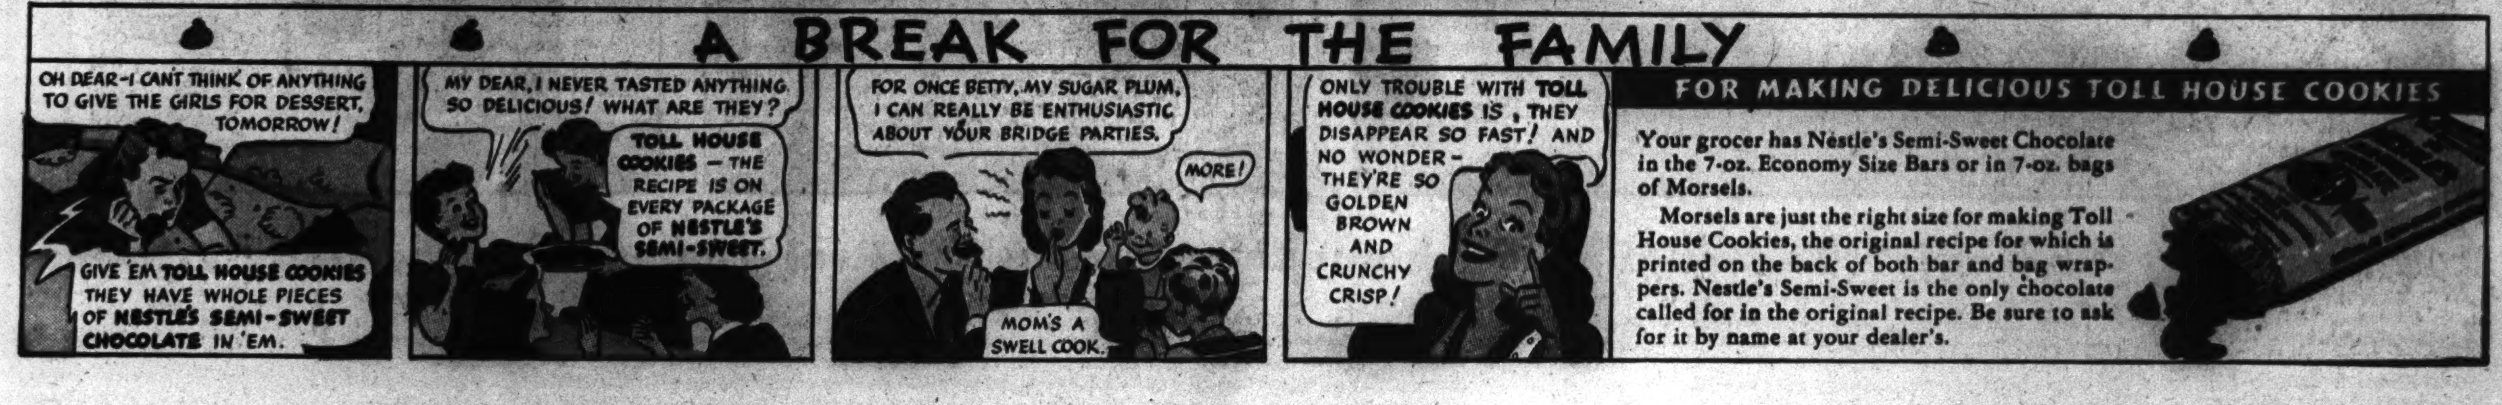
WHAT'S EATING YOU, FREDDIE?
GEE TOMMY, I'M FREEZING.
WHY YELL AT ME? WHAT DID I DO?
YOU?—NOTHING! I SUPPOSE HE JUST SKIPPED BREAKFAST AGAIN.
EXCELLENT, TOMMY WHY CAN'T YOU DO AS WELL EVERY MORNING, FREDDIE?
MAYBE I COULD IF IT WAS SUMMER.
GAME OF BRIDGE FRED?
TOO TIRED, THANKS.
YOU NEED HOT NESTLE'S IN THE MORNING, FELLER!
OH COME ON, FREDDIE—THE ICE'S SWELL!
NO, I'M TOO TIRED AN' COLD.
YOU NEED HOT NESTLE'S IN THE MORNING, FELLER!
NEXT MORNING
WELL, WELL, YOU CERTAINLY LOOK MORE BEAMING THIS MORNING.
YES, THANKS TO YOU BOTH, WE BOTH NOW START THE DAY THE HAPPY WAY WITH HOT NESTLE'S.
EverReady NESTLE'S SWEET MILK COCOA

Start the day the Happy way

Everyone needs a hot drink on cold mornings, adults as well as children—children perhaps more so, for they need to replace the energy used in growing. Nestle's EverReady Cocoa helps supply that energy—saves Mother's energy too, 'cause it's prepared in a jiffy—just three spoonfuls in a cup—add hot water—serve—and everyone's set for a happy day. It costs no more than ordinary cocoa.

THE MILK AND SUGAR ARE IN IT

A BREAK FOR THE FAMILY



OH DEAR—I CAN'T THINK OF ANYTHING TO GIVE THE GIRLS FOR DESSERT, TOMORROW!
GIVE 'EM TOLL HOUSE COOKIES THEY HAVE WHOLE PIECES OF NESTLE'S SEMI-SWEET CHOCOLATE IN 'EM.
MY DEAR, I NEVER TASTED ANYTHING SO DELICIOUS! WHAT ARE THEY?
TOLL HOUSE COOKIES — THE RECIPE IS ON EVERY PACKAGE OF NESTLE'S SEMI-SWEET.
FOR ONCE BETTY, MY SUGAR PLUM, I CAN REALLY BE ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT YOUR BRIDGE PARTIES.
MORE!
MOM'S A SWELL COOK.
ONLY TROUBLE WITH TOLL HOUSE COOKIES IS, THEY DISAPPEAR SO FAST! AND NO WONDER—THEY'RE SO GOLDEN BROWN AND CRUNCHY CRISP!

FOR MAKING DELICIOUS TOLL HOUSE COOKIES

Your grocer has Nestle's Semi-Sweet Chocolate in the 7-oz. Economy Size Bars or in 7-oz. bags of Morsels.

Morsels are just the right size for making Toll House Cookies, the original recipe for which is printed on the back of both bar and bag wrappers. Nestle's Semi-Sweet is the only chocolate called for in the original recipe. Be sure to ask for it by name at your dealer's.

MOON MULLINS
by Frank Willard
ELEVEN FIFTEEN: HUMM. MOONSHINE, WOULD YOU MIND GIVING ME FIVE NICKELS FOR A QUARTER?
SURE-GIVE ME THE QUARTER PLUSHBOTTOM.
DON'T FORGET I GIVE YOU FIVE NICKELS, AND RUN AROUND AND SAY I DIDN'T GIVE YOU NOTHIN' FOR CHRISTMAS.
MOONSHINE, COME WITH ME! NOBODY ANSWERED THE PHONE! I'D BETTER BE GETTING HOME. — LADY P. THREATENED TO DO SOMETHING DESPERATE IF I WENT OUT TONIGHT.
EMMA! UNLOCK THE DOOR, MY DEAR-- EMMA, ANSWER ME!
POOEY! THE WELP CAN HOLLER HISSELF BLUE IN THE FACE BEFORE I ANSWER HIM.
NOK NOK! NOK!
SHE DID IT! LADY PLUSHBOTTOM COULD NEVER KEEP HER MOUTH SHUT THAT LONG UNLESS SHE WAS UNCONSCIOUS
OH MOON!
HA! LISTEN TO HIM GALLOPING DOWN THOSE STAIRS! I'LL WATCH WHICH WAY HE GOES AND FOLLOW HIM- AND WILL HE BE SURPRISED.
STOP IT! I SAY STOP IT, YOU IDIOT!
AW, DRY UP! YOU WANNA GO IN THERE DONTCHA?
OW!
POW!
PLOP!
YOU HOUND, OPEN THAT DOOR!
PSST! GO ON BEAT IT! I WON'T LET HER IN TILL YOU GET SAFELY OUT THE BACK WAY.
AND REMEMBER, I GIVE YOU A CHANCT TO ESCAPE FOR ANOTHER CHRISTMAS PRESENT, SO GOVERN YOURSELF ACCORDINGLY WHEN YOU'RE SHOPPING!

KITTY HIGGINS

HOW COME YOUAH SO SLOW GETTIN' HOME F'M SCHOOL, KITTY?
KAYO AND I WERE HELPING HIS AUNT MAMIE-
SHE LOST A QUARTER AND WE SPENT A WHOLE HOUR HELPING HER HUNT IT.
WAL, DAT'S NICE.
NICE NOTHING! MRS. MULLINS CHASED US TWO BLOCKS AFTER WE FOUND IT.

What Happened To Bill In The Blackout....
For Smooth Refreshing Shaves THIN GILLETTE BLADES
OOORRREE!
I'D FORGOTTEN ALL ABOUT THIS AIR RAID DRILL
LUCKY WE'RE RIGHT IN FRONT OF THE HOTEL
STEP LIVELY. EVERYBODY OFF THE STREET
ISN'T THIS DIM LIGHT WEIRD?
YEAH...BUT I CAN SEE THAT'S SUE WILLIS. I WANT TO MEET HER
ALL CLEAR. WE'LL HAVE LIGHTS IN A MINUTE
WOOOOOOOOO
LET'S SEE IF SUE CAN HAVE DINNER WITH US
SWELL...BUT I DIDN'T EXPECT TO BE OUT TONIGHT AND I'M CAUGHT WITHOUT A SHAVE
ASK SAM IN THE WASHROOM FOR A RAZOR. WE'LL MEET IN THE CASINO
SOME BLADE, SAM! NEVER HAD A SLICKER SHAVE!
THOSE THIN GILLETTES SURE ARE EASY SHAVING...AND HOW THEY LAST!
BILL, I WANT YOU TO MEET SUE WILLIS
UMMMMM. HOW GOOD LOOKING!
I'VE WAITED A LONG TIME FOR THIS PLEASURE
BLACKOUTS AREN'T SO BAD AFTER ALL. TONIGHT HAS BEEN WONDERFUL THAT THIN GILLETTE SHAVE SURE HELPS THIN BLADES
FOR TOPS IN COMFORT USE GILLETTE SHAVING CREAM...LATHER OR BRUSHLESS
Gillette

AMONG LOW-PRICE BLADES, THIN GILLETTES ARE THE EASIEST-SHAVING AND LONGEST-LASTING BY FAR. AND NO WONDER. THESE SUPER-KEEN BLADES MADE OF DIAMOND-TESTED STEEL, FIT YOUR GILLETTE RAZOR TO A "T" AND PROTECT YOU FROM THE IRRITATION CAUSED BY MISFIT BLADES. ASK YOUR DEALER FOR THIN GILLETTES

4 for 10¢
8 for 19¢
12 for 27¢

Gillette Lather Cream holds abundant moisture, softens beard quickly. Speeds shaving. Large-size tube . . . . . 25c

Gillette Brushless made with peanut oil, stays moist on face, can't clog razor or drain. Giant size 39c, large size 25c

This Way You Get Extra Shaves Easily With Every ## Gillette Blade

GILLETTE BLADES are built to last much longer and give far more shaving comfort than ordinary blades. That's why you can "stretch" a Gillette Blade out for many extra shaves!

1. WASH FACE THOROUGHLY WITH HOT WATER AND SOAP TO SOFTEN BEARD AND ELIMINATE ACCUMULATED GRIT THAT DULLS SHAVING EDGES
2. APPLY LATHER OR BRUSHLESS SHAVING CREAM WHILE FACE IS WET. IF LATHER IS USED, DIP YOUR BRUSH IN WATER FREQUENTLY
3. TWO EDGES DOUBLE BLADE LIFE. MARKS INDICATED ABOVE IDENTIFY EDGES, ENABLING YOU TO GIVE BOTH EQUAL USE AND GET EXTRA SHAVES
4. CLEAN BLADE IN RAZOR BY LOOSENING HANDLE, THEN RINSING IN HOT WATER AND SHAKING. WIPING THE BLADE IS LIKELY TO DAMAGE THE EDGES

BRENDA, HANK AND DETECTIVE TRAVERTS ARRIVE AT THE REBWYN THEATRE.....
TRAVERTS, AM I GLAD TO SEE YOU!....I CALLED YOU OVER AS A LAST RESORT. THE FATE OF THIS SHOW IS IN YOUR HANDS. IF YOU FAIL......I'M BANKRUPT!
IT LOOKS LIKE THINGS ARE RUNNING SMOOTHLY
YES, BUT FOR HOW LONG? THAT'S THE FOURTH COMPLETE NEW CAST I'VE HAD IN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS. JUST WAIT UNTIL ONE OF THE CHORUS GIRLS SEES "IT" THE GHOST THAT. HAUNTS THE PLACE
"IT"?
SURELY YOU DON'T BELIEVE IN GHOSTS, TOO?
WELL, I'M NOT SO SURE. SOME DARN WEIRD THINGS HAVE BEEN HAPPENING AROUND HERE IN THE LAST WEEK
O.K., JULIAN, I'LL BROWSE AROUND.... AND WITH THE HELP OF MISS STARR AND MISS O'HAIR FROM THE FLASH....WE'LL SEE WHAT WE CAN FIND OUT......
REPORTERS! IF THIS GETS IN THE PAPER...... I'M SUNK
DON'T WORRY, MR. JULIAN.....I PROMISE NOTHING WILL GET IN THE PAPER...... YOU SEE.....BETH BENNETT....WAS MY MOTHER
....AND I'VE COME HERE WITH DETECTIVE TRAVERTS TO HELP. STOP THIS RUMOR THAT MY MOTHER'S GHOST HAUNTS THE THEATRE
BUT, WHAT ABOUT YOU, MISS O'HAIR?
WHO, ME? I CAME ALONG TO SCARE THE GHOST
12-20
NOW, I'D LIKE TO SEE THE DRESSING ROOM MY MOTHER USED 20 YEARS AGO
GO DOWN THAT CORRIDOR..... FIRST DOOR TO THE LEFT......
EEEEK!!!! "IT" IS IN THERE!

I TELL YUH-SHE'S GONE! TH' RED-HAID HAS CUT AN' RUN!
MILTON CANIFF
ROUGE HAS GONE? WHY, SHE'S WOUNDED! HOW DID SHE DO IT-AND WHEN?
DURIN' TH' NIGHT! -SHE STOLE ONE O' TH' CAMELS AN' SKEDADDLED...
...SHE'LL DIE OUT IN THOSE MOUNTAINS! ARE YOU GOING TO TRY TO FIND HER?
NOPE...WE AIN'T A-RISKIN' NO LIVES THAT-A-WAY...FO' ALL AH KNOW-YOU MAYBE HELPED HUH ESCAPE!
AW-LISTEN, I...
HUSH, MISTUH!...YO'RE A-WEARIN' A SAH-JINT'S UNEEFO'M WHICH AIN'T YO'S...YO'RE NOT ONLY A CIVILIAN-BUT MEBBE A CRIMINAL! -AN' YO'RE FUTHUH BACK IN TH DAWG HOUSE THAN A WHUPPED HOUN' THAT'S JUST KILLED TH' BEST SETTIN' HEN!
WELL, FLIP CORKIN, YOU WENT AND DONE IT!...YOU HAD TO HORN IN ON THAT ATTACK ON THE JAP FIGHTER BASE IN THE MOUNTAINS — AND GET SHOT DOWN LIKE A RAW KID! YOU MUSTA HAD YOUR HEAD UP!
HIGHDEE-DIGHDEE-I'M TALKIN' TO MYSELF AGAIN...BUT AT LEAST I'M BETTER COMPANY THAN OL' JOE JITSU OVER THERE!
HEY, JOE, WHY DIDN'T YOU ACT NICE WHEN I RAN INTO YOU AFTER WE BOTH DISHED OUT? I DIDN'T WANTA SHOOT YOU-BUT YOU WERE SO ORN'RY!-ANOTHER THING-WHY DIDN'T YOU LEARN TO SPEAK ENGLISH?
ALL THE JAPS IN THE MOVIES WENT TO COLLEGE IN THE UNITED STATES...DON'T ALL YOU JOKERS STUDY ENGLISH SO YOU CAN DICTATE PEACE TERMS IN THE WHITE HOUSE?...HERE, JOE, PRETEND IT'S SUKI YAKI!
CAPTAIN CORKIN ENTERTAINED A GUEST FOR CHRISTMAS DINNER AT THE OFFICERS' MESS... CAPTAIN CORKIN WAS A MESS -AND SO WAS THE GUEST A MESS...YOU CAN GUESS THE REST-I'M GOIN' NUTS!
WHY DON'T GUYS LIKE ME MEET A BEE-YOU-TEE-FUL DOLL IN THESE HERE MOUNTINGS-LIKE THE 'JOKER IN THAT "LOST HORIZON" STORY?...I'LL BET IF I SAW A GAL SHE'D BE 190 YEARS OLD -AND LOOK IT-RIGHT OFF THE BAT!

I'LL GIVE THEM SOMETHING TO CELEBRATE WHEN THEY WAKE UP IN THE MORNING-
THERE'S THE LOOT ON THE SHELF-BUT AH-I'VE GOT THE MAGIC AMULET-I CAN REACH IT-
I'LL HAVE TO BE CAREFUL-CAN'T GET CAUGHT NOW-
MADAME TAKEUM
THERE MUST BE PLENTY IN THIS BOX-IT'S HEAVY ENOUGH-A LOT OF PEOPLE MUST HAVE FALLEN FOR THAT GOLD MINE YARN-
LATER-BACK IN THE HOLIDAY BARN-TIM PRIES THE STRONG BOX OPEN-
WOW! LOOK AT THIS! IT'S A FORTUNE-AND HERE'S THAT LITTLE BLACK BOOK-HM-M-THE NAMES AND ADDRESSES OF THE VICTIMS-WITH THE AMOUNTS THEY WERE TAKEN FOR BY THOSE THREE CROOKS-
-AND ONLY FIVE DAYS TO CHRISTMAS-HERE ARE SOME OF THOSE IN THE BLACK BOOK WHO ARE STILL WAITING FOR THE OLD MAN WITH THE WHITE WHISKERS-BUT IT'S NOT SANTA CLAUS-IT'S THE OLD PROSPECTOR WITH THE BAG OF GOLD ON HIS SHOULDERS-
HARLIE SKINNER-SUCKER NO. 1-
WHAT A SAP I'VE BEEN-I'LL NEVER HEAR FROM HIM NOW-AND A FEW OF THE OTHERS-
OH, DEAR-WILL I EVER HEAR FROM THAT OLD PROSPECTOR? AND I DID SO WANT TO SURPRISE MY HUSBAND-
MY LIFE'S SAVINGS GONE! OW-W!
AND IT WAS EVERY PENNY WE HAD IN THE WORLD-
AND SO THE CHRISTMAS JINGLE DWINDLES INTO A DIRGE FOR THE UNHAPPY VICTIMS-

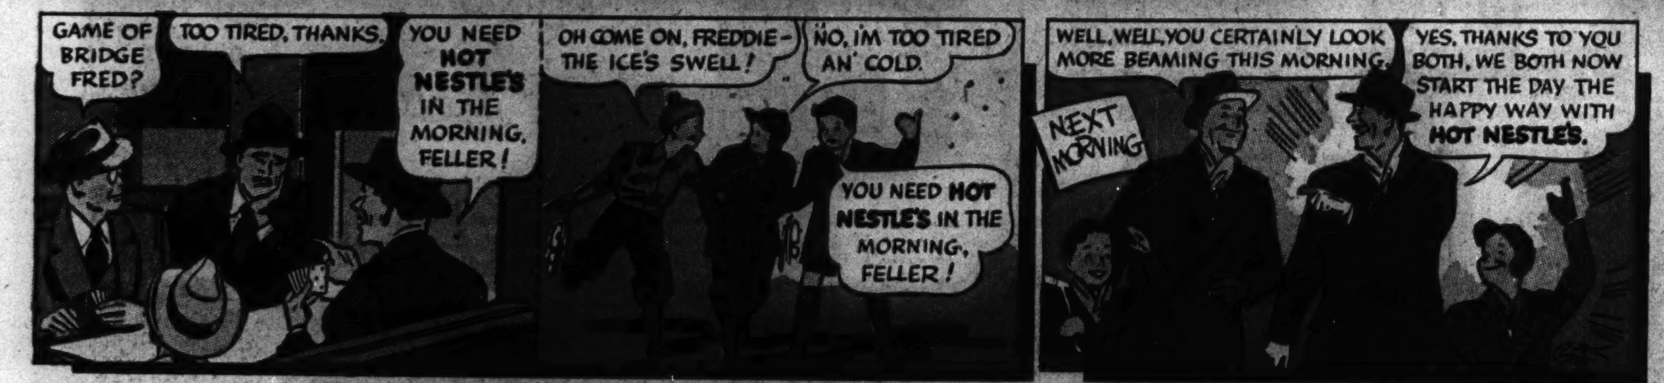
WHAT'S WRONG, FRED?
SLEPT LATE, TOM—NO BREAKFAST. --CAN'T GET GOING WITHOUT SOMETHING HOT IN MY STOMACH.
BUY U.S. WAR BONDS & STAMPS
WHAT'S EATING YOU, FREDDIE?
GEE TOMMY, I'M FREEZING.
WHY YELL AT ME? WHAT DID I DO?
YOU?—NOTHING! I SUPPOSE HE JUST SKIPPED BREAKFAST AGAIN.
EXCELLENT, TOMMY WHY CAN'T YOU DO AS WELL EVERY MORNING, FREDDIE?
MAYBE I COULD IF IT WAS SUMMER.



GAME OF BRIDGE FRED?
TOO TIRED, THANKS.
YOU NEED HOT NESTLE'S IN THE MORNING, FELLER!
OH COME ON, FREDDIE—THE ICE'S SWELL!
NO, I'M TOO TIRED AN' COLD.
YOU NEED HOT NESTLE'S IN THE MORNING, FELLER!
NEXT MORNING
WELL, WELL, YOU CERTAINLY LOOK MORE BEAMING THIS MORNING.
YES, THANKS TO YOU BOTH, WE BOTH NOW START THE DAY THE HAPPY WAY WITH HOT NESTLE'S.

Start the day the Happy way

EverReady
NESTLE'S
SWEET MILK COCOA

Everyone needs a hot drink on cold mornings, adults as well as children—children perhaps more so, for they need to replace the energy used in growing. Nestle's EverReady Cocoa helps supply that energy—saves Mother's energy too, 'cause it's prepared in a jiffy—just three spoonfuls in a cup—add hot water—serve—and everyone's set for a happy day. It costs no more than ordinary cocoa.

THE MILK AND SUGAR ARE IN IT

A BREAK FOR THE FAMILY

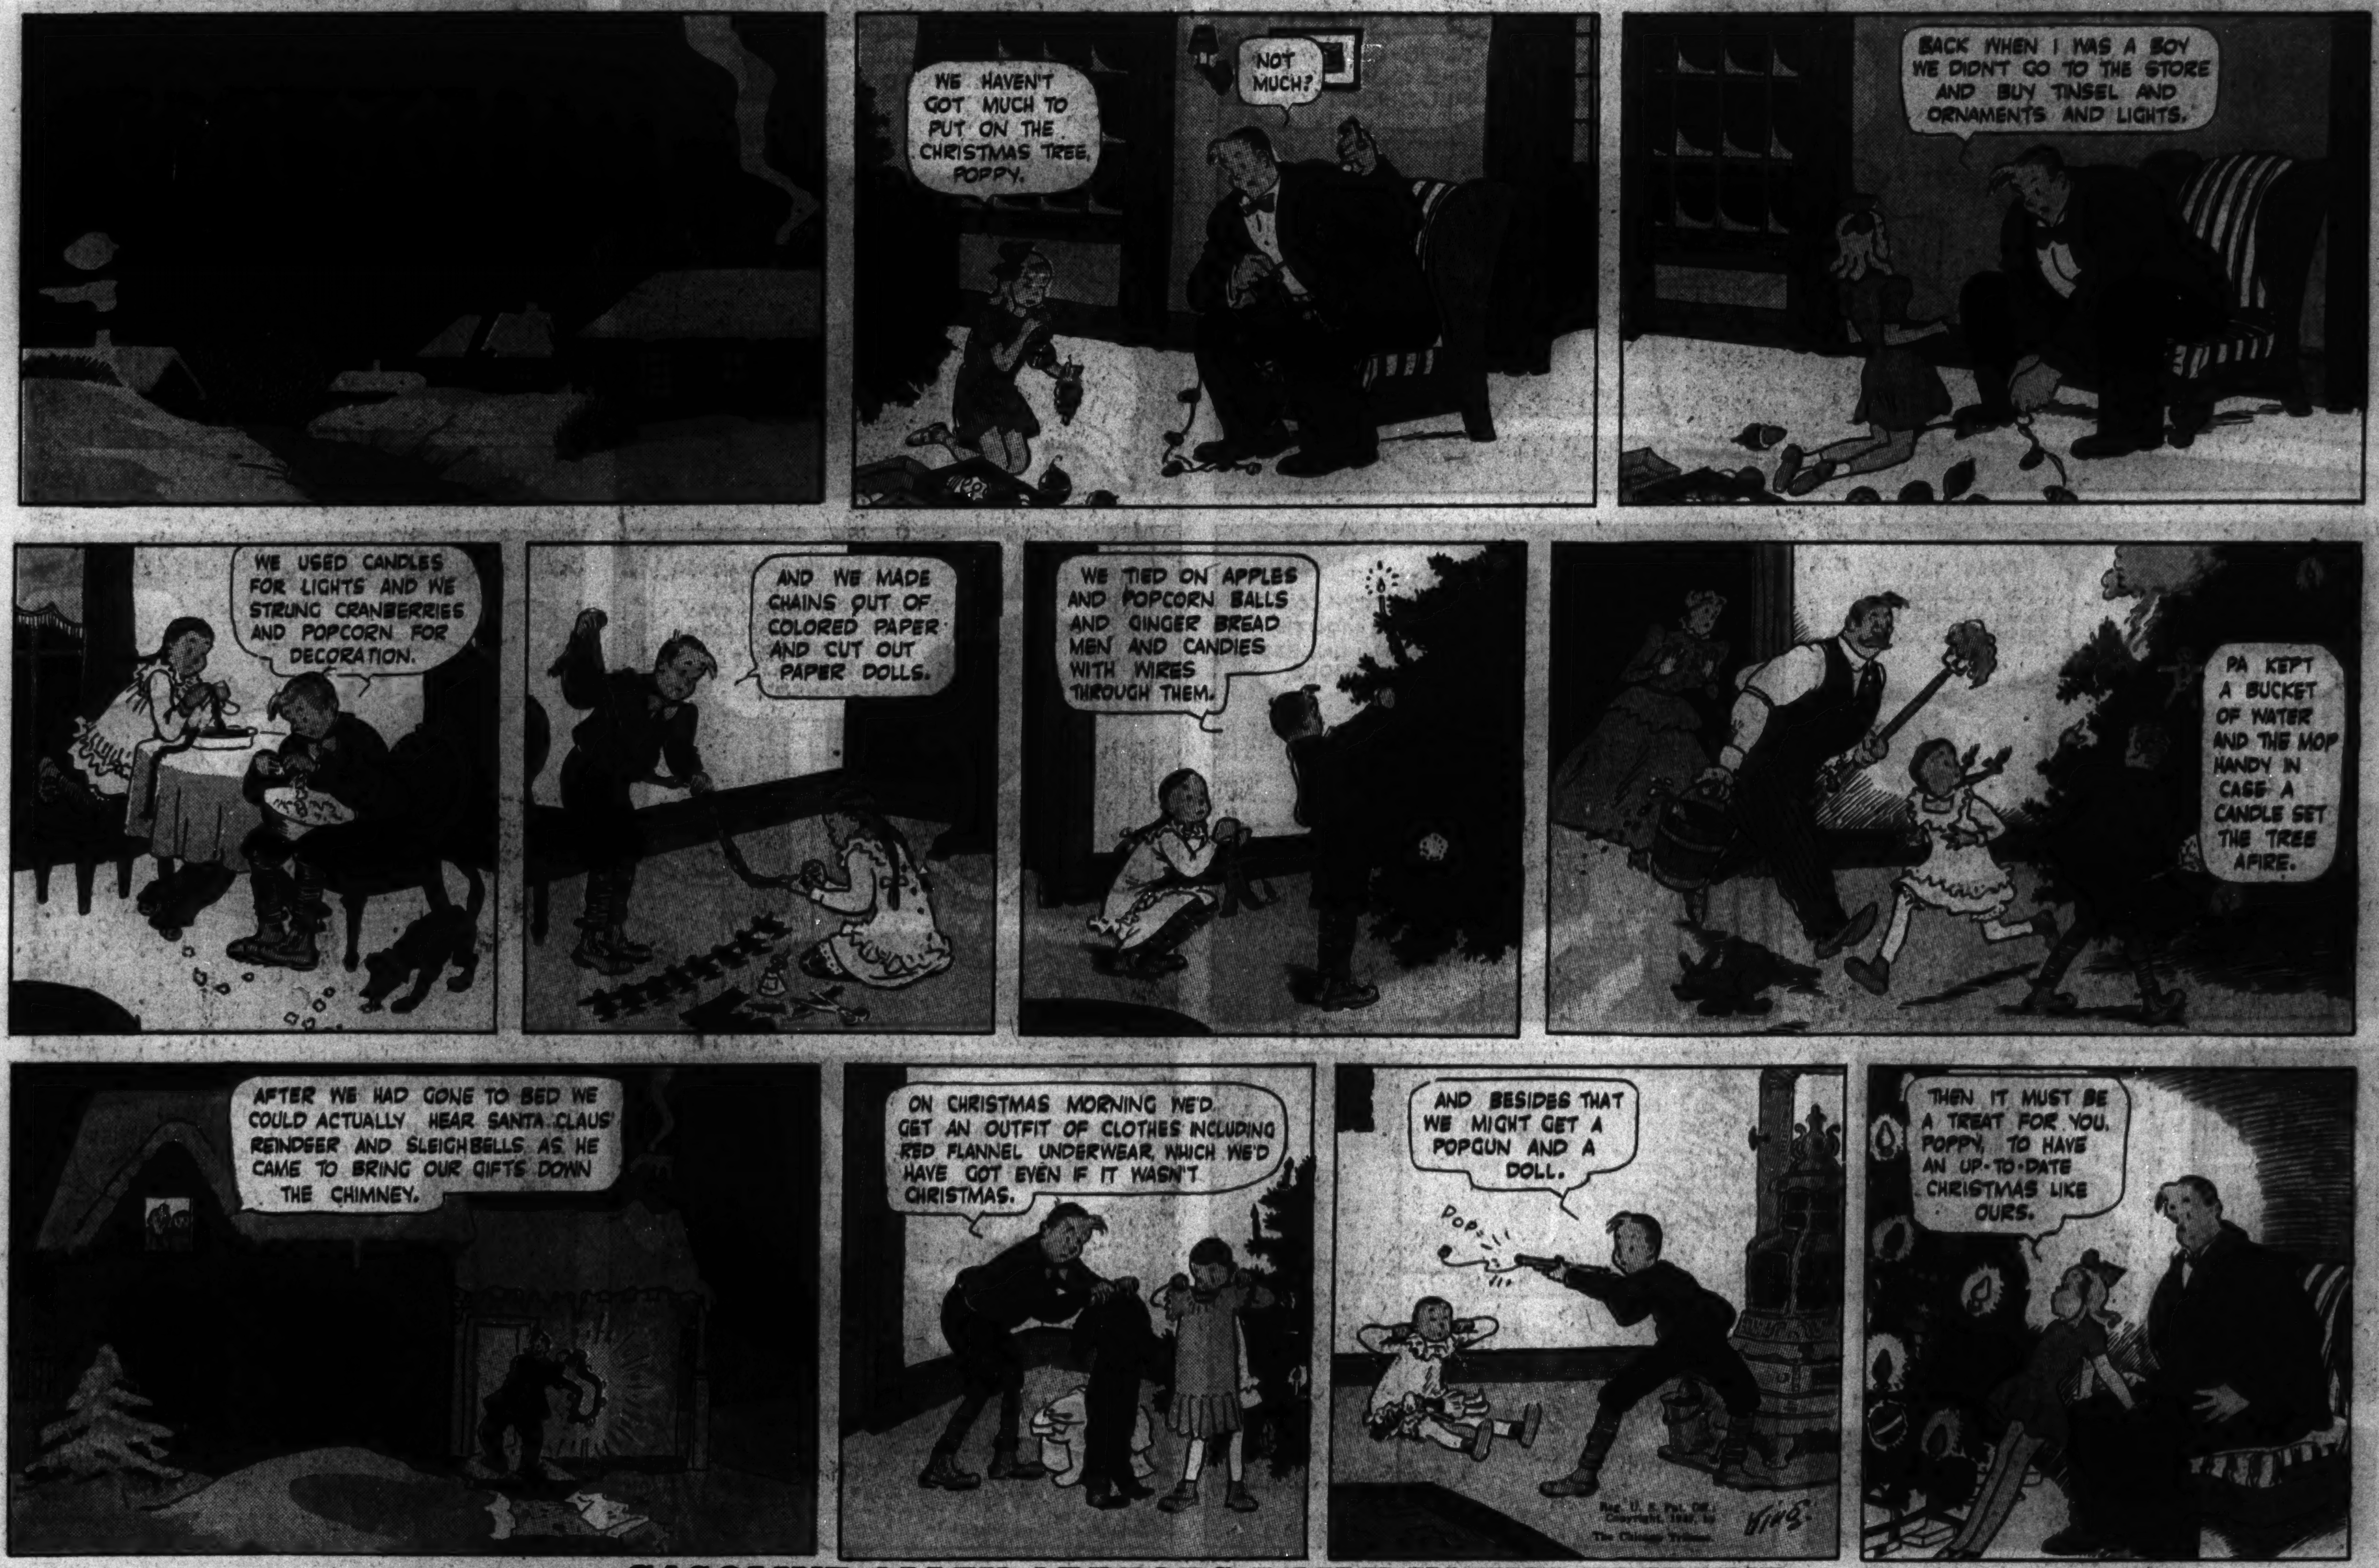
OH DEAR—I CAN'T THINK OF ANYTHING TO GIVE THE GIRLS FOR DESSERT, TOMORROW!
GIVE 'EM TOLL HOUSE COOKIES THEY HAVE WHOLE PIECES OF NESTLE'S SEMI-SWEET CHOCOLATE IN 'EM.
MY DEAR, I NEVER TASTED ANYTHING SO DELICIOUS! WHAT ARE THEY?
TOLL HOUSE COOKIES — THE RECIPE IS ON EVERY PACKAGE OF NESTLE'S SEMI-SWEET.
FOR ONCE BETTY, MY SUGAR PLUM, I CAN REALLY BE ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT YOUR BRIDGE PARTIES.
MORE!
MOM'S A SWELL COOK.
ONLY TROUBLE WITH TOLL HOUSE COOKIES IS, THEY DISAPPEAR SO FAST! AND NO WONDER—THEY'RE SO GOLDEN BROWN AND CRUNCHY CRISP!

FOR MAKING DELICIOUS TOLL HOUSE COOKIES

Your grocer has Nestle's Semi-Sweet Chocolate in the 7-oz. Economy Size Bars or in 7-oz. bags of Morsels.

Morsels are just the right size for making Toll House Cookies, the original recipe for which is printed on the back of both bar and bag wrappers. Nestle's Semi-Sweet is the only chocolate called for in the original recipe. Be sure to ask for it by name at your dealer's.



WE HAVEN'T GOT MUCH TO PUT ON THE CHRISTMAS TREE, POPPY.
NOT MUCH?
BACK WHEN I WAS A BOY WE DIDN'T GO TO THE STORE AND BUY TINSEL AND ORNAMENTS AND LIGHTS.
WE USED CANDLES FOR LIGHTS AND WE STRUNG CRANBERRIES AND POPCORN FOR DECORATION.
AND WE MADE CHAINS OUT OF COLORED PAPER AND CUT OUT PAPER DOLLS.
WE TIED ON APPLES AND POPCORN BALLS AND GINGER BREAD MEN AND CANDIES WITH WIRES THROUGH THEM.
PA KEPT A BUCKET OF WATER AND THE MOP HANDY IN CASE A CANDLE SET THE TREE AFIRE.
AFTER WE HAD GONE TO BED WE COULD ACTUALLY HEAR SANTA CLAUS' REINDEER AND SLEIGHBELLS AS HE CAME TO BRING OUR GIFTS DOWN THE CHIMNEY.
ON CHRISTMAS MORNING WE'D GET AN OUTFIT OF CLOTHES INCLUDING RED FLANNEL UNDERWEAR, WHICH WE'D HAVE GOT EVEN IF IT WASN'T CHRISTMAS.
AND BESIDES THAT WE MIGHT GET A POPGUN AND A DOLL.

FOR TH'— JUMPIN' JELLY BEANS! BETSY, GET BARNSTORM, QUICK!!
OO-UGH!
FOXXY! WHY, WE ALL THOUGHT YOU WENT HOME —WHAT'S BEEN GOIN ON?
OH, BABY! IT FEELS GOOD TO GET THAT GAG OFF, WHEW!— HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED, LEW—
I SAW A GUY MONKEYIN' AROUN OVER IN TH' FIELD AN' WENT OVER TO SEE WHAT HE WAS DOIN'—
WHEN I GOT NEAR HIM SOMEBODY IN BACK O' ME KLUNKED ME ON TH' NOGGIN' WITH SOMETHIN' HARD AN TH' LIGHTS WENT OUT— GEE! THANKS, LEW—
WHEW! NO WONDER I WAS DEAD TO TH' WORLD FOR A WHILE — FEEL THIS GOSH! HE CERTAINLY LAYED AN EGG ON YOUR DOME—WHERE DID YOU SAY THAT BIRD WAS MESSIN' AROUN'?
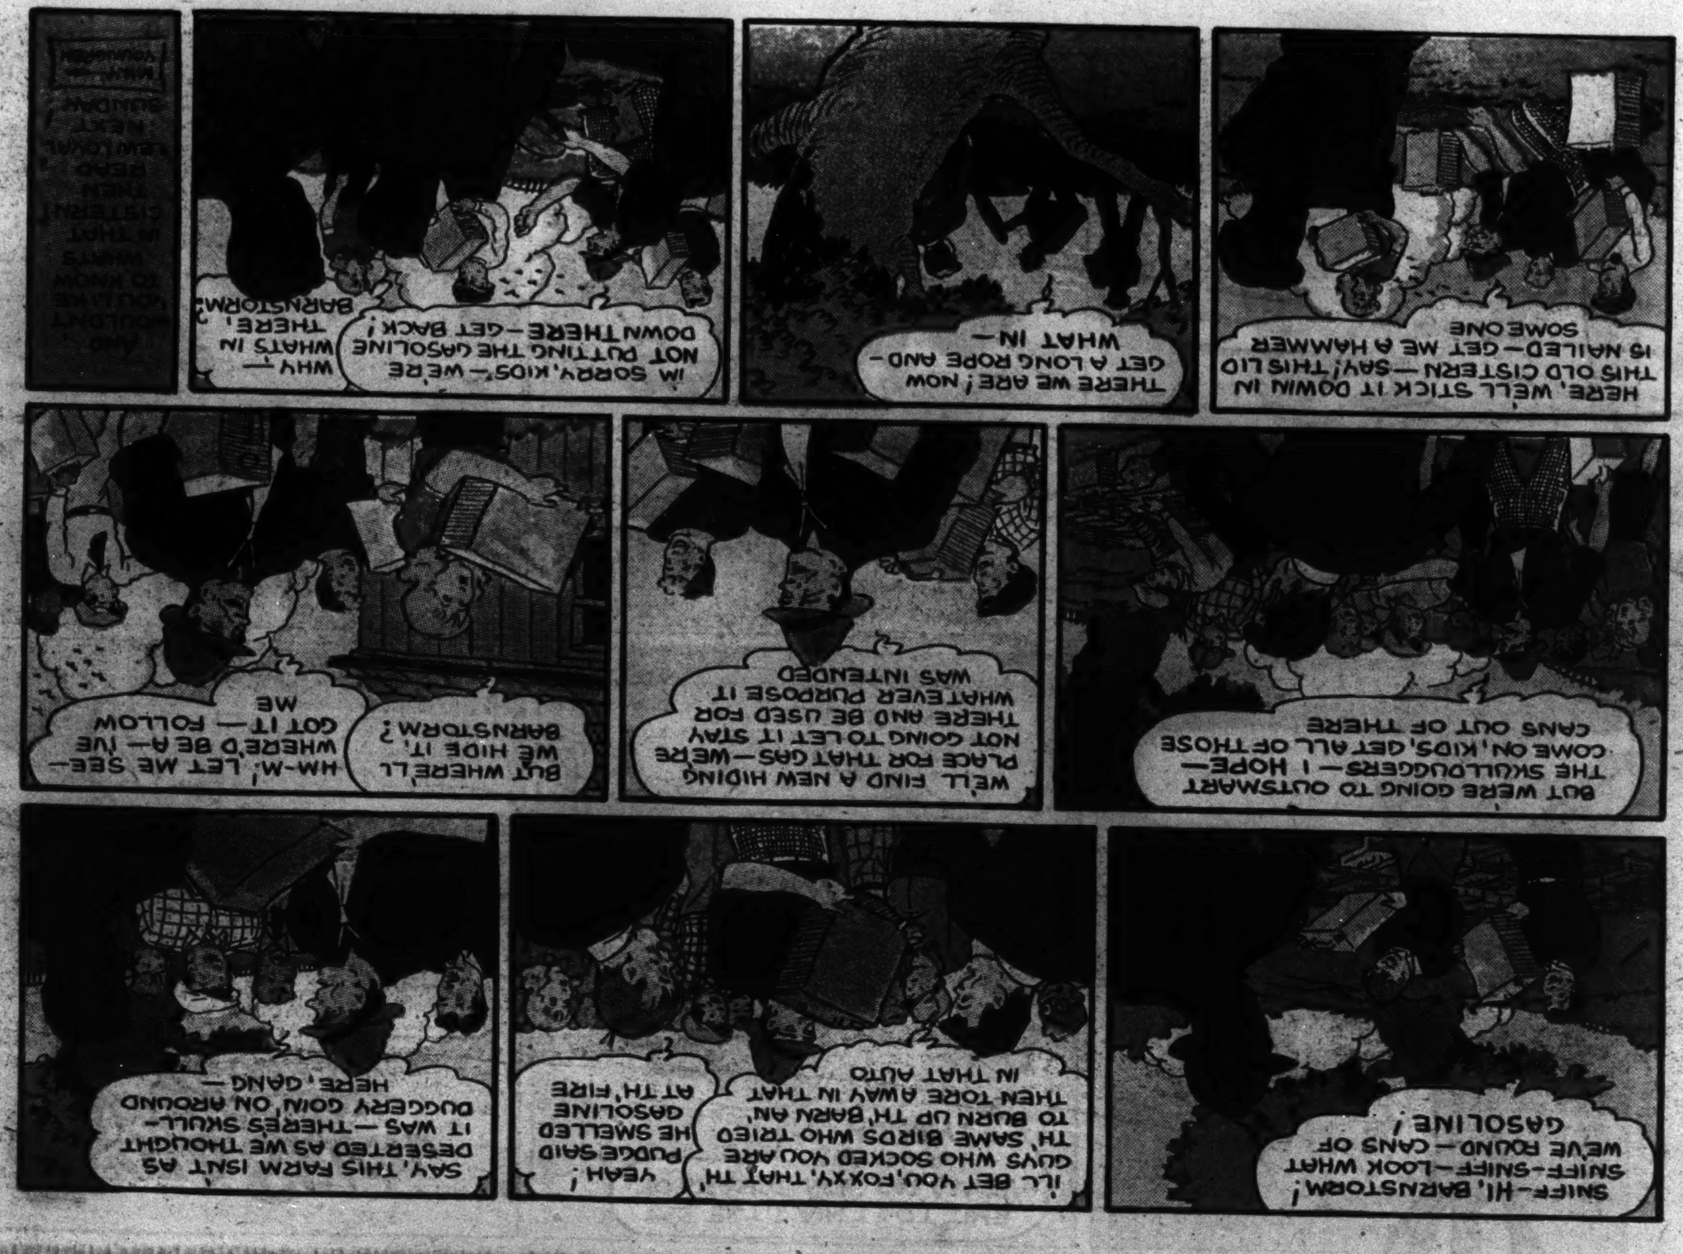
OVER THERE BY THAT BIG TREE—COME, I'LL SHOW YOU
IT WAS RIGHT ABOUT HERE
SAY! THERE'S SOMETHIN' UNDER THIS PILE O' BRANCHES
CANS!
FOR TH' LOVE O'— A WHOLE PIT FULL OF 'EM



SNIFF—HI, BARNSTORM! SNIFF—SNIFF—LOOK WHAT WE'VE FOUND—CANS OF GASOLINE!
I'LL BET YOU, FOXXY, THAT TH' GUYS WHO SOCKED YOU ARE TH' SAME BIRDS WHO TRIED TO BURN UP TH' BARN AN' THEN TORE AWAY IN THAT IN THAT AUTO
YEAH! PUDGE SAID HE SMELLED GASOLINE AT TH' FIRE
SAY, THIS FARM ISN'T AS DESERTED AS WE THOUGHT IT WAS —THERE'S SKULL-DUGGERY GOIN' ON AROUND HERE, GANG—
BUT WE'RE GOING TO OUTSMART THE SKULLDUGGERS— I HOPE— COME ON, KIDS, GET ALL OF THOSE CANS OUT OF THERE
WE'LL FIND A NEW HIDING PLACE FOR THAT GAS—WE'RE NOT GOING TO LET IT STAY THERE AND BE USED FOR WHATEVER PURPOSE IT WAS INTENDED
BUT WHERE'LL WE HIDE IT, BARNSTORM?
HM-M! LET ME SEE— WHERE'D BE A— I'VE GOT IT— FOLLOW ME
HERE, WE'LL STICK IT DOWIN IN THIS OLD CISTERN—SAY! THIS LID IS NAILED—GET ME A HAMMER SOMEONE
THERE WE ARE! NOW GET A LONG ROPE AND— WHAT IN—
I'M SORRY, KIDS—WE'RE NOT PUTTING THE GASOLINE DOWN THERE—GET BACK!
WHY— WHAT'S IN THERE, BARNSTORM?
AND WOULDN'T YOU LIKE TO KNOW WHAT'S IN THAT CISTERN! THEN READ LEW LOYAL NEXT SUNDAY!

THE TWO MEN WHO FLEECED LUCKY REGAW, THE GAMBLER, OUT OF $5000, MEET IN THE BASEMENT OF THE BUILDING ACROSS THE STREET FROM THE CITY HOSPITAL.
I JUST SHUT OFF THE LIGHTS, ANGEL. DID THEY WORK OUT ALL RIGHT?
PERFECT—THE LIGHTED WINDOWS FORMED A BIG OK —JONES GOT THE SIGNAL RIGHT AWAY.
THEN I CAN KISS THIS WEEK OLD JANITOR JOB GOODBYE. I HATE HARD WORK.
THAT WAS THE ONLY WAY YOU COULD GET INSIDE THE BUILDING TO ARRANGE THOSE LIGHTS. IT WAS A PERFECT SET-UP — AND IT'LL WORK ANYWHERE.
YEAH—JONES FAKES A CONTEMPLATED SUICIDE FROM A HIGH BUILDING—A CROWD GATHERS DOWN ON THE STREET—WE FIND A SUCKER WITH A LOT OF DOUGH WHO THINKS JONES IS GOING TO JUMP.
THE SUCKER BETS—THEN YOU FLASH THE OK SIGN. —JONES SEES IT AND SUDDENLY TAKES A NEW LEASE ON LIFE—HA! HA!
WELL—LET'S GO. JONES IS PROBABLY WONDERING HOW WE MADE OUT.
NICE OF THE HOSPITAL TO LET US IN—IT'S AFTER VISITING HOURS.
HERE'S JONES' BED—HE'S ALL COVERED UP.—HM! THAT FIREMAN IS STILL HERE.
HELLO, BOYS! IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR JONES YOU'LL FIND HIM OUT ON THE LEDGE AGAIN—FULLY DRESSED THIS TIME!
WH! IT'S LUCKY ?!!?!!
YOU CAN WAIT OUT THERE TOO—UNTIL THE COPS GET HERE.
DON'T! WE'LL FALL OFF AND BE KILLED!! HERE'S YOUR $5000.
LOOKS LIKE YOUR LITTLE SKIN GAME IS BACK-FIRING BOYS.
WELL, LUCKY, I GUESS IT'S GOING TO BE A MERRY CHRISTMAS FOR YOU AFTER ALL.

ROCKY THE STONE-AGE KID
by FRANK ENGLI
I'M WORRIED!
...YOU TELL ME THAT THE BIG ONE IS A SPY FOR THE INVISIBLE ZERO TRIBE?...
THAT'S RIGHT!
I'VE NEVER HEARD OF THEM! —WHO ARE THESE PEOPLE?
WELL... I HEARD SOME OF THE VILLAGERS TALK ABOUT 'EM...
...AND THEY SAY THAT THE LITTLE DEVILS DO THEIR DIRTY WORK AT NIGHT WHEN NOBODY CAN SEE THEM...
OH MY!
...IN THE DAYTIME THEY DISGUISE THEMSELVES AS TREES, STUMPS AND VARIOUS PLANTS AND SOME HIDE UNDER ROCKS AND BUSHES... NO ONE HAS EVER SEEN ONE OF THESE ZERO MEN FACE TO FACE...
...THEY HAVE TRAINED BEASTS TO SNOOP AROUND IN THE VILLAGES AND FIND OUT WHERE FOOD SUPPLIES ARE STORED FOR THE WINTER...
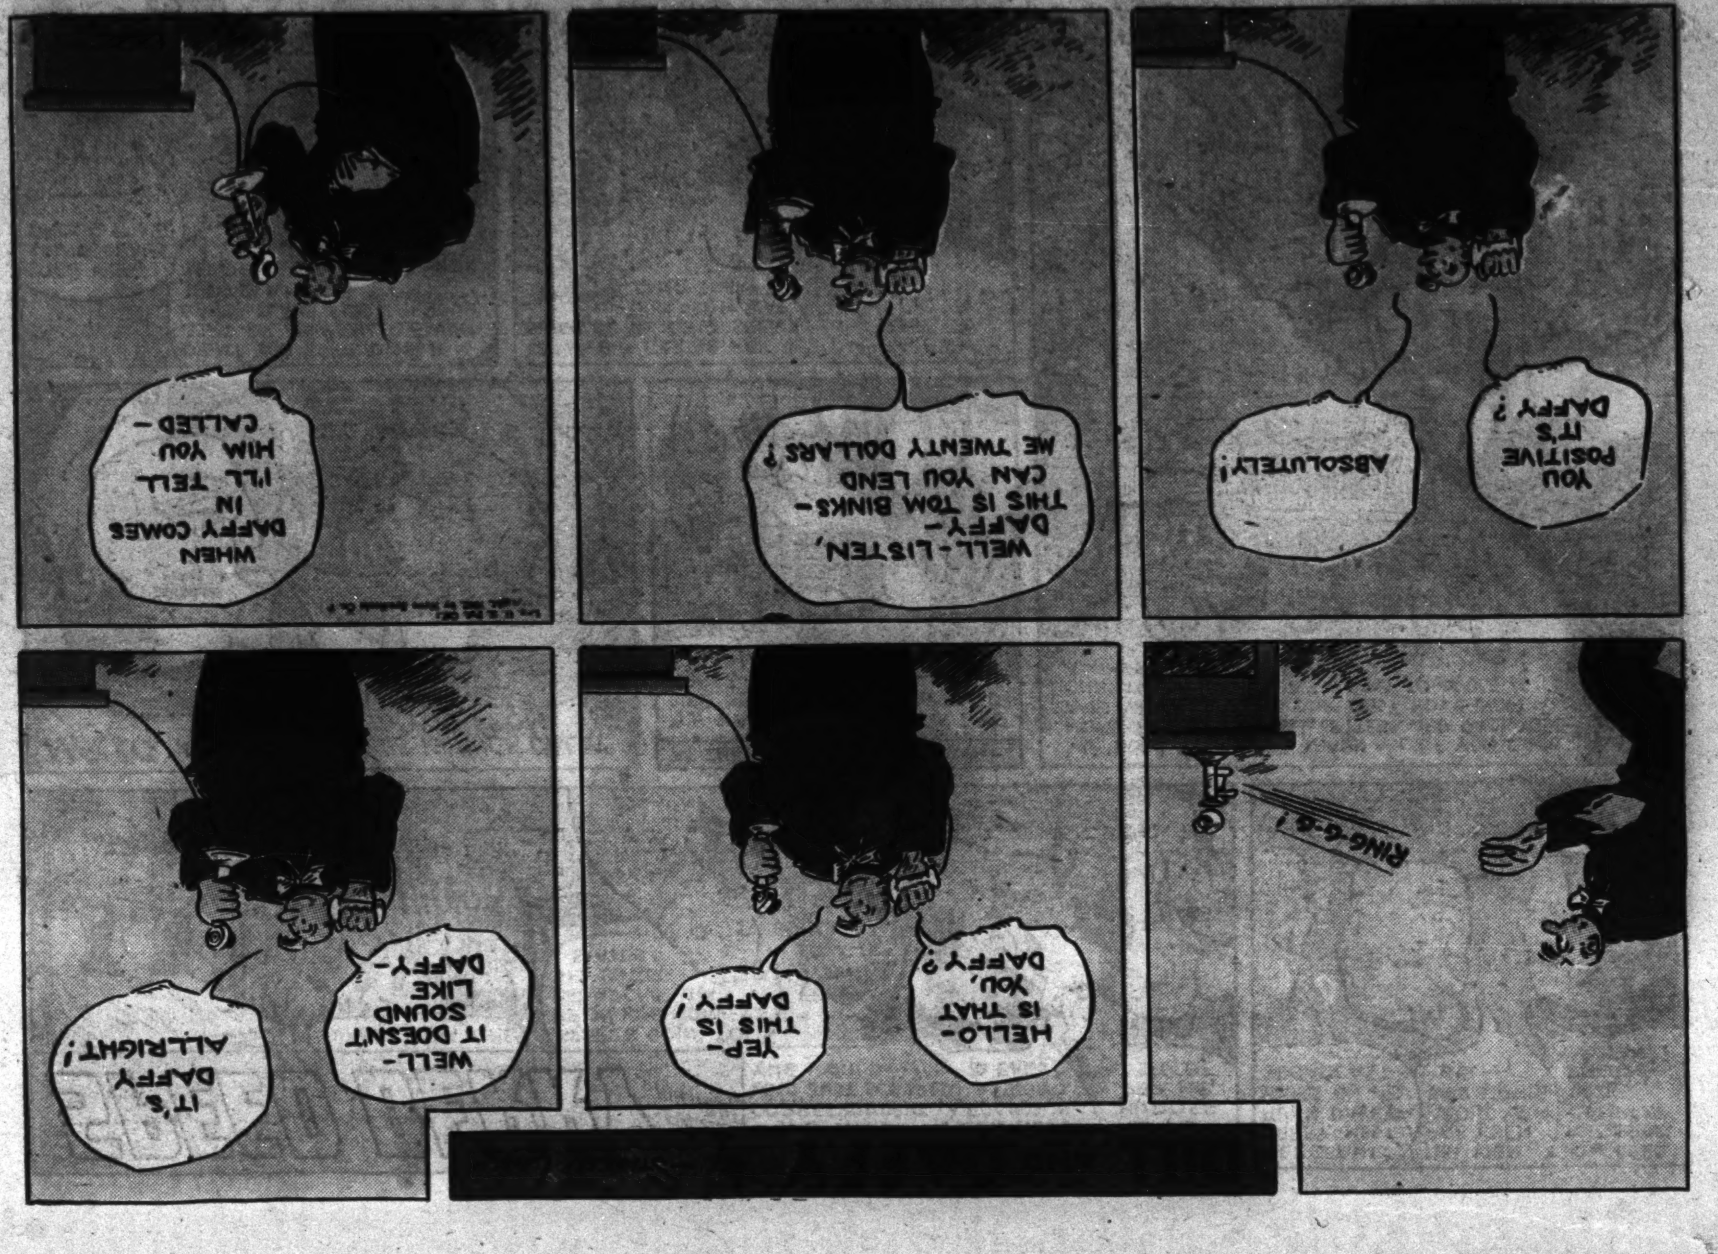
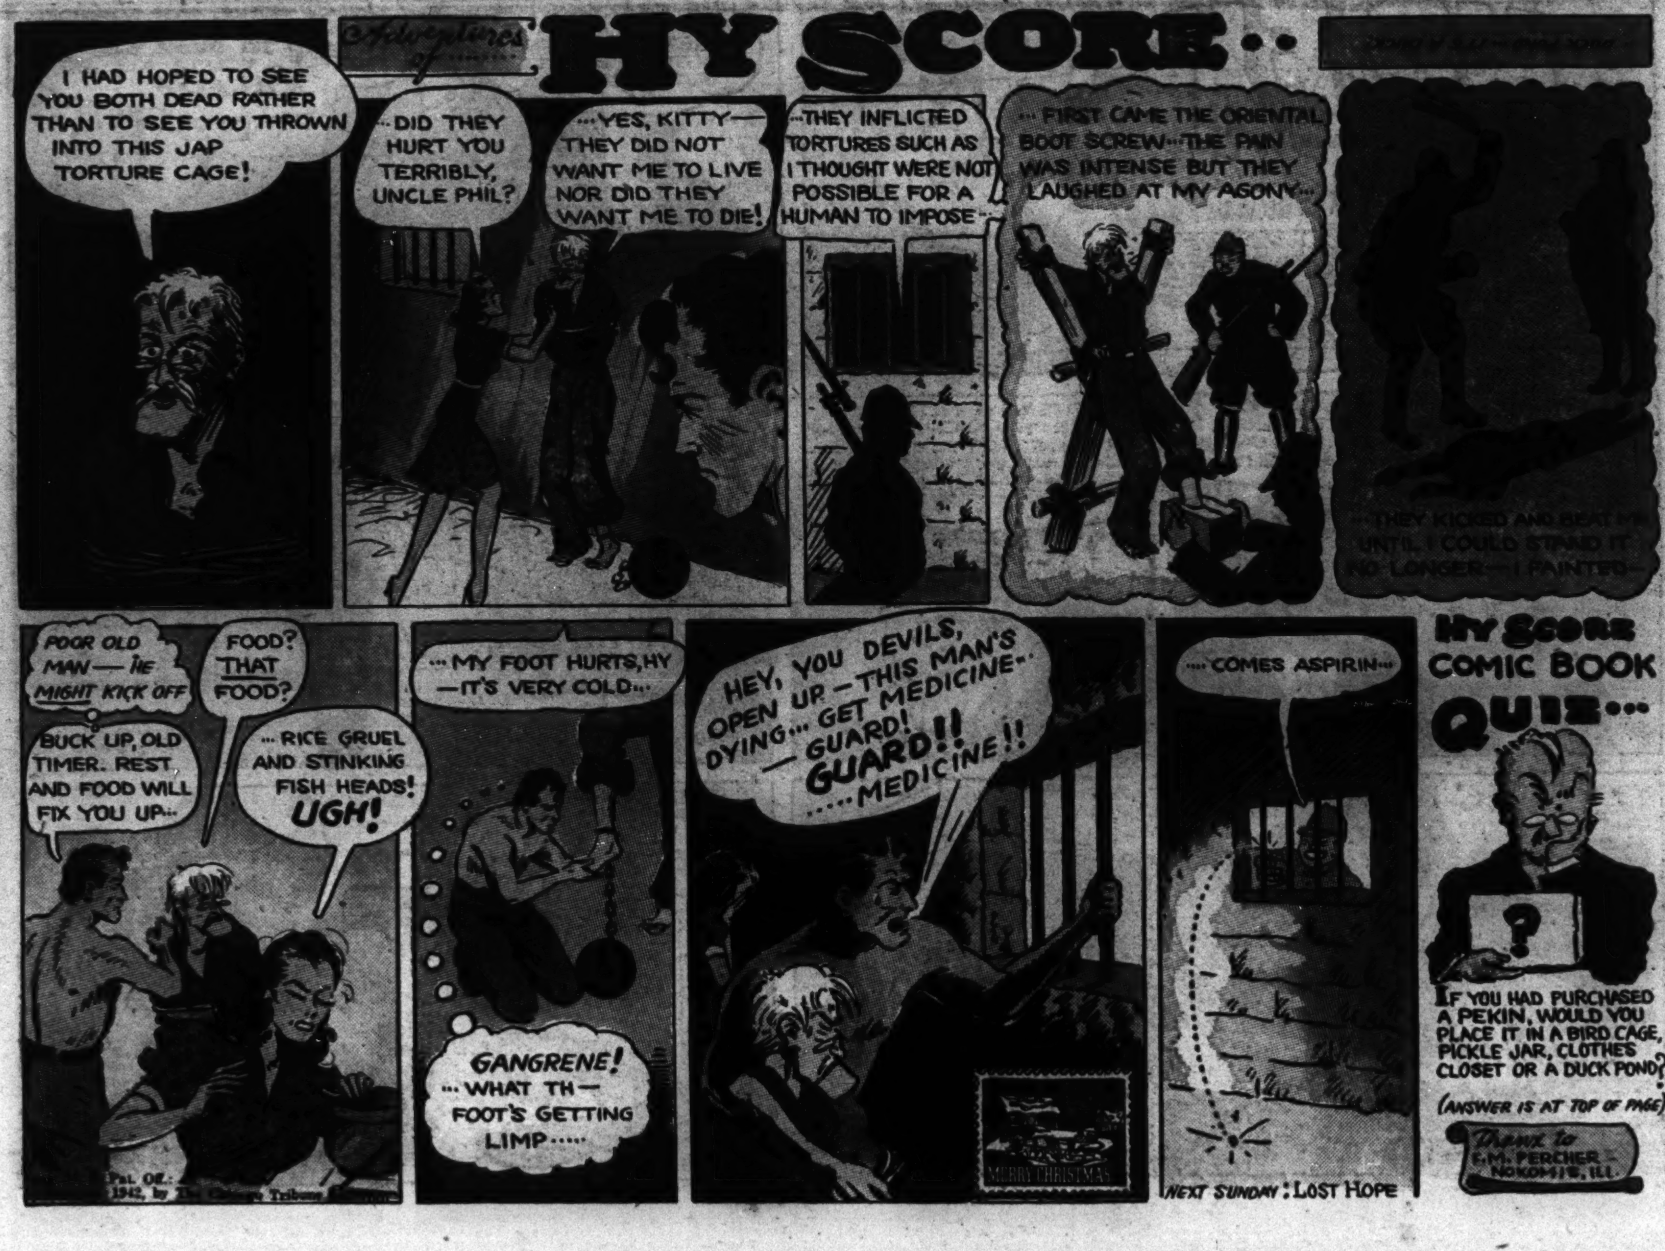
...THEN IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT THESE NASTY LITTLE ZEROS COME AND STEAL THE FOOD — THEIR WHOLE IDEA IS TO LIVE OFF THE FAT OF THE LAND WITHOUT DOING ANY WORK!
BUT WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO, ROCKY?
WE'VE GOTTA OUT-FOX 'EM, THAT'S ALL... FIRST, I'LL FIND OUT WHERE THE GANG IS HIDING — I'LL FOLLOW BIG SNOOPER...
...HEY! WHERE IS HE? OH, MY GOSH!... HE'S GONE!



RING-G-G!
HELLO- IS THAT YOU, DAFFY?
YEP- THIS IS DAFFY!
WELL- IT DOESN'T SOUND LIKE DAFFY-
IT'S DAFFY ALLRIGHT!
YOU POSITIVE IT'S DAFFY?
ABSOLUTELY!
WELL-LISTEN, DAFFY- THIS IS TOM BINKS- CAN YOU LEND ME TWENTY DOLLARS?
WHEN DAFFY COMES IN I'LL TELL HIM YOU CALLED-



Adventures of HY SCORE..
I HAD HOPED TO SEE YOU BOTH DEAD RATHER THAN TO SEE YOU THROWN INTO THIS JAP TORTURE CAGE!
...DID THEY HURT YOU TERRIBLY, UNCLE PHIL?
...YES, KITTY— THEY DID NOT WANT ME TO LIVE NOR DID THEY WANT ME TO DIE!
...THEY INFLICTED TORTURES SUCH AS I THOUGHT WERE NOT POSSIBLE FOR A HUMAN TO IMPOSE—
...FIRST CAME THE ORIENTAL BOOT SCREW...THE PAIN WAS INTENSE BUT THEY LAUGHED AT MY AGONY...
...THEY KICKED AND BEAT ME UNTIL I COULD STAND IT NO LONGER— I FAINTED—POOR OLD MAN — HE MIGHT KICK OFF
FOOD? THAT FOOD?
BUCK UP, OLD TIMER. REST AND FOOD WILL FIX YOU UP...
...RICE GRUEL AND STINKING FISH HEADS! UGH!
...MY FOOT HURTS, HY —IT'S VERY COLD...
GANGRENE! ...WHAT TH— FOOT'S GETTING LIMP.....
HEY, YOU DEVILS, OPEN UP—THIS MAN'S DYING... GET MEDICINE... —GUARD! GUARD!! .....MEDICINE!!
MERRY CHRISTMAS

JOLIET PLANT TO GET 'E' FLAG OF ARMY, NAVY

Ordnance Workers to Hear Green.

The E flag of the army and navy, won by the Kankakee ordnance works at Joliet, will be presented to the plant and its workers tomorrow afternoon in an outdoor ceremony at which military and civic dignitaries will be present.

Gov. Dwight H. Green will be the principal speaker at the outdoor program, which will begin at 3:30 o'clock and continue for 40 minutes. The governor will discuss the significance of the award.

Col. Gerber to Give Flag.

Within view of the plant's workers, both men and women, Col. T. C. Gerber, field director of ammunition plants, will present the flag to the Kankakee ordnance works. P. S. Cushing, works manager, will accept it on behalf of the employés. As a color guard from the Kankakee ordnance works patrol raises the E flag, the Joliet Township High school band will play the march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Preceding the presentation ceremony, Maj. R. L. Logan, army chaplain of the sixth service command, will deliver an invocation. This will be followed by an address of welcome from Maj. E. F. Werly, commanding officer of the ordnance works. The entire assembly, accompanied by the high school band, will sing "America."

Give Employé Pins.

Employé E pins will be given to workers of the plant. Lt. Comm. P. J. Griffin, naval inspector of ordnance, Chicago, will make the presentation of the pins to Donald L. Puckett, chairman of the plant's war production drive committee.

Melville A. Gray, president of the Joliet Association of Commerce, will preside at the honor program and will introduce the speakers. The American flag will be lowered at the close of the ceremonies, while a bugler plays "retreat," the national anthem will be sung, and as the crowd disperses, the band will play.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

W. ELLIS STEWART, chairman of the board of the Wabash Y. M. C. A. for the last several years, was recently elected to the board of managers of the Metropolitan Y. M. C. A. of Chicago. He is the first Negro to receive this honor, it was announced.

Under the leadership of Stewart, the Wabash Y. M. C. A. has reached a membership of 4,000 and has one of the largest secretarial staffs of any association in the country.

MR. AND MRS. OSCAR VOGLE, 9730 Winston avenue, wished friends "Merry Christmas" with a new kind of greeting card this year. It was a penny postcard, decorated with a patriotic stamp and inscribed with the following poetical explanation:

With economic restrictions and a son overseas,
We are facing this Christmas mingled with unease.
Yet we send you greetings and best wishes galore,
A little less costly, but as sincere as before.

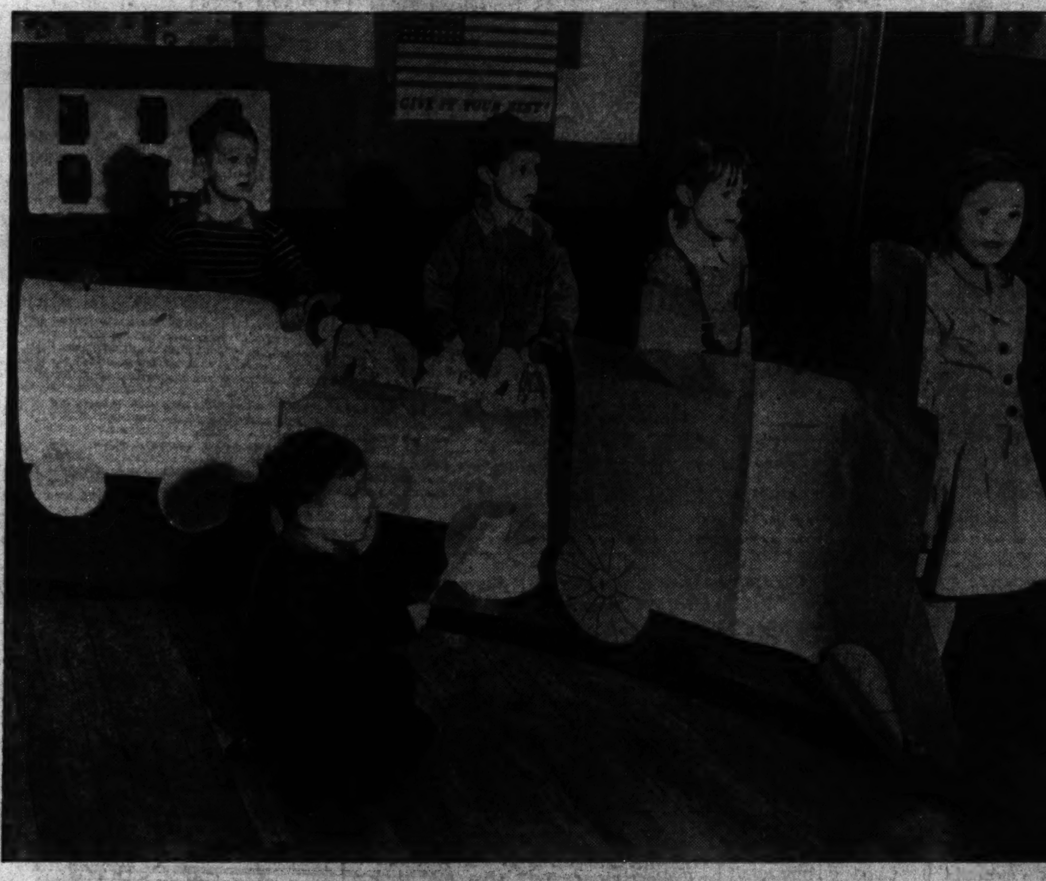
Miss Marion Pille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ceaser Pille of 8255 Langley avenue, is called the Flag Dedication Queen in a number of south side communities. She has sung at eight local flag raisings and is scheduled on many more patriotic programs. A few weeks ago she was winner of first place on the Stars of Tomorrow Sunday program over W-G-N. She is a student at Hirsch High school.

C. L. LEINDECKER, Red Cross general chairman for the Oakland community, and his wife each gave a pint of blood at the Red Cross donor center, 5 North Wabash avenue, last week. Mr. Leindecker is president of the Hyde Park Kiwanis club.

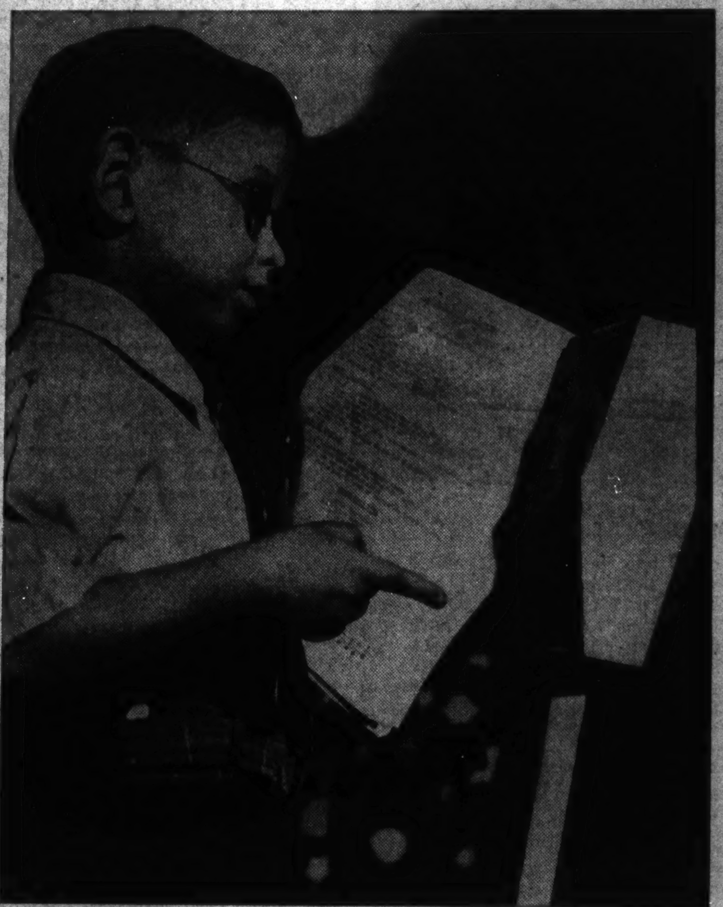
Looking thru THE TRIBUNE recently, Mrs. L. A. Booth of 818 145th street, East Chicago, Ind., recognized her son, Lt. Everett Booth, in a picture taken near Oran. The next day she received a letter from Lt. Booth telling her that he was "somewhere on the coast of North Africa."

Everett Grossenbacher, 5509 South Wells street, will conduct a quiz contest at a vaudeville program to be presented before 800 sailors and soldiers Wednesday evening at the USO club, 21 Green Bay road, Highland Park. Grossenbacher is the archon of Grand Crossing council, Royal League. South siders on the arrangements committee include: George Holmes, 8410 South Peoria street; William Brucks, 7318 South Perry avenue; Thomas W. Clark, 17 West 74th street; E. V. Skepsted, 7000 Chappel avenue; Russell C. Wright, 1400 East 65th street, and Elias G. Rasen, 6525 Drexel avenue.

Toy Train's Plight on Christmas Eve Dramatized by Seward Pupils



When the little train full of toys from Toyland broke down on Christmas eve at the foot of the mountain, it sent out a frantic appeal for help. Boys and girls would not get their toys if the train couldn't get over the mountain. But, a lively little engine rescued the toy train. Seward school kindergarteners, 4600 South Hermitage avenue, will dramatize Tuesday the story of "The Little Engine That Could." Roger Babick, 4528 South Marshfield avenue, flagman (foreground), gives the "go" signal to Bobby Kleppe, 4555 South Paulina street; Gilbert Quirez, 4509 South Justine street; Dolores Perez, 4528 South Ashland avenue, and Dolores Mientkiewicz, 4316 South Hermitage avenue.



The little train's plight is broadcast far and wide. William Waranowski, 4524 South Wood street, at the microphone, appeals for aid. The big important trains, like transcontinental passenger or freight trains, refuse to come. They are too busy. A third locomotive which would like to help is limping along itself with a broken part.

Between rehearsals for the little train play the children get acquainted with a poem that children have always loved. Miss Eleanor Judge, teacher, reads the charming story of "The night before Christmas, when all thru the house, not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse." Miss Josephine T. Allin is principal of Seward school.

Gathered around a radio are Virginia Kolnicki, 4442 South Ashland avenue; Loretta and Leonard Krawiek, 4527 South Hermitage avenue, and Helen Ciatuszuski, 4400 South Honore street. They hear the S O S from the broadcaster and get in touch with the proper authorities who arrange to have a cheery little engine sent to the scene of the trouble. The new engine pulls the load of toys over the mountain.

Christmas decorations will enliven an already shining schoolroom when the Tuesday drama is presented by the 5 year olds. Charles Skovran, 1807 West 46th street, and Mary Katsibubas, 4720 South Marshfield avenue, color with crayon a Christmas sock which they will hang up.

★ With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS ★

Ensign Sterbis.

Bruno Sterbis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Sterbis, 6607 South Rockwell street, recently was commissioned an ensign at the naval air training center, Corpus Christi, Tex. Ensign Sterbis, who formerly attended the University of Illinois, volunteered for flight training last September and received his primary instruction at the Chicago reserve aviation base.

A veteran of the Spanish civil war, Saul D. Fuhrer, who served for seven months in Spain as a member of the Abraham Lincoln brigade and who later was released because of shell shock, now is in the ferrying division, air transport command, in California. He recently was promoted to corporal. Fuhrer was a photo-lithographer before entering the army air force last January. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fuhrer, 3500 Ogden avenue.

Promotions for two southwest side men at Camp Crowder, Missouri, recently were announced. Mario Viglielmo, 25, of 849 West 54th street, has been promoted from technician fourth grade to staff sergeant of the 804th signal service regiment. William D. Daresh, 32, of 7106 South Bishop street, newly advanced to sergeant, is an instructor in electricity in the Midwestern signal corps school.

Sanford Merle French, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles French, 5615 South Honore street, now holds the rank of machinist's mate, third class, at the naval air station at Jacksonville, Fla. He was graduated recently from the aviation machinist's mate school there. French enlisted in the navy on April 7, 1942, and received preliminary work in San Diego, Cal.

Lieut. Simmons.

Word has been received of the promotion of John C. Simmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Simmons, 5937 South Spaulding avenue, to first lieutenant in the army air corps. Lieut. Simmons, who received his combat pilot training at Luke field, Arizona, is now believed to be overseas, the pilot of an attack bomber. He was graduated from DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind., in June, 1941, and entered the army immediately.

Sergt. Edward W. Hagen, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hagen, 104 West 112th place, was recently promoted to sergeant in the aircraft instrument branch of the 26th ferrying squadron at the municipal airport, Nashville, Tenn. Before his enlistment, Hagen was employed in the Pan-American ferrying command at Miami, Fla.

Robert T. Schmidt, 8130 South Hermitage avenue, who was graduated from Lindblom High school in 1927 and later worked for the Cudahy packing company, recently was promoted to private first class at Westover field, Chicopee Falls, Mass. Schmidt previously served at Lowery field, Denver, Col.

In training at the army air forces technical school at Amarillo field, Texas, are Ernest A. Hartman, 5814 South Morgan street, and Henry Schafer, 4828 South Paulina street. The course in aviation mechanics will take several months.

Arthur W. Ainsworth, 6822 Michigan avenue, has been appointed warrant officer, junior grade, at Seymour Johnson field, North Carolina.

Capt. Basinski.

Capt. Alexis S. Basinski, a former southwest side attorney, recently received his captain's rank at Camp Beal, California, according to notice received by his mother, Mrs. Stephanie Basinski, 1815 West Garfield boulevard. Capt. Basinski, who enlisted in the army two years ago, is a former director at the Town of Lake Kiswanis club. At the University of Chicago, from which he received his law degree in 1937, he was enrolled in the ROTC. Capt. Basinski is in the field artillery at Camp Beal.

A recent graduate of the engineers' school at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, Second Lieut. Paul R. Huensch Jr. is now training in the heavy equipment division of the post. He is a 1937 graduate of Harper High school, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Huensch, 6526 South Mozart street.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS OF BETHEL NO. 11 SEAT OFFICERS

New officers of Bethel No. 11, Order of Job's Daughters, were installed recently at the Auburn Park Masonic temple, 7832 South Union avenue. Inducted into office were Grace Welch, honored queen; Jane Wolcott, senior princess; Jean Dorl, junior princess; Dorothy Dalzell, guide, and Mary Ann Wurst, marshal. Other officers are Jean Shogren, Grace Erickson, Ethel Johnston, Luella Carlson, Adele Olson, Beatrice Holmes, Elaine Shogren, Jean Webster, Caroline Miller, Doris Marks, Rowena Myers, Shirley Swanson, June Wilson, and Lois Biehler.

WEST END SCOUT LEADERS GATHER; FORM NEW UNIT

John E. Egan.

Boy Scout leaders of West End community, 50 in number, who met last week with John E. Egan, new chairman of the West End unit of the Southwest council, in his offices at 5908 South Kedzie avenue, formed a Scouters organization. The group will meet in the Egan offices at 8:30 o'clock on the third Thursday night of every month.

E. T. Allen, 5705 South Troy street, was named president of the new Scouters group. E. A. Uecker, 5348 South Maplewood avenue, is vice president, and Don Gurney, 4845 South Wolcott street, secretary and treasurer.

Donald, who is 17 years old, is captain of Company D, and also captain of the Culver Rifles honor guard. He is a member of the boxing team at the academy. Before entering Culver Military school, Donald atended Fort Dearborn elementary school. The young cadet will spend the holidays with his parents. He arrived home last Thursday, and will be here until Jan. 12, 1943.

Tot Looks to 10 'Mothers' for Big Christmas

BY EILEEN BURKE.

Most little girls have only one mother planning ways to make a pair of blue eyes dance merrily on Christmas morning, but there's a tiny girl on the southwest side, named Marilyn, who has 10 "mothers." And they're all busy thinking up surprises to put under her Christmas tree.

Marilyn's "mothers" are 10 nuns of the Franciscan Order of St. Kunegunda who keep the Guardian Angel Day nursery, 4600 McDowell avenue, where the little girl has lived since she was 7 months old. Now she is approaching her fourth birthday.

Father Asked Help.

When Marilyn's mother died a few hours after her birth, Chester Drechney, her father, was faced with the helpless problem of finding some one to take care of the baby. It was then that be begged Sister Proxeda, superior at the nursery, to "please take care of Marilyn for him."

Special permission had to be obtained because the institution is licensed as a day nursery and, technically, isn't allowed to keep children overnight. Permission, however, was granted and the Drechney baby was brought there to live. Her father pays her board and comes to visit her every Sunday.

In the meantime, the nursery is Mariilyn's home. She has her own little white poster bed and Sister Humiliata, in whose special charge she has been for two years, stays close to her—day and night.

Parents War Workers.

Sister Humiliata has charge of the nursery which takes care of about 35 children per day, whose parents are war workers or work in the stockyards. Most of these children are deposited on the nursery doorstep around 6 o'clock in the morning and remain in the nun's care until late afternoon.

They have supervised play, three healthful meals a day, and those who are old enough are given a kindergarten course. The care which the boys and girls receive is constantly motherlike; hair is combed, faces are washed, and sniffling noses are treated immediately.

Everything included, the maximum charge at the nursery is 35 cents a day, otherwise, the charge is whatever amount a family can afford to pay. If it's difficult for parents to find a spare dime, then there's no charge whatsoever for keeping their children.

Has Place to Self.

When the other boys and girls have gone home at night, the whole nursery is at Marilyn's disposal—the playroom with its slides, swings, sandpiles and teeter totters; the long, shiny floored corridors and the quiet, shadowy chapel; the neat, white kitchen where there always is a large supply of molasses cookies. No wonder Marilyn doesn't care when the other kids leave every night to go home. She has never known another kind of home.

And when the other children talk about their mothers, that doesn't bother her either. She call Sister Humiliata—her special guardian—"Sister Mama." [Sister Humiliata says they'll have to break her of that habit later, when she is old enough to understand.]

"Happy as a Bird."

"She's happy as a little bird—and usually is singing like one," Sister Humiliata said, with a quick smile towards Marilyn who was skipping up steps to the second floor on an errand.

"She's a regular messenger service for all of us and is very conscientious about getting whatever she's sent for—she won't return without it," the sister added.

Evenings are the only time the nuns are afraid Marilyn might grow lonely. But that fear, apparently, is ungrounded so far. She is fond of listening to stories and finds 10 willing story tellers every night as she climbs from one brown robed lap to another. So, until there are no more stories to tell, it seems safe that evenings will never drag for Marilyn.

Hurry Up, Christmas!

She has memorized the story of Bethlehem and can sing a number of Christmas hymns. In fact, at the merest mention of Christmas, she dimples gaily and asks Sister Humiliata why it doesn't "hurry up."

"I want a doll, some dresses, and some candy," Marilyn announced, summing up the most important items on her Christmas list.

At this, Sister Humiliata looked a little wistful thru her smile. "Just listen to that if you think our baby isn't growing up quickly," she said.

Wants Lots of Dresses.

"Already, she's a young lady, thinking about clothes. She wants a lot of dresses and won't think of wearing the same dress two days in a row. Besides that, she must have a hair bow to match every one."

As to what will be done with Marilyn when it is time for her to enter school, the nuns do not know. "We'd like to keep her always," they said, "but we aren't sure what will happen."

MORGAN PARKERS 47 YEARS MARK GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kreteck, 10739 Prospect avenue, recently marked their golden wedding. The couple has been Morgan Park residents for the last 47 years. The occasion was responsible for the presence of three daughters, Mrs. Lucille Stuppi, and Mrs. Carrie McHugh, residents of Los Angeles, and Miss Ann Kreteck of Seattle, Wash. Three other children, Chicago residents, also were on hand: Mrs. M. M. Broman, and Frank and Leo Kreteck.

EXPECT CROWDS AT SERVICES ON SOUTHWEST SIDE

Midnight Worship Is Planned Thursday.

The nations are at war but the church is not. Upon the darkened streets of the city on Christmas eve, the faithful will tread their way this year to candlelighted, incense laden churches.

There again they will hear repeated and will repeat themselves the church's belief in the dignity of life, the right of individual man to personal happiness, and the belief in a higher power.

And as the organist touches his notes with gold—"Gloria in Excelsis Deo"—they will leave, strengthened by a reaffirmation of faith.

Vespers and morning communion services mark the calendar of several churches today. On Christmas eve, Protestant churches will hold 11 o'clock worship services and Catholic congregations will gather for a midnight mass and other celebratory masses on Christmas day. Dramas by school children, the appearance of Santa Claus, and special yule music are scheduled in all churches thruout the coming week.

Tribute to Heroes.

Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 6357 South Marshfield avenue, will extend tribute to its men and women in khaki and blue at the Christmas eve service. While the vested choir, directed by Theodore Barg, sings, members of the congregation who have loved ones in service, will walk down the central aisle with lighted candles.

Outside the church a lighted cross will welcome parishioners, and inside, 30 feet above a Bethlehem scene on the altar, another cross will glow. Irish Stothard, soprano, will sing at the military tribute service. A Christmas cantata, "The Messiah's Coming," will be presented by the 60 voice vested choir at 8 o'clock.

Christmas morning will offer worship at 10:30 o'clock, and William Donaldson, bass, will sing. Dr. Clinton C. Cox is pastor, and Frederick Sarrel is the organist of the church.

Believing that Christmas is a special time for children, the Brainerd Community church, 8805 South Throop street, today will hold a baptismal service at 11 o'clock, the Rev. H. H. Goodell, pastor, announced. This afternoon the young people of the parish will decorate a large tree brought from northern Wisconsin with tiny American flags. Each flag will have the picture of a man in service.

Receive New Members.

"The Street of Hearts," a play, will be given by the church school at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. Christmas eve the choir under the direction of Mrs. Robert McIlroy will sing at the 11 o'clock service. New members will be received into the church next Sunday morning.

The People's Liberal church, 6500 Stewart avenue, will hold a christening service at 10:45 o'clock this morning. The candlelight service at 3 o'clock this afternoon will be followed by a family party at 6 o'clock. Music will be offered by the choir, and Mrs. Arvesta Parrish, contralto, will sing. The Rev. Donald Harrington, pastor, announces that at the tea the Sunday school department will present a play, "A Visit from Santa Claus," directed by Mrs. Ralph Nixon.

Stained glass windows of Morgan Park Congregational church, 11153 South Hoyne avenue, will be illuminated at night this week, the Rev. Hugh S. MacKenzie, pastor, said. A vesper service at 4 o'clock today will be followed by a movie, "Silent Night," at 5 o'clock. From 6 to 7 o'clock, the Probus circle will serve light refreshments at a social hour. Jean Cook Taylor is the music director and Lillian Anderson the organist.

Music at St. Andrew's.

Yule music will be offered by Mrs. Frederick Moore, soprano; Anna C. Bates, organist, and the senior choir at 11 o'clock this morning at St. Andrew's Reformed Episcopal church, 1617 West 99th street. The junior choir, directed by Mrs. David Steck, and the Sunday school department will have a program at 7 o'clock this evening. The Christmas eve service at 11 o'clock will have a procession with candles.

Roseland Presbyterian church, 11200 State street, will have Christmas music at the 10:45 service this morning. A musical pageant, "Good Will Toward Men," will be presented at 8 o'clock this evening, and there will be an 11 o'clock worship service on Christmas eve. Marion Vetterick, soprano, will sing "The Virgin's Lullaby" by Buck this morning. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Peter J. Kortenhaven, organist.

The vested choir will form a processional Christmas eve and will sing "Angels from the Realm of Glory," and the "Hallelujah" chorus by Handel. A trio composed of Jeanne Andersen, Arlene Clark, and Joyce Jenkinson will offer Luther's "Away in a Manger."

Lutheran Matin Service.

Stanley Nicholson, baritone, and Gloria Bloomquist, soprano, will sing at the matin service, to be held at 5:30 o'clock Christmas morning, by St. Matthew's Lutheran church, 89th

MESSKIT—THAT'S MAIL FROM HOME TO BOYS IN WAR

Grandfather Editor Does Bit at Mt. Greenwood.

BY IRENE PONTO.

"I see by the Messkit," Ben Kohaska, a Mount Grenwood boy at Camp Livingston, La., writes to the Messkit's editor, Victor E. McDowell of Mount Greenwood, "that old 'Ding Bat' Casper is in the navy, so say hello for me and tell him to drop a line once in a while."

Editor "Mac," who is himself a grandfather, and has two sons in service—Lieut. [j. g.] Dale, USNR, and Warren—prints Ben's letter in the mimeographed newspaper he sends to Mount Greenwood boys each two weeks, and below the letter he adds:

Sent to 260 Boys.

"And here's old 'Ding Bat,' Ben." A letter from Corgon Casper follows.

The readers of 611's Messkit are the 260 boys scattered over the world and their friends, about 300 strong, in Mount Greenwood, who also "subscribe" to the paper, which is supported by 50 cent or $1 donations from home folks and merchants.

Editor Mac and Mrs. McDowell do all the work of getting out the publication, which ran to 12 pages last issue. The editor, who is a postal railway clerk when he reports to his other job, cuts the stencils and runs off copies on the new power operated mimeograph machine bought recently thru community support. Mrs. McDowell helps with the folding, addressing, stuffing, and recording of changes in names and addresses. Jack, 15, staples the 8½x14 pages together.

Because the parents of the service men are so interested in The Meskit, Editor Mac used to deliver the fresh copies to their homes. But his work increased, and last week when he sent out a call for volunteer delivery help 42 women responded. It is no surprise to find the parents of the boys asking for The Messkit. They have been reading it for the last 10 years, when it began as the newspaper of Troop 611. Dale McDowell started the paper when he was 16 for his fellow Scouts. He continued it as scoutmaster of Troop 611, and his father took over about a year after Dale entered the navy.

By Popular Demand.

McDowell was in correspondence with a half dozen Mount Greenwood boys at the time. Some were from the troop and some were not. There came such a demand for The Messkit that last April Mac called on 60 homes in the community to get addresses of boys who had gone to the elementary school together, worked at the Ridge golf links together, and "roamed the streets together."

He asked for a 50 cent donation to cover a little of the cost of mailing the paper.

When Warren McDowell entered the service a slightly younger group of boys were automatically attached. Warren is at Camp Roberts, Cal., in the field artillery.

The boys overseas get air mail service. When 611's Messkit arrives their shipmates, tentmates, or dugout mates gather around to hear the news and wonder wistfully why their towns don't start something similar. The appreciation of the Mount Greenwood boys is so great—one has just to read the letters they send to the editor—that Mac feels he cannot do enough for them. He and his wife spend their full time on the paper now. Perhaps that is a good thing, for since they can do no more, others have come in to help and the project reaches into many homes.

Refuses Contributions.

Local merchants run business "cards" in the paper. They pay $1 for three months. There were only seven "ads" a few months after the paper bagan and now there are 37. This number should increase by leaps and bounds, Editor Mac says.

This is probably the only paper in the country which asked its friends not to send in contributions after Dec. 5 because the money was not needed. It could be used by the persons themselves, the editor suggested, but added that donations would be gladly received after Jan. 5, 1943.

Even an outsider may feel a tug at the heart strings when he reads 611's Messkit. The hunger of the boys for home news is great. Every letter is printed, and usually the editor adds a note. When Harold L. Edlund wrote from Midway Island the editor answered him in The Messkit:

"Sat in Sunday school with your mother last Sunday, Harold, and she handed us a dollar for the Messkit fund. Your mother, like all mothers, is doing all within her power to make your life in the army and navy and marines happy. With such support you boys cannot fail. Ed."

Prints Homey News.

As the seasons arrive, the boys will read a line among other news—Sept. 29. Smoke coming from chimneys last week." In October—"Yes, sir, we dood it. That is we mean we got the storm windows up." December—"Ice skating is in full swing."

A visit from the new McDowell grandson, Lieut. Dale's child, brought: "Our grandson was here. Boy, what memories it brought back. We had forgotten so many things that accompany a baby. Morning bath, doors softly closed, feeding bottles." A neighborhood note reads: "Mrs. Sarah McElligott died last week. Most of you boys knew Mrs. McElligott. She had been sick for a long time."

Promotions are listed, new readers, and the editor teases the boys about a new wedding engagement, but refuses to give the names of the principal parties "until January."

A Lonely Soldier Writes.

A lonely soldier wrote: "It seems bad to say this but I got a case of the blues tonight. For the first time in the two years I've been in the army I really wanted to be home. Well, I'm writing to you because you'll always be there to listen to our story [or put your shoulder out for us fellows to lean on] and tell us the right thing to do." The letter continued its pathetic way.

Editor "Mac" printed the letter, which was a personal one to him, after he had received permission. He said: "Folks, if you want to wipe away that little tear, why go ahead. I am thankful, however, that this boy and the millions of other boys in the armed service of their country today are coming home some day still possessed of those noble qualities that some day will find means to outlaw war. Thank you, son, thank you. Ed."

VICTOR E. McDOWELL.

Victor E. McDowell, 11227 Spaulding avenue, is a railway postal clerk who travels to Kansas City, Kas., every six days. He is at home four days and four nights, and uses every minute of that time, with the help of Mrs. McDowell, their son, Jack, 15, and neighbors, to mimeograph, mail, and distribute 600 copies of 611's Messkit every two weeks to 260 Mount Greenwood men in service all over the world, and their home folks. The Messkit is an outgrowth of a Boy Scout paper for Troop 611 which was started by Dale McDowell, a son, 10 years ago. Dale is now a lieutenant [j. g.] in the navy, while his brother, Warren, is in the army.

SURVEY REVEALS BACTERIA DANGER IN WATER SUPPLY

Official Urges 79th Street Plant Completion.

The United States public health service has reported that water coming from the Dunne crib in the lake off 68th street contains a large percentage of bacteria which is neutralized only when good fortune smiles upon the city's antiquated chlorinating system.

Tests conducted by the United States public health service in conjunction with the Northwestern university department of bacteriology and the Chicago board of health between March 18 and Aug. 28 of this year revealed that 27.6 per cent of the Dunne crib raw water samples had a coliform [bacteria] content of 500 or more per 100 cubic centimeters.

Coliform Count High.

"A content of more than 50 coliforms per 100 cubic centimeters means that chlorination may not always kill all the bacteria in the water," said John R. Baylis, engineer for the water purification division of the public works department. "With good luck such water is germ free upon chlorination."

Bayliss said the tests were taken after the public health service had been requested by the city to verify its claim of urgent necessity for completion of the filtration plant at 79th street and the lake.

The government bureau, Baylis declared, decided to make its own tests in coördination with the university and the board of health. Two members of the stream pollution investigations service were sent here. During the tests 484 routine samples of raw water were subjected to approximately 8,000 bacteriological examinations and 48 lake survey samples were studied. At the same time, the Chicago board of health collected 342 samples for examination by their routine procedure.

Calumet Plants Increase Need.

The findings of the survey substantiated the previous work and findings of the Chicago board of health, Baylis reported.

"Now, more than ever," he said, "Chicago needs an operating filtration plant. The sudden expansion of manufacturing in the Calumet area, which is due to the national emergency, makes our water purification problem even greater. The completion of the filtration plant should not be delayed."

Baylis said the plant, which is 55 per cent complete now, would require a year of work to be ready for operation.

Blue Island Elks Sponsor Service Men's Open House

Open house for service men from the south side and Blue Island will be held Saturday evening by the Elks' lodge of Blue Island, Peter W. Heintz, chairman of the entertainment committee, has announced. All service men and women are urged to bring a guest for dancing, lunch, and entertainment. The club will be open from 9 o'clock to 1 a. m.

Posing for Uncle Sam's Camera

Commissioned a second lieutenant at the graduation exercises at Ellington field, Texas, William A. Mihalovich, 26 year old pilot, can look back to the day when he, with other new enrollees, went thru the registration procedure at the camp. He here illustrates the school's method of taking an identification picture. The new officer, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Mihalovich, 6103 Wood street, is a graduate of St. Rita High school. He received his primary training at Pine Bluff, Ark., and basic training at Randolph field, Texas.

11 ON SOUTHWEST FINISH MAPPING STUDY AT U. OF C.

7 Women and 4 Men in Graduating Class.

Eleven southwest siders were among the 69 Chicagoans who last week completed two government sponsored courses in mapping at the University of Chicago. The courses were free, and jobs are available with the United States geological survey, Washington, D. C.

Six women and three men received certificates in the topographic map drafting course. The women are Melba Fink, 1665 South Homan avenue; Marjorie M. Koppel, 1555 West 83d street; Mary Marevich, 5534 West 65th street; Lois McCallister, 426 West 61st place; Margaret E. McSparran, 417 Tremont street, and Lorraine J. Steinmetz, 3136 South Karlov avenue.

Men who completed the same course are James L. Doyle, 5621 South Morgan street; Paul A. Doyle, 7117 Eggleston avenue, and Arthur L. Edwards, 408 West 65th street.

Anthony T. Caruso, 2802 Lowe avenue, and Lorraine J. Steinmetz received certificates in photogrammetry.

The two courses will reopen on Jan. 6, 1943, and applications may be left with the university now. High school graduation is the only prerequisite for topographic map drafting, but those who wish to register for photogrammetry, which is the making of maps from aerial photographs, should present two years of college work, with major study in engineering, architecture, physics, chemistry, mathematics, forestry, or geology.

Also acceptable will be two years of civil engineering experience or three and one-half years of college, if the student has taken trigonometry and mechanical drawing.

SOUTHWEST SIDE CHURCH CHILDREN COLLECT HOSIERY

Collecting castoff silk and nylon hosiery to be reprocessed for government needs is the war work of The Daughters of Ruth, a Sunday school class at the South Congregational church, 3978 South Drexel boulevard. Armed with shopping bags, this group of 11 year old girls, is making a thoro canvass of the neighborhood with a plea for "any old hose today." Mrs. F. W. Quayle, their teacher, said the girls need 1,500 pairs of silk hose and 2,300 pairs of nylon to make 100 pounds.

Frank Rathje Is Honored at Dinner by OCD Workers

Frank C. Rathje, president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company, 815 West 63d street, was honored at a dinner last week at the South Side Swedish club, 7330 Ridgeland avenue. Rathje, who recently was appointed chairman of the renegotiations committee of the 9th naval district, is division chief of division 3 of the civilian defense organization. Mayor Kelly, Walter Roy, liaison officer of the office of civilian defense, Chicago metropolitan area, and William McDonnell, United States marshal, also were present. Frank Covert, chairman, and the 20 commanders of division 3 presented Rathje an electric clock.

TECH FRATERNITY BANS HAZING FOR LEADER TRAINING

Pledge Master Declares Move a War Measure.

No longer will the fraternity pledge of Sigma Alpha Mu at Illinois Institute of Technology be subjected to the meaningless tasks and the hazing which customarily belongs to any fraternity pledge. The often fantastic and painful initiation process has been ousted with the announcement from Earl Sherman, pledgemaster of Illinois Tech's chapter of the national social fraternity, that a leadership training program was being substituted this year instead of the annual hazing.

A war measure, the plan was adopted because the fraternity felt that any nonconstructive use of even a pledge's energies during wartime was a shameful waste. Now, according to Sherman, only essential duties will be performed by pledges during their neophyte days.

Pledges to Be Schooled.

Crux of the leadership training plan for pledging is a class which will be held every two weeks. All pledges will be required to attend these sessions, at which various alumni of Sigma Alpha Mu will speak on the qualities of leadership necessary for success.

Because the Illinois Tech "Sammies" are all engineers and are scheduled to enter some phase of war service, speakers at these classes will be either executives of war industries or officers of the military services, Sherman said. Sessions will be held on Monday nights at the chapter house, 3128 South Shields street.

WOMAN'S CLUBS DEVOTE EFFORTS TO YULE SERVICE

Red Cross, Soldiers, and Needy Will Benefit.

At Christmas time members of women's clubs break rank from regular meeting schedules and disperse into public or private projects which are in tune with the holiday season.

Nimble fingers may spend a day, or two or three, at a Red Cross surgical dressing center. Or artistic hands will fill and decorate gift boxes for service men, for children, and old people in institutions. Other clubwomen will spend their time preparing and serving special feasts to the men in khaki and blue, who will be their guests.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

The Red Cross unit of the Hamilton Park Woman's club will meet on Tuesday and also a week from Tuesday in the fieldhouse from 10 o'clock in the morning to 4:30 to make surgical dressings. Mrs. Arthur A. Lassman, 7047 South Union avenue, who will distribute supplies, asks that women workers plan to spend the full day at the center both times.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

Twelve members of the Morgan Park Woman's club have taken the names of the dozen youngsters at the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children, and will wrap a Christmas box for each child. Individual gift boxes will be given by other members of the club to one ward at the Oak Forest infirmary. Mrs. H. Stanley Roper, public welfare chairman, is in charge of the committee.

Service men will be guests of club members in their homes during the holiday recess. Mrs. Harry A. Hull, who serves as war service chairman, is arranging these home groups. Mrs. Hull reports that $1,500 in war bonds and $35 in war savings stamps were sold the first two weeks of the month.

Mrs. William M. Stuart has been named program chairman for 1943-'44, and members of her committee are Mrs. H. S. Campbell, Mrs. Harold F. Wood, and Mrs. Arthur D. Henss.

Fernwood Woman's Club.

Permission has been obtained from the Chicago park district to open a service men's center one night weekly in the Fernwood park fieldhouse. Each Thursday evening approximately 25 men from the naval training school, 87th street and Anthony avenue, together with the same number of girls from Fernwood will gather for a program planned by the woman's club.

Southtown Woman's Club.

Toys have been remodeled and scrapbooks have been made for needy children by the public welfare department of the Southtown Woman's club.

Chicago Lawn Young Woman's Club.

Mrs. A. V. Bellis, chairman of the public welfare department, will direct the distribution of Yule gifts at the Ferron home, 3811 West 59th street, and the Park Ridge School for Girls this week.

MR. AND MRS. H. J. EIFERT.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Eifert, 5603 Bishop street, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently with a family dinner in the home in which they have lived for 35 years. Mr. Eifert was born in Frankfort, Germany, and Mrs. Eifert in Brownsville, Wis. They have four sons and four grandchildren. The sons are Harvey G., Ervin H., William M., and Milton.

Lt. Ralph Gilbert Takes Bride

Second Lt. and Mrs. Ralph William Gilbert, who were married recently in the army chapel at Fort McClellan, Alabama, are now residing in Columbus, Ga., where Lt. Gilbert is in training at nearby Fort Benning, Georgia. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Gilbert, 10101 Morgan street, and is a 1942 graduate of Morgan Park Military academy. The bride is the former Miss Arlena Elizabeth Davis and is a graduate of Morgan Park High school, class of 1942. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard N. Davis, 11012 Hermosa avenue.

DISTRICT SCHOOL CHIEF TO TALK AT BRENAN PTA MEET

Stress Spiritual, Not Material Yuletide.

Douglas F. Van Bramer, superintendent of district 8, will be the guest speaker when Brenan PTA members meet at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the school auditorium. The December theme of the Brenan group—"Christmas, the Beautiful and Spiritual, Rather than the Material"—will be Van Bramer's subject.

Pupils from all classes will participate in the program. Arranged by Miss Marguerite L. Flershem, principal, it will portray Christmas in wartime America.

Refreshments will be served in the kindergarten by the December hostesses, the executive board. During the meeting children will be entertained with a play in the gymnasium.

Kellogg—Robert I. White, director of administrative research, board of education, will show a movie, "Young America Learns a Trade," at a meeting of the Kellogg PTA tomorrow afternoon. Seventh and eighth grade pupils will sing Christmas music. A dessert luncheon at 12:45 o'clock will precede a business meeting to be conducted by Mrs. H. L. Swift, president.

Wentworth—The day before Christmas members of the Wentworth organization will pack Christmas baskets for needy families. The project is in charge of Mrs. Harry Litterst, student aid chairman, and Claude L. Williams, principal.

Mount Greenwood—The fragrance of a coffee cake baking will float over the meeting of the Mount Greenwood PTA tomorrow afternoon. The organization will meet at 1:15 o'clock in the school lunchroom and see a demonstration of baking Christmas coffee cakes by Mrs. A. G. Schecter, nutrition teacher. Mrs. Peter Naughton, parent education chairman, is in charge.

Esmond—At 10:35 o'clock Tuesday morning the Esmond association will see a Christmas program by the school children in the school gymnasium. The principal, Miss Rose Gallagher, will direct the event.

Kelly High Students Use Scrap Moneys for Alumni

Kelly High school students who now are in service will receive fruitcakes this Christmas due to efforts of their former fellow students in the Kelly scrap drive, the school's defense bond contest, and the Kelly Christmas fund itself. Those who played an active part include Mildred Klauzek, Stanley Kazdalis, Bernard Ciesla, and Alice Kralovich.

Weds Sergeant

DEDICATE PURPLE HEART COLORS IN CEREMONY TODAY

George Bradfield, commander of the Illinois department, order of the purple heart, will officiate this afternoon at a dedication of the colors of Old Glory chapter in the Marquette fieldhouse. The ceremony will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

George McWilliams, national finance officer of the order, will act as master of ceremonies. The parents of boys from the southwest side who were awarded the purple heart post-humously will be guests of honor. All men who have received the medal are invited to attend.

Following the dedication, a pot luck supper and Christmas party will be held for the chapter, the auxiliary, and friends. This is the first anniversary of Old Glory chapter. Charles Knop, 3541 West 58th street, is commander, and Russell Sargent, 3301 West 65th street, is the adjutant.

USED FURNITURE BUSINESS GOOD— WHILE IT LASTS!

Southwest Side Dealers Fear They Must Close.

Secondhand furniture dealers shake their heads today over the unusual state of affairs in their line of business.

The dealer who today enjoys brisk buying and selling of used furniture shakes his head over the limited supply. Business is good—while it lasts.

The dealer who has already met head on the existing scarcity of used furniture shakes his head over the possibility that he may have to close his doors—if families continue to "sit tight," do no decorating, and keep their present furniture.

Need Constant Turnover.

The existence of secondhand stores depends upon a constant turnover in goods. The margin of profit is so small that a dealer cannot afford to keep stock on hand for any length of time. He must sell it quickly, move it out, and bring in new pieces.

Many stores today find they can sell furniture but that replacements come in slowly. Meanwhile their stock dwindles. Some families now hold their furniture with the expectation of selling it at higher prices later, dealers say, but they add there would have to be a great change in the price differential on used goods before they could command higher prices in their stores. If this rise does occur, they say, it will be quite some time in arriving.

A secondhand furniture dealer on Wentworth avenue said:

"People in this neighborhood aren't selling their furniture. I can't get merchandise." He thought trade might be better in the 63d street area, where secondhand furniture dealers are grouped in one section.

Have Convenient Location.

"They all profit by their location in the same neighborhood," he said. "It's more convenient for customers. They have a larger variety to look over if they can walk from store to store. Those private sellers are more likely to turn up there," he finished.

But on 63d street one woman who operates a store while her husband works in a war plant said she was discouraged over the present situation.

"We can't get the goods to sell, or the person wants too much money for it," she explained. "My husband and I thought we would have to give up the store this fall, but we have managed to hang on this long. We'll probably have to close, tho. Our gas allotment will cut down deliveries and pickups, among other things," she concluded.

Several blocks away a secondhand furniture store which has been on 63d street for 18 years was reported extremely busy.

Merchant Can't Complain.

"We seem to get the merchandise to sell," the alert lady in charge informed. "We are well known and we advertise constantly. Lots of the Clearing workers buy here, and we can't complain about business." She admitted the supply of used furniture was limited, but asserts she is not going to worry about it until the time comes.

Coal stoves were a big sales item in this store. "They won't look at oil stoves," she said, pointing to several kerosene burners. Prices were not "hiked up" by families who sold their furniture recently, she said. Prices were normal. "They have to be," she said, "because we can't sell high priced goods. Used refrigerators, for instance, sell here for $50, $75, and sometimes $100, but we couldn't sell one for over $100. The usual price is around $60 to $75."

Another store which opened six months ago to carry both new and used furniture reported a brisk turnover in electrical appliances, especially irons, and gas ranges. Only four new gas stoves were left, and when they were gone, the dealer said, he would have no more to sell. Other furniture was moving slowly, he reported. When asked where he thought working class income was going, he said promptly:

"The women are buying clothes, shoes, and stockings, I think."

Brother and Sister Say Marriage Vows in Church Weddings

[Ridge Photos.]

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM C. KWASNY. MR. AND MRS. BEN STORAKO.

Ben and Alyce Marie, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Storako, 12210 Normal avenue, were both married recently. Ben, serving as a private in North Africa, married Miss Irene Masier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Masier, 318 West 116th street, in St. Patrick's cathedral, New York City. The bride is at home with her parents. Alyce Marie Storako became the bride of William C. Kwasny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kwasny, 5224 South Kolin avenue, in a ceremony at the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary church. The young couple are living in Philadelphia, where the bridegroom is stationed with the navy.

HUNDREDS JOIN GRAND CROSSING YMCA ACTIVITIES

25 Clubs Organized in Expansion Program.

Hundreds of boys and girls in Grand Crossing-Chatham Community YMCA are joining the committee of management in its campaign to expand the services of the Y. These young people are not required to pay mem- tests, camping, riflery, meetings, parbership dues.

Twenty-five clubs have already been organized and are participating in a wide variety of activities such as trips, games, swimming, hiking, contests, camping riflery, meetings, parties, and dramatics. The clubs are groups of eight to 12 boys and girls, about the same age, who are brought together from an area of two or more square blocks and provided with a leader. They are then started on a round of new and wholesome recreational experiences.

Pass Swimming Tests.

For instance, the Swimming club is now aiming to pass its shark tests which are the last steps before junior life saving. Dick Meek, 8337 South Langley avenue, was the first boy to pass the series of 21 tests which started three weeks ago in the community swim on Saturday mornings at the Y. The girls have started a similar series of tests during their swimming classes on Saturday afternoons.

Sixty-six adults participated in the School for Leadership Training which ended recently at the Lorimer Baptist church. Representatives from 20 churches attended the school and 10 new clubs are being formed.

Directing Work.

Future activity programs have been formulated. Directing the plans are Mrs. Newton A. Raiser, chairman of women and girls work; H. B. Bentsen, chairman of the finance committee; Carl C. Laverny, chairman of public relations; George W. Samuelson, chairman of boys' work, and DrH. B. Fox, chairman of the adult program.

Additional members of the committee are: A. J. Chalbeck, Otto Schenk, and Claude C. Shorty. Raymond M. Lilly is the community secretary.

Grand Crossing-Chatham YMCA was formed last Jan. 1 with the aid of the Englewood department and the community fund. In August, an office was established at 717 East 83d place.

Recent Bride

[Carolyn Photo.]

Before her recent marriage, Mrs. John Aggen Jr., 1233 West 73d street, was Miss Martha Zwart, daughter of Mrs. Sylvia Zwart, 7018 South May street. Mr. Aggen's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Aggen Sr. of Blue Island.

9 ON SOUTHWEST RECEIVE DEGREES AT U. OF CHICAGO

When the University of Chicago held its 211th convocation last week nine students from the southwest side received degrees among the 225 candidates. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel prize winner and dean of the division of physical sciences, presented the candidates, and Dr. Paul R. Cannon, professor and chairman of the department of pathology, delivered the convocation address.

Southwest siders who received bachelor degrees were Woodrow Joseph Kash, 5545 South Aberdeen street; Warren B. Pursell, 7637 South Paulina street; Andrew F. Stehney, 8514 South Sangamon street; Agnes C. Vukonich, 6130 South Rockwell street; Carl H. Youngquist, 5628 South Sawyer avenue, and Ira R. Slagter, 9550 South Homan avenue, Evergreen Park.

Those who were awarded master's degrees included Charles Boss, 4032 South Artesian avenue; Helen J. Pulaski, 3928 West 66th street, and Mrs. Pearl Turner Smith, 17733 Highland avenue, Homewood.

PLAN OPEN HOUSE TOMORROW FOR RED CROSS DEPOT

The newly opened south side Red Cross production depot at 6760 Stony Island avenue will hold open house tomorrow for workers of all units served by the depot. The depot, opened two weeks ago, serves all Red Cross production units in Cook county and Chicago south of Roosevelt road and the Chicago river. Two hundred fifty-seven units, comprising some 25,000 volunteer production workers, are served by the depot. Open house will be held from 11 to 9 o'clock and refreshments provided by individual units will be served by members of the Red Cross canteen corps. Mrs. Elmer E. Anderson, vice chairman of the volunteer production corps, will be in charge of the day's program.

MESSIAH LUTHER LEAGUE TO GIVE PAGEANT TONIGHT

A Christmas pageant, "O, Little Town of Bethlehem," arranged by Mrs. G. R. Friedlund of Chicago, will be presented by a cast of 50 Luther league members of the Messiah Lutheran church, Wolcott avenue and 64th street, at 8 o'clock this evening under the direction of Mrs. C. F. Wittenstrom.

Alice Kruse, 6517 South Winchester avenue, and Ruth Werner, 6517 South Hermitage avenue, will act as narrators. There will be a chorus of five girls in the manger scene and 22 others will sing carols.

Leading rôles will be taken by Audrey Swanson, 3530 West 65th place, as Mary; Charles Wenstrom Jr., 6004 South Rockwell street, Joseph; Dorothy Benson, 8011 South Laflin street, an angel; Herbert Bate, 6341 South Paulina street, and Joseph Halley, 6349 South Bishop street, heralds.

Medical Society Auxiliary Will See Films of Mexico

Films of Mexico will be shown at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the tea of the women's auxiliary of the stockyards' branch of the Chicago Medical society at Evangelical hospital, 54th place and Morgan street.

CLINIC BUSINESS FALLS AWAY AS WAR WAGES RISE

Patients Turn from Free Service; Pay Old Bills.

The much publicized American habit of paying the doctor last seems to be on the way out in Chicago at least. Doctors thruout the city report a minimum of requests for charity treatment, and all the free clinics have had a sharp drop in the number of patients asking for medical aid in the last year.

Many doctors say that their collections of old bills is 25 to 30 per cent better than it has been in past years. The payment of fees at one clinic is 25 per cent higher this year than last, in spite of the fewer number of patients requesting treatment.

Clinics Lose Patients.

As long as production in the great war plants is booming and the workers tuck fat pay checks into their pockets each week, the clinics will lose patients, in the opinion of Dr. J. Roscoe Miller, dean of the Northwestern university medical school.

At the Northwestern clinics there has been a drop of almost 25 per cent in the number of patients applying for admission to the free clinics this year compared with the applicants at the start of the war, according to Dr. Miller.

At the start of the war, and shortly before the war plants began their climb to maximum production, these clinics had 112,082 visits from patients over a year's period. During a corresponding period this year there have been only 86,093 visits.

Observe Immediate Effect.

"This is a heartening indication that the American people will refuse to accept charity if they can possibly avoid it," Dr. Miller said. "For the first time we have had the opportunity to observe the immediate effects of a sudden increase in the earning capacity of the average worker. Usually these increases come slowly, but in this case almost overnight a man with nothing before is making a livable income.

"From the experience in our clinic it would seem that the first thing this worker does is begin paying for things that he had been receiving for nothing—even tho he could still do so. There has even been a 25 per cent increase in the number of patients who, tho still unable to afford a private doctor, ask to pay a voluntary fee for the clinical service."

9,000 Fewer Cases.

At County hospital there was a drop of almost 9,000 in the number of patients treated during September of this year, compared with September, 1941, according to Dr. Ole Nelson, superintendent of the hospital. Last year there were 48,005 treatments during the month, while this year the number of treatments dropped to 39,074, the lowest in some time.

Dr. Nelson attributed this decline to the reluctance of Americans to accept charity, and to an increased interest in health brought about by the war.

The clinics operated by the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois, and the Mercy Free Dispensary of Loyola university all have experienced similar drops in the number of patients treated without charges.

Child Doctors Taken.

In one case, however, only a very slight drop has been noticed. The Children's Memorial hospital had a decline of only 2,508 in the number of treatments given this year over last. This, perhaps, is explained by the fact that a great number of pediatricians have been taken into the armed forces, and parents take their children to a specialty hospital after this doctor has gone to war.

Sociologists also report that many more children from homes in which both parents are working have required hospital care because their parents do not see them enough to notice evidence of illness in its early stages.

War Makes Staff Inroads.

The cut in clinical patients has helped the hospitals meet another problem brought on by the war. Northwestern has lost 175 doctors to the armed services from its regular staff of 399 full and part time men. While some of these men have been replaced with older physicians, all of the medical school graduates for the next few years will be taken directly into service.

At the Children's Memorial hospital the same situation is true. In the last year the hospital has lost 37 per cent of its staff to the armed forces, most of them pediatricians whose specialty is the treatment of children up to 13 years of age. The University of Chicago has lost 41 men from its full time staff of 150 physicians and research doctors, and expects to lose several more in the next few months.

BOYS' CLUB GROUP TO HEAR TALK ON TEEN AGE CRIME

A talk on "Facing Juvenile Delinquency in Wartime" will be given by Dr. Ernest Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Chicago Boys' Clubs association tomorrow noon at Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Dr. Burgess will discuss the rapid rise in teen age crime, as traced to wartime tension, and also will include some of his findings in the study of recreation and delinquency.

Newly elected officers of the association are: Stewart W. Knarr, president; Sol Boskin, vice president, and Helen Coatsworth, secretary-treasurer.

The association has in its membership all staff workers of the Boys' clubs of metropolitan Chicago as well as the boys' departments of settlements.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 21.

A good covering of snow is about the best protection that outdoor plants can have. It is not so heavy that plants are smothered unless soft, melting snow is followed by freezing weather, and even then most plants will survive in good condition. Hardiness depends largely on soil conditions. Many plants will survive in a sandy, well drained soil which winter would kill in a heavy soil. Giving protection simply prevents plants from heaving and exposing the roots to frost during thaws.

Tuesday, Dec. 22.

Watch that rabbits and other rodents do not girdle the trunks of outdoor plants, especially young apple trees. They do immense damage if in need of food. One way to protect the plants is to place fine meshed wire around them; heavy tar paper is also good. Rabbits will gnaw the bark of sumac if in a starving condition. It is a good plan to place traps, eradicate them, and save the plants.

Do not neglect to place bird feeding stations, for many die if not fed.

Wednesday, Dec. 23.

Water the potted amaryllis sparingly until it shows activity. The flower stalk appears before the leaves and makes a rapid growth. As growth increases give more water. A little plant food applied as the buds show color will give better blooms.

The home gardener usually is interested in the aquarium with a few fish and aquatic plants. If there are too many fish in a small bowl none will survive for long. Overfeeding is to be avoided at all times; feed once each week and just enough that the fish will consume all of it without difficulty and wait until they show signs of hunger before feeding again.

Thursday, Dec. 24.

There are many plants which should interest the home gardener in his desire to grow something a little different. Take the Dumb Cane, a dark green leaved plant with blotches of white. It grows readily without much care, but should stand in subdued light, not in direct sunlight. Old plants can be reduced in size and the stem cut up and rooted in sandy soil. It is a most accommodating sort of plant, for it will grow for a long time when placed in a tall glass container. Roots will form and all the luxuriant growth of the tropics enjoyed.

Friday, Dec. 25.

Flowering plants that are presented as gifts will require care if their period of most attractiveness is enjoyed over a maximum time. They must be kept moist, otherwise they are certain to wither. If they once lack moisture they begin to fade. Primroses and other densely fibrous rooted plants wither more rapidly than heavy, strong rooted plants. Place the plants on the floor in a cool room over night. Do not place them in a draft, but give them fresh air daily.

Saturday, Dec. 26.

Protect young evergreens with burlap or a windbreak of boards. Stake fall planted trees to prevent them from being loosened during storms. Clear snow away from evergreens and especially evergreen hedges, or the branches may be broken by the weight.

Keep the soil in window boxes planted with low evergreens moist at all times, for if the soil dries out the plants will suffer. Cut back weak, straggling branches of indoor plants like the coleus to cause stronger growth and better shaped plants.

LIST HOME SAVER PRODUCTS; GOOD SCOTCH CUSTOM

Oil Paint Penetrates, Prevents Rust.

[For further information on materials discussed in this article, please send stamped, addressed envelope to this department.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Save what you have!
It's an old Scotch custom.

To make possible such savings there are penetrating, protective products which will insure longer life and usefulness to a host of articles and equipment around our houses.

One such product, of real value at this time, is a penetrating, rust-preventive oil paint. You can use this to stop rust at its source since it seals in and around the rusted particles to form a hard, durable film and to prevent further rusting.

Paint Has Wide Coverage.

This paint comes in a light gray which closely approximates aluminum in color and light reflection, but is without metallic sheen. It also can be obtained in other colors. One can save considerably by use of this type paint since it has a coverage of 800 to 1,700 square feet per gallon, and because labor need not be expended on removal of the rust before application. Is your hardware, your fireplace equipment, etc., as well as all other metal accessories, in shape to last the duration?

There are different formulas to meet different needs. There is one for damp surfaces and one for metal that is heavily rusted. One type dries in from eight to 12 hours, one in four hours and there is one which will dry in about two minutes.

The manufacturers of this penetrating paint offer stains and coatings for concrete floors. These can be applied according to manufacturers' directions over new or old basement concrete floors. The stains and coating come in club green, tile red, chestnut brown, and machine gray. It will penetrate the concrete and only tie up the floor overnight, and will even resist a certain amount of dampness.

Covers Bleeding Stains.

Another product of interest in many homes as soon as the holiday season is over is a flat white sealing paint with interior finish coat, and yet it can be applied over stained wood to stop bleeding stains.

CAROLS TO RING OUT OVER W-G-N EVERY EVENING

Amplifiers to Waft Music Into Streets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Once again carols and other holiday music will ring out from W-G-N the week before Christmas. Beginning tomorrow a half hour of choral music will be broadcast over W-G-N for radio listeners, and amplifiers hung high over Nathan Hale court will send the joyful music pealing out over the city so that homeward bound shoppers and office workers may hear it, too.

This will be the 11th consecutive year for the observance of this custom. W-G-N will broadcast the music from 5:30 to 6 p. m. and the entire Mutual Broadcasting system will carry the music for the final 15 minutes.

Five Groups Will Sing.

Five outstanding choral groups from the metropolitan area will be heard on these song sessions which will be presented to organ accompaniment by Len Salvo. On the first program tomorrow St. Mary's High School Glee club, under the direction of Sister M. Matilde, B. V. M., will be heard.

On Tuesday the Edgewater Evangelical Mission Covenant church's mixed choir will give the program. The Kenwood School chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Waser, will be heard Wednesday.

Christmas Eve Program.

The Christmas eve program will be presented by the adult choir of the Monumental Baptist church under the direction of Forestine Neal Bostick. On Christmas day the Holy Trinity Russian Cathedral choir will be heard. All of the programs will be presented from W-G-N's organ studio which is particularly suitable acoustically for this type of music.

FIRESIDE PARTY TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N TODAY

A new half hour Sunday afternoon show featuring music by Louise Massey and the Westerners and drama by Chicago radio actors and actresses will be introduced over W-G-N under the sponsorship of the Loyal Order of the Moose today.

The program to be called the "Moose Fireside Party," will be broadcast from 5:30 to 6 p. m.

The dramatic cast for the first show will include Art Kohl, Dick Holland, Norma Jean Ross, and Alma Platts.

Originally, the Westerners were known as the Massey Family. There was "Dad" Massey, Louise, Curt, and Allen, and Louise's husband,

A Doubling Santa

Fred Allen ready to play Santa Claus next Thursday evening. As long as he is going to be out all night he is dressing to double as an air raid warden. Allen's on WBBM-CBS at 8:30 p. m. Sundays.

BECKER MOVES SPORT SHOW TO 3 P. M. SUNDAYS

Bob Becker will interview Mrs. Dorothy Eagles, director and founder of the North Side Animal Shelter, on his "Sportsmen's Spotlight" program at 3 p. m. today on W-G-N. The program, formerly heard on Tuesdays, will now be a regular Sunday feature.

Mrs. Eagles will tell of her organization and its job of placing homeless dogs in homes. Many of the dogs at the shelter will be Christmas gifts this year, Mrs. Eagles will explain. She also will tell how many service men are taking their dogs to her before they go into the army or navy and asking her to find homes for the animals.

SANTA TO GIVE GIFTS TO STARS OF TOMORROW

Santa Claus will be on hand in W-G-N's main audience studio to present gifts to the participants in the "Stars of Tomorrow" program from 8 to 8:30 tonight. All of the amateur contestants will be talented youngsters under 12 years of age.

Ranging in talent from violinist to tap dancer and in age from 3½ to 12, the children will be competing for three wrist watches. All the contestants will receive War Stamp boutonnieres and will be eligible for an all-winner program in which the amateur voted best will receive a $500 War Bond on January 24, 1943.

Leading off the program will be Jean Peart, tap dancer. Le Roy Sklodowski, boy soprano, will sing as will Pat Czechanski, of Calumet City, and soprano Patricia Ellen Timm.

The violinist will be Joseph Golan, and the youngest participant, Mary Alice LaMon, who is 3, will sing and recite.

500 HIGH SCHOOL SINGERS TO JOIN IN W-G-N CAROLS

7th Annual Program to Be Given Wednesday.

Dr. Helen Howe.

Five hundred high school and junior college students will join in their seventh annual carol sing on W-G-N next Wednesday afternoon. The carolers will be guests during the broadcast of the Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry, regularly presented from 3 to 4 p. m. The carol program will be presented during the last 15 minutes of the hour—from 3:45 to 4 p. m.

The schools to be represented will be Waller, Farragut, Steinmetz, Austin, Roosevelt, and Lake View and Wright junior colleges. Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago Public schools, is in charge of the program.

The carol program will open and close with "Silent Night." Other selections will be "Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Dr. Howe will be interviewed by Jack Brickhouse on "What High School Students Like to Sing at Christmas Time."

The choral directors are: Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, Waller; Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson, Farragut; Willard L. Groom, Steinmetz; Erhardt Bergstrasser, Wright Junior college; Hazel Lloyd, Austin; John Hamilton, Roosevelt, and Naomi Sweet, Lake View.

LOYOLA ACADEMY WILL BE SALUTED ON CITIZENS HOUR

Loyola academy will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today.

The Rev. Ara F. Walker, S. J., principal, will tell of the many activities of the school in the war. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell.

The Academy glee club, under the direction of Dr. Graciano Salvador, professor at Loyola university, will sing two numbers: "Stouthearted Men" by Sigmund Romberg, and the traditional hymn, "Adeste Fidelis." The entire student body will sing the school song, "Cheer for Loyola."

"Jimmy" and "Jerry," popular comedy team on the program, will discuss high school from its lighter aspects. Holland Engle is the announcer.

LAKE KIWANIANS INSTALL VOSYKA AS '43 PRESIDENT

At a recent installation and ladies' night social party held at the Central Manufacturing club, Anthony Vosyka was inducted as president of the Town of Lake Kiwanis club for 1943. Others installed are: Dr. Edwin Lukaszewski, vice president; Stewart W. Knarr, secretary, and Frank Covert, William Fuke, William Becvar, Charles Detrick, Dave Kerwin, August Heinemann, Johnn Kenny, Sidney Dipper, and Walter Raczynski, directors. The club will hold its Christmas party for boys and girls Tuesday night at the Settlement, 4630 McDowell avenue.

Gets His Stripes from a Star

Sergt. Edward J. Bulczak, 5223 South Fairfield avenue, was able to get Jinx Falkenburg, Hollywood starlet, to sew new stripes on his sleeve. Bulczak is a technical sergeant in charge of cameramen in the Panama Canal Zone. A 1936 graduate of Tilden Technical High school, he received his first camera at the age of 17, and has a dark room in his home. Before his induction into the army 20 months ago Bulczak was a free lance artist in Chicago. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bulczak.

'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' MOVES TO MONDAY PERIOD

"Mightier than the Sword," W-G-N program revealing the importance of a free press in helping the allied nations to win the war, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. Mondays.

A dramatic parallel between the Battle of Russia in 1812, when Napoleon was storming Moscow, and the Battle of Russia in 1942, when Hitler was attempting the same thing, will be told by Stanley Johnston, noted war correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Robert Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra provide the musical setting for this program which is produced by Jack LaFrandre. A cast of outstanding actors is employed and Marvin Mueller is the announcer.

Convict's Nativity Scene Is Joliet Yule Background

A scene of the Nativity painted by a convict at Stateville, is the backdrop on the public library grounds of Joliet, for community Christmas programs this year. Choirs, bands, and choruses will present their programs nightly during the Yuletide season before the outdoor painting, which has been illuminated by the city.

Trio in WAACs.

Blue Island girls who recently were accepted by the WAACs are Frances Barzycki, Wireton road; Mildred Driese, Union street, and Sylvia Amato, Sacramento avenue.

'AMERICA LOVES MELODY' NEXT IN THEATER OF AIR

Prize Operetta Will Be Aired Saturday.

"America Loves a Melody," the prize winning operetta in W-G-N's $10,500 Great American Operetta Quest of last season will be presented on W-G-N and Mutual's Theater of the Air from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire, prima donna of the operetta series, and Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will sing the leading rôles.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, will be the speaker of the evening.

This operetta, written by Ross Hastings, young Los Angeles composer, was selected as the best of 2,232 entries received from 46 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the competition. "America Loves a Melody" has already been performed twice on the Theater of the Air. As "Operetta No. 3" it was presented Last March 28, when the public was asked to vote for the best of three operettas that had been selected by an advisory board of distinguished musicians.

The public cast the greatest number of votes for the Hastings' operetta, and it was presented as the grand prize winner on April 11 at the Civic Opera house, with Miss Claire and Allan Jones in the starring rôles.

Hastings was awarded $6,000 for writing the best operetta, while the remaining $4,500 was divided among other contestants and members of the listening audience who wrote the best letters telling which operetta they liked best.

Next Saturday's production will be under the direction of Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production. Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under direction of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

BAPTIST CHOIRS IN MORGAN PARK TO SING CAROLS

The combined choirs of the Morgan Park Baptist church, 110th street and Oakley avenue, will present their annual Christmas carol service twice this year, at 7:30 o'clock tonight and at 8 o'clock Wednesday.

The regular soloists of the three church choirs will be assisted by Max Wilson, tenor, and Charlene Brewer, violinist. Joseph Anderson, organist and director of music at St. Paul's Union church, will be the guest organist.

Admission to the program, which is under the direction of Max Wilson, will be by ticket only until 15 minutes before the opening of the service, after which all comers will be admitted. The tickets may be obtained free from choir members.

Illinois Tech Alumni Told of $50,000 Campus Fund

Arthur E. Wright, 6617 South Washtenaw avenue, executive secretary of the alumni association of the Illinois Institute of Technology, told alumni secretaries from many states that the newly formed alumni association had collected over $50,000 for the campus development program in seven months.

ROMANCE CLICKS AS GIRL LEARNS JEWELRY TRADE

Now Husband's in Navy and She Does His Work.

Because precious stones, rings, pins, and watches are gifts of sentiment, a jewelry store is a natural setting for romance—either before the glassed counters or behind them.

Down in Louisville, Ky., three years ago there was a young blue eyed girl who sold handsome watches in a jewelry store. She had just completed one year at the University of Louisville. In the same store there was a watchmaker, Charles Lester, whose father, a Monticello, Ky., jeweler, had taught him the trade.

Jane, in the line of duty, would carry watches over to Charles for repair. She would linger while he examined a timepiece. Soon he was showing her little repair tricks.

Married a Year Ago.

One noon hour Jane slipped onto Charles' work bench, took a watch apart, put it together, and had it running when he returned. Jane was placed at the adjoining bench and for two years she repaired watches under his watchful eye. Then they were married, a year ago. Jane was one of only 12 women watchmakers listed in the country.

Now Charles is an aviation machinist's mate at the naval training school, 87th street and Anthony avenue. His precision work with watches was the background for present study of airplane instruments.

Jane, 24, of 6434 Cottage Grove avenue, is a watchmaker at Holland's jewelry store, 6335 South Halsted street. When Jane walked into his store two months ago to ask for a job, M. Z. Holland, jeweler, looked at her in disbelief. For one thing, some time ago he had tried to start a school for women but had found no prospective students.

Works in Halsted Store.

"She does the work as well as any man," Holland approves.

Tiny watches, made for women, are preferred repair jobs with Jane. "Their miniature movements fascinate me," she confesses. A tiny watch demands such concentration, she says, that sometimes when she puts the last part into position, she holds her breath until the little "movement" before her is perfect. The held breath is released slowly, and Jane grins with relief. She's done it again!

Keeps 'Em Ticking

MRS. JANE LESTER.

One of only a dozen or so women watchmakers in the United States, Mrs. Jane Lester, 6434 Cottage Grove avenue, looks at the works of a lady's watch. Slipped into an outer fold of the eyelid is the jeweler's "eye loop." A watchmaker sits with elbows resting on a level with the chin. This enables the worker to bring the magnifying lens close to the miniature watch works. Spread out before Mrs. Lester are an agate oil cup, screw drivers, tweezers, and brush. A cannon pinion remover pulls out the pin which holds watch hands together, and there also is a tool for winding a mainspring. Mrs. Lester's husband, who is in the navy, taught her the trade.

Girls Weave Christmas Gifts at Fuller Park

Fashioned in the artcraft class of Fuller park, 45th street and Princeton avenue, are gifts that mothers will prize on Christmas day. In the picture at the left the ancient craft of weaving engrosses Petronella Vogt, 9, of 4240 Wentworth avenue, who is weaving a woolen scarf on a midget hand loom. Mary Edna May, 8, of 4333 Wentworth avenue, wears a hand woven green hat, while Lucille Sambol, 12, of 4426 Shields avenue, displays a light blue and gray plaid woolen scarf. In the picture at the right, Lorraine Clausen, 10, 4425 South Wells street, uses an octagonal frame to weave a hot pad for cookery. Mary Frances McMahon, 10, of 4437 Wentworth avenue, and Eleanor Radakovits, 11, of 5022 Princeton avenue, try variations of the same article for their mothers.

CHURCHES RING WITH CHRISTMAS MUSIC THIS WEEK

Southwest Siders Start Celebrations Today.

and Aberdeen streets. Paul Anderson, organist, will direct the choir. This afternoon at 4 o'clock the Sunday school will hold a Christmas festival in the auditorium, according to L. C. Mattson, superintendent. The Rev. Amandus F. Bergstrom, pastor, said that the Luther league would go caroling Christmas eve. St. Matthew's church will have a lighted Bethlehem star over the altar and a Christmas tree near the pulpit.

The choir of St. John the Divine Lutheran church, 105th street and Oakley avenue, will offer a candlelight choral worship at 4 o'clock today and at 11:30 o'clock Thursday night. Earlier on Christmas eve, at 7:30 o'clock, the children's choral service will take place. "Christmas Means Sacrifice and Song" will be the sermon of the Rev. Roger L. Sommer, pastor, at 10:30 o'clock Christmas morning.

Thoburn Choir to Sing.

"The Christmas Oratorio" by Buck-Handel will be offered at 7:30 o'clock this evening by the vested choir of the Thoburn Methodist church, with Archer Ballantine directing. Soloists will include Ellen Erickson Ohlson, Evelyn H. Stevens, Lucille Rodeck, Ray Glover, Martin Kirk, and Archer Ballantine. Dr. John H. De Lacy, pastor, will read a Christmas message, and Dr. Karl Stecher will direct the Thoburn orchestra in Yuletide selections.

A baptismal service, reception of new members, and music by the junior carolers and vested choir will mark the service at 11 o'clock this morning. Bruce Buchanan, president of Thoburn league, has planned a candlelight service for 6:30 this evening.

"The Creation" by Richter and "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy One," 17th century folk song, will be sung by the senior choir of Foster Park Baptist church, 1540 West 84th street, at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Both the junior and senior choirs, garbed in white robes and black robes, and directed by Mrs. Esther M. Grandholm, will accompany Mrs. W. M. Rabe in her reading of the Scriptures. A violin solo will be played by Mrs. Minnie Cedargreen Jernberg, accompanied by her daughter, Jean Jernberg Collins. The Rev. J. Walker Martin is pastor.

Plan Candlelight Procession.

Dr. Niel E. Hansen, a director of the Chicago Congregational union, will speak at 8 o'clock this evening at the candlelight procession and service of Englewood Baptist church, 413 West Englewood avenue. Dr. Howard A. Vernon, pastor, announces.

Wed Recently

Miss Frances Nevrly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Nevrly, 41 East Garfield boulevard, recently became the bride of Stanley Konopinski of 8312 Buffalo avenue. They are making their home at 8104 Justine street.

Tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock there will be a church-wide party, and at the regular Wednesday evening service a Christmas movie, "Starlight Night," will be shown in the chapel.

The French parish of St. Joseph's church, Shrine of St. Anne, at 2751 West 38th place, will observe an old Canadian ceremony on Christmas eve when at the midnight mass a procession of boys and girls with candles proceed to the sanctuary. Two boys with long trumpets then herald the birth of Christ. A choir of 32 voices, directed by William Mullen, and accompanied by Joseph Gallo, organist, will sing.

The Rev. Louis Decelle, pastor, announces a children's party in the parish hall Wednesday morning.

Second Christmas in Church.

Holy Name of Mary church, 11159 Loomis street, will be observing its second Christmas this year, the Rev. John F. Ryan, said. The young women's choir, directed by Jane Wagner, will sing carols before the midnight mass on Christmas eve. The next morning there will be a low mass at 9 o'clock and a high mass at 10. An illuminated crib will be placed in the sanctuary this year, and will be surrounded by decorated trees.

The 200 families of Holy Family Polish National Catholic church, 5206 South Justine street, will celebrate a "pasterka"—Polish term for shepherd's mass—on Christmas eve, the Rev. Joseph Jaworski, pastor, said. A dozen lighted Christmas trees will be placed in the church, and a crib will stand to one side of the altar.

The Rev. Daniel Gambrilis, pastor of St. Nicholas' Hellenic Orthodox church, 5957 South Peoria street, will say a high mass at 10 o'clock Christmas eve, and will offer holy communion to children and their teachers at 8:30 p. m. The choir, directed by Dr. Nicholas Lambrints, will sing. Christmas morning there will be special music by the children's choir at the 10 o'clock high mass. The choir will gather around a Christmas tree, placed before the altar, to sing. Father Gambrilis then will present gifts to both choir and children.

Three Services at Salem Church.

Salem Evangelical church, 6820 Emerald avenue, will hold three Christmas observances today. Dr. Herman E. Koenig, pastor, will deliver his Christmas sermon at the 10:30 o'clock morning worship. A party for the beginners and primary departments will be held at 3 o'clock, and at 8 o'clock the junior department will present a pageant, "A Christmas Altar." On Christmas morning there will be a candlelight service at 7 o'clock.

Christmas music by the vested choir of the Bishop Cheney Memorial church, 70th street and Yale avenue, at 11 o'clock this morning will feature "Te Deum in B minor," Buck; "Jubilate Deo," Schubert; "Cherubim Song," Bortniansky, and "Sing O Heavens," Tours.

The midnight candlelight service at 11:45 o'clock Christmas eve will include "The Plains of Bethlehem," Buck; "There Were Shepherds," Vincent, and the "Hallelujah Chorus," Handel.

Dorothy Staiger, soprano, will sing at both services. The Rev. E. J. Sonne is rector of Bishop Cheney church, and C. Gordon Wedertz, musical director.

Englewood Lions to Hear Discussion of Hypnosis

Dr. Franz Polgar, a student of hypnosis, telepathy, and other phenomena, will lecture Jan. 4 before members of the Englewood Lions club and their friends. Members may make reservations at the Lions forum office, 6550 South Halsted street, Fred Kloese, president, announced.

BLIND MEXICAN MAKES A LIVING AS PIANO TUNER

Flees Revolution; Learns New Trade in City.

Eight years ago Efren Landeros, 4507 South Marshfield avenue, a Mexican by birth, lost his eyesight.

Efren, who had escaped to the United States from Mexico during the disturbances of 1926 to 1928, had a wife and two young boys to support. He lived in the Mexican settlement "back of the yards." He attended the chapel, Our Lady of Guadaloupe, he spoke little English, he had no job, and he was blind.

A referral to the headquarters of the Visitation for the Adult Blind, 1900 South Marshall boulevard, in 1934 proved to be the opening wedge back into a life of activity, Efren says. His accomplishments over the last eight years are testimony to courage, energy, and persistence in the face of private disaster.

Studies Braille, English.

Taking up the study of Braille and along with it the study of English, Efren did in two years the amount of work ordinarily carried in three years at the school. He learned a new trade, basket and furniture weaving, but was dissatisfied with the small income it offered. He turned to the trade of piano tuning, and for five years has studied its complexities under Edward H. Menke, teacher at the blind headquarters.

He now has reached the point where he can take entire charge of a job of repair and tuning, Menke said.

"He is going to get along all right," Menke declared. "Landeros has 'stick-to-it-iveness,' which is what gets us places. He now will have to build up a little business as a piano tuner, and he has started to do that."

Efren is a member of the American Society of Piano Tuners-Technicians. In August he was one of 30 Chicago piano tuners who journeyed to Great Lakes to tune the 60 pianos of the naval training station—free.

Son Learning Piano.

There is a piano in the small Landeros flat which Tommy, 8, uses to practice on, and which his father uses for practice, too. As part payment for Tommy's piano lessons his father tunes his teacher's piano twice a year. Joseph, 11, likes music, but wants a guitar, while Jesse, 3, is going to be a pianist like his brother, Tom.

Both Landeros and his wife, Candelaria, were born in Mexico, but Candelaria came to Chicago as a baby with her parents. Efren was a carpenter in Mexico. When he was 19 years old he visited the United States and traveled all over the country. When he was 24 the troubles flared up in Mexico.

His capture and escape from Mexican forces occurred within an afternoon. He was picked up by government troops and placed in a truck. The vehicle stopped shortly, and while the officers were talking in front, Efren slipped off the truck and darted into a nearby house. He went straight thru to the back yard. In a few minutes as he walked alongside a corral two soldiers stopped him and asked if he had seen a man running away.

Gave Soldiers the Slip.

"Yes, over there," Efren replied quickly. The soldiers departed in the wrong direction, and Efren left for the United States with a few possessions.

He was a watchman in a Texas gold mine for four months, and then picked cotton northward with the crop, finally coming to Chicago. He met Candelaria, and they were married when he was 25 and she was 16.

His wife reads the papers to him, and there is a radio for newscasts. The Visitation for Adult Blind has loaned him a talking machine upon when he plays records from the Chicago public library. He subscribes to a weekly Braille newspaper, to the Catholic Digest, and the Tuners' Digest. Because he would like to know his own language better, Efren is studying Spanish thru the Braille system.

Always Cheerful.

On special occasions there is the fragrance of Mexican dishes in the air—tortillas, enchiladas, tamales, tostadas, and mole sauce. Candelaria Landeros is an unfailing cheerful person, who has assisted her husband in many ways, and who has three polite little sons.

Efren is a stocky man with a pleasant countenance. He is a familiar sight in the neighborhood, hurrying along with a white cane and small tuner's case. His eyes can distinguish light from darkness. There is hope that monthly injections of a medicinal preparation may restore his eyesight to some extent, he says.

SALVATION ARMY PARTIES PLANNED FOR WEDNESDAY

Christmas parties will be held at 7:30 o'clock on Wednesday evening at southwest centers of the Salvation Army, Lt. Commissioner John J. Allen, territorial commander, has announced. There will be a Santa Claus, a Christmas tree, fruit, candy, nuts, and small toys for the children. Magicians and ventriloquists will entertain the groups, and Christmas carols will be sung by each group, led by choristers and small bands of musicians. Maj. Albert Pepper is in charge of the party at the Englewood corps, 6405 Emerald avenue, and Col. Albert E. Chesham directs the party at the Army settlement, 3053 Normal avenue.

OLD FASHIONED YULE FETES SET IN PALOS HILLS

Community Center Opens Season's Parties Tonight.

Around the warm glow of a Yule log in the fireplace, with a world of quiet, perhaps glistening white outside frosty windows, the Community Center Foundation "In the Hills of Palos," will hold its Christmas festivities.

At 8 o'clock tonight, members—young and old—will gather to strew tinsel and baubels "o'er tree and beam." They will place holly wreaths in the lodge windows, hang up red paper bells to the ceilings and hang sprigs of mistletoe low enough for convenience. It will be the annual decoration party.

Caroling Wednesday.

On Wednesday night at 8 o'clock members will go caroling thru the village, via hayrack or bobsled, and return to the lodge for the Yule log service. They will celebrate the old symbolical custom of tossing all hatred, problems and troubles of the last year into the fire in preparation for the coming of the Christ child.

Christmas eve will bring a simple, religious service at the fireside with the retelling of the Bethlehem story and stories of Christmas customs in other lands. On Christmas night there will be a fellowship service for all members.

House Party Planned.

The annual house party will start at the lodge on Saturday afternoon and continue thru Saturday night. Tobogganing, ice skating, hayrack or bobsled parties, hikes thru the woods, folk dancing, and singing are planned for the two days.

On Dec. 28, 29 and 30, a summer campers' reunion will be held at the lodge. There will be a full program of winter sports, with time left for popping corn and toasting marshmallows around the fireplace during the evenings.

HAIL CHRISTMAS IN CHURCH SERVICES

DROP BAUBLES IN NORTHWEST SIDE YULETIDE

Christmas Bringing Many Good Deeds.

Gaily festooned streets, multicolored lights on the community Christmas tree and about the front door, the usual harbingers of the Christmas season, will be missing in many parts of the northwest side this year. Christmas, in wartime is being observed more than ever by thought of the crippled, the underprivileged and the men in service.

In Norwood Park, old St. Nick blew in a week ago. Jumping off the train at 11:30 in the morning he was greeted by the Chamber of Commerce, hundreds of cheering youngsters and escorted to a cart, drawn by two fine ponies. With a drum and bugle corps, formed of the boys and girls, he immediately was whisked away to Civilian Defense headquarters. Here, in a new setting, he received his followers at an open house from one until 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Plan Christmas Dinners.

From Barrington to the near north side, however, the most popular Christmas activity lies in inviting men from Great Lakes and Fort Sheridan and other stations in the area to Christmas dinner. Willard Brown, president of the Park Ridge Chamber of Commerce, has found "that spirit evident in Park Ridge during most recent holidays."

The Belmont-Cragin Kiwanis club, of which Samuel Dwarkin is president, entertained Thursday with a turkey dinner for the 24 children of the Lutheran orphanage. Not only did the turkey have all the trimmings, but there was a tree and candy, toys, and books.

The Logan Square Lions club entertained yesterday at the Logan Square theater. Edward C. Sternman and Charles C. Ramage estimated that there were about 1,000 children present. A double feature was shown and each of the young guests received a bag of candy and fruit.

Cancel Lighting Contest.

In Bensenville, the Lions club canceled its traditional outdoor lighting contest. Under the leadership of Fred E. Merritt, president, and A. P. Heim, past president, they distributed baskets to the needy and sent a box to every man in the service who was a former resident of the village no mater how far away his station. Several boxes were sent to Australia. To Pvt. Lawrence A. Krumwiede, who lost one leg and badly burned another in a recent military action overseas, the club sent a special Christmas gift which bore the name of every club member. Because of Krumwiede's experience, $300 collected recently from Lions' members for the military affairs committee, is going to be used, not to send each serviceman a cash gift for Christmas as earlier contemplated, but rather to establish a permanent fund for the rehabilitation of disabled veterans.

The Des Plaines Elks, Kiwanis, and Lions clubs together with the Business Men's association will sponsor a party early this week at a local theater for the children of the city. The admission price will be a 10c war stamp or a piece of scrap metal. The theater is presenting the film free of charge.

Food for Admission.

The Crystal Lake Lions club held a party yesterday at the El Tovar theater, which was open to all children who brought food to the theater. What was collected was later distributed to the village needy by a public welfare organization.

W. Edward Fritz, president of the Arlington Heights Kiwanis club, reports that all the clubs in his community contribute to a general fund. This is then turned over to the local relief agency for equitable distribution to the less fortunate members of the village.

The Palatine Lions club, during the course of recent months, has given over $1,500 to local civilian defense. In time of war, it was felt that this should outrank the usual Christmas celebration.

Suggest Bond Purchase.

The Avondale Chamber of Commerce, which shares this feeling, has dispensed with many of its former customs, and has suggested to its members that they make this a "war bond and stamp" Christmas. Baskets, however, will be passed out among the needy as usual.

Jefferson Park is celebrating Christmas by inviting all the churches to broadcast one musical program from the park clubhouse. This program is then carried to all parts of the community by radio.

Use Dance Proceeds.

In Mount Prospect, the Lions club, of which George L. Busse is president, will present each of the men from the village in the service with $4 for Christmas.

The Danish Lutheran Children's home, 3320 Evergreen avenue, will be given a party Dec. 29 by the members of the Danish Lutheran church. The children of the home will present a play at the party for the church members.

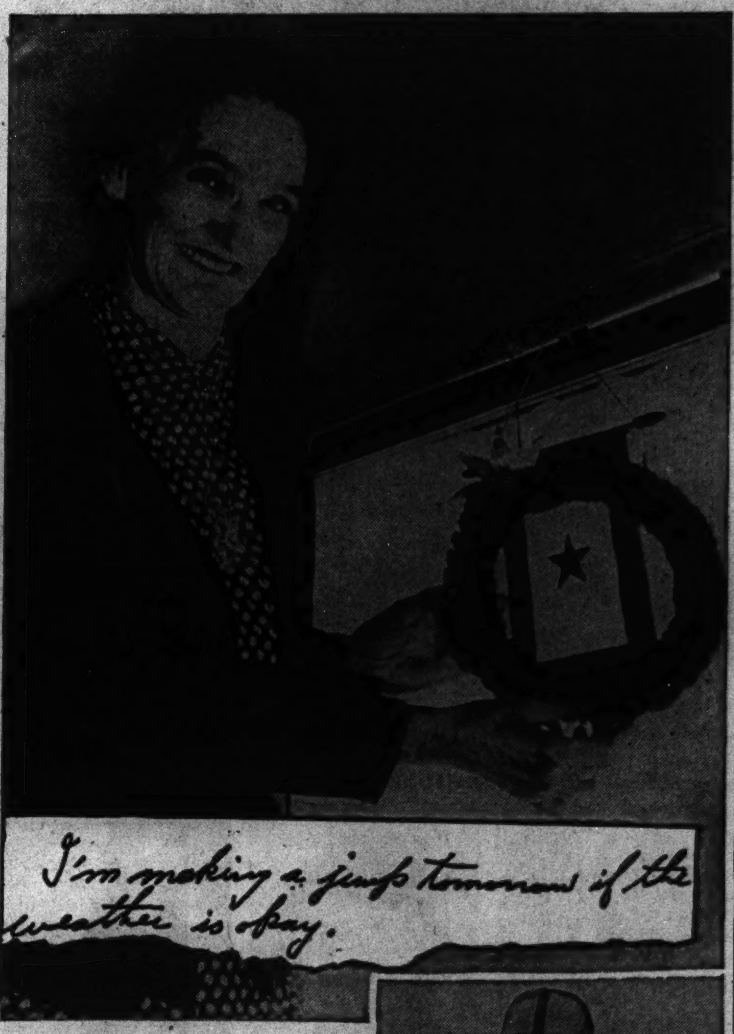
In Barrington the local Lions club, of which Noble Puffer is president, has canceled its plans for an outdoor lighting contest. "Our money has been going to civilian defense," he said.

Memories Keep Christmas from Being Lonely in Northwest Side Service Homes

Sons and daughters are home for Christmas, home from schools and trips and work, but not from wars. So the mothers keep the home fires burning on the northwest side this Christmas of 1942. They keep the holly wreaths at the windows, the trees glistening with trimmings, and mistletoe tied under the chandelier. The Schiller boy, young Francis, who is a United States marine, may be spending his Christmas in Guadalcanal or somewhere sailing the Pacific and he will be remembering home. So at home it must be Christmas—dad in his house slippers, mother flushed from basting the goose, and pretty Irene, the 20 year old sister, blushing from the teasing, and Kenneth, the kid brother who likes to skate. An important message came to the Frank L. Schiller home at 5951 Byron street this Christmas and the message reads, "For us it's foreign lands and faces, Strange customs for this Christmas day; But our greetings to you are sent, In this good old American way."

RIP AND FIND THIS COUNTRY QUAINT.
FINDS YOU WELL ALL MY LOVE.—
AL KAHLING.

Mrs. Alvin Kahling, 108 South Evergreen street, Arlington Heights, sent her Christmas across the seas to England. For the last word she had from her husband, Lt. Kahling, was a cablegram—he had arrived safely and well.



I'm making a jump tomorrow if the weather is okay.

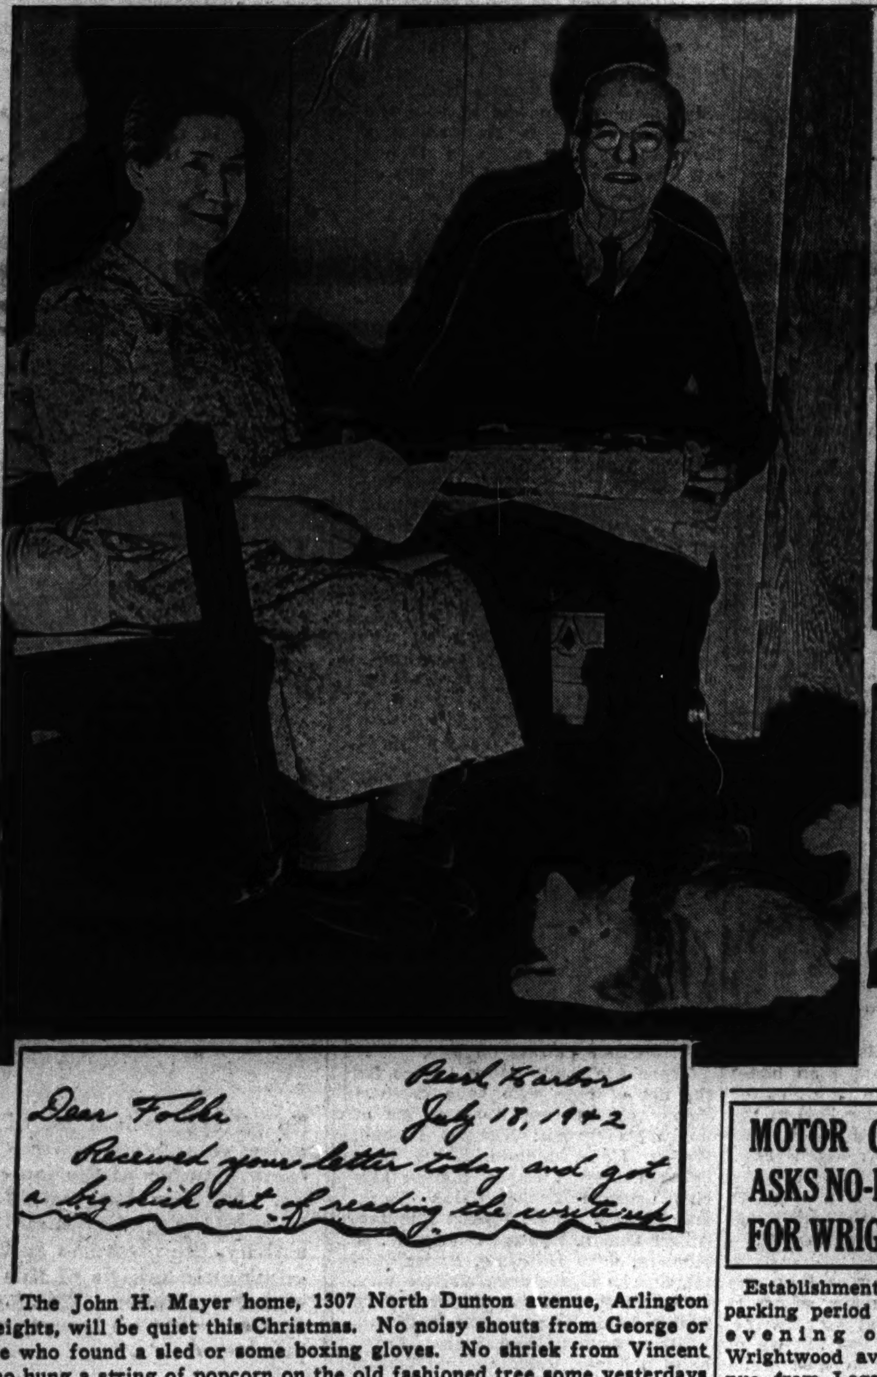
Pvt. O. A. Jahrling is a paratrooper. He will remember Christmas, too. And Christmas is mom hanging up a wreath tied with a red ribbon. This year a blue service star will be the center for the wreath and it will tell the neighbors that mom, Mrs. Otto Jahrling, 230 South Dunton street, Arlington Heights, must have her Christmas alone with a message of greeting across the miles from her paratrooper son.



Dear Folks Pearl Harbor July 18, 1942
Received your letter today and got a big kick out of reading the write-up

Vincent.

Joseph.

George.

The John H. Mayer home, 1307 North Dunton avenue, Arlington Heights, will be quiet this Christmas. No noisy shouts from George or Joe who found a sled or some boxing gloves. No shriek from Vincent who hung a string of popcorn on the old fashioned tree some yesterdays ago. There will be a smaller turkey and not so many pumpkin pies. And when dad and mother sit down to say Merry Christmas their eyes will search out in misty memory the broad shoulders and the grins of three navy sons serving their country somewhere beyond the boundaries they learned in their school geographies.

Church Yule Music Feels Pinch of War

Nativity pageants and choir cantatas on the northwest side will lose some of their magnificence this year because of the war and rationing rules. In many cases lights will be off the Christmas trees and there will be fewer of the balsam branches.

Many churches report a preponderance of female voices in the choir as the men have marched off with the army. A few churches had to abandon pageant rehearsals because of shortages of fuel oil and several Sunday school superintendents complain about trouble in procuring candy for the annual treat.

Cut one-third in the amount of fuel oil the congregation can use is Christ Lutheran church, Wilson and Spaulding avenues, where the Rev. George P. Lottich is pastor. In order to conserve oil the Christmas pageant has been canceled this year because of the amount of fuel needed to heat the church for rehearsals. Instead of the pageant there will be an 11 o'clock candle light service Christmas eve.

Decorations will be simple this year and choir music will be the feature at both the 6 o'clock and the 10:30 o'clock Christmas service at this church. The choir will be directed by Erherdt Bergstrasser.

Another Pageant Called Off.

The pageant also has been discontinued this year at the Christ English Lutheran church, Long avenue and LeMoyne street, where the Rev. W. H. Grothman is pastor. This is because of the time required in rehearsals which cannot be given by defense workers who sing in the choir. Christ church usually has been a forest of green on Christmas with about 35 trees in all the rooms and the main auditorium of the church. This year there will be six trees. The Sunday school officials have had trouble in getting the candy required for the 225 children who take part in the Sunday school party scheduled for 8 o'clock Christmas eve.

Another church which reports its activities have been affected by the war this Christmas is the English Evangelical Church of Chicago, 3062 Palmer square. The pastor, the Rev. Edward H. Busekros, reports that the attendance at church in recent weeks has fallen off 15 per cent because of gasoline rationing. He says the Christmas program is being affected by the scattering of the population and people working seven days a week in defense plants in addition to the dozens of men serving in the army and navy.

Men Choir Singers Scarce.

The proportion of women to men is four to one in the choirs of the Irving Park Lutheran church, 4108 North Harding avenue, which will present a cantata next Sunday evening entitled "The Son of the Highest" directed by George Luntz. Dr. Joshua Oden reports that decorations will be simple this year with the use of only poinsettias and plants given as memorials by congregation members. One reason for keeping the decora-

PLAN CHRISTMAS CHEER FOR DEAF SCHOOL CHILDREN

The annual Christmas cheer party for the children at Ephpheta school for the deaf will be sponsored by Tonti council of the Ladies of Isabella at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening in the school auditorium, 3150 North Pulaski road.

Members have been busy shopping, wrapping, and tagging the gifts for each child and trimming a tree with lights and ornaments set in a miniature electrically lighted village. The program of entertainment is now being arranged by the Ladies of Isabella and the Knights of Columbus. Santa Claus will be on hand to distribute gifts, candy, popcorn, and ice cream.

Chairman is Mrs. Loretta Feller, 2936 North Rockwell avenue, assisted by co-chairman, Mrs. Alice Mix, 2438 North Campbell avenue, and Mrs. Marge Knapp, 4612 North Kilbourn avenue. Miss Frances Siuda, 4121 North St. Louis avenue, is the grand lady.

TEMPLE CENTER ASKS YOUTH TO REVIEW OF BOOK

An open meeting will be held by Temple center of Temple Beth Israel at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the auditorium, 4850 North Bernard avenue. Young people of the congregation have been invited to hear Miss Katherine Eulenberg review Ludwig Lewishon's new novel, "The Renegade."

Jerome Greenberg is president of the center and Estelle Schneiderman is secretary.

Jewish culture night will be observed at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at a meeting of the Men's club of the temple. Benjamin Weintroub, communal worker and editor of the Chicago Jewish forum, will speak on "The Jew in English Fiction." Chairmen will be Sam Diamond, Joseph Bauer, and Harry Kadushin.

Nobel Parents' Night.

Nobel school parents' night will be celebrated with a Christmas program by the school children at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the school, 4127 Hirsch street.

MOTOR CLUB COUNCIL ASKS NO-PARKING RULE FOR WRIGHTWOOD AVE.

Establishment of a two hour no parking period in the morning and evening on Wrightwood avenue from Logan Square west to Pulaski road was recommended at a recent meeting of the Northwest Area council of the Chicago Motor club. At the same meeting Judge Oscar K. Stahle, Park Ridge, was reëlected chairman of the council, and Vincent C. Rozycki, 5832 North Luna avenue, was reëlected secretary.

Judge Stahle.

Walter Miller, 5832 Warwick avenue, vice chairman, will serve for another year. Mr. Miller also represents the Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs.

The council also reported that Wrightwood avenue along this same stretch has been designated as a thru street and that new stop signs will be installed at the corner of Wrightwood and Pulaski road.

Another area council project was completed when the city council designated Austin avenue a thru street between North avenue and Higgins road.

City's Oldest Day Nursery Will Broadcast Saturday

The Margaret Etter Crèche, 2116 Chicago avenue, the oldest day nursery in Chicago, organized in 1885, will broadcast at 3:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon on the Council of Social Agencies' radio series, "That Men May Live."

LIST 5TH TIME NORTHWEST SIDE BLOOD DONORS

Ten northwest side residents donated blood for the fifth time to the Red Cross blood donor center, 5 North Wabash avenue, during the period from Dec. 5 to Dec. 7. One resident, Belle Gorham, 5516 North Austin avenue, is a sixth time donor.

The donors for the fifth time are Marie Bridwell, 3508 Irving Park boulevard; Frances Olsztynski, 1233 Cleaver street; Katherine Anderson, 5155 Winona avenue; Harry Hoffman, 2002 Humboldt boulevard; Don W. Cather, Park Ridge; Neil Goin, 4135 North Marmoa avenue; Gerald Lance, 5349 Montrose avenue; August Johnson, 1441 North Kildare avenue; Wilbur F. Chilson, 3830 North Octavia avenue, and Vera Katz, 1836 Humboldt boulevard. E. W. Johnson, 2734 North Whipple street, donated his blood for the first time.

From Dec. 9 to Dec. 12 northwest side blood donors appearing at the center in the loop included W. James Wallace, River Grove; John A. Bobera, 2739 North Laramie avenue; Joseph L. Mitchell, 4821 North Springfield avenue; Stella Georgian, 1953 Dickens avenue; Louis Rabinoff, 2420 North Kedzie boulevard; Jacob A. Mrs. Carla Bjorgum, 1730 North Richmond avenue; William G. Kelsey, 5319 Warwick a venue; William J. Kardosy, 2103 North Western avenue; Albert A. Weber, Elmwood Park, and Leo F. Mindey, 857 North Winchester avenue, are sixth time donors.

2D WARTIME YULE TO DRAW LARGE THRONGS

Northwest Siders to Hear Age Old Story.

A second wartime Christmas will be celebrated this week with the ringing of church bells, sermons, and song as northwest side residents of all denominations go to their churches to hear a story that is 1,942 years old.

The birthday of the Christ Child will be remembered by mothers and fathers in the same church where their sons, now fighting in Asia and Africa, were baptized and confirmed. Girls will wear the robes of the three wise men and of Joseph, parts taken last year by boys who are now in soldiers' uniforms. Sunday school children will sing age old carols around trimmed trees and the sermons of ministers will sound a note of hope that some day again there will be "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

Mark Church Anniversary.

A Christmas day service at 10:45 o'clock this morning in the Belmont Park Lutheran church, 5004 Wellington avenue, will also climax the silver anniversary celebration. The speaker will be Dr. Armin George Weng, president of the Illinois synod of the United Lutheran Church in America. There will be a roll call of members and a silver chest on the altar will be used for gifts to the church.

The work of Belmont Park church was started in December, 1914, with a Sunday school in a schoolhouse at Belmont and Cicero avenues when the area was almost all prairie. It was founded by the Rev. W. E. Davis and the Rev. J. Alec Nelson. The congregation was organized in another war year on Dec. 16, 1917. Today the membership has 750 baptized members and 520 confirmed. The first church building was dedicated in June, 1922.

Candle Service at Midnight.

There will be a midnight candle light service at the church this year on Christmas eve with music by the choir and a message from the pastor, the Rev. W. E. Koepf.

There will be two Christmas services on Christmas day at the Christ Lutheran church, Richmond street and McLean avenue, at 9:15 o'clock in the morning and at 10:30 o'clock. The first service will be in the German language. Reinhold Arkebauer will direct the choir music at both services. A Children's Christmas party is scheduled for Thursday evening.

There will be a candle light Christmas eve service at the Christ Lutheran church at Wilson and Spaulding avenues at 11 o'clock. Christmas services are scheduled for 6 o'clock and 10:30 o'clock Christmas morning when the pastor, the Rev. George P. Lottich, will preach and Erherdt Bergstrasser will direct the choir music.

Plan Matins Service.

At 6:30 o'clock Christmas matins service will be held at Christ English Lutheran church, Long avenue and Le Moyne streets, when the choir directed by Robert Jackson will sing. The Rev. W. H. Grothman, pastor, will preach at the 10:45 o'clock service Christmas morning. A children's Christmas eve service will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday.

A pageant "The Holy Nativity" will be presented at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Albany Park Methodist church, 3100 Wilson avenue, where the Rev. Milton D. Bayly is pastor. All members of the church school will participate. At 10 o'clock Christmas morning there will be a sermon and service. This year the Albany Park congregation will take gifts of food and money to all services for the Deaconess Orphanage in Lake Bluff. Almost 500 pounds of nonperishable foodstuffs is expected to be given to the home.

Three Christmas services will be held this year at the Albany Park Presbyterian church, St. Louis and Ainslie avenues, where the Rev. Carl T. Michel is pastor. There will be a worship service at 11 o'clock this morning and at 5 o'clock this afternoon there will be a Nativity pageant directed by Mrs. Leroy Leonard and Mrs. Christian Pedersen. At 11 o'clock there will be a candle lighting service with choir music directed by Mary Catherine Collins.

Danish Church Rites.

A Christmas festival for children will be held at 7 o'clock next Sunday evening by the Danish Lutheran church, 2846 Cortez avenue. On Christmas day a service will be presented in English at 10 o'clock in the morning and in Danish at 11 o'clock. The choir, which is directed by Walter Andersen, is decorating the church for the programs. The pastor is the Rev. A. V. Andersen.

A sunrise service will be held on Christmas day at the English Evangelical Church of Chicago, 3062 Palmer square. A former pastor of the church, Dr. L. W. Goebel, now president of the Evangelical and Reformed denomination, will preach. A communion service will follow the sermon. The Sunday school will present a pageant this afternoon.

The Sunday school will present its Christmas entertainment at 7:30 o'clock this evening as a part of the Franklin Park Methodist church holiday program. The children will give a pageant, recitations, and songs in the

16 STOLFOS PLAN YULE FESTIVITIES —MISS 6 AT WAR

Loop Newsstand Dealer Likes Family Frolic.

This Christmas only 16 heads will bow in reverence while James Stolfo, loop newsstand operator, asks for blessings on his family's Christmas dinner. In happier years the family group has numbered 22. But six of the boys have gone to war.

There's Bill, 33, who's overseas. He's with the army air corps in England. And Rocco, 31, who was inducted last April with Bill, but still is stationed at Fort Dix, N. J. John, 36, was the first to go—just before Christmas last year. He's in Michigan.

Ed, whose post is in Texas, is the youngest of the sons in service. He's just 23. Nick, 41, is at Fort Sheridan —not so far from the Stolfo home at 1730 North Laramie avenue.

Grandson in New York.

The sixth young man, absent from the Christmas table, is James Stolfo's grandson, Peter Piagari, 21 year old member of the coast guard with home base in New York.

"Sure, I wish they could all be home for Christmas," said Stolfo at one of his newsstands which are located on two corners of the Van Buren and Franklin street intersection in the loop. "But I'm mighty proud of them, too. We've all got to help get this war won."

Stolfo and his wife, Lucy, came to America from Italy many years ago—before any of the 13 children were born. The father has been at the same loop corner selling papers a total of 32 years. And during all those years he's worked a 10 hour day and a 6 day week. Now, because he has two newsstands, his son, James Jr., one of the two boys still home, helps him.

Few Have Married.

Talking about the huge dining room table at home, Stolfo pointed out one of the reasons his household is so large is that none of his seven boys has married, and only three of the six girls are married.

"Maybe it's because we all have such a good time together," explained the newspaper seller.

About Christmas gifts for the boys away Stolfo was vague.

"My daughters, Annette, Camille, and Dorothy, always take care of things like that," he said. "I don't have so much extra time!"

Food from Home!

James Jr., who had come from across the street, ventured the opinion that goodly sections of the Christmas boxes were filled with Italian delicacies never found in army or coast guard rations. Salami and strong cheeses have been repeated requests from the boys.

What Jimmy seemed to mourn most about his absent brothers was the way going off to war had spoiled their Christmas eve. For many years it was the custom for all seven of the boys to go together to midnight mass in St. Peter Canisius church. This year just he and his older brother, Peter, will be here to represent the Stolfo boys.

Two Daughters Nearby.

The other members of the Stolfo family usually go to a morning mass, early enough to get them home by the time the three married daughters, their husbands, and children arrive with their armfuls of presents. Two of them live in the neighborhood—Mrs. Rose Larcher and Mrs. Anne Piagari—but Mrs. Ruth Rille comes from 717 South Claremont avenue.

"O, it'll be a good Christmas all right. We have much to be thankful for," Stolfo said, grinning, "but it'll be better when the boys are home again."

War Cuts Family Yule Diners to 16

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

News stand dealer at Van Buren and Franklin streets for 32 years, James Stolfo is the proud father of five soldiers and the grandfather of a coast guard fighter. As a result of the boys' leaving home, his family around the Christmas table at 1730 North Laramie street this year will be reduced from a minimum of 22 to only 16 festive diners.

The five sons of James Stolfo serving in the army range in age from 23 to 41 years. In a year's time they have scattered all over the United States—from Texas to New Jersey—and one has gone overseas to England.

YULETIDE PARTY FOR EDISON PARK YOUNGSTERS SET

Edison Park will hold its annual yuletide party for the children of the community at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the auditorium of the Ebinger elementary school, 7350 Pratt avenue. There will be music, singing, and the arrival of Santa Claus who will distribute gifts to each child.

The Edison Park Community council is assisted with plans for the party by the Edison Park civilian defense office.

Members of the arrangements committee are G. F. Tripp, chairman; Mrs. T. J. McCormick, Mrs. R. J. Beard, Mrs. G. G. Savageau, J. J. Sladkey, C. A. Swanson, J. R. Mayer, Charles Stueckman, and Mrs. Bertha Muelhausen. Winfield S. Scott is commander of the Edison Park office of civilian defense.

Lutherans on Northwest Side Plan Yule Services

In all northwest side churches of the Lutheran Missouri synod special children's services will be held Christmas eve. A Christmas party will follow the Lutheran vespers next Sunday at Kimball hall.

COMMONS FOLK ADD FEATURES TO YULE TABLEAUX

War Scope Broadens Traditional Drama.

Tonight there will be something new added to the Christmas drama presented for 35 years by the Mothers' clubs of the Chicago Commons, 955 Grand avenue. The war and its geographic scope has broadened the title to "Mothers of the World."

The Christmas play this year will show mothers of different nationality backgrounds seeking the best way to bring up the Christ child. There will be an Italian mother, a Greek, Polish and German, Norwegian, Mexican, English and Irish, Armenian and Turk, Gentile, and Jew. The Red Cross production unit will give a tableau showing to whom their Red Cross garments are given. The nursery mothers' group will serve as ushers and the program climax will be the "Nativity Scene" for which the mothers' clubs are famous.

Nativity Scene Characteristic.

Year after year this "Nativity scene" has been as much a part of Chicago Commons as its curving front walk and its broad wooden front door. And for 35 years Mrs. Armida Cassetteri, 613 North Racine avenue, has played a part in the Christmas tableaux which first were produced in the windows on the second floor of the Chicago Commons. Mrs. Cassetteri has played one of the wise men.

For about 10 years the Chicago Commons Mothers' club has presented "Hyde's Nativity." Mrs. Rosa Cassetteri, 3716 Grand avenue, played the part of Joseph until illness prevented her from taking an active part. Her daughter, Mrs. Francis Marinos, has played the part of Joseph since. Thru the 10 years the rôle of the Virgin Mother Mary has been played by Mrs. Marie Varallo, 624 North Halsted street.

Plan Assembly Tuesday.

Besides the mothers' clubs all groups of the settlement will have parties and plays this week. There will be an assembly on Tuesday with carols, movies, and plays. The dramatic presentations will be "Everybody Happy," "The Silver Platter," "The House Gnomes," "What Made the Chimes Ring," an adaptation of the old familiar tale, and "Junior Claus."

A party for the mothers' clubs and their little children will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening and at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Children who are 11 and 12 years old will have a Christmas party tomorrow afternoon.

trical engineer. He formerly was a student at the University of Wisconsin.

The naval training center at Pensacola, Fla., has announced promotions for two former residents of the northwest side. They are: Walter P. Mydlowski, 18, son of Stanley Mydlowski of 2539 North Lotus avenue, who was advanced to aviation radioman, and Alfred J. Petschauer, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Petschauer of 876 North Mozart street, who was made coxswain.

Casmir Eugene Cieslak, 33, of 5237 Argyle street, was named an honor man of the last class to be graduated from the hospital corps school at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. He completed the six week basic training course with a grade average of 96.6 per cent. He is a graduate of Lane Technical High school and attended Northwestern university.

Among recent graduates from the aviation machinist's mate school at the naval air station at Jacksonville, Fla., was William Joseph Savage of 1728 North Keystone avenue. Upon graduation Savage was promoted to aviation machinist's mate, third class. A volunteer in the navy, he received his early training at San Diego, Cal.

Thomas M. Wilkes, 5831 Nickerson avenue, has been advanced from corporal to technical sergeant in the medical department of the army, according to a recent report of Brig. Gen. John M. Willis of Camp Grant, Illinois.

TRAVELING BANK GIVES ARLINGTON BOYS FUN MONEY

Town Sends Cash to Yanks Thru Tavernkeeper.

Marcellus Johnson owns a tavern in Arlington Heights. He also is known as a man who has done a lot of things to help others. That is why two churches are coöperating in his project of a traveling bank. The bank means a little extra money to buy a good time for Arlington Heights boys in the army and navy. The boys are scattered from Egypt to England, from Africa to Australia.

It was a year ago last November that the idea of the traveling bank was born. A service man driving east from the west coast stopped at the tavern, and when he left he gave Johnson a penny bank shaped in the form of a miniature ambulance. The tavern owner placed the bank on the counter and said, "Any one who wants to contribute to our boys fighting away from home, just drop your money in here."

From Nov. 1 to Jan. 1 $22 in small change was dropped into the bank and the money divided among 11 boys.

Picks Honor Man.

After Jan. 1 Johnson decided to dip into his long and growing list of Arlington Heights service men and put one man's name up on the bulletin board to be designated as "Honor Man of the Week." The name selected would be one who had been longest in the service and the money collected that week would go to him.

In that year the traveling bank on the tavern counter has meant sizeable money orders for men in all parts of the globe. Louis Sadecky's name was up the week of Dec. 8, and Louis was mailed a money order for $43. Residents of the town send in their son's names to be added to the list kept at the tavern. Two churches have brought in lists, the St. James Catholic parish and the St. John's Lutheran.

Johnson is assisted in his worldwide project by his wife who keeps the letters from the boys neatly filed in chronological order. Mrs. Johnson can tell by heart the names of Arlington Heights boys in service, and she has come to know their parents as friends.

Map Locates Service Men.

Johnsons' tavern has become the information center for service men in the town of 6,000 residents. People call him for addresses of the boys or to find out the names of the boys' parents. A popular spot in the tavern is the huge map of the world surrounded by pictures of Arlington Heights men. Ribbons lead from their pictures to the spot in the world where they are located.

Money orders have gone to Eugene Potter in England, to George Weisgerber in Egypt, to William Angeloff in Iceland, and Alfred Pederson in Chile. The boys have used the money to buy clothes or war bonds or just to have a good time.

Then they write back thank you notes. Weisgerber in Egypt sent back some Egyptian money and some desert sand.

Weidner Sends Thanks.

In his note Ferdinand Weidner wrote, "Received letter with money order and wish to thank all who made it possible for me to receive such a welcome gift. Have heard of the wonderful gesture of spreading a little cheer among the boys in the various camps and I think it is a splendid idea."

From California Eugene Doyle wrote, "Received your letter and money order and am at a loss to put my feeling into words. A few written words of thanks seems inadequate yet I can convey just a portion of my feelings towards the folks at home."

From Pearl Harbor Joseph Mayer wrote, "Thanks a million for money order gift. It is nice to know that we are being thought of in our home town."

Other Letters on File.

There are many other letters for the list of boys who have received money orders from the patrons of Johnson's tavern: Richard Dieball, Walter Kehe, Melvin Kehe, Glen Granzin, Melvin Gaare, Melvin Laseke, Leonard Thake, Ralph Laege, and Richard Torge, Robert Bauman, Albert Duenn, Edward Dearie, W. E. Kopplin, Otto Harhling, Roger Hertel, George Winkelman, Wallace Volz, Julius Ziesk, Herbert Malzahn, Dale Phillis, Louis Helm, Laddie Podzimek, William Annen, Fred Bloese, Ferdinand Weidner, Eugene Doyle, Joseph Mayer, William Angeloff.

Other visits from the traveling bank have gone to Frank Brodnan, Floyd Bauman, William Foley, Herbert Kirchhoff, Fred Lauterburg, Theodore Meyer, Leonard Maloney, Arthur Meyer, Lionel Moreda, Robert McDougall, Eugene Potter, Alfred Pedersen, Edward Peters, Louis Sadecky, George Weisgerber, Otto Mars, and Earl Gieseke.

A business firm tried to convince Johnson that they should use his idea for commercial purposes. "Nothing doing," said Johnson. "This traveling bank is a message of friendliness from the people of Arlington Heights to their boys. It is the most sacred thing we have ever done."

Traveling Bank Cheers Town's Yanks

This is the traveling bank New Year's card that Marcellus Johnson, tavern owner of Arlington Heights, had made to send to "his boys." The traveling bank was founded more than a year ago and each week contributions from patrons put in the penny bank ambulance on the tavern counter go to one of the boys from Arlington Heights in the service of his country. The huge map of the world is surrounded by the pictures of boys who have been "treated" by the traveling bank.

COMBINED TABOR CHOIRS PREPARE YULE PROGRAM

A program of Christmas music featuring a cantata for children's voices, old time carols, and modern anthems will be presented by the combined choirs of Tabor Lutheran church, Sunnyside and Drake avenues, at 8 o'clock this evening under direction of John Rieck.

"The Noël Cantata," written by Richard T. Rohlfing of River Forest, and a polyphonic arrangement of "In Dulci Jubilo," by Albert W. Grauer, both of which were dedicated to the Tabor children's choir, will be the principal selections. Others to be sung by the children include "Gesu Bambino," by Pietro Yon; "Shepherds, Awake," by Katherine Davis, and "Silent Night," by Franz Gruber.

The program will be shared by the church choir, the male choir and soloists, Loretta Voxx, Lola Luebbe, and Robert Wiegmann Jr. E. L. Marquardt will be at the organ and Prof. Rohlfing will be at the piano. The Rev. C. R. Matthies is pastor of Tabor church.

Seek Sewing Machines.

The Red Cross unit of the B'nai Shalom sisterhood which meets every Tuesday evening and all day Wednesday is sending out an appeal for sewing machines to use in connection with their war production.

Isabella Council to Hold Yule Parties for Children

Rosary council, Ladies of Isabella, will hold its annual Christmas party for the girls at St. Mary of Providence institute at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening at 4242 North Austin avenue. On next Sunday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the council will hold a party at Mount St. Joseph, Lake Zurich. The children have placed their orders for toys, games, books, pencils, apparel and candy and Santa Claus will make the deliveries at the parties.

1,000 EXPECTED AT FESTIVAL IN HUMBOLDT PARK

15 Nationality Groups Take Over Ukrainian Hall.

More than 1,000 persons are expected to attend a Victory folk festival which will be given by all nationality groups in the Humboldt park community from 2 to 11 o'clock this afternoon and evening. Some 15 organizations have taken over the entire Ukrainian building, 2457 West Chicago avenue, for craft exhibits, novelty booths for the sale of Christmas gifts, and a five hour evening program.

Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the allied war relief and the Humboldt park civilian defense council. The afternoon program will be dedicated to community singing, recorded music, and craft exhibits. At the same time the second floor of the Ukrainian building will be turned over to games and square dancing. A Ukrainian woman's group will operate the kitchen, serving dinners during the evening meal hour under the direction of Helen Lotoshynska.

Scouts Plan Exhibit.

The eight Boy Scout troops from the community will have a crafts exhibit on the first floor and will keep up an all-afternoon demonstration of first aid. The Polish Roman Catholic union youth department will have an electrical exhibit and the Legion of Polish Young Women will have an exhibit of dolls of all nationalities which will be offered for sale. There will be booths arranged by the Russian war relief, the Chinese, the Polish, and the Greek war relief.

Formal Evening Program.

A formal program will be presented in the evening, which will be opened by a patriotic drill and flag presentation by the majorettes of the Polish Roman Catholic union, headed by John Czech.

The Ukrainian Young Women's dance group will present folk dances from their homeland. Before the World war this dance group was composed of men and women in equal proportions. Today all of the men in the group are serving in the United States army and navy and the dance group is composed only of women.

Polish Groups Dance.

Another group of folk dances will be presented by the dance group from the Polish National alliance, headed by Joseph Hawrylewicz, and the dance group of the Polish Woman's alliance, headed by Miss Preyss.

Pearl Rebbe will direct the Young Judaea dance group.

TUMULT, SHOUTS DIE; ALL'S QUIET ON COFFEE FRONT

Some Hoarders Slink Back to Exchange Stale Stock.

A few weeks ago people were literally stampeding their neighborhood grocery stores in search of coffee. Today the shelves are filled with coffee and many who fought for it so stubbornly pass it by.

Robert Johnson, 47, who manages a chain store at 5806 Milwaukee avenue, can vouch for that. With his firm for 15 years, he claims he never saw anything comparable to the coffee rush in all his life. He "just didn't know people could act like that."

Broken Bottles Strew Floor.

The week before rationing he sold about 2,700 pounds of coffee. Some customers, in their mad rush to get their supply, brushed bottles from the shelves. Several pickle bottles became so much broken glass upon the floor. Others sideswiped a display of cider. Some of them found themselves sole-deep in cider before the offensive had concluded. Still others attacked the coffee shelves, climbing over one of the food display islands in the center of the store.

Once the cry of "no more coffee" went out an armistice was declared.

Then came the first day of December. Peace seemed to have broken out. What yesterday was fought over now seemed forgotten. Later, some of Johnson's "warriors," came back to ask if the coffee they had won might be exchanged for fresher stock.

They, however, were the only ones who appeared to want coffee badly. Customers whose loot was not so great did not come in immediately for more coffee. "I imagine they have plenty," said Johnson.

The first week of rationing he sold 469 pounds. That was a drop of 83 per cent from the last nonration week.

Eighty Per cent Expected.

Other food store managers have shared Johnson's experience.

The manager of a Park Ridge store reports that coffee sales per week after rationing are only slightly higher than the sales per day during the rush. Promptly at 8:30 in the mornings, during the week before freezing, he would put 250 pounds out on the shelves. At 8:45 there would not be a pound left. The first week of rationing he sold 350 pounds. He does not expect such a fall-off to continue. He feels that, once present stores of coffee in his customers' homes are depleted, weekly sales will return to about 80 per cent of normal.

In Elmwood Park a store manager found the same conditions. He summed it up with "take something away from a person and that is just what he wants." Sales in the first week after rationing averaged 50 per cent lower than the week before freezing. He, as others, felt that the only way to account for this was in customer's "loading up."

Stocks Last Longer.

The manager of a chain store in River Grove finds his sales about what they were last month, but now his new stocks of coffee last a week or more. In the days before rationing the same amount of coffee lasted about one hour and a half. He believes this was because many strangers, thwarted in their coffee hunt elsewhere, came to his store to buy.

A Crystal Lake store manager reports the same condition—sales about normal. He points out that whereas the River Grove merchant doled out his coffee before rationing by limiting volume of his daily sales, the Crystal Lake man merely restricted each customer to a pound purchase.

It appears from a general survey of many stores on the northwest side that only those who limited sales, in one way or another, have maintained an even flow in sales.

Store managers predict that within a month or two fluctuations should end, and sales settle down to about 80 per cent of peacetime volume. Barrington, Lake Zurich, Bensenville, and Palatine dealers concur in that opinion.

NORTHWEST PTA'S PLAN MEETINGS DURING VACATION

Palmer Parents Will Give Camp Foster Aid.

Right into the holiday vacation period the northwest side parent-teacher groups are carrying their work of caring for the school children.

A note of the Christmas season will be brought to the John M. Palmer P-TA meeting 1:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with the singing of Christmas carols. Presentation of health certificates will be made by Mrs. A. B. Brown, summer round up chairman, and hostesses will be mothers of the sixth grade pupils. The unit is asking for donations of cakes and cookies which will be taken each Saturday to Camp Foster servicemen's center by Mrs. E. L. Shafron, 4948 North Kostner avenue, chairman.

Bridge—A meeting of the Norman Bridge P-TA will be held at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the school auditorium, 3800 New England avenue. Mrs. J. C. Radin, program chairman, announces the traditional Christmas pageant will be given by the upper grades of the school. After a short business meeting there will be a social hour with the sixth grade mothers serving as hostesses.

Locke—The Rev. John P. Gaardsmoe, pastor of the Grace Lutheran church of Chicago, will speak on "Christmas, 1942" at a meeting of the Locke school PTA at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the school assembly, 2845 North Newcastle avenue. A musical program will be given by the Students' chorus directed by Mrs. Margaret Lynch. Mrs. Victor Griseto, music and recreation chairman, will lead the assembly in singing Christmas carols and will teach the making of Christmas table decorations.

Spencer—A Christmas play will be presented by Spencer school children at a meeting of the PTA at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the school assembly.

Boy Scout Commissioner Gets Silver Beaver Award

Boy Scout District Commissioner S. H. Rosenthal of Des Plaines was presented with the silver beaver award at the 17th annual banquet of the Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts held recently. The award is presented each year by the national council upon recommendation of the local council for "distinguished service to boyhood."

Lions Club Party.

The Northwest Lions club will hold its annual Christmas party Tuesday at 4300 North avenue. Members and their guests are welcome.

Named Dietitian for Hospital in East

A dietetics major, Miss Cahill is a member of the Home Economics club at Mundelein and of Terrapin Swimming club.

TWO NORTHWEST SIDE FLYERS JOIN 'FLYING WOLVES'

Parents of two flyers from the northwest side recently announced that their sons have become members of the "Flying Wolves," the name given to a newly organized bomb squadron now completing its training in a southern city.

The youths are Lt. Andrew L. Kaye, 23, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew F. Kucharski, 5339 Leland avenue, explained the boy has adopted the shorter name for convenience, and Lt. Myron Braverman, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Braverman, 4920 North St. Louis avenue.

While home on leave last week Lt. Braverman married Miss Tillie Taub and returned with his bride to the den of the "Flying Wolves" whose battle cry is a wolf's howl and whose insignia is a wolf's head. Before entering the service Lt. Braverman was a recreation instructor for the park district and Lt. Kaye was a student at De Paul Law school.

Irving Park Methodists to Hear Yule Program

"Christmas Oratorio" by Camille Saint-Saens, will be presented at 5 o'clock this afternoon by the choir of the First Methodist Church of Irving Park in the church, 3801 North Keeler avenue. Assisting soloists will be Lois Wallner, soprano; Evelyn Ames, contralto; Robert Kessler, tenor, and Earle Wilkie, baritone. The organist is Isabel Ebert and the director is Harry S. Walsh.

Victory Ball in Park Ridge to Take Place of White Ball

One of the important events on the Park Ridge calendar will be the Victory ball formerly designated as the White ball, a traditional dance of St. Cecilia's guild of St. Mary's church, Park Ridge. The ball will be held from 9 to 12 o'clock Tuesday night, Dec. 29, in the Mary Wilson House and it is either formal or informal. The price has been reduced for men in uniform.

tions simple is to display the new furnishings recently dedicated in the church chancel.

With 400 gallons less oil to use to heat the building, the Methodist church of Park Ridge, Touhy avenue near Prospect, is having one of its busiest Christmas seasons. The Rev. T. Harry Kelly, pastor, reports that the church may have to deny the use of the building to community organizations such as the Red Cross, Civilian Defense, Cubs, Boy Scouts.

In the meantime the church is holding its meetings to a minimum and its temperature to around 60 degrees. A new oil burner was installed in order to save fuel and a heavy grade of oil was purchased. The large social room, Jefferson hall, has been completely shut off and will not be used for the duration of oil rationing. The Methodist church has averaged about $159 worth of oil a month because of the extensive use of the building by all groups in the community as well as the church organizations.

Nebo Lutheran church, 5800 Dakin street, will use no decorations outside the church to save electricity. The pastor, the Rev. O. B. Hanson said 150 young members of the church are serving in the army, navy, and marines.

CHORAL PROGRAM WILL MARK YULE AT FOREMAN HIGH

Students in Drama, Music to Aid Singers.

The Christmas spirit is much in evidence at Foreman High school this year. Last week a St. Nick's frolic was held in the girl's gymnasium. On Tuesday, a Christmas choralog will be presented. And for some time every classroom has been garlanded with wreaths and other decorations of the season.

The Christmas choralog by W. B. Olds is to be staged by the drama and music department of the school. It will consist of a tableau, with vocal accompaniment, in three episodes: The Annunciation; The Vision of the Shepherd; and The Visit of the Magi. Three will be three performances.

Casts Are Listed.

The casts for the three presentations include Leo Di John, Harold Larson, and George Johnopulus, as narrators; Lorretta Wyszynski, Betty Ness, and Corrine Durava as the Virgin Mary; Eleanore Paulsen, Helen Kalinowski, Lorraine Miller, Betty Nolan, Shirley Ross, Joan Neff, Joan Moore, Mildred Ondrejcin, Mary Terracins, Lorraine Cottrell, Rita Rofil, Geraldine Schott, Georgine Jacobson and Genevieve Benson, as angels.

Richard Miller, Richard Filay, Stanley Korterud, Stanley Tuczalo, Edward Planert, Fred Nast, Paul Bongiorno, John Piff, and Paul Gawrys, will appear as shepherds; Al Salomini, Ted Adamski, Robert Butler, and Rocco Pirrone, as Magi; Charles Kreuger as St. Joseph. Peter Milewak, is stage manager.

Three Soprano Soloists.

The soprano soloists for the part of the Virgin Mary are Myrtle Raedke, Leona Bihler, and Jeannette Wallace. Members of the Foreman choir and the Glee club will assist in the services, which will be under the direction of Mrs. Rose Weiss and Miss Myrtle Nelson.

At the St. Nick's Frolic, Guy Nitti, president, and Al Lewis, vice president of the student council, directed the activities. Santa Claus was there and Jerry Mancuso and his Moderneeres provided music for dancing.

STATE MASONIC OFFICER TO SEAT PARK RIDGE SON

Park Ridge Masonic lodge will see a Masonic officer install his son as master at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the lodge hall. Earl Livingston, district deputy grand master of Illinois, will install his son, Virgil, as master of the Park Ridge lodge.

Assisting him will be three Park Ridge past masters, W. W. Spangler, installing marshal; Arthur Madson, installing chaplain, and Albert Anderson, installing secretary.

Other officers to take their posts are Oscar H. Goetz, senior warden; William B. Van Rensselaer, junior warden; Harry H. Singer, treasurer; Albert Verity, secretary; William Spangler, chaplain; Lloyd T. Tollefson, senior deacon; Howard B. Taverner, junior deacon; F. Mervin Smith, senior steward; Leonard C. Lanigan, junior steward; Roy J. Miller, marshal, and Raymond W. Dotts, tyler.

LUTHERAN SYNOD CHIEF TO TALK ON NORTHWEST SIDE

St. Paul's Lutheran church, Canfield avenue near Higgins road, which has been remodeled and refurnished in recent months, will be dedicated at a special service at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Guest speaker will be the Rev. John W. Behnken, president of the Lutheran Missouri synod.

Founded in 1902, St. Paul's congregation had as its first resident pastor, the Rev. August H. Lange, now stationed at Summit. It was organized by a group of people who originally belonged to St. John's church, Montrose and Lavergne avenues.

The present pastor, the Rev. Albert H. Zimmer, has served the last 16 years. The church maintains a public school taught by Albert Sachtleben. Supper will be served by women of the church after the service next Sunday.

Indian Boundary Club.

The Indian Boundary Mothers' club of Rogers Park will entertain tomorrow at a Christmas luncheon in the Indian Boundary fieldhouse.

Flower High Girls Giving Dolls to Poor

Girls from the Flower Technical High school show a few of the 300 dolls dressed by students from that school for distribution to the poor. Left to right: Betty Churchill, 16, 3632 North Springfield avenue; Matilda Rut, 18, 1429 Cullerton street; Vivian Filin, 17, 4322 LeMoyne street; Rosemary Nikolich, 17, 2818 Barry avenue, and Dolores Miotke, 15, 5211 South Racine avenue.

Youthful Voices to Tell Yule Story

A pageant of Christmas carols will tell the story of the Nativity at Linne school, 3221 North Sacramento avenue, at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. All the children will take part, from the tiny junior choristers to the four part eighth grade a cappella choir. Costumed for their roles in the carol, "Bells Are Ringing," are, left to right, back row, Merrill Boyd and John Reiser; front row, James Tumilty, James Jacobson, and David Hunziker. [Board of Education Photo.]

Curtain time! This scene will be re-enacted Tuesday at the Prussing school, 4650 North Menard avenue, when the first and second grade students present "A Toyland Saga." Left to right: Peggy Dean, 4543 North Meade avenue; Mathilda Molnar, 5877 Gunnison street; Wendell Carson, 4826 North Meade avenue, and Alice Hanko, 5905 Eastwood avenue.

Forty-Niners' Club Sends Gifts to Men in Service

The Forty Niners' club of 40 families from the 4900 block on Kenneth and Kilbourn avenues held a card party recently to raise money for Christmas presents to the boys from the block in military service. With the $95 earned at the party each soldier and sailor was sent $5 and a carton of cigarets as a holiday greeting from the club.

John F. Conley Legion Post Entertains Children Today

The John F. Conley American Legion post and auxiliary will hold a Christmas party for children of members at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Harmony hall, Kostner avenue and Thomas street. To deserving families in the community, the auxiliary is sending checks this year rather than the baskets given in the past.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

Sunday, Dec. 6, was an exciting day for Mr. and Mrs. John G. Stoeckert of 3358 Montrose avenue, for that day their infant son, John King, was baptized. For the ceremony he wore a dress and slip made 60 years ago by the bride's mother, Mrs. William B. Cooper of 3324 West Wilson avenue. The slip and dress were worn by the first of Mrs. Cooper's eight children and each of her children and grandchildren have worn it on the day of their baptism. The baby also wore the traditional shawl of his father's family. The Rev. Milton Bayley of the Auburn Park Methodist church officiated at the service. The child bears the name of one of his sponsors, John B. King, 4428 North Ashland avenue.

Edward W. Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Lawson of Park Ridge, has been elected intramural manager of his fraternity, Alpha Delta Phi, for the second semester at Brown university, Providence, R. I. He will have charge of all teams representing his fraternity in the university intramural program. A graduate of Maine Township High school, Lawson is a candidate for the A. B. degree. He is a member of the Brown Christian association and is on the varsity swimming team.

Fred Becker, 2823 North Lockwood avenue, student in the school of commerce of Central YMCA college, was recently awarded one of the two scholarships granted each year by the Purchasing Agents' association of Chicago to two students in the beginners' class in purchasing. Becker is an employé of THE TRIBUNE purchasing department.

Harry Herman Fischman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bela Fischman of 3342 West Le Moyne street, is home from the Riverside Military academy, Gainesville, Ga., where he is a cadet.

LINNE CHILDREN WILL GIVE YULE STORY IN SCHOOL

Plan Original Tableaux of Nativity Scenes.

The history of Christmas will be told in picture and song by all the children of Linne school, 3221 North Sacramento avenue, at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in keeping with the holiday tradition at the school. For weeks the Linne music organizations from the tiny Junior choristers to the four part 8th grade a cappella choir have been busy learning Christmas carols.

The Linne speaking choir has practiced to give a rendition of the St. James version of the Christmas story. Inspired by the words of the carols, the Linne art classes, taught by Miss Violet Mau, have drawn and painted pictures of angels, shepherds, wise men, the Holy Family, and the manger. From these illustrations pupils and teachers have selected the scene which best represents the words and music of each carol. These scenes will be presented as living pictures while the choruses and glee clubs sing.

Frames for Living Pictures.

Children of the ungraded room under the direction of their teacher, Miss Vera Becker, have constructed a gilded frame backed by a box in which the pictures are to be posed. They have wired the frame and fitted it with lights so that the scenes may be spotlighted.

Last week the children planned the backgrounds and properties. Large pieces of unbleached muslin were stretched and thumbtacked to the floor and on hands and knees the children splashed on paint for picture backgrounds. Costumes are planned by the artists, assisted by Miss Marie Egan and Miss Margaret O'Connell, teachers.

Glee Clubs to Sing.

Participating in the project are the Girls' Glee club with solos by Joan Silverman and Gladys Singlemann and directed by Miss Dorothy McLaughlin; Boys' Glee club, with solo parts by Patsy Frieboth, directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Lifton, and the Junior Choristers, directed by Miss Marie Pahl. The 8th grade a cappella choir is directed by Miss Mabel R. Loucks, and the 7th grade chorus is directed by Mrs. Lifton. Miss Gertrude Hannen will be the accompaniest.

Miss Loucks is principal of the school and is the originator and sponser of the program. The voice speaking choir was originated by Miss Adeline Bendix.

THORPE SCHOOL DRAMA

Little boys with skinned elbows fresh from the football field, and little girls who won't wear a thimble have been busy for the last two weeks in the G. A. Thorpe school, 6024 Warwick avenue, cutting out halos for angels and sewing on shepherd's shawls. A finished production will be ready for the parents and friends of the school children at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the school auditorium, when Christmas carols, stories, and pageantry will be assembled by a cast from the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades.

More than three hundred children will take part in the program, and the rôle of the readers will be taken by Grover Mason and Helen Frye.

Directed by Principal.

Mary G. Hayes, principal of Thorpe school, is general director of the Christmas assembly. In charge of stage properties are Mrs. Marian Petersen and Miss Georgia Veatch.

Parents have assisted in making the robes and capes. The children built the manger, shed, and other properties for the Bethlehem scene. They also are making the angels' crowns and the shepherd's staffs.

As the tableaux are formed, four choruses of children's voices will sing the ageless carols. They will be directed by Miss Randa Stene and Mrs. Lillie Hansen.

Cast of Nativity.

In the nativity tableau the part of Mary will be taken by Geraldine Mador, and Joseph Giovannetti will play the part of Joseph. The five angels will be Marilyn Fletcher, Joan Rouille, Mary Lou Grego, Dolores Christensen, and Loraine Sikorski.

The parts of the shepherds will be taken by Donald Mazukalli, Frank Altmaier, Paul Winzey, Angelo Bartolone, and William Reego. The three wise men will be Donald Franson, George Tinko, and Earl Olsen.

Leaders in Chicago educational circles have been invited to the performance in addition to the parents. Miss Hayes believes the presentation of the Christmas story in drama and music gives the students training in diction, art, decorating, poetry appreciation, and music.

8 ON NORTHWEST SIDE ARE GIVEN U. OF C. DEGREES

Eight northwest side men and women were among 225 candidates who received degrees from the University of Chicago at the 211th convocation Friday afternoon in Rockefeller Memorial chapel. The convocation was the second of four scheduled in the university's academic year and brought to 642 the students who have been graduated since the beginning of the summer quarter.

The northwest side residents who received bachelor of arts, science, or philosophy degrees are Audrey Joyce Earl, 4846 Walton street; Maurice Goldstein, 4627 North Monticello avenue; Lester T. Gootnick, 2761 North Spaulding avenue; Marvin Kernes, 2022 Touhy avenue, and Frank Erwin Pretzel, 2343 North Karlov avenue.

The master of arts degree was awarded Mrs. Mildred Fetchark Anderson, 3915 Diversey avenue. Masters of business administration degrees were given to Mildred Julia Giese, 3100 Berteau avenue, and Joseph Hadary, 4738 Virginia avenue.

WRIGHT JUNIOR NEWS STAFF IS CALLED TO WAR

Seven College Writers in Army, Navy Posts.

More activities at Wright Junior college, 3400 North Austin avenue, have been affected by the war. The school newspaper staff recently lost seven of its editorial members to the army and navy.

Ted Costopoulas, last semester's publicity photographer and photo editor of the school paper and the yearbook, was sworn into the navy as a first class seaman. Art Schwartz, enlisted in the navy and is now in Idaho studying photography, as a second class seaman. Richard Kraus, former managing editor, and Herb Leibovitz, assistant sports editor, enlisted in the army and left two weeks ago. Andrew Glaves, former feature writer, enlisted in the signal corps. Paul Golfman, feature writer, and Edward Twarog, sports writer, enlisted in the army.

Co-Eds Do Their Part.

Back at school the co-eds are doing their bit for the boys who sat beside them in history class and who are now on the seas or in army camps. Gifts of Christmas stockings are the way members of the Women's club are saying Merry Christmas to the service men. The girls are filling red net stockings with nail clippers, cigarets, razor blades, gum, handkerchiefs, and other minor necessities of military men. The project headed by Claire Fecura is under the direction of Bundles for America. By last Tuesday the girls had filled 300 stockings.

Forging ahead of all other organizations, the Wright Commerce club has won the title of "Victory Club of the Week" for the third time. The Commerce men sold $49.10 worth of stamps in the class rooms. Also coming in for honorable mention are the French club and the Blackstone Law club. The law club purchased $26.50 and the linguists $26.65 in stamps. War bonds and stamps by the end of November at Wright totaled $4,104.46.

Yearbook Nearly Ready.

The new type of yearbook at Wright, the "Flashes," opened a drive among the students for 1,500 subscriptions. "Flashes" is a pictorial record of Wright college in action. Even the advertisments are posed by Wright students to tell the story of he community.

Berkley Slutzker is chairman of the yearbook sales committee, assisted by members of the student sales staff. Pictures for the book are now at the engraver and all copy is in the print shop.

BLOCK WORKERS INAUGURATE NEW STRETCHER UNIT

A first aid and stretcher unit to operate as a squad in case of emergency has been formed by members of block 5, zone 2, in the Rogers Park-Clark community. All men and women belonging to the unit have completed both the primary and advanced first aid courses, but will continue to receive Red Cross training under Instructor R. D. Zimmerman. Percival Budden is block captain.

M'CORMICK Y. W. PLANS PARTY FOR RESIDENT WOMEN

Candles are gleaming, carols echoing in the halls of the McCormick Y. W. C. A., 1001 North Dearborn street, as the Christmas spirit takes over. Many of the girls who reside in the dormitories will be unable to go home for Christmas, according to Miss Agnes Ewart, director, and so the club is expanding its usual Christmas program this year.

This afternoon there will be open house with James Lapsley, the club's singing doorman, presenting a program of Christmas songs. The Christmas tree will be lighted and tea served. At the tea table will be Eileen Nielson, Vivian Ingram, Betty Leatherman, and Jadwiga Daniec.

Christmas eve the girls will gather to hear Mrs. Philip S. Post, one of the founding mothers tell the Christmas story. On Christmas morning breakfast will be served in the Sun Room, around the Christmas tree, with music and presentation of gifts.

CLINIC BUSINESS FALLS AWAY AS WAR WAGES RISE

Patients Turn from Free Service; Pay Old Bills.

The much publicized American habit of paying the doctor last seems to be on the way out in Chicago at least. Doctors thruout the city report a minimum of requests for charity treatment, and all the free clinics have had a sharp drop in the number of patients asking for medical aid in the last year.

Many doctors say that their collections of old bills is 25 to 30 per cent better than it has been in past years. The payment of fees at one clinic is 25 per cent higher this year than last, in spite of the fewer number of patients requesting treatment.

Clinics Lose Patients.

As long as production in the great war plants is booming and the workers tuck fat pay checks into their pockets each week, the clinics will lose patients, in the opinion of Dr. J. Roscoe Miller, dean of the Northwestern university medical school.

At the Northwestern clinics there has been a drop of almost 25 per cent in the number of patients applying for admission to the free clinics this year compared with the applicants at the start of the war, according to Dr. Miller.

At the start of the war, and shortly before the war plants began their climb to maximum production, these clinics had 112,082 visits from patients over a year's period. During a corresponding period this year there have been only 86,093 visits.

Observe Immediate Effect.

"This is a heartening indication that the American people will refuse to accept charity if they can possibly avoid it," Dr. Miller said. "For the first time we have had the opportunity to observe the immediate effects of a sudden increase in the earning capacity of the average worker. Usually these increases come slowly, but in this case almost overnight a man with nothing before is making a livable income.

"From the experience in our clinic it would seem that the first thing this worker does is begin paying for things that he had been receiving for nothing—even tho he could still do so. There has even been a 25 per cent increase in the number of patients who, tho still unable to afford a private doctor, ask to pay a voluntary fee for the clinical service."

9,000 Fewer Cases.

At County hospital there was a drop of almost 9,000 in the number of patients treated during September of this year, compared with September, 1941, according to Dr. Ole Nelson, superintendent of the hospital. Last year there were 48,005 treatments during the month, while this year the number of treatments dropped to 39,074, the lowest in some time.

Dr. Nelson attributed this decline to the reluctance of Americans to accept charity, and to an increased interest in health brought about by the war.

The clinics operated by the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois, and the Mercy Free Dispensary of Loyola university all have experienced similar drops in the number of patients treated without charges.

Child Doctors Taken.

In one case, however, only a very slight drop has been noticed. The Children's Memorial hospital had a decline of only 2,508 in the number of treatments given this year over last. This, perhaps, is explained by the fact that a great number of pediatricians have been taken into the armed forces, and parents take their children to a specialty hospital after this doctor has gone to war.

Sociologists also report that many more children from homes in which both parents are working have required hospital care because their parents do not see them enough to notice evidence of illness in its early stages.

War Makes Staff Inroads.

The cut in clinical patients has helped the hospitals meet another problem brought on by the war. Northwestern has lost 175 doctors to the armed services from its regular staff of 399 full and part time men. While some of these men have been replaced with older physicians, all of the medical school graduates for the next few years will be taken directly into service.

At the Children's Memorial hospital the same situation is true. In the last year the hospital has lost 37 per cent of its staff to the armed forces, most of them pediatricians whose specialty is the treatment of children up to 13 years of age. The University of Chicago has lost 41 men from its full time staff of 150 physicians and research doctors, and expects to lose several more in the next few months.

BOYS' CLUB GROUP TO HEAR TALK ON TEEN AGE CRIME

A talk on "Facing Juvenile Delinquency in Wartime" will be given by Dr. Ernest Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Chicago Boys' Clubs association tomorrow noon at Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Dr. Burgess will discuss the rapid rise in teen age crime, as traced to wartime tension, and also will include some of his findings in the study of recreation and delinquency.

Newly elected officers of the association are: Stewart W. Knarr, president; Sol Boskin, vice president, and Helen Coatsworth, secretary-treasurer.

The association has in its membership all staff workers of the Boys' clubs of metropolitan Chicago as well as the boys' departments of settlements.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 21.

A good covering of snow is about the best protection that outdoor plants can have. It is not so heavy that plants are smothered unless soft, melting snow is followed by freezing weather, and even then most plants will survive in good condition. Hardiness depends largely on soil conditions. Many plants will survive in a sandy, well drained soil which winter would kill in a heavy soil. Giving protection simply prevents plants from heaving and exposing the roots to frost during thaws.

Tuesday, Dec. 22.

Watch that rabbits and other rodents do not girdle the trunks of outdoor plants, especially young apple trees. They do immense damage if in need of food. One way to protect the plants is to place fine meshed wire around them; heavy tar paper is also good. Rabbits will gnaw the bark of sumac if in a starving condition. It is a good plan to place traps, eradicate them, and save the plants.

Do not neglect to place bird feeding stations, for many die if not fed.

Wednesday, Dec. 23.

Water the potted amaryllis sparingly until it shows activity. The flower stalk appears before the leaves and makes a rapid growth. As growth increases give more water. A little plant food applied as the buds show color will give better blooms.

The home gardener usually is interested in the aquarium with a few fish and aquatic plants. If there are too many fish in a small bowl none will survive for long. Overfeeding is to be avoided at all times; feed once each week and just enough that the fish will consume all of it without difficulty and wait until they show signs of hunger before feeding again.

Thursday, Dec. 24.

There are many plants which should interest the home gardener in his desire to grow something a little different. Take the Dumb Cane, a dark green leaved plant with blotches of white. It grows readily without much care, but should stand in subdued light, not in direct sunlight. Old plants can be reduced in size and the stem cut up and rooted in sandy soil. It is a most accommodating sort of plant, for it will grow for a long time when placed in a tall glass container. Roots will form and all the luxuriant growth of the tropics enjoyed.

Friday, Dec. 25.

Flowering plants that are presented as gifts will require care if their period of most attractiveness is enjoyed over a maximum time. They must be kept moist, otherwise they are certain to wither. If they once lack moisture they begin to fade. Primroses and other densely fibrous rooted plants wither more rapidly than heavy, strong rooted plants. Place the plants on the floor in a cool room over night. Do not place them in a draft, but give them fresh air daily.

Saturday, Dec. 26.

Protect young evergreens with burlap or a windbreak of boards. Stake fall planted trees to prevent them from being loosened during storms. Clear snow away from evergreens and especially evergreen hedges, or the branches may be broken by the weight.

Keep the soil in window boxes planted with low evergreens moist at all times, for if the soil dries out the plants will suffer. Cut back weak, straggling branches of indoor plants like the coleus to cause stronger growth and better shaped plants.

LIST HOME SAVER PRODUCTS; GOOD SCOTCH CUSTOM

Oil Paint Penetrates, Prevents Rust.

[For further information on materials discussed in this article, please send stamped, addressed envelope to this department.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Save what you have!

It's an old Scotch custom.

To make possible such savings there are penetrating, protective products which will insure longer life and usefulness to a host of articles and equipment around our houses.

One such product, of real value at this time, is a penetrating, rust-preventive oil paint. You can use this to stop rust at its source since it seals in and around the rusted particles to form a hard, durable film and to prevent further rusting.

Paint Has Wide Coverage.

This paint comes in a light gray which closely approximates aluminum in color and light reflection, but is without metallic sheen. It also can be obtained in other colors. One can save considerably by use of this type paint since it has a coverage of 800 to 1,700 square feet per gallon, and because labor need not be expended on removal of the rust before application. Is your hardware, your fireplace equipment, etc., as well as all other metal accessories, in shape to last the duration?

There are different formulas to meet different needs. There is one for damp surfaces and one for metal that is heavily rusted. One type dries in from eight to 12 hours, one in four hours and there is one which will dry in about two minutes.

The manufacturers of this penetrating paint offer stains and coatings for concrete floors. These can be applied according to manufacturers' directions over new or old basement concrete floors. The stains and coating come in club green, tile red, chestnut brown, and machine gray. It will penetrate the concrete and only tie up the floor overnight, and will even resist a certain amount of dampness.

Covers Bleeding Stains.

Another product of interest in many homes as soon as the holiday season is over is a flat white sealin paint with interior finish coat, ar yet it can be applied over stain wood to stop bleeding stains.

CAROLS TO RING OUT OVER W-G-N EVERY EVENING

Amplifiers to Waft Music Into Streets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Once again carols and other holiday music will ring out from W-G-N the week before Christmas. Beginning tomorrow a half hour of choral music will be broadcast over W-G-N for radio listeners, and amplifiers hung high over Nathan Hale court will send the joyful music pealing out over the city so that homeward bound shoppers and office workers may hear it, too.

This will be the 11th consecutive year for the observance of this custom. W-G-N will broadcast the music from 5:30 to 6 p. m. and the entire Mutual Broadcasting system will carry the music for the final 15 minutes.

Five Groups Will Sing.

Five outstanding choral groups from the metropolitan area will be heard on these song sessions which will be presented to organ accompaniment by Len Salvo. On the first program tomorrow St. Mary's High School Glee club, under the direction of Sister M. Matilde, B. V. M., will be heard.

On Tuesday the Edgewater Evangelical Mission Covenant church's mixed choir will give the program. The Kenwood School chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Waser, will be heard Wednesday.

Christmas Eve Program.

The Christmas eve program will be presented by the adult choir of the Monumental Baptist church under the direction of Forestine Neal Bostick.

On Christmas day the Holy Trinity Russian Cathedral choir will be heard. All of the programs will be presented from W-G-N's organ studio which is particularly suitable acoustically for this type of music.

FIRESIDE PARTY TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N TODAY

A new half hour Sunday afternoon show featuring music by Louise Massey and the Westerners and drama by Chicago radio actors and actresses will be introduced over W-G-N under the sponsorship of the Loyal Order of the Moose today.

The program to be called the "Moose Fireside Party," will be broadcast from 5:30 to 6 p. m.

The dramatic cast for the first show will include Art Kohl, Dick Holland, Norma Jean Ross, and Alma Platts.

Originally, the Westerners were known as the Massey Family. There was "Dad" Massey, Louise, Curt, and Allen; and Louise's husband, Milt Mabie. "Dad" retired in 1930 and turned his job over to Larry Wellington, accordion player, and thereupon the group took a new name.

'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' MOVES TO MONDAY PERIOD

"Mightier than the Sword," W-G-N program revealing the importance of a free press in helping the allied nations to win the war, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. Mondays.

A dramatic parallel between the Battle of Russia in 1812, when Napoleon was storming Moscow, and the Battle of Russia in 1942, when Hitler was attempting the same thing, will be told by Stanley Johnston, noted war correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Robert Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra provide the musical setting for this program which is produced by Jack LaFrandre. A cast of outstanding actors is employed and Marvin Mueller is the announcer.

BECKER MOVES SPORT SHOW TO 3 P. M. SUNDAYS

Bob Becker will interview Mrs. Dorothy Eagles, director and founder of the North Side Animal Shelter, on his "Sportsmen's Spotlight" program at 3 p. m. today on W-G-N. The program, formerly heard on Tuesdays, will now be a regular Sunday feature.

Mrs. Eagles will tell of her organization and its job of placing homeless dogs in homes. Many of the dogs at the shelter will be Christmas gifts this year, Mrs. Eagles will explain. She also will tell how many service men are taking their dogs to her before they go into the army or navy and asking her to find homes for the animals.

Kostelanetz Plays Carols.

Wilbur Evans, baritone, and Albert Spalding, violinist, will be guests of Andre Kostelanetz at 3:30 this afternoon over WBBM-CBS. Music includes "The First Noel," "Adeste Fidelis," "Ave Maria," and "The Lord's Prayer."

FIVE HUNDRED SINGERS FROM SEVEN SCHOOLS TO JOIN W-G-N CAROLS

Dr. Helen Howe.

Five hundred high school and junior college students will join in their seventh annual carol sing on W-G-N next Wednesday afternoon. The carolers will be guests during the broadcast of the Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry, regularly presented from 3 to 4 p. m. The carol program will be presented during the last 15 minutes of the hour—from 3:45 to 4 p. m.

The schools to be represented will be Waller, Farragut, Steinmetz, Austin, Roosevelt, and Lake View and Wright junior colleges. Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago Public schools, is in charge of the program.

The carol program will open and close with "Silent Night." Other selections will be "Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Dr. Howe will be interviewed by Jack Brickhouse on "What High School Students Like to Sing at Christmas Time."

'AMERICA LOVES MELODY' NEXT ON THEATER OF AIR

"America Loves a Melody," the prize winning operetta in W-G-N's $10,500 Great American Operetta Quest of last season will be presented on W-G-N and Mutual's Theater of the Air from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire, prima donna of the operetta series, and Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will sing the leading rôles.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, will be the speaker of the evening.

This operetta, written by Ross Hastings, young Los Angeles composer, was selected as the best of 2,232 entries received from 46 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the competition. "America Loves a Melody" has already been performed twice on the Theater of the Air. As "Operetta No. 3" it was presented Last March 28, when the public was asked to vote for the best of three operettas that had been selected by an advisory board of distinguished musicians.

The public cast the greatest number of votes for the Hastings' operetta, and it was presented as the grand prize winner on April 11 at the Civic Opera house, with Miss Claire and Allan Jones in the starring rôles.

BOOTHS BRING SERVICE CENTER LOADS OF FOOD

Suburbs Contribute in Woman's Plan.

Shortly after the opening of the Chicago Service Men's center last February, Mrs. Charles Green, 252 Sunset drive, Glen Ellyn, conceived the idea that thousands of persons in the west suburbs would gladly contribute food products if a way could be found to establish a system of canteen collection booths.

Altho realizing that such a project would involve many problems, Mrs. Green proceeded to work out a plan. She decided to establish small canteen collection booths in as many suburbs as possible and that the best place for them would be at railroad passenger stations. Because the greatest call for food products at the downtown center would come on week-ends, Saturday of each week was decided upon as being the best day to operate the booths.

High School Girls Aid.

Mrs. Green further decided that the booths should be operated by high school girls working in shifts under the supervision of local women directors in each community; that material and labor for construction of the booths be solicited as a contribution from local dealers, contractors and workmen.

Suggestion was made that contributions of food products be carefully packed at each community booth in large cartons contributed by local stores, and that at the end of the day the cartons be transported to the Chicago center.

With two children at home, Marion, 12, and Patricia, 11, to care for, promotion of the program and the recruiting of volunteer workers seemed a big task, but Mrs. Green dug in. The name of Service Men's Canteen Collection booths, or SMCC, was chosen.

An important requisite was that each booth be a community project. Each Saturday, where possible, the work would be sponsored by a local group. All citizens were urged to contribute as regularly as possible. No cash was to be accepted.

First in Glen Ellyn.

Mrs. Green located her first booth in Glen Ellyn. Request for a location at the passenger station of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad was granted by officials. Unit No. 1 was opened March 14 and was immediately a success.

The SMCC now has booths in 12 communities and has three substations. Mrs. Green followed the plan adopted for the Glen Ellyn unit in getting booths constructed and operated in other villages.

Getting the booths in operation was not the only problem. The several hundred contributions each Saturday had to be transferred the same night to the Service Men's center in Chicago. Arrangements for the shipments were worked out with railroad officials.

Mrs. Green found that the duties of general director were taking so much of her time that she appointed John Welter of Wheaton as maintenance superintendent. Incidentally, Mr. Welter contributed the labor of constructing six of the 12 booths now in operation. She appointed her husband transportation man.

Train Agent in Charge.

Leo L. Huntoon, of Glen Ellyn, general passenger agent of the Aurora and Elgin, was appointed promotion chairman. Secretarial and stenographic assistance was contributed by young women who became interested in the project. Some 26 persons in the west suburban area now are giving all their spare time as members of the SMCC staff.

Six of the 12 booths now in operation are located in communities served by the Aurora and Elgin and the North Western railroads. The other six booths are in towns served by the Burlington railroad.

Villages in which the booths are located and their local directors are as follows:

Glen Ellyn, Mrs. Charles Green; Elmhurst, Mrs. Jeanette Chrabot; Wheaton, Mrs. J. J. Murray; Lombard, Mrs. Ernest Hammerschmidt; Villa Park, Mrs. Gordon Vanganess; Naperville, Mrs. Christine Stenger; Downers Grove, Mrs. Josephine Mitchell; Maywood, Mrs. Robert Cooper Jr.; La Grange, Mrs. John A. Mittinger; Hinsdale, Mrs. Hugh Dugan; Riverside, Mrs. Robert Brown, and Berwyn, Mrs. Walter Caldwell and Mrs. Walter Gilbertson.

Christmas Plans Ready.

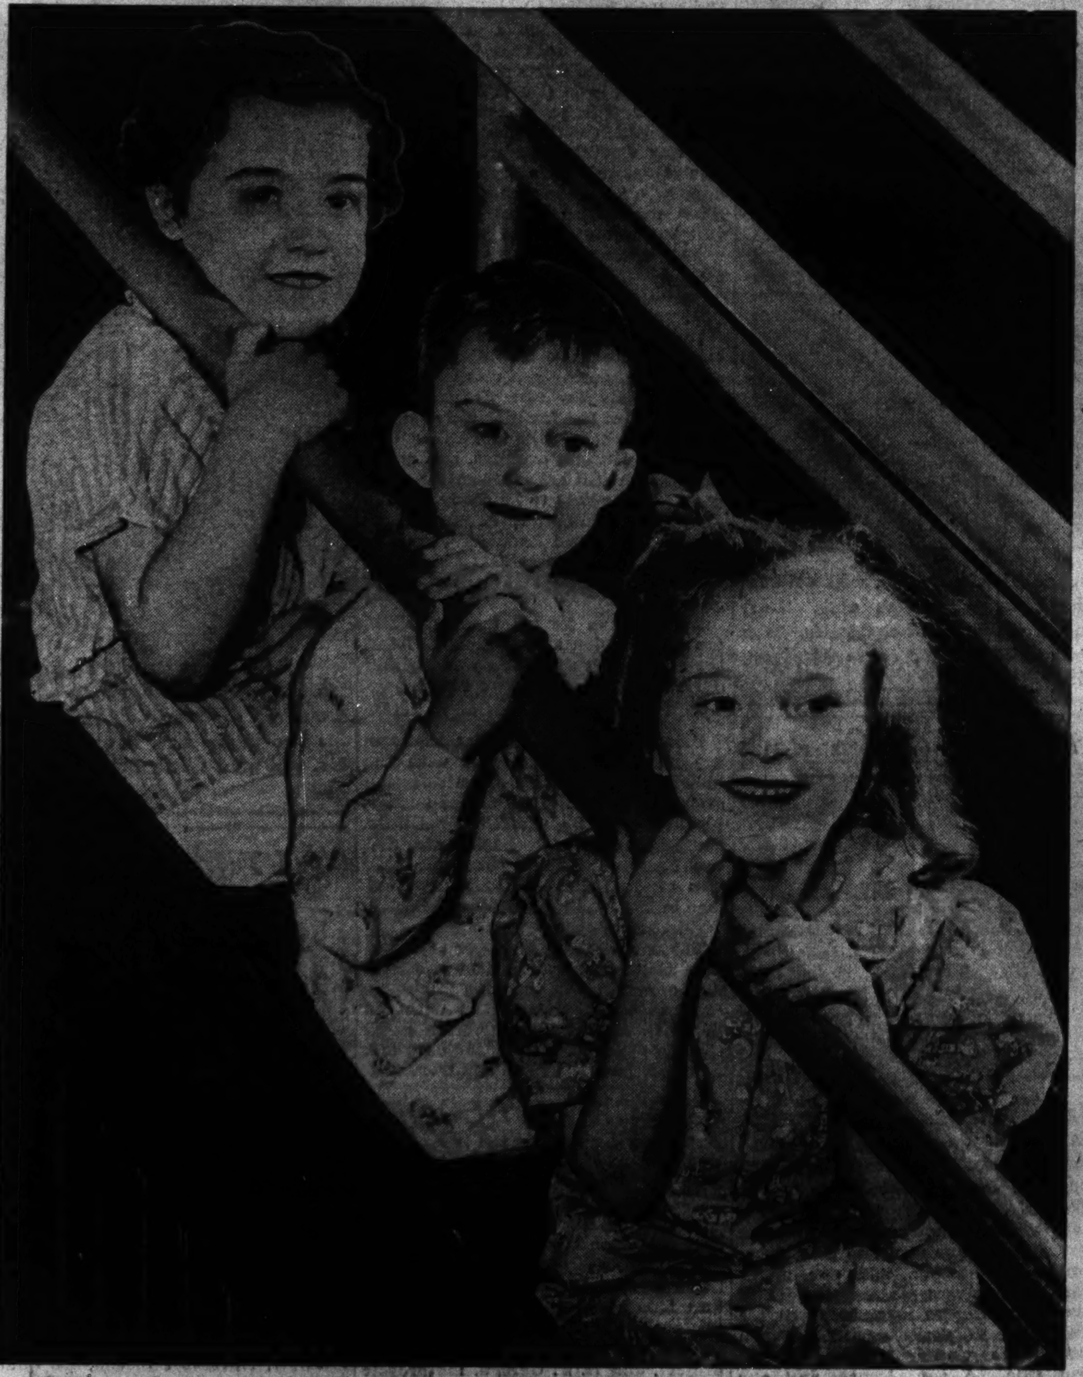
In charge of substations are Mrs. Mildred FitzSimmons, Elmhurst; Mrs. B. J. Le Marre, Brookfield, and Mrs. John Ellis, Maywood.

Christmas plans having been cared for, Mrs. Green announced the booths will not be open Sunday. The public was asked to double up its contributions yesterday. Persons of all ages contributed to the Christmas packages, and it was estimated that 5,432 donations would leave the 12 booths during the day for distribution among the service men.

Name Nursing Chairman for East Garfield Park

Mrs. Dorothy Cohen, 41 South Central Park avenue, has been appointed Red Cross nursing chairman for the East Garfield Park community. Mrs. Cohen succeeds Mrs. William J. Bero, 3407 Monroe street, who resigned because of illness.

Eager Pupils at Pickard School Rehearse for Christmas Drama



When the students at Pickard elementary school, 2301 21st place, present a program of "Christmas Songs of All Nations" Tuesday afternoon, these wide eyed, smiling youngsters will portray the American children in the playlet. After the singing they will join in a rollicking pajama dance as their part of the fun. Reading from top to bottom, the children are Denise Zaccanti, 6, 2210 Prairie avenue; Eugene Kot, 7, 2345 Cullerton street, and Elaine Kaylabree, 7, 2438 25th street.

While Jaqueline Vinturelli, 11, 2214 South Oakley avenue, rehearses a Polish dance for the "Children of All Nations" pageant, her audience includes Martin Oman, 7, 2301 21st street, as an English boy; Elizabeth Testori, 6, 2218 South Bell avenue, and Alfred Fantozzi, 7, 2319 22d place, as French twins, and Elda Buti, 10, 2314 23d street, as an Italian girl.

Still another program will be presented at Pickard school when students in the fifth and sixth grades give their cantata, "Mr. Moon and Merry Christmas," Wednesday. The Bright Spirits in the play are aiming their arrows at the Spirit of Love, portrayed by Gloria Baldochhi, 11, 2500 South Western avenue. Playing the spirits are, left to right, Lela Pellagrini, 10, 2319 25th street; Dolores Ciapinski, 11, 2346 Coulter street; LaVerne Pelke, 12, 1829 South Christiana avenue, and Shirley Waitkus, 2500 South Western avenue.

These choristers from the third grade of Pickard school will sing a group of Christmas carols when the "Children of All Nations" program is presented Tuesday afternoon. They are, left to right, front row: Dorothy Sikorski, 7, 2303 Cullerton street; Donald Ceragiola, 8, 2326 24th street; Patricia Mader, 8, 2234 18th street, and Doris Johnson, 8, 2344 22d place; back row: Ruth Heller, 8, 2215 South Oakley avenue; Nancy Golterman, 8, 2259 18th place; Robert Nesper, 8, 2252 18th place, and Dorothy Zanardo, 8, 2342 24th street.

Garfield Park Store Clerks to Get 3 Day Yule Holiday

Members of the Garfield Park Business Men's association voted at a meeting last week to observe closing schedules during the holiday week-end similar to those planned for loop stores. Most of the merchants in the area, of which Madison street and Pulaski road is the center, will close their doors at 7 o'clock Christmas eve, to remain closed thru Christmas, until the following Monday morning. Stores will be open each evening until 9:30 thru Wednesday, it was announced. Adoption of the plan was made in order to give overworked employés a three day holiday after the Christmas rush.

West Suburbs Art League to Hear Talk About China

Miss Wanda Odell will speak on "The Art of China" at the Austin, Oak Park and River Forest Art league meeting this evening. Miss Odell is assistant to Charles Faben Kelly, curator of Chinese art at the Art institute. Her talk will be illustrated with examples of the work of the Chinese.

RED CROSS REPORTS SEVEN TIME BLOOD DONOR OF ELMHURST

The first person in the Chicago area to give his blood seven times was reported recently at the Red Cross Blood Donor center, 5 North Wabash avenue. He is John M. Wolfe, 396 Prairie avenue, Elmhurst.

Other sections of the country where blood donor centers have been in operation longer than Chicago have seven, eight, nine and even 10 time donors, stated Joseph H. King, chairman of the blood donor service here. But Mr. Wolfe is the first seven time donor to be recorded in this area.

Altogether there are only 250 persons in the nation who have given their blood seven or more time to the Red Cross, according to officials.

Children's Aid.

Susan Reese chapter, Asthmatic Children's Aid, will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Washington Pine West hotel. There will be election of officers.

PROVISO GIRLS' LEAGUE MAKES CHARITY DOLLS

Clothes, cribs and suitcases for 135 dolls have been made by the boys and girls in each homeroom at Proviso High school for the children's ward of the Cook County hospital. The annual Christmas project is sponsored by the Girls' league at the school.

Some faculty members and a few parents have assisted in the activity. In addition, members of the service committee of the Girls' League made the rag dolls, spool dolls, scrapbooks, and color books.

On the day before distribution of the dolls and toys, an afternoon Christmas tea was held by the league. Miss Cecil Stark, dramatics coach, told the Christmas story and carols were sung.

Aurora C. of C. Directors Lend Secretary to WPB

Aurora Chamber of Commerce directors voted last week to lend their organization's secretary, Howard N. Yates, to the war production board to serve as salvage director for the Springfield area.

GIRLS WHO WORK ON NIGHT SHIFTS TO HOLD FROLIC

They'll Hail New Year at West Side Y.

The girls on the night shift will have their chance at some fun this week, when the entire West Side center Y. W. C. A., at 101 South Ashland avenue, will be turned over to them for the Night Shift Christmas frolic. The festivities will begin as the girls get off work at midnight on Wednesday, and the last sandwich will be eaten about dawn Thursday. Guests of honor at the party will be night workers in west side war industry plants.

Sponsored by the industrial department of the West Side center, this party marks the beginning of an enlarged program by the Y. W. C. A. to benefit industrial workers. Mrs. Ethel Getzoff, industrial secretary, said that a number of Y members on the west side are engaged in industrial work, and many of these have been changed to night shifts.

"The Y. W. C. A. has a responsibility to these young women, just as it has to the girls who still work in the daytime. The girls on the night shift miss out on a lot of good times they would have had normally. Their friends are sleeping while they are free, and they lose touch with their old circles. Not many places are left to go after a girl gets off work at midnight, except all night eating stands and taverns. It's up to the Y to lead the way for providing noncommercially, a chance for these girls to have the same normal social and recreational life as their sisters who work during more conventional hours," Mrs. Getzoff said.

At the Christmas frolic, the girls will entertain their boy friends, many of whom are also workers in war industries in the neighborhood. Invitations have been extended to workers in plants within a radius of a mile and one half from the West Side center, thru plant personnel managers and union officials.

Assisting Mrs. Getzoff in arrangements are three volunteer workers who comprise a subcommittee: Mrs. F. M. Wolfson of Oak Park, Mrs. Laura Halse, and Miss Stella Heinze.

FLYING TIGER BUYS CHINESE ROBE, THEN FINDS GIRL FOR IT

When Flight Leader Bob Brouk, late of the Flying Tigers, bought that heavily embroidered robe in China last spring, he knew it would be for The Girl. But he had no way of knowing then that the robe and the girl would get together so soon.

After Brouk was injured at the American volunteer guard field late in April, he was sent home to recuperate. While he visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter F. Brouk, 2120 South 59th street, Berwyn, there were a number of celebrations in his honor. There was a "Bob Brouk day" in Cicero, a celebration in Chinatown honoring the Flying Tigers, and a war bond rally at the Western Electric plant, with Bob as the honor guest.

The committee planning the affair at the Western Electric plant had an eye for detail. They went so far as to provide Bob with the girl, in the person of Virginia Scharer, one of the two beauty queens picked from the plant personnel to entertain the visiting hero. That was in July. This month Lieut. and Mrs. Robert Brouk are at home in Orlando, Fla., near the flying school where Bob is an instructor in aerial gunnery and pursuit flying. Their wedding in the First Congregational church in Oak Park late in November attracted 1,400 friends and well-wishers.

The months between July and November might well be chronicled by a writer of light fiction—the whirlwind courtship of a Flying Tiger hero and a beauty queen. Even to the casual long distance call late in October, when Bob described the attractive weather in Florida, and ended up by suggesting that "Ginny" join him to enjoy it as Mrs. Brouk. After that call Bob wired his mother, "Asked Ginny to marry me tonight call her for details."

Riverside Children's Fete Is Scheduled for Dec. 30

The annual Christmas party for grade school children of Riverside, sponsored by the Riverside Recreation commission, will be held the afternoon of Dec. 30 at the town hall. There will be movies, group singing and refreshments.

WEST SIDERS PUT RELIGIOUS THEME TO FORE

Less Frivolity Seen This Season.

[Christmas plans of west suburban churches are described on page 2.]

Religious services will have a more important share in Christmas this year than at any time in recent years according to west side pastors. Every auditorium, large and small, will be crowded by those who walk to church, or brave crowded public conveyances to join the thronged Christmas congregations.

There will be less of the frivolous in this, the nation's second Christmas observance in World War II. More emphasis is being placed on the religious thru church programs. There will be much music, and the welcome will be warm for men home on holiday furloughs. Family dinners and reunions after church services will be managed somehow, in spite of gas rationing. And people will head into the New Year with renewed strength and courage, after hearing once again the Christmas story told in sermon and song from pulpits.

At Holy Family church, 1080 Roosevelt road, the Christmas program will begin with solemn high mass at midnight, at which the newly formed boys' choir will make its first appearance. The Christmas sermon at this mass will be preached by the pastor, the Rev. Elmer A. Barton, S. J. A series of low masses will begin at 5:30 o'clock Christmas morning, and will continue every half hour until 11 o'clock, when a second solemn high mass will be sung. The sermon at this mass will be preached by the Rev. Francis A. Vaughan, S. J., assistant pastor. The last mass will be at 12:10 o'clock.

Novena Christmas Eve.

The novena services in honor of our Sorrowful Mother and the Sacred Heart, usually held on Friday, will be held on Christmas eve at 3:30, 5:30, and 7:30 o'clock. Confessions will be heard continuously from 10 o'clock Thursday morning until 10 o'clock that evening.

The Holy Family church choir, assisted by the boys' choir, will sing preceding the solemn mass at midnight. This program, at 11:30 o'clock, will include an organ solo by Prof. Frank Kubina, director of the choir, and an organ and harp selection with Miss Aileen Peters at the harp. The boys' choir will sing the processional for the solemn high mass, and Gounod's mass in honor of St. Cecilia will be sung by the church choir. Offertory will be "Adeste Fidelis," with Mrs. Esther Coleman Parker as soprano soloist.

Today will be the occasion of the "White Christmas" visit of the Sunday school of Kloeckner Memorial Evangelical and Reformed church, 820 North Central avenue. Offerings of Sunday school students have been used to buy practical gifts for the 94 children at the Bensenville orphanage. These gifts will be presented when a delegation from the church visits the orphanage today.

Boulevard Church Program.

The annual Christmas program will be presented at 4 o'clock today by the Sunday school of the Boulevard Methodist church, Washington and Austin boulevards.

St. Barnabas' Episcopal church, 4241 Washington boulevard, will hold a midnight choral eucharist beginning at 11 o'clock Thursday night. The Rev. Walter S. Pond will give the sermon on "The Peace of Christmastide." A number of special anthems will be presented, and there will be special numbers on the organ for prelude and postlude.

On Christmas morning St. Barnabas will be open for an 11 o'clock eucharist, at which the Rev. Mr. Pond will speak on "The Spirit of Christmas." Special music for the two services will be under direction of William B. Knaus, choirmaster and organist, and will feature solos by Nancy Day Williams, soprano; Katherine Williams, soprano; Violet Durkin, contralto; Maud Thompson, contralto; James Jones, tenor; and George Boylan, bass.

Receive New Members.

There will be reception of new members at this morning's service at Austin Baptist church, Ferdinand street and Pine avenue, where Dr. Erdmann Smith is pastor.

Fair Oaks Presbyterian church of Oak Park will have a service of Christmas music at 11 o'clock this morning. Two choirs will sing music from the cantata "The Story of Christmas" by H. A. Matthews. Maurice G. Ivins is director of music, and Anna Daze Ivins is organist. "And People Wondered" is the sermon subject announced by the Rev. Herbert Nelson Brockway, pastor.

This evening the young people of the church will present "The Christmas Pageant of the Holy Grail," by W. Russell Bowie. Members of the senior choir will provide an accompaniment of carols, with Mrs. Ivins at the organ. A "white gift service" with a program by the church school is planned for 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. Gifts will be distributed thru Erie Neighborhood house.

Sing Carols in Oak Park.

A program of Christmas carols will be presented this evening by the choir of the United Presbyterian church of

WEST SUBURBAN CHOIRS TO SOUND YULE CANTATAS

Give Traditional Pageant at Maywood Today.

The west suburbs may not be lighted as brilliantly this Christmas as they were in peacetime, but the story of Christmas which has come down thru the ages during many wars will be sung as joyously as ever from church choir lofts.

A pageant which has become a tradition in Maywood will be presented this afternoon, at the First Congregational church, 400 North Fifth avenue. It will be the 11th year that Mrs. Vernon L. Davies has directed "The Adoration of the Kings and Shepherds," and it will be the 11th year that Mr. Davies has arranged the lighting effects.

As fame of the pageant has spread, there has been an increase each year in attendance from residents of surrounding villages. This year there will be a cast of 100 instead of 50. Miss Dorothea Carne will sing the leading rôle. There is no admission charge but white gifts and a free will offering are accepted.

Vespers at Glen Ellyn.

The choir of the First Congregational church of Glen Ellyn this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock will conduct a candle light vesper service in celebration of the Christmas season. The choir of 40 voices will be assisted by the solo quartet of the church, a girls' a cappella sextet from Glenbard High school; James Martin, violinist, and Florence Haglund, organist and director of music.

The program will consist of Christmas anthems, familiar and traditional carols, and instrumental music so arranged as to cover the entire Christmas story. The public invited.

"The Child Jesus" has been chosen for the cantata to be given Christmas eve by the choir of the Maywood Presbyterian church, Fifth and Pine streets. The program will start at 11:30 p. m. and will be so timed that the chimes at midnight will play the closing selection, "Joy to the World."

The choir is under the direction of Richard Daniels of the Proviso High school faculty. The Junior choir will assist the senior choir in the final number.

Soloists will be Wanda Morehart, Constance Mae Berghman, Selden Gale, and Albert Jones. Mrs. Maude Foster is organist. Members of the string quartet from Proviso who will provide the accompaniment for the cantata are Al Forgue, first violin; Don Johnson, second violin; Christine Smith, cello, and Nick Poulos, viola.

Elmhurst Choir to Sing.

"The Adoration," a Christmas cantata by Nevin, will be presented tonight at 8 o'clock by the senior mixed choir of Immanuel Lutheran church, Third and Michigan streets, Elmhurst. William Bertram is director. There will be special instrumental and vocal music.

Christmas day activities at the church will be ushered in by a candle light matin at 6 a. m. Members of the Walther league of the church will provide the decorations. Candles will be placed in the windows, large evergreen wreathts will adorn the nave, and individual candles will be given to all adults attending the matin.

A feature of the matin will be the formation of a living Christmas tree by Walther leaguers. Directed by Mr. Bertram, the Junior choir will sing Christmas songs including "O, Christmas Tree." A string ensemble and the organ will accompany the congregational singing of Christmas hymns.

Pastor to Talk.

Miss Rosalie Carbon, soprano, will sing "In Reverent Awe. A flute-violin rendition of "Gesu Bambino" will be given as an offertory by Miss Dorothy Riemann and Miss Emma Milas. "Hushed at Length the Gracious Song," will be sung by Mrs. Milda Kaske Geist, alto. The Rev. John A. Mau, junior pastor, will bring the Christmas message.

Immediately after the matin, a Christmas morning breakfast will be served under the auspices of the Senior Walther league. Guests of honor will be the parents of leaguers.

Two other services will be held at Immanuel church on Christmas day. The Rev. Carl Abel, senior pastor, will preach at 9:30 a. m. The Rev. John A. Mau, junior pastor, will preach at 11 o'clock.

Services in Forest Park.

Two Christmas services for children and two candle light services are planned by St. John's Lutheran church, Forest Park. The Christmas eve program at 5 o'clock will include music by the Sunday schools. At 7 p. m. children of the main day school will present the cantata, "The Light of the World."

The candle light services, each entirely different, will be held one on Christmas day at 6 a. m. and the other next Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Also there will be a program at 9 o'clock on Christmas morning. The children taking part in the program will receive gifts, and there will be Christmas decorations. Chimes and carols broadcast from the church tower will be heard thruout the holidays.

HUBBELL NAMED HOUSING BOSS IN LAWNDALE UNIT

Project to Receive War Worker Families.

Appointment of James Townley Hubbell as business housing manager of Lawndale Gardens, a war housing project of the Chicago housing authority at 26th street and California avenue, has been announced.

Hubbell will be in charge of the project which will provide homes for 128 war workers and their families. The housing authority's new war homes, which are scheduled to receive the first families this month, will be rented only to war workers whose incomes do not exceed $2,100 a year.

Three Other Projects.

In addition to the Lawndale project the authority is building three other war housing projects which are nearly ready for war workers. Already half of the families have moved into Frances Cabrini Homes at Chicago and Hudson avenues, and applications are still being taken for nearly 300 apartments to be ready shortly after Jan. 1. Robert H. Brooks Homes at 14th street and Racine avenue and Bridgeport Homes at 31st street and Lituanica avenue also will open in January.

Applications for all these projects are being taken at the Chicago housing authority's application and rental office at 1000 South Lytle street.

Is Dartmouth Graduate.

Prior to his appointment as housing manager Hubbell was with the housing authority's tenant selection division. Before going to the authority last year he worked for Dillon, Read & Co., Sears Roebuck & Co., and the National Biscuit company. He was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1928 and later attended George Williams college.

The new housing manager of Lawndale Gardens also has had considerable experience in various community enterprises, having worked with the Y. M. C. A. and the Valentine Boys' club in Chicago. He is 38 years old, married, and has four children.

RED CROSS BLOOD UNIT PLANS VISIT IN WEST SUBURBS

The Red Cross mobile blood donor unit will open the doors of the River Forest Presbyterian church house, Lathrop and Quick avenues, on the first Monday of the new year, Jan. 4. Promptly at 9 o'clock, G. Herbert Shorney, general chairman for this project, and B. F. Gerard, motorcycle policeman who promoted the idea, will meet to be the first donors. The mobile unit will continue at the church house in River Forest for three days, then resume service at the Mills Park house, Pleasant street and Home avenue, Oak Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. McAllister will lead the donors in Oak Park, where the mobile unit will continue thru Jan. 16, if the citizens of the community can keep them busy. All appointments are made in advance thru the local Red Cross headquarters, 148 North Oak Park avenue.

Under the chairmanship of Russell A. Jones of River Forest, Mrs. Harold E. Stafford has organized the 350 block workers of the village to distribute to their neighbors the Red Cross blood donor pamphlet which tells of the service, and includes a coupon for registration. Also working on the River Forest committee are Gordon J. Rahr, Mrs. Charles B. Kilmer, and Mrs. Hugh B. Gilray.

In Oak Park, Herrick R. Goodwillie is chairman, with Mrs. J. Melville Engle directing block workers in distribution of pamphlets. Mrs. R. Q. Luckow, experienced worker in blood donor service, 5 North Wabash avenue, will chart the appointments. Dr. Harry J. Stewart, and Dr. N. M. Maxon, Mrs. Charles R. Boynton, and Mrs. Ben Badenoch are the other members of the committee.

Flying Tiger's Bride in Chinese Robe

Mrs. Robert Brouk, bride of the former Flying Tiger hero now instructing pilots in the army air forces at Orlando, Fla., wears the embroidered robe her husband bought in China last spring, months before the two met. Mrs. Brouk was formerly Virginia Scharer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Scharer, 1643 North Melvina avenue.

(Story on page 1.)

6TH TIME BLOOD DONORS OF WEST SIDE ARE LISTED

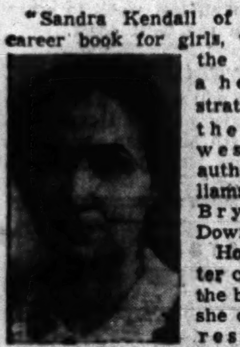
DOWNERS GROVE WOMAN WRITES BOOK ABOUT 4-H

Mrs. Porter Is Author of Many Other Stories.



Ella Williams Porter. [Downers Grove studio.]

"Sandra Kendall of the 4-H," a career book for girls, written from the viewpoint of a home demonstration agent, is the work of a west suburban author, Ella Williams Porter, 4817 Bryan place, Downers Grove.

How Mrs. Porter came to write the book and how she came to be a resident of Downers Grove provide an interesting chapter quite apart from the material in the volume.

Born on an Iowa farm that her grandfather purchased from the government, Mrs. Porter lived there until time for her to attend Coe college at Cedar Rapids. Before 4-H clubs had really come into their own she was one of the members. After her graduation from college, she taught music for a number of years. In 1928, she married Rex V. Porter and went to live at Gallup, N. M., where her husband worked for the Santa Fe railroad.

Directed Choirs.

There were transfers to Pasadena, Cal., and Winslow, Ariz., where Mrs. Porter taught piano and directed choirs. Then back to the home town, Williamsburg, Ia., with Mr. Porter, working out of the state auditor's office, covering every county seat in the state.

During the summers, Mrs. Porter, with her daughter, Barbara, now 12, went to a camp for girls on Green Lake, Wis., as a counselor. In 1939, the family moved to Oak Park to be near the Electro-Motive plant at La Grange where Mr. Porter was employed.

It was during the two year residence in Oak Park that Mrs. Porter started writing "Sandra Kendall of the 4-H." In 1940 the Porters decided they had been wanderers long enough and found the home they wanted in Downers Grove.

"We hated the thought of leaving Oak Park," said Mrs. Porter, "but we also found Downers Grove a friendly place, and before we knew it we were head over heels in suburban living—and enjoying it. Our present home is the 27th we have lived in. We hope we won't be called upon soon to move again."

Celebrates First Sale.

It was while traveling with her husband in Iowa that Mrs. Porter started to write. When she sold her first short story she celebrated by buying a typewriter. She knew no one else who wrote and hesitated telling her friends she was trying to write. Her successful first story for a Sunday school magazine developed into a series. To date, she has sold 100 stories and 10 serials to the Sunday school magazines.

Watching a home demonstration agent direct a rural woman's chorus was the inspiration for the first book. Mrs. Edith Barker, in charge of 4-H girls' work in Iowa, wrote the introduction.

"When I sold that first story," said Mrs. Porter, "I was amazed to discover that I didn't feel like a writer at all. Then I thought if my book was published, there would be no doubt that I was an author. But now that the book is out, I still don't feel like a celebrity."

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

DAVID LAMPHERE KENDALL, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Kendall of Oak Park, is one of 36 members of the class of 1945 at Dartmouth college to be named to Green Key, junior honorary society. He was chosen as one of the representatives of the Dartmouth Outing club. He is president of the Ledyard Canoe club and a member of the Cabin and Trail club. He belongs to Sigma Nu fraternity and is a graduate of Madison West High school, Madison, Wis.

James Hoagland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Hoagland, 811 North East avenue, Oak Park, has been elected to represent Phi Kappa Psi fraternity in the student senate, campus governing body at Colgate university, where he is a junior. He will serve the school year starting in January and ending in August.

William C. Drennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Drennan, 652 North East avenue, Oak Park, has been admitted to the second semester honors programs at Brown university, Providence, R. I. Honors study provides students with freedom from certain routine academic requirements and special opportunities for independent research in their field.

J. FRANK LINDSEY, whose business offices are at 4850 Madison street, recently received from the war department a silver star medal, based on a citation made in Washington, D. C., on March 1, 1920, to "Capt. J. Frank Lindsey, 3d battalion, 357th infantry, for gallantry in action near Baalon, France, on Nov. 9, 10, and 11, 1918, in assuming command of and reorganizing his battalion under enemy fire." This medal Mr. Lindsey has added to his collection, which already includes the Order of the Purple Heart and the World War Victory medal.

MRS. CECIL K. SALLEE, 1930 South 18th avenue, Maywood, reports that her sister, Lt. Frances Wilson House of Lexington, Ky., is one of the first WAACs to be given a permanent assignment at an army post. She is now stationed at Fort Devens, Mass., as supply officer for the 34th WAAC post headquarters company and has been at the camp since November getting the barracks in readiness for the company's arrival. Lt. House has many friends in Maywood, where she has spent her vacations for many years.

SALVATION ARMY TO CHEER NEEDY AT YULE PARTIES

Special holiday parties will be sponsored by the Salvation Army during Christmas week, under the leadership of the Army Family Service bureau and the 27 individual corps in the Chicago metropolitan area, according to Lt. Commissioner John J. Allan, territorial commander. "We do all within our power to bring cheer to the hearts of the unfortunate and needy by furnishing a tree, refreshments, and gifts at Christmas time," he said.

The family service bureau will have five parties at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. There will be a Santa Claus and tree at each, fruit, candy, and nuts for all, and toys for the children. Varied types of entertainment will be given, including tricks by magicians and ventriloquists. Christmas carols will be sung by each group, led by choristers and small groups of musicians.

On the west side such a party will be held at the Temple corps, 1513 Madison street, with Maj. Fritz Nelson, representative of the Army extension department, in charge. There also will be similar Christmas parties in all Salvation Army corps and men's and women's institutions. The institutions include the Women's Emergency lodge, 1230 Adams street, and the Men's Industrial home, 1325 Congress street.

PLAN LA GRANGE ICE CARNIVAL IN PARK IN JANUARY

New Recreation Group to Sponsor Event.

An ice carnival to be held during the holidays is being planned in La Grange by the recreation commission now conducting its first fall and winter program. C. W. Cassell, director, said the event would be held the first Sunday in January, if weather conditions permit, and that possibly Gilbert park at the west edge of the village, would be the scene of the sport.

C. W. Cassell.

An area in Gilbert park has been utilized in previous winters by the park board for a skating rink. A bit of the prairie has been flooded and lighted in bringing to the suburb a phase of recreation enjoyed by communities possessing nearby ponds or streams.

During the last two winters, the La Grange Civic club planned ice carnivals but they did not take place because of the weather. The new playground and recreation commission therefore has inherited enough medals and ribbons to be awarded for 63 events. Boys and girls of the village are well equipped with skates and skating togs. They are looking forward to contests this winter with much enthusiasm.

Vote New Commission.

The new playground and recreation commission in La Grange was set up last April as the result of a referendum vote that carried three to one. Previously, there had been a summer program sponsored by the Civic club. Members of the commission to conduct a year around program appointed by Village President George Brooks were G. K. Mehagan, president; Ollie C. Stenger, vice president; Mrs. David F. Swain, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Roscoe C. Clark, and Gail E. Clowes.

C. W. Cassell, former athletic director at the Junior High school, Hinsdale, was made director of recreation, and headquarters were established at 11 South La Grange road. Recreation centers sponsored by the Community Nurse and Service with WPA personnel, previously had been set up at Ogden and Fifth avenue and at Washington and Lincoln streets.

By request, square dancing at the high school gymnasium has been planned as an activity after the first of the year.

Dolls to Gladden Children's Hearts

Mama dolls, cuddle-up dolls, and open-and-shut-eye dolls will find their way to the children's ward of the Cook County hospital this Christmas because of an annual project conducted by the Girls' league at Proviso High school. Dressers of the dolls, standing left to right, are Ardis Bever, Carlene Friedley, and Miriam Elsasser. Seated are Jane Pennington, Virginia Cromer, and Barbara Grassman.

Girls from the Flower Technical High school show a few of the 300 dolls dressed by students from that school for distribution to the poor. # PRIORITIES PINCH AS PROVISO HIGH PLANS YEARBOOK

Student Staff Beginning Work, Nevertheless.

Priorities permitting, there will be a 1943 Provi, yearbook of the senior class of Proviso Township High school. Miss Florence I. Otis is supervisor of publications.

Because of the scarcity of photographic supplies and copper for the engravers, Miss Otis felt that the publication of the yearbook might have to be abandoned. However, these supplies have been requisitioned.

Acting upon this information, the 1943 Provi staff is beginning its work with Muriel Rice, editor in chief; Phyllis Smith, managing editor; Joanne Sanger, picture editor; Mary Petroplus and Alan Phillips, literary editors; Georgiana Gates and Carl Setzer, organizations; Jane Lee and Kathryn Mally, senior class; Phyllis Eberhardt, underclasses; Ruth Heiden, faculty; Roberta Pritchard, girls' physical education; Bob Sculley and Don Fletcher, sports. Violet Musser will head the clerical staff. The art staff will be under the direction of Miss Wilhelmina Marm. Wilson A. Law will be in charge of business.

All connected with the project are agreed that national considerations make it imperative to produce a less elaborate book than has been the custom. Individual senior pictures will be used, as is customary.

The outstanding feature of the annual will be an illustrated calendar of the events of the year. The sports department will be curtailed, as will some of the other features.

WOLFGRAM AGAIN LEADER OF CLUB AT FOREST PARK

Franklin G. Wolfgram recently was reëlected president of the Men's club of the First Evangelical and Reformed church, Forest Park. He has held the office two years and was congratulated on the quality of his leadership by the organization.

The club plans for its next big social event a Valentine party Feb. 13 at the Forest Park Legion hall.

DU PAGE TOSSES 2,000 TONS OF SCRAP ON PILE

Elmhurst Leads Three Month County Drive.

Du Page county donated 4,038,000 pounds of scrap and 130,000 pounds of prepared tin cans during a drive conducted between Aug. 1 and Nov. 1, according to the recent report of Rueben Pollack, salvage director of division 12. This means an average of 35.6 pounds of salvage per person in the county of 117,000 population.

The county, partly residential and partly rural, set itself a goal of 2,000,000 pounds at the beginning of the drive. The figure was doubled thru a concerted effort in each of the 34 towns.

Elmhurst in Lead.

Elmhurst led with a total of 700,000 pounds of scrap. Glen Ellyn was second with 440,000 pounds. Wheaton was a close third with 375,000 pounds.

Downers Grove and Hinsdale donated two World War I. cannons to the salvage drive: The Lions club in Wheaton and the Junior MacArthur club in Liberty Park worked actively with the office of civilian defense.

Harold P. Dunton, division chief of Du Page county, has high praise for the American Legion and the Boy Scouts for their untiring efforts in scrap collecting.

Aiding in the drive, senior air raid wardens and air raid wardens checked thru each of the 1,100 farms of the county for additional scrap metal in the form of old plows and rusting farm machinery.

River Forest OES Chapter Installs Officers for Year

Installation of officers for 1943 was held recently by the River Forest chapter, Order of Eastern Star. New officers are Mae Gentry Rose, worthy matron; Otto Kretzer, worthy patron; Marguerite Flood, associate matron; Fred A. Clarke, associate patron; Harriet B. Ulbrich, secretary.

ARMY AND NAVY WIVES ORGANIZE CLUB IN OAK PARK

The new quarters of the Oak Park Army and Navy Wives club was opened recently in the Medical Arts building, 711 Lake street, Oak Park. One of the newest wartime organizations in the village, the club was formed to assist both army and navy wives in the solution of the many problems which arise while their menfolk are away.

The new office will be open from 10 o'clock each morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Mrs. Earl G. Wise of Oak Park was invited to organize the village chapter by Mrs. Leeds Mitchell of Chicago, organization chairman, and Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy, suburban chairman.

Mrs. Wise is being assisted by Mrs. Lucius Cole, Mrs. W. T. Stannard, and Mrs. Albert H. Siljander. Monthly luncheons will be held, featuring talks by army and navy officials.

ANNOUNCE FOUR STAFF CHANGES AT SEARS YMCA

Four changes in the Sears YMCA staff have been announced recently. Ernest Smith has left the Boys' Outpost for work at the West Side Professional YMCA. Raymond Nyhan has come from Waterloo, Ia., to be an assistant boys' secretary, and Paul Wells of Clinton, Ia., a graduate of William Jewel college, also will serve as an assistant boys' secretary. Harry Parker, student at the Northern Baptist Theological seminary, is carrying on the work at the Outpost started by Mr. Smith. Ernest Keumpel, who has handled residence and membership promotion at the building, left the staff last week to enter USO work on the west coast.

Bryant PTA.

Bryant PTA will sponsor a luncheon and card party at the Home Arts guild, 205 North Michigan avenue, at noon tomorrow. Mrs. Betty Brown is ticket chairman.

CLINIC BUSINESS FALLS AWAY AS WAR WAGES RISE

Patients Turn from Free Service; Pay Old Bills.

The much publicized American habit of paying the doctor last seems to be on the way out in Chicago at least. Doctors thruout the city report a minimum of requests for charity treatment, and all the free clinics have had a sharp drop in the number of patients asking for medical aid in the last year.

Many doctors say that their collections of old bills is 25 to 30 per cent better than it has been in past years. The payment of fees at one clinic is 25 per cent higher this year than last, in spite of the fewer number of patients requesting treatment.

Clinics Lose Patients.

As long as production in the great war plants is booming and the workers tuck fat pay checks into their pockets each week, the clinics will lose patients, in the opinion of Dr. J. Roscoe Miller, dean of the Northwestern university medical school.

At the Northwestern clinics there has been a drop of almost 25 per cent in the number of patients applying for admission to the free clinics this year compared with the applicants at the start of the war, according to Dr. Miller.

At the start of the war, and shortly before the war plants began their climb to maximum production, these clinics had 112,082 visits from patients over a year's period. During a corresponding period this year there have been only 86,093 visits.

Observe Immediate Effect.

"This is a heartening indication that the American people will refuse to accept charity if they can possibly avoid it," Dr. Miller said. "For the first time we have had the opportunity to observe the immediate effects of a sudden increase in the earning capacity of the average worker. Usually these increases come slowly, but in this case almost overnight a man with nothing before is making a livable income.

"From the experience in our clinic it would seem that the first thing this worker does is begin paying for things that he had been receiving for nothing—even tho he could still do so. There has even been a 25 per cent increase in the number of patients who, tho still unable to afford a private doctor, ask to pay a voluntary fee for the clinical service."

9,000 Fewer Cases.

At County hospital there was a drop of almost 9,000 in the number of patients treated during September of this year, compared with September, 1941, according to Dr. Ole Nelson, superintendent of the hospital. Last year there were 48,005 treatments during the month, while this year the number of treatments dropped to 39,074, the lowest in some time.

Dr. Nelson attributed this decline to the reluctance of Americans to accept charity, and to an increased interest in health brought about by the war.

The clinics operated by the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois, and the Mercy Free Dispensary of Loyola university all have experienced similar drops in the number of patients treated without charges.

Child Doctors Taken.

In one case, however, only a very slight drop has been noticed. The Children's Memorial hospital had a decline of only 2,508 in the number of treatments given this year over last. This, perhaps, is explained by the fact that a great number of pediatricians have been taken into the armed forces, and parents take their children to a specialty hospital after this doctor has gone to war.

Sociologists also report that many more children from homes in which both parents are working have required hospital care because their parents do not see them enough to notice evidence of illness in its early stages.

War Makes Staff Inroads.

The cut in clinical patients has helped the hospitals meet another problem brought on by the war. Northwestern has lost 175 doctors to the armed services from its regular staff of 399 full and part time men. While some of these men have been replaced with older physicians, all of the medical school graduates for the next few years will be taken directly into service.

At the Children's Memorial hospital the same situation is true. In the last year the hospital has lost 37 per cent of its staff to the armed forces, most of them pediatricians whose specialty is the treatment of children up to 13 years of age. The University of Chicago has lost 41 men from its full time staff of 150 physicians and research doctors, and expects to lose several more in the next few months.

BOYS' CLUB GROUP TO HEAR TALK ON TEEN AGE CRIME

A talk on "Facing Juvenile Delinquency in Wartime" will be given by Dr. Ernest Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Chicago Boys' Clubs association tomorrow noon at Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Dr. Burgess will discuss the rapid rise in teen age crime, as traced to wartime tension, and also will include some of his findings in the study of recreation and delinquency.

Newly elected officers of the association are: Stewart W. Knarr, president; Sol Boskin, vice president, and Helen Coatsworth, secretary-treasurer.

The association has in its membership all staff workers of the Boys' clubs of metropolitan Chicago as well as the boys' departments of settlements.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 21.

A good covering of snow is about the best protection that outdoor plants can have. It is not so heavy that plants are smothered unless soft, melting snow is followed by freezing weather, and even then most plants will survive in good condition. Hardiness depends largely on soil conditions. Many plants will survive in a sandy, well drained soil which winter would kill in a heavy soil. Giving protection simply prevents plants from heaving and exposing the roots to frost during thaws.

Tuesday, Dec. 22.

Watch that rabbits and other rodents do not girdle the trunks of outdoor plants, especially young apple trees. They do immense damage if in need of food. One way to protect the plants is to place fine meshed wire around them; heavy tar paper is also good. Rabbits will gnaw the bark of sumac if in a starving condition. It is a good plan to place traps, eradicate them, and save the plants.

Do not neglect to place bird feeding stations, for many die if not fed.

Wednesday, Dec. 23.

Water the potted amaryllis sparingly until it shows activity. The flower stalk appears before the leaves and makes a rapid growth. As growth increases give more water. A little plant food applied as the buds show color will give better blooms.

The home gardener usually is interested in the aquarium with a few fish and aquatic plants. If there are too many fish in a small bowl none will survive for long. Overfeeding is to be avoided at all times; feed once each week and just enough that the fish will consume all of it without difficulty and wait until they show signs of hunger before feeding again.

Thursday, Dec. 24.

There are many plants which should interest the home gardener in his desire to grow something a little different. Take the Dumb Cane, a dark green leaved plant with blotches of white. It grows readily without much care, but should stand in subdued light, not in direct sunlight. Old plants can be reduced in size and the stem cut up and rooted in sandy soil. It is a most accommodating sort of plant, for it will grow for a long time when placed in a tall glass container. Roots will form and all the luxuriant growth of the tropics enjoyed.

Friday, Dec. 25.

Flowering plants that are presented as gifts will require care if their period of most attractiveness is enjoyed over a maximum time. They must be kept moist, otherwise they are certain to wither. If they once lack moisture they begin to fade. Primroses and other densely fibrous rooted plants wither more rapidly than heavy, strong rooted plants. Place the plants on the floor in a cool room over night. Do not place them in a draft, but give them fresh air daily.

Saturday, Dec. 26.

Protect young evergreens with burlap or a windbreak of boards. Stake fall planted trees to prevent them from being loosened during storms. Clear snow away from evergreens and especially evergreen hedges, or the branches may be broken by the weight.

Keep the soil in window boxes planted with low evergreens moist at all times, for if the soil dries out the plants will suffer. Cut back weak, straggling branches of indoor plants like the coleus to cause stronger growth and better shaped plants.

LIST HOME SAVER PRODUCTS; GOOD SCOTCH CUSTOM

Oil Paint Penetrates, Prevents Rust.

[For further information on materials discussed in this article, please send stamped, addressed envelope to this department.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Save what you have!

It's an old Scotch custom.

To make possible such savings there are penetrating, protective products which will insure longer life and usefulness to a host of articles and equipment around our houses.

One such product, of real value at this time, is a penetrating, rust-preventive oil paint. You can use this to stop rust at its source since it seals in and around the rusted particles to form a hard, durable film and to prevent further rusting.

Paint Has Wide Coverage.

This paint comes in a light gray which closely approximates aluminum in color and light reflection, but is without metallic sheen. It also can be obtained in other colors. One can save considerably by use of this type paint since it has a coverage of 800 to 1,700 square feet per gallon, and because labor need not be expended on removal of the rust before application. Is your hardware, your fireplace equipment, etc., as well as all other metal accessories, in shape to last the duration?

There are different formulas to meet different needs. There is one for damp surfaces and one for metal that is heavily rusted. One type dries in from eight to 12 hours, one in four hours and there is one which will dry in about two minutes.

The manufacturers of this penetrating paint offer stains and coatings for concrete floors. These can be applied according to manufacturers' directions over new or old basement concrete floors. The stains and coating come in club green, tile red, chestnut brown, and machine gray. It will penetrate the concrete and only tie up the floor overnight, and will even resist a certain amount of dampness.

Covers Bleeding Stains.

Another product of interest in many homes as soon as the holiday season is over is a flat white sealing paint with interior finish coat, and yet it can be applied over stained wood to stop bleeding stains.

Quiz Kids Await Santa

Ruthie Duskin, 8, and Joel Kupperman, 6, the youngest Quiz Kids, and Joe Kelly, chief quizzer, hang up their socks. The Quiz Kids are heard over WENR-Blue at 6:30 p. m. Sundays.

CAROLS TO RING OUT OVER W-G-N EVERY EVENING

Amplifiers to Waft Music Into Streets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Once again carols and other holiday music will ring out from W-G-N the week before Christmas. Beginning tomorrow a half hour of choral music will be broadcast over W-G-N for radio listeners, and amplifiers hung high over Nathan Hale court will send the joyful music pealing out over the city so that homeward bound shoppers and office workers may hear it, too.

This will be the 11th consecutive year for the observance of this custom. W-G-N will broadcast the music from 5:30 to 6 p. m. and the entire Mutual Broadcasting system will carry the music for the final 15 minutes.

Five Groups Will Sing.

Five outstanding choral groups from the metropolitan area will be heard on these song sessions which will be presented to organ accompaniment by Len Salvo. On the first program tomorrow St. Mary's High School Glee club, under the direction of Sister M. Matilde, B. V. M., will be heard.

On Tuesday the Edgewater Evangelical Mission Covenant church's mixed choir will give the program. The Kenwood School chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Waser, will be heard Wednesday.

Christmas Eve Program.

The Christmas eve program will be presented by the adult choir of the Monumental Baptist church under the direction of Forestine Neal Bostick. On Christmas day the Holy Trinity Russian Cathedral choir will be heard. All of the programs will be presented from W-G-N's organ studio which is particularly suitable acoustically for this type of music.

BECKER MOVES SPORT SHOW TO 3 P. M. SUNDAYS

Bob Becker will interview Mrs. Dorothy Eagles, director and founder of the North Side Animal Shelter, on his "Sportsmen's Spotlight" program at 3 p. m. today on W-G-N. The program, formerly heard on Tuesdays, will now be a regular Sunday feature.

Mrs. Eagles will tell of her organization and its job of placing homeless dogs in homes. Many of the dogs at the shelter will be Christmas gifts this year, Mrs. Eagles will explain. She also will tell how many service men are taking their dogs to her before they go into the army or navy and asking her to find homes for the animals.

Kostelanetz Plays Carols.

Wilbur Evans, baritone, and Albert Spalding, violinist, will be guests of Andre Kostelanetz at 3:30 this afternoon over WBBM-CBS. Music includes "The First Noel," "Adeste Fidelis," "Ave Maria."

'THREE STRIKES, YOU'RE OUT' TO BE AIRED ON N. U. PLAY SHOP TODAY

The Northwestern university Play Shop will broadcast "Three Strikes—You're Out," a story about a young piano tuner with ambitions at 2:30 p. m. today over WJJD. June Otley, 1118 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, is in charge of the production. She is a senior in the school of speech. Miss Otley was chosen "Queen" of the Syllabus, Northwestern's yearbook last year. Leading rôles in the play will be taken by Betty Ranstead and Paul Liggett.

FIVE HUNDRED SINGERS FROM SEVEN SCHOOLS TO JOIN W-G-N CAROLS

Five hundred high school and junior college students will join in their seventh annual carol sing on W-G-N next Wednesday afternoon. The carolers will be guests during the broadcast of the Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry, regularly presented from 3 to 4 p. m. The carol program will be presented during the last 15 minutes of the hour—from 3:45 to 4 p. m.

Dr. Helen Howe.

The schools to be represented will be Waller, Farragut, Steinmetz, Austin, Roosevelt, and Lake View and Wright junior colleges. Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago Public schools, is in charge of the program.

The carol program will open and close with "Silent Night." Other selections will be "Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Dr. Howe will be interviewed by Jack Brickhouse on "What High School Students Like to Sing at Christmas Time."

The choral directors are: Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, Waller; Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson, Farragut; Willard L. Groom, Steinmetz; Erhardt Bergstrasser, Wright Junior college; Hazel Lloyd, Austin; John Hamilton, Roosevelt, and Naomi Sweet, Lake View.

'AMERICA LOVES MELODY' NEXT ON THEATER OF AIR

Prize Operetta Will Be Aired Saturday.

"America Loves a Melody," the prize winning operetta in W-G-N's $10,500 Great American Operetta Quest of last season will be presented on W-G-N and Mutual's Theater of the Air from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire, prima donna of the operetta series, and Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will sing the leading rôles.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, will be the speaker of the evening.

This operetta, written by Ross Hastings, young Los Angeles composer, was selected as the best of 2,232 entries received from 46 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the competition. "America Loves a Melody" has already been performed twice on the Theater of the Air. As "Operetta No. 3" it was presented Last March 28, when the public was asked to vote for the best of three operettas that had been selected by an advisory board of distinguished musicians.

The public cast the greatest number of votes for the Hastings' operetta, and it was presented as the grand prize winner on April 11 at the Civic Opera house, with Miss Claire and Allan Jones in the starring rôles.

Next Saturday's production will be under the direction of Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production. Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under direction of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Amateurs Hold Party.

The annual children's Christmas party will highlight the Amateur hour over WENR at 5 p. m. today. Santa Claus will be on hand, along with Charles Lyon, master of ceremonies. The program will originate in the Chicago Civic Opera house.

Metropolitan Auditions to Present an Operatic Duo

Metropolitan Opera Auditions will present a soprano and a tenor at 6 p. m. today over WENR and the Blue network. The soprano, Virginia Card, will sing "Una Voce Poco Fa" and the tenor will offer "La Donna E Mobile."

Discuss 'Creative Evolution' on Invitation to Learning

Lyman Bryson, Prof. George Boas, and Irwin Edman will be presented in an analysis of Henri Bergson's philosophical treatise, "Creative Evolution," on Invitation to Learning at 10:30 a. m. today over WBBM.

YULE THRONGS TO FILL CHURCHES

NORTH SIDERS DESIGN NOVEL YULE MISSIVES

Englishman First to Use Them.

When the first Christmas card was fashioned back in 1846 for a businessman who did not have time to write personal greetings to his friends, the English artist established a custom which was to become as much of a Christmas tradition as Santa Claus, holly, toys, and ornamental trees.

Since then each year has been a challenge to the ingenuity and cleverness of artists and amateurs in designing original cards.

Make Their Own.

A few of the north siders who regularly design their own cards are Bonnie Cox Knott, 4657 North Hermitage avenue; Louis Van Puyenbroeck, 2300 Granville avenue; Stephen Tedor, 1350 Jarvis street; Earle P. Press, Evanston; Mrs. Nettie Hruby, 6930 Wildwood avenue; Miss Betty Surgant, 4500 Wilson avenue; Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Holden, 2018 Estes avenue; Mr. and Mrs. William Patterson, 6613 North Whipple street; Peter Koch, 135 Burton place; Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Rhoad, Evanston, and Mr. and Mrs. Crawford McDonald, 4409 North Hamilton avenue.

Because of increased Red Cross and other war work many people have given up sending cards this year, but others who have members of their families or friends scattered on the fighting fronts or at camps are sending more.

Miss Alice Beyer, 2331 Commonwealth avenue; Mrs. Frances Tobias, 4318 Sheridan road, and Miss Margaret Stierlin, 1722 Dover street, a trio who design their cards together every year, are making Chinese bookmarks to send to friends this year instead of cards.

Patriotic Motif.

For 10 years friends of Mr. and Mrs. McDonald have looked forward to the card the McDonalds send and they won't be disappointed this year. A dark blue card with a picture in a bell cutout will show the McDonald family taking the gasoline rationing in their stride.

The picture will show the family mounted on bicycles shaped to form a V with their daughter, Jean, on the crossbars. Red and silver scotch tape lining the sides of the blue card will give it a patriotic motif. Since their daughter was an infant the McDonalds have sent family picture greetings to friends at Christmas.

The war served as an inspiration for Tedor's annual caricature card. This year the caricatures are of Hitler, Mussolini, and a Jap, with a caption "We don't care if the [name] don't have a Merry Christmas!!" and at the bottom of the white card Mr. and Mrs. Tedor in caricature say "But the Tedors do!"

Tedor is editor of a food magazine but makes cartoons for a hobby.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhoads and four children who have moved into a new home within the past year at 2404 Lincoln street, Evanston, have drawn a picture of their front entrance for their greeting cards. The cards are in white with a colorful wreath on the door. Inside the card is an appropriate verse for Christmas and the new year.

Modernistic Cards.

Mrs. Knott, who applies her talent as an interior decorator on an original and artistic Christmas card each year, is sending her friends modernistic cards in gray and red this year. Running reindeer are block printed in red on the grey flannel-like paper which has a ragged edge of red. Inside she has written with white ink, "Greetings, Bonnie Cox Knott."

Each year Earl Press' daughter, Estelle Greiner of Kenosha, Wis., block prints her father's greeting cards. Some of his friends will receive a blue rough textured card with an English lamp swinging from an old fashioned post in black relief. Another card will be identical except for a Christmas candle and cedar boughs printed in brown on off-white.

Mrs. Clyde H. Keith, 1500 Chase avenue, is making her Christmas cards this year for the first time. Against a blue background is a jolly snowman painted on with a red scarf and jaunty green hat. On the inside is the same snowman writing "The Season's Best Wishes" with his footprints in the snow.

Van Puyenbroeck, who is interested in table photography as a hobby, has made a picture card showing two camels silhouetted against desert sand and twilight horizon. Miss Surganty, who also does much with table photography, has made a gay card in red with two reindeers, Santa Claus, and a full pack silhouetted in black. In large white letters at the bottom is "Merry Christmas."

Two Demure Lambs.

Two demure lambs with gold bells tied around their necks are pasted against a background for the Holden greeting cards. The lambs are cutouts from white blotter paper. A border of gold outlines the card and "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year" is written in white ink at the bottom.

Mrs. Hruby, who is interested in handicraft has fashioned cards from materials she learned to use in a craft class. She cut from thin copper-like metal a Christmas tree which

Lincoln School Pupils to Portray Christmas Festivities of 11 Nations

In the "Christmas of All Nations" program, to be presented Wednesday afternoon by the seventh and eighth grade pupils of the Lincoln school, 2324 Geneva terrace, the life and spirit of Latin America will be captured in dance and song. In rehearsal, with an enthusiastic audience of three—Fred Scheible (standing), Gerhardt Meyer (wearing sombrero), and Ronald Meyers—are (left to right) Evelyn Oberto, Jackie Banning, Lorraine Foreman, Marie and Mildred Poirel, twins, and Irene King.

Grace Eicher, 12 years old, 2308 Lincoln avenue, is co-director and helped assemble the native costumes of 11 nations for the afternoon's program. She shows the performers pictures of some of these costumes. Youngsters in the play are (kneeling, left to right) Marion Whipple, Susan Evans, and Bittersweet Wjatala. Standing (left to right) are Thomas Buchanan, Norman Jacobs, Tessie Twietmeyer, Patricia Wendell, Dena Pappas, Pauline Wilson, Jessie King, and Rose Roeckl.

There'll be no shortage of Santa Clauses at the Christmas celebration on the last afternoon of school. Here 13 year old Mona Jane Adkins, 636 Belden avenue, listens intently as little 6 year old Lynne Jacobs, 411 Fullerton parkway, confides what she'd like to find under the tree Christmas morning.

A North Sider Builds Army's Plastic Bugle

Bright look into the future for men in khaki: The clanging "you-gotta-get-up, you-gotta-get-up" is soon going to take on new, mellow tones. No more brassy clatter! Uncle Sam has orders in for 10,000 bugles made of plastic.

And who can the soldiers thank? Principally, one A. Stephen Lewis who works and lives on Chicago's near north side. Pioneering in the plastic field, Lewis has been doing experimental designing for six years of the industry's 10 years of existence.

Idea from Washington.

The idea of the bugle belongs to the Quartermaster corps in Washington. Confronted with the priority on brass, it was casting about for a plausible substitute. What about plastic? From the capital city a telephone call went thru to a large Cleveland musical instrument manufacturing company.

"A plastic bugle? Well, maybe. We'll see."

The Cleveland company lost no time in consulting with Lewis in his workshop at 219 West Chicago avenue.

Lewis's reply was "Why not?" He confides that he really knew nothing about musical instruments and wasn't nearly so confident as his answer indicated. But he set about the work.

Sound Due to Shape.

Contrary to popular belief, the sound of the bugle has little to do with the material of which it is constructed. The sound lies in the shape of the tubing and in its length. If the tubing is too long or too short, the bugle may be either sharp or flat. The quality of the tone depends on the tapering of the tubing.

Lewis studied his brass models carefully. Then he set about making the first plastic bugle. Modifications in the outward appearance of the instrument had to be made because all plastic tubing must be molded in two pieces and cemented together.

And Lewis had an additional problem. It's one thing to build a plastic bugle by hand, and quite another to construct it so that it can be produced in quantity.

Light, Durable Bugle.

But when the designing engineer had finished, there was a plastic bugle with what many experts say is better tone quality, a bugle lighter to carry — of primary importance to every army man, and a more durable bugle —one that will neither break nor dent as brass does.

According to Lewis, the plastic bugle is just a look into the near future. While he's occupied with turning out special designs for improved helmet glasses for war workers and handles for the hunting knives of naval aviators who may need them if forced down in the jungles, he's thinking of the day farther in the future when all musical instruments — right up to the French horn — may be made of plastic.

"This is only the beginning," says he.

Photographer Will Show Pictures of Grand Canyon

Dr. Louis J. Tint, natural color photographer, will show a series of colored pictures during his lecture, "The Spirit of the Grand Canyon," at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Chicago Academy of Sciences in Lincoln park. He is known for his camera studies of Zion and Bryce canyons, Utah; Grand canyon, Arizona, and the Tetons and Cascade ranges in the northwest.

BLOCK 4, ZONE 2 WOMEN TO HAVE WAR AID GROUP

The women of block 4 zone 2, in the Rogers Park-Clark community, are organizing into a women's division to help win the war. Meetings will be held Tuesday afternoons in block headquarters, 7010 North Glenwood avenue.

Plans are to knit, sew, make kits for men in service, help ex-service men, do Red Cross work and assist in the Howard Street Service Men's center. The group is busy this week gathering Christmas gifts for the center.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

"Home for Christmas!" was the joyous message Pvt. Harvey J. Minx sent his wife at their home at 7719 North Hermitage avenue from his post in Camp Livingston, Louisiana. Minx joined the army in July of this year and was inducted at Camp Grant. As a member of the quartermaster corps, he was stationed in Camp Roberts, California, and transferred to Louisiana. Mrs. Minx said her husband has received a 10 day furlough.

Harvey J. Minx.

Sergt. Raymond W. Simkins, 26 West Ontario street, has graduated from the wheeled vehicle department of the armored force school in Fort Knox, Ky., and is now a qualified automotive mechanic.

Pvt. Arthur S. Lipski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Lipski, 4954 North Drake avenue, was granted a furlough recently on unusual grounds. The young man traveled 2,000 miles from his station in Camp Livingston, Louisiana, to Chicago and back to complete his six years of schooling interrupted by the war. Lipski, a graduate of John Marshall Law school, returned to take the Illinois bar examinations to become a practicing attorney.

Arthur Lipski.

Lieut. Ray G. Torgerson, 5348 North Bernard street, is home on leave from the Aberdeen proving grounds, Maryland, where he graduated from officers school recently. He has been assigned to Selfridge field, Michigan.

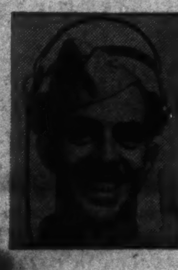
At the quartermaster school at Camp Lee, Virginia, last month Sergt. Daniel W. Anderson, 1502 Lunt avenue, became a second lieutenant. He has remained on duty in the camp.

North side men earning promotions recently include Harry Cohen, 2358 Early avenue, to sergeant; John P. Brandle, 1334 Melrose street, to technical sergeant; Walter P. Sammon, 2241 Eastwood avenue, to corporal; Wilbur N. Casey, 6133 North Kenmore avenue, to private first class; Eugene B. Dreeben, 5050 North Sheridan road, to warrant officer, junior grade; Edward G. Eldridge, 1347 Greenleaf avenue, to first lieutenant; John E. Phillippi, 1417 Barry avenue, to sergeant technician, and William O. Coleman III. of Winnetka, to first lieutenant.

North side holders of new second lieutenant commissions are Joseph E. Boehm, 1342 Wolfram street; Thomas B. Sweenie, 6332 North Talman avenue; Francis E. Sammons Jr., Evanston; Kenneth Jones Jr., 405 Blackhawk street; Vernon A. Prescott, 5531 Berenice avenue; John W. McGrew, 525 Arlington place, and Robert P. Lawrenz, 6848 North Wolcott avenue.

Word has been received that Maj. Edward Don, 2920 Commonwealth avenue, has been transferred to McClellan field, Sacramento, Cal., and that his brother, Kelly Don, who resided at 5461 West Washington boulevard, has been promoted to the rank of captain. He has just graduated from the army and navy engine school and is reporting back to Hill field, Utah.

Edwin P. Schmitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael R. Schmitz, 1342 Wellington avenue, is now an army flyer. He was graduated from Luke field, Phoenix, Ariz. At the graduation ceremonies he received his silver wings and a second lieutenant's commission. Schmitz is an alumnus of De Paul university, where he was active in swimming and basketball.



Lieut. Schmitz.

From private to second lieutenant in little more than four months is the record of Donald R. Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hanson, 5011 North Wolcott avenue. Lieut. Hanson was graduated as one of the highest ranking men of his class in the engineering school at Fort Belvoir, Virginia. He has been assigned to duty at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

Ensign F. C. Creigh of Highland Park recently was in command of the navy honor guard on the occasion of the visit at a Caribbean port of Peter Kasteel, governor of the Netherlands West Indies. He had come to confer with Vice Adm. John H. Hoover.

Four north siders have completed their preflight navigation course in the army air force school at Selman field, Louisiana, and are now on the second leg of the course which will lead to second lieutenant commissions. They are Aviation Cadets Milton Schoenborn, 5941 North Washtenaw avenue; Vincent P. Oatis Jr., and Richard B. Jones of Evanston, and Paul R. Neubarth, 1128 Oakdale avenue.

Winning their navy wings of gold at the naval air station in Corpus Christi, Tex., recently were Roy C. J. Bauman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bauman, 1107 Wolfram street, and John T. Nugent, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Nugent, 6546 Glenwood avenue. Ensign Bauman volunteered for flight training in January, 1942. He was a student in Indiana university. Nugent, who elected to be a marine flyer, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the marine corps.

Ensign Bauman.

Lieut. Nugent.

New Lincoln Park Library Branch Opens Tomorrow

The new Lincoln park branch library, 744 Fullerton avenue, will open for service at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Miss Helen Nordlund will be the librarian in charge.

Isaiah Israel Service.

Henry Simon Bloch, a member of the research staff of the University of Chicago, will speak on "The Common Man: Is He a Jew?" at the service at the Temple Isaiah Israel, 1100 Hyde Park boulevard, at 8:15 o'clock Friday.

RELIGIOUS TONE GETS EMPHASIS ON NORTH SIDE

Soldiers on Leave Will Be Feted.

As Yuletide bells ring out on America's second Christmas of World War II., Chicago's north side churches will present the most extensive religious programs planned in several years. There will be fewer decorations in the churches this year but more emphasis is being placed on the religious significance of the Christmas season, with throngs of worshipers expected.

Many churches are giving old-fashioned family parties for soldiers and sailors home on furlough and their families. Those not coming home are being remembered by boxes mailed several weeks ago.

For the first time in many years First Methodist church, 77 West Washington street, will discontinue the Christmas morning service and will hold instead an 11 o'clock Christmas eve service. The change was made because the church thought more soldiers and navy men could attend services.

The Sunday school department will give its annual program of Yuletide songs and recitations at 8 o'clock Wednesday night.

Edgewater Church Programs.

Some of the most elaborate of north side Christmas programs will be presented at Edgewater Presbyterian church, 1020 Bryn Mawr avenue. The series of programs and services will begin at 7 o'clock tonight when the church will hold its annual white Christmas service. The five choirs under direction of Henry Baar, music director, will sing selections from "The Messiah" and the congregation will take gifts for the 75 Christmas baskets distributed each year.

The Sunday school department will give its annual old fashioned family party at 7 o'clock Christmas eve in the large church auditorium. There will be a Christmas tree, Santa Claus and treats. After the program, members of the four older choirs will sing carols in the neighborhood.

The regular Christmas morning service will be held at 11 o'clock Friday morning. Music will be furnished by the sanctuary choir. A communion service for young people will be held at 12:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

Keep Service Men's Center Open.

The service men's center in the Boy Scouts' log cabin in the church will be opened all day Christmas for soldiers, sailors, marines and their families. There will be a large birch fire in the fireplace and games and reading material will be available. Refreshments will be served by a committee, Mrs. Guy Latchau, Mrs. Bertha Wells, and George Albright.

The Boy Scout room has been given over to the service men for the duration. It is open every night and is equipped with stationery, a piano and other amusement material. The soldiers and navy men also have use of the large gymnasium across the hall from the room. Hosts are men and women of the church.

The annual white Christmas service at North Shore Baptist church, 5244 Lakewood avenue, will be held tonight. The 7 o'clock service will be preceded by an organ concert by Porter Heaps, church organist. He will play carols and the North Shore church quartet and three choirs will sing a medley of Christmas songs.

Addison Street Midnight Service.

A midnight Christmas eve service will be held in Addison Street Baptist church, 1242 Addison street. This will be followed next Sunday by a Sunday school program at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

A cantata, "The Shepherd King," will be presented at 7:30 o'clock tonight by the Ravenswood Baptist choir in the church, 4455 North Seeley avenue. Members of the World Wide guild, an organization of young girls, will conduct a candle light service tonight. At 8 o'clock Wednesday night the church will give its annual Christmas entertainment.

A similar schedule has been set up by the Rogers Park Baptist church. The junior and senior choirs will present a Christmas musical at 7:30 tonight in the church, 1900 Greenleaf avenue. At 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night the Sunday school department will present a program, "Holy Nativity," in the church community hall.

Rites in Rogers Park.

The Congregational Church of Rogers Park, 1545 Morse avenue, will have two services today and one Friday morning. The children's choir will sing carols at the 11 o'clock worship service this morning and at 4 o'clock the Rev. S. B. Crosland, ushers and children will conduct a candle light service. There will be a short Christmas service at 7:30 o'clock Friday morning.

The All Saints Episcopal church, 4550 North Hermitage avenue, will have an eucharist service at 11:15 o'clock Thursday night. Holy communion will be celebrated and a musical program by the choir will be given at 10 o'clock Christmas morning. The Rev. Howard Jacobson of Lake Geneva will be in charge of the Friday morning service. At 7:30

UPTOWN DISTRICT DEVELOPS CIVIC ACTIVITIES GROUP

Plans for Hall, Library Disrupted by War.

Five years ago the north side uptown district was a large congested commercial area with a few civic facilities. Living largely in apartment houses and hotels, the community's population of 200,000 had few playgrounds, an inadequate library, and no community hall.

Feeling that something should be done about it, members of the North Shore American Legion post called together representatives from various school and business organizations and the Edgewater Civic council was formed.

In five years the council has been instrumental in establishing several playgrounds, enlarging the schools' recreational facilities, and putting into effect several traffic measures which have decreased congestion in the business district.

Suggest Good Sites.

Plans for a community hall and a library have been shelved for the duration, but desirable sites for each have been suggested and the plans are not forgotten. The latest project is planning a service men's center. A number of conferences have been held with the U. S. O. and the Salvation Army and a center is expected to be established after the first of the year.

Dr. O. R. Englemann, 5209 North Clark street, has been president of the council for three years. Working under him are several committees, namely traffic, library, playground improvement, and the service men's center committee.

After it was organized the council uncovered so many civic needs that it soon deviated from its main objective of building a community hall. As head of the traffic safety committee, James Wing, 841 Wilson avenue, has obtained stop signs at thru street intersections and police protection at busy corners. He has eliminated many parking hazards and has put into effect other safety measures.

Heads Library Committee.

A. L. T. Hoffman, 931 Lakeside place, first vice president of the council and executive secretary of the Central Uptown Chicago association, heads the library committee. Several locations have been suggested for the library and plans for the type and size of building the community wants have been formulated. At present the only branch library accessible to the community is the Sheridan Park library at 4869 Broadway street.

Until Mrs. H. W. Abelman, 4957 Lowell avenue, and her recreation committee took action, playground facilities were inadequate. The nearest city park is at Chase fieldhouse, which was built to accommodate a small community near Ashland and Leland avenues.

At the suggestion of the committee the Lions club and several other organizations began work on a dump pile at Wolcott and Balmoral avenues and developed Hilburn park. There is now a skating pond, a softball stadium, and Boy Scout headquarters there.

Plan Baby Park.

At the council's urging the city park board has established baseball diamonds and is planning a baby park along the lake at Winona street and Marine drive near Goudy school.

Giving draftee parties has been one of the most recent activities of several organizations in the council. The Community club of Sheridan Park, Graeme Stewart P.-T. A., and the Buena Park Church Woman's club each have given as many as three parties or breakfasts in one week.

The council is a clearing house for all organizational activities within the uptown area. It meets twice a month in New Lawrence hotel and has as its slogan, "For community betterment."

Delegates Form Council.

Two delegates from each of the leading civic organizations are elected to the council. The officers are Dr. Engelmann, president; Hoffman, first vice president; Wing, second vice president; Mrs. C. K. Timmons, 1076 Thorndale avenue, recording secretary; Mrs. J. W. McLaughlin, 1455 Rascher avenue, corresponding secretary, and Leroy J. Neiman, 5109 Kenmore avenue, treasurer.

Organizations represented on the council are the Central Uptown Chicago association, Edgewater Association of Progress, North Shore American Legion post and auxiliary, Gibbons Legion post, North Ravenswood Improvement club, North Side General Welfare Old Age Pension center No. 2, North Shore Hamilton League, Sheridan Park Community club, Sheridan Neighborhood club, 48th Ward Beautifying commission, Goudy, Hayt, Pierce, Senn, Swift, and Graeme Stewart PTA, and the office of civilian defense.

War Cuts Family Yule Diners to 16

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

News stand dealer at Van Buren and Franklin streets for 32 years, James Stolfo is the proud father of five soldiers and the grandfather of a coast guard fighter. As a result of the boys' leaving home, his family around the Christmas table at 1730 North Laramie street this year will be reduced from a minimum of 22 to only 16 festive diners.

Edward Stolfo.

John Stolfo.

Rocco Stolfo.

Nicholas Stolfo.

William Stolfo.

The five sons of James Stolfo serving in the army range in age from 23 to 41 years. In a year's time they have scattered all over the United States—from Texas to New Jersey—and one has gone overseas to England.

16 STOLFOS PLAN YULE FESTIVITIES —MISS SIX AT WAR

Newsstand Dealer Is 'Mighty Proud.'

This Christmas only 16 heads will bow in reverence while James Stolfo, loop newsstand operator, asks for blessings on his family's Christmas dinner. In happier years the family group has numbered 22. But six of the boys have gone to war.

There's Bill, 33, who's overseas. He's with the army air corps in England. And Rocco, 31, who was inducted last April with Bill, but still is stationed at Fort Dix, N. J. John, 36, was the first to go—just before Christmas last year. He's in Michigan.

Ed, whose post is in Texas, is the youngest of the sons in service. He's just 23. Nick, 41, is at Fort Sheridan —not so far from the Stolfo home at 1730 North Laramie avenue.

Grandson in New York.

The sixth young man, absent from the Christmas table, is James Stolfo's grandson, Peter Piagari, 21 year old member of the coast guard with home base in New York.

"Sure, I wish they could all be home for Christmas," said Stolfo at one of his newsstands which are located on two corners of the Van Buren and Franklin street intersection in the loop. "But I'm mighty proud of them, too. We've all got to help get this war won."

Stolfo and his wife, Lucy, came to America from Italy many years ago—before any of the 13 children were born. The father has been at the same loop corner selling papers a total of 32 years. And during all those years he's worked a 10 hour day and a 6 day week. Now, because he has two newsstands, his son, James Jr., one of the two boys still home, helps him.

Few Have Married.

Talking about the huge dining room table at home, Stolfo pointed out one of the reasons his household is so large is that none of his seven boys has married, and only three of the six girls are married.

"Maybe it's because we all have such a good time together," explained the newspaper seller.

About Christmas gifts for the boys away Stolfo was vague.

"My daughters, Annette, Camille, and Dorothy, always take care of things like that," he said. "I don't have so much extra time!"

James Jr., who had come from across the street, ventured the opinion that goodly sections of the Christmas boxes were filled with Italian delicacies never found in army or coast guard rations. Salami and strong cheeses have been repeated requests from the boys.

What Jimmy seemed to mourn most about his absent brothers was the way going off to war had spoiled their Christmas eve. For many years it was the custom for all seven of the boys to go together to midnight mass in St. Peter Canisius church. This year just he and his older brother, Peter, will be here to represent the Stolfo boys.

Two Daughters Nearby.

The other members of the Stolfo family usually go to a morning mass, early enough to get them home by the time the three married daughters, their husbands, and children arrive with their armfuls of presents. Two of them live in the neighborhood—Mrs. Rose Larcher and Mrs. Anne Piagari—but Mrs. Ruth Rille comes from 717 South Claremont avenue.

"O, it'll be a good Christmas all right. We have much to be thankful for," Stolfo said, grinning, "but it'll be better when the boys are home again."

CRIPPLE RECITES SAD STORY—GAS RATION TOOK JOB

Car Polisher Swears He'll Work by Christmas.

The finest Christmas gift 59 year old Jack Van could receive this year is a job — any kind of a job. Jack's one of the victims of gasoline rationing. For 13 years he's taken care of the youngsters of shopping mothers, wiped off the windshields and windows of their cars and polished the fenders. His territory has been Lawrence avenue between Magnolia avenue and Malden street.

Now, with no cars, there's no living left in it.

In a tiny room over a store at 4716 Sheridan road he told his story. A cripple, his right side paralyzed from birth, he's earned his own way thru life. Until now he's never had to depend on the charity of others. He pulled out his new relief card. That' he explained, paid for his room. Others in the house take him food.

On Job for 13 Years.

"I'd make a good timekeeper or a watchman, or I could just answer the telephone. Whatever he set me doing, I'd be a good worker for the man that hired me," he said vigorously. And from the earnestness of his voice it seemed certain he would be a good worker.

"Maybe they figure because I'm crippled I wouldn't be any good. But anybody who's seen me around Lawrence avenue for the last 13 years knows better than that," he continued.

Jack is a high school graduate. Like all other civilians, he's living the war thru the newspapers and his radio, relic of a happier day. He began walking up and down the short stretch of room. He was saying simply, "And another reason I want a job so badly is to help win this war."

Admires Capt. Wermuth.

A newspaper lay open on the bed. He pointed to the photo of Capt. Wermuth. "Look at that guy! Knocking Japs off by the dozen! Wouldn't that be something!"

But he came back to his story. "You know," he said, "I was one of 15 kids. Everybody figured I'd be the first to go. And I've outlasted every one of them. I'm the last one of my family in the world."

Then he thought of his cards, proof of how hard he has been looking for a job. There was one from the Illinois Employment service at Kenmore and Wilson. He'd been down to the welfare department of the Chicago Relief association at 180 Polk street. They'd suggested a private agency on North State street, where he had gone with no luck. He pointed to the slip from the agency he said Gov. Green started at 205 Wacker drive.

Mixed in with the miscellany of white cards was an orange one — his voters' identification card. And he said proudly, "Never miss an election! I always try to do my duty as a citizen."

Many Trips, No Work.

But all those trips to agencies, along with others to defense factories, netted him the same answer—"We'll take your name and telephone number."

Jack Van has about given up on these strangers finding a place for him in the working world. He thinks he has just one last, but good hope for finding a job. That hope lies with his friends he served on Lawrence avenue.

"When they hear about me, they'll remember."

EVANSTON GROUP TO GIVE 'NATIVITY' FOR 20TH SEASON

Tableau, Song, Scripture Will Paint Picture.

In solemn pantomime, in joyful song, to the measured beat of Scripture verse, 400 children of the First Methodist church of Evanston will present the congregation's 20th annual community Christmas pageant, "The Nativity," at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the church hall.

For all, from the 3 year old cherubs to the high school carolers, the occasion is a holy one. Many of the youngsters have grown from cherub to shepherd to wise man.

Members of the audience, too, have grown wise with the years. They know they need to come an hour early if they want to find seats for the performance.

Weave Words of Bible.

Tableaux, rich with color and tradition, will tell their stories of the birth of Christ. Into the tableaux the words of the prophecies of Isaiah and the Christmas story, as recorded in the New Testament, will be woven.

Dr. Charles S. Braden, associate professor in the history of religion at Northwestern university, will introduce the pageant, which is directed by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anderson.

Four choirs will sing the sacred music. The kindergartners, ranging in age from 4 to 8, the junior choir, of children from 9 to 11 years old, the junior high school, and the high school choirs all will join in the choral music. The adult Chancel choir will climax the program with the singing of "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "The Messiah."

Organist to Accompany.

Dr. Emory L. Gallup, minister of music, will accompany the singers on the organ, and Dr. Ernest F. Tittle, church pastor, will read from the Scriptures.

Members of the tableaux cast, directed by Miss Patricia Lewis, who has grown up from cherub herself, are Cherubs Elizabeth Forrer, John Goodyear, Patricia Hastings, Thomas Johnson, and Katharine McKibben; Prophets Ralph Kerman and William Mummery; Mary, Cynthia Olson; Joseph, Edward Page; the Angel of Annunciation, Barbara Fisher.

Other angels will be Barbara Cress, Joan Mills, Priscilla Clark, Jean Larson, Phyllis Hamrin, Ruth Ross, Sarah Cossum, Doris Hibbard, Elsie Hovey, and Anne Hershey. Shepherds will be James Anderson, Robert Kerman, George McIntosh, William Moss, Watson Parker, and David Wagner. The Wise Men are Arthur Clark, George Miller, and Wesley Whitchurch.

Nursery School Carolers.

Carolers from the nursery school include Jeanne Brown, Jean Carlisle, Joanna Clark, Barbara Hawes, Nancy Joyce, Alexa Koclanes, Laurice Lang, Dorothy McIntosh, Mary Jean Millard, Sherry Owen, Joyce Putnam, Anne Tackaberry, Mary Wagner, Betsy Ward, Mercedes Weed, Hal Browder, Howard Osborn, Richard Scott, and Robert Voas.

Soloists will be Anne Hershey and Catherine McCutcheon Baker. Jean Carlisle will be violinist, and Howard Osborn, viola player. The trumpeters will be John Snell, Robert Langworthy, John Davis, and Ted Gathany.

Mrs. Helen Hawk Carlisle is music supervisor, while Miss Geraldine Gregg, director of the church school, has been assisting in all phases of the production. Other assistants are Miss Darlene Kent, Mrs. George H. Betts, Miss Miriam West, Miss Martha Cunningham, Mrs. Cecile Chubb, Mrs. J. F. Mummery, Mrs. Frank M. McKibben, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mason.

3 PAN-AMERICANS NAMED TO STAFF IN HOSPITAL HERE

The Children's Memorial hospital recently announced the appointment of three doctors from the Pan-American countries to its staff of residents. They are Dr. Rafael Salas of Caracas, Venezuela, who is a fellow of the Pan-American Sanitary bureau in Washington; Dr. Robert Aguayo of Caguas, Porto Rico, who was in private practice for many years, and Dr. Ydalia Ortiz of Santruces, Porto Rico, a woman doctor who will assume the post of pediatric consultant for the government department of health. All three will return to their native lands after completing their post graduated studies at the hospital.

SARAH SAMUELS ASKS NO GIFTS ON 80TH CHRISTMAS

Tells Friends to Give to 'My Favorite' Charity.

If she has her way, there'll be no gifts under the tree for Mrs. Sarah Samuels of 607 Melrose street on Christmas day, the day of her 80th birthday.

"Christmas presents or birthday presents don't thrill me in the least," she says emphatically and without making exceptions.

After hearing such a statement a stranger might decide he'd found the modern counter-part of Scrooge. But that's where he'd be wrong. He should listen to what Mrs. Samuels has to say further.

Enjoys Cards, Telegrams.

"If any one has a hankering for spending some money on gifts for me, I hope he'll send it along to the society that takes care of the blind or to the Fox River sanatorium west of Chicago," she declared. "What I really enjoy are the cards and telegrams I receive each year."

Last year Mrs. Samuels was deluged by 60 telegrams and 80 cards for her Christmas birthday. Her mail box overflowed onto the porch.

Eighty years ago, Dec. 25, Mrs. Samuels was born in Chicago on Kinzie street, east of the river. She remembers Lincoln's being assassinated when she was 3 years old. The memory is still vivid because of the long black drapes her father hung over the double doors of their big store. Picnics in Wrightwood grove, at the end of the Clark street horse drawn trolley line, were gala occasions in her girlhood.

Attended Kinzie School.

She attended the Kinzie school which still stands on Ohio street between Wells and La Salle streets. Now it houses administrative offices of the board of education rather than a hundred noisy school children.

Saved from the Chicago fire were two items Mrs. Samuels treasures highly. One is a small stool her mother used for resting her feet while sewing or knitting. The other is a necklace of buttons, which has a special story Mrs. Samuels likes to tell.

"It was a fad in those days, just like charm bracelets today," she explained. "Every kind of a store—even grocery stores—kept buttons for the little girls. I can remember many times stretching to the height of a counter and saying to the clerk—'please, sir, will you give me a button?'"

Artistry in Buttons.

The buttons had long hooks like shoe buttons and so were easily strung. Pure artistry often was discernable in the finished product. Plaid dresses had their matching plaid button necklaces. Dark colored costumes were foil for dazzlingly bright button creations.

"And luckily enough my mother just happened to throw in one of my prize necklaces with all our other belongings. I found it and took good care of it until we were settled again."

Mrs. Samuels' 80th birthday will be celebrated Christmas night from 7 to 10 o'clock in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Toby Trovus, 445 Melrose street. The daughter with whom she resides, Miss Amye Samuels, and her son Sylvan, whose home is at 3515 North Seeley avenue, will help entertain the approximately 150 guests expected.

Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Williams of 6427 North Rockwell street announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Williams, to Eugene Martin Witz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Witz, 6332 North Fairfield avenue.

M'CORMICK Y. W. PLANS PARTY FOR RESIDENT WOMEN

Candles are gleaming, carols echoing in the halls of the McCormick Y. W. C. A., 1001 North Dearborn street, as the Christmas spirit takes over. Many of the girls who reside in the dormitories will be unable to go home for Christmas, according to Miss Agnes Ewart, director, and so the club is expanding its usual Christmas program this year.

This afternoon there will be open house with James Lapsley, the club's singing doorman, presenting a program of Christmas songs. The Christmas tree will be lighted and tea served. At the tea table will be Eileen Nielson, Vivian Ingram, Betty Leatherman, and Jadwiga Daniec.

Christmas eve the girls will gather to hear Mrs. Philip S. Post, one of the founding mothers tell the Christmas story. On Christmas morning breakfast will be served in the Sun Room, around the Christmas tree, with music and presentation of gifts.

ORIGINAL DESIGNS BRIGHTEN MANY YULETIDE CARDS

she pasted on purple cardboard. Above the tree she has "Noel" also in copper letters.

Pictures of familiar scenes of Rogers beach at 18 degrees below zero and the Edgebrook forest in winter have been pasted on bright red and blue folders for friends of Helen and Bill Patterson. The pictures have been reproduced from prints which have won the Pattersons prizes in several photographic contests.

Koch, who is an artist, has designed several cards to send to his friends. Among his favorite is an illustrated booklet on the origin of Santa Claus. The covers are of blue art paper and the story of Saint Nicholas, who became the legendary Santa Claus, is printed in brown ink.

"I can do my housework in no time"

"I'm getting a job to help win the war."

Thousands of jobs for women and girls are open in offices, stores, shops, factories and other places of business. Can you arrange your affairs to help out? For the largest selection of jobs, read The Chicago Tribune, which prints more than twice as much Help Wanted and Employment Agency want advertising as all other Chicago newspapers combined.

"DID YOU SEE ETHEL'S PAY CHECK?"

"She certainly is cashing in on that training course she took!"

The short cut to a better job with more pay is thru training. In these days when women with training are at a premium, it will pay you to consider a short course in a well-paid field. For names of schools which offer such training, read the Instruction and Trade Schools columns in The Tribune want ad section.

"COME OVER FOR TEA, GIRLS"

"My new room has a hot plate and everything!"

No matter what kind of living quarters you want—a room, housekeeping suite, furnished apartment, room with board, or hotel accommodations—you will be far more likely to find what you want when you consult the offers in The Tribune want ad section. Review the accommodations described in Tribune want ads today.

"You'll soon have a big yard to play in!"

"Daddy is buying us a fine home today!"

Are you thinking of buying a home? Finding the home you want at the price you want to pay will be much easier if you use The Tribune as your guide because The Tribune prints more Real Estate want advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined. Turn to the Real Estate columns in today's Tribune now and review the values offered.

BECAUSE want ad users get better results, they place more total want advertising in The Chicago Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

Get what you want and save time, energy and money with helpful Tribune want ads.

YULE SEALS ALSO A WAR SHORTAGE, COLLECTOR FINDS

Albums Picture Scenes of Many Lands.

North Sider Amy Ellen Davis is chalking up another count against war this Christmas! She has a husband who works long hours to produce war materials. Like other housewives, she has coffee, sugar, and meat shortages to combat. And now war has quashed even her innocent pastime of collecting Christmas seals from countries all over the world.

Last year there were seals from only three foreign countries—Norway, South Africa, and India. This year there are none.

Began in 1904.

Issuing stamps at Christmas time to raise funds for tuberculosis treatment and research dates back to 1904 and in Mrs. Davis' collection of some 50,000 stamps the histories of nations can be read.

The Indian stamp of 1941 is strikingly like the Corean stamps of preceding years. The reason lies in the flight to India of the missionary who designed them.

In 1934 the first sign of Fascism—the fiery Fascist ax—found its way onto the Italian tuberculosis seal. With each succeeding year the accent on militarism became more pronounced.

During the same years England and France were brightening their Christmas gifts and letters with seals of friendliness and good cheer.

German Issue Halted.

Germany's only issue of Christmas seals, scheduled in connection with the international convention of tuberculosis associations in 1939, was cut short by war.

Norway, according to Mrs. Davis, is famed for issuing the most beautiful Christmas seals. A tiny house with soft light glowing from its windows—a pair of snowbirds huddling together in the cold—a church steeple against a snowy mountain.

Royalty, country roads, Danish fishermen, and even the little match girl of the Anderson fairy tales parade over the seals of Denmark. One can learn the geography, native animals, customs, and costumes of Finland from its tuberculosis stamps.

Venezuela, Cuba, Brazil, Peru, Argentina, Colombia, El Salvador, and Ecuador are represented in the collection. Canadian stamps are printed in English and French.

There are seals from Switzerland, Iceland, the Netherlands, Portugal, Latvia, Sweden, Rumania, and New Zealand. In all, between 45 and 50 countries are represented in the collection.

Started in Denmark.

While leafing thru the pages of carefully mounted stamps Mrs. Davis, who resides at 4447 Beacon street, told the story of their origin. It seems that a postmaster in Denmark by the name of Einar Holboell watched the huge stacks of mail go thru his office at Christmas, year after year, and it occurred to him that if every one just attached a penny stamp to help rid the nation of tuberculosis, how much money could be collected. In 1904 he designed and had printed the first Christmas tuberculosis seal.

The idea caught hold. In 1907 the Delaware Red Cross decided to try it out in America. The stamps sold so rapidly it was necessary to get out a second issue before Christmas. Ever since that year Christmas seals have been traditional in the United States.

Local Stamps Issued.

What many noncollectors may not know about, says Mrs. Davis, is the number of seals that are issued by towns or counties. Wisconsin has special seals in Green Bay, Superior, and Fond du Lac. Blue Earth and McLeod counties in Minnesota have their own seals. Dozens of religious groups mail out seals to their memberships.

While the local stamps are colorful and interesting, still to a seasoned collector like Mrs. Davis they do not hold the thrill of foreign stamps.

Collecting the current relief stamps of the free governments of occupied nations is filling the gap in some small measure, but Collector Amy Ellen Davis says she will be happier when the nations again are sending their messages of peace on Christmas seals.

Irving Park Catholic Club Plans Annual Yule Party

The Irving Park Catholic Young Woman's club will hold its annual Christmas party tomorrow evening in the home of Miss Marguerite Mullen, 4152 West Madison street. A business meeting will be held at 8 o'clock preceding the party. Each member is asked to take a gift for the grab bag.

Council of Royal League to Hear Frenchman at Rally

Col. J. A. LeBouthillier, for 22 years a member of the French intelligence department, will be the speaker at a Christmas party and fellowship rally tomorrow evening of Banner council, Royal League, in the lodge hall, 4221 Irving Park boulevard.

NORTH CHAPTER OF KAPPA DELTA TO HAVE PARTY

Alumnae Mothers Will Bring Children.

Members of Kappa Delta North Shore Alumnae association will entertain their children at a Christmas party at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the chapter house, 711 University place.

Mrs. David B. Park and Mrs. Patrick H. Blake will be hostesses. They have planned a program of games and movies. The party will be climaxed with a visit from Santa Claus who will distribute treats and gifts.

Beta Theta Pi.

Alumni of Beta Theta Pi from the Chicago metropolitan area will entertain active Betas home for the holidays Wednesday at an undergraduate luncheon in the Palmer House clubroom.

The joint meeting of college boys and "old grads" has been a tradition of long standing. As usual William M. Springer of Evanston will don white whiskers and a red suit to play the rôle of Santa Claus and distribute surprise packages.

C. H. Warrington of Winnetka will be toastmaster. The luncheon is sponsored by Alpha alumni chapter of Chicago. Francis P. Linneman of Highland Park is president.

Alpha Gamma Delta.

The North Shore alumnae group of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority will be entertained at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. Kelvin H. Booty, 807 South boulevard, Evanston. Bridge will be played and part of the afternoon will be spent making bandages and masks for the Visiting Nurses association.

Co-hostesses will be Mrs. John J. McKeague of Evanston and Mrs. R. H. Cutsler of Skokie.

Boy Scout Commissioner Gets Silver Beaver Award

Boy Scout District Commissioner S. H. Rosenthal of Des Plaines was presented with the silver beaver award at the 17th annual banquet of the Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts held recently. The award is presented each year by the national council upon recommendation of the local council for "distinguished service to boyhood."

Lions Club Party.

The Northwest Lions club will hold its annual Christmas party Tuesday at 4300 North avenue. Members and their guests are welcome.

Victory Ball in Park Ridge to Take Place of White Ball

One of the important events on the Park Ridge calendar will be the Victory ball formerly designated as the White ball, a traditional dance of St. Cecilia's guild of St. Mary's church, Park Ridge. The ball will be held from 9 to 12 o'clock Tuesday night, Dec. 29, in the Mary Wilson House and it is either formal or informal. The price has been reduced for men in uniform.

Jingle Bell Party.

Banner council, No. 51, of the Royal league will hold a jingle bell party tomorrow evening in the lodge hall, 4221 Irving Park road. Jerry J. Salins, 3618 Sacramento avenue, and Adolph W. Wagner, 4324 Irving Park road, are on the committee of arrangements.

CLINIC BUSINESS FALLS AWAY AS WAR WAGES RISE

Patients Turn from Free Service; Pay Old Bills.

The much publicized American habit of paying the doctor last seems to be on the way out in Chicago at least. Doctors thruout the city report a minimum of requests for charity treatment, and all the free clinics have had a sharp drop in the number of patients asking for medical aid in the last year.

Many doctors say that their collections of old bills is 25 to 30 per cent better than it has been in past years. The payment of fees at one clinic is 25 per cent higher this year than last, in spite of the fewer number of patients requesting treatment.

Clinics Lose Patients.

As long as production in the great war plants is booming and the workers tuck fat pay checks into their pockets each week, the clinics will lose patients, in the opinion of Dr. J. Roscoe Miller, dean of the Northwestern university medical school.

At the Northwestern clinics there has been a drop of almost 25 per cent in the number of patients applying for admission to the free clinics this year compared with the applicants at the start of the war, according to Dr. Miller.

At the start of the war, and shortly before the war plants began their climb to maximum production, these clinics had 112,082 visits from patients over a year's period. During a corresponding period this year there have been only 86,093 visits.

Observe Immediate Effect.

"This is a heartening indication that the American people will refuse to accept charity if they can possibly avoid it," Dr. Miller said. "For the first time we have had the opportunity to observe the immediate effects of a sudden increase in the earning capacity of the average worker. Usually these increases come slowly, but in this case almost overnight a man with nothing before is making a livable income.

"From the experience in our clinic it would seem that the first thing this worker does is begin paying for things that he had been receiving for nothing—even tho he could still do so. There has even been a 25 per cent increase in the number of patients who, tho still unable to afford a private doctor, ask to pay a voluntary fee for the clinical service."

9,000 Fewer Cases.

At County hospital there was a drop of almost 9,000 in the number of patients treated during September of this year, compared with September, 1941, according to Dr. Ole Nelson, superintendent of the hospital. Last year there were 48,005 treatments during the month, while this year the number of treatments dropped to 39,074, the lowest in some time.

Dr. Nelson attributed this decline to the reluctance of Americans to accept charity, and to an increased interest in health brought about by the war.

The clinics operated by the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois, and the Mercy Free Dispensary of Loyola university all have experienced similar drops in the number of patients treated without charges.

Child Doctors Taken.

In one case, however, only a very slight drop has been noticed. The Children's Memorial hospital had a decline of only 2,508 in the number of treatments given this year over last. This, perhaps, is explained by the fact that a great number of pediatricians have been taken into the armed forces, and parents take their children to a specialty hospital after this doctor has gone to war.

Sociologists also report that many more children from homes in which both parents are working have required hospital care because their parents do not see them enough to notice evidence of illness in its early stages.

War Makes Staff Inroads.

The cut in clinical patients has helped the hospitals meet another problem brought on by the war. Northwestern has lost 175 doctors to the armed services from its regular staff of 399 full and part time men. While some of these men have been replaced with older physicians, all of the medical school graduates for the next few years will be taken directly into service.

At the Children's Memorial hospital the same situation is true. In the last year the hospital has lost 37 per cent of its staff to the armed forces, most of them pediatricians whose specialty is the treatment of children up to 13 years of age. The University of Chicago has lost 41 men from its full time staff of 150 physicians and research doctors, and expects to lose several more in the next few months.

BOYS' CLUB GROUP TO HEAR TALK ON TEEN AGE CRIME

A talk on "Facing Juvenile Delinquency in Wartime" will be given by Dr. Ernest Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Chicago Boys' Clubs association tomorrow noon at Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Dr. Burgess will discuss the rapid rise in teen age crime, as traced to wartime tension, and also will include some of his findings in the study of recreation and delinquency.

Newly elected officers of the association are: Stewart W. Knarr, president; Sol Boskin, vice president, and Helen Coatsworth, secretary-treasurer.

The association has in its membership all staff workers of the Boys' clubs of metropolitan Chicago as well as the boys' departments of settlements.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 21.

A good covering of snow is about the best protection that outdoor plants can have. It is not so heavy that plants are smothered unless soft, melting snow is followed by freezing weather, and even then most plants will survive in good condition. Hardiness depends largely on soil conditions. Many plants will survive in a sandy, well drained soil which winter would kill in a heavy soil. Giving protection simply prevents plants from heaving and exposing the roots to frost during thaws.

Tuesday, Dec. 22.

Watch that rabbits and other rodents do not girdle the trunks of outdoor plants, especially young apple trees. They do immense damage if in need of food. One way to protect the plants is to place fine meshed wire around them; heavy tar paper is also good. Rabbits will gnaw the bark of sumac if in a starving condition. It is a good plan to place traps, eradicate them, and save the plants.

Do not neglect to place bird feeding stations, for many die if not fed.

Wednesday, Dec. 23.

Water the potted amaryllis sparingly until it shows activity. The flower stalk appears before the leaves and makes a rapid growth. As growth increases give more water. A little plant food applied as the buds show color will give better blooms.

The home gardener usually is interested in the aquarium with a few fish and aquatic plants. If there are too many fish in a small bowl none will survive for long. Overfeeding is to be avoided at all times; feed once each week and just enough that the fish will consume all of it without difficulty and wait until they show signs of hunger before feeding again.

Thursday, Dec. 24.

There are many plants which should interest the home gardener in his desire to grow something a little different. Take the Dumb Cane, a dark green leaved plant with blotches of white. It grows readily without much care, but should stand in subdued light, not in direct sunlight. Old plants can be reduced in size and the stem cut up and rooted in sandy soil. It is a most accommodating sort of plant, for it will grow for a long time when placed in a tall glass container. Roots will form and all the luxuriant growth of the tropics enjoyed.

Friday, Dec. 25.

Flowering plants that are presented as gifts will require care if their period of most attractiveness is enjoyed over a maximum time. They must be kept moist, otherwise they are certain to wither. If they once lack moisture they begin to fade. Primroses and other densely fibrous rooted plants wither more rapidly than heavy, strong rooted plants. Place the plants on the floor in a cool room over night. Do not place them in a draft, but give them fresh air daily.

Saturday, Dec. 26.

Protect young evergreens with burlap or a windbreak of boards. Stake fall planted trees to prevent them from being loosened during storms. Clear snow away from evergreens and especially evergreen hedges, or the branches may be broken by the weight.

Keep the soil in window boxes planted with low evergreens moist at all times, for if the soil dries out the plants will suffer. Cut back weak, straggling branches of indoor plants like the coleus to cause stronger growth and better shaped plants.

LIST HOME SAVER PRODUCTS; GOOD SCOTCH CUSTOM

Oil Paint Penetrates, Prevents Rust.

[For further information on materials discussed in this article, please send stamped, addressed envelope to this department.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Save what you have!
It's an old Scotch custom.

To make possible such savings there are penetrating, protective products which will insure longer life and usefulness to a host of articles and equipment around our houses.

One such product, of real value at this time, is a penetrating, rust-preventive oil paint. You can use this to stop rust at its source since it seals in and around the rusted particles to form a hard, durable film and to prevent further rusting.

Paint Has Wide Coverage.

This paint comes in a light gray which closely approximates aluminum in color and light reflection, but is without metallic sheen. It also can be obtained in other colors. One can save considerably by use of this type paint since it has a coverage of 800 to 1,700 square feet per gallon, and because labor need not be expended on removal of the rust before application. Is your hardware, your fireplace equipment, etc., as well as all other metal accessories, in shape to last the duration?

There are different formulas to meet different needs. There is one for damp surfaces and one for metal that is heavily rusted. One type dries in from eight to 12 hours, one in four hours and there is one which will dry in about two minutes.

The manufacturers of this penetrating paint offer stains and coatings for concrete floors. These can be applied according to manufacturers' directions over new or old basement concrete floors. The stains and coating come in club green, tile red, chestnut brown, and machine gray. It will penetrate the concrete and only tie up the floor overnight, and will even resist a certain amount of dampness.

Covers Bleeding Stains.

Another product of interest in many homes as soon as the holiday season is over is a flat white sealing paint with interior finish coat, and yet it can be applied over stained wood to stop bleeding stains.

DOLLS FOR WAR REFUGEES GOAL OF GIRLS' CLUB

North Side School Group Earns OCD Credits.

Christmas just couldn't be Christmas to a little girl without at least one new doll according to 20 seventh and eighth grade girls on the north side.

Sacrificing one good doll from her collection each youngster is dressing the doll in an entire new wardrobe and is giving it to the British War Relief organization for an English refugee. The doll must be one of her own or a friend's, the wardrobe must be made from scraps at home, and no more than five hours may be spent on it.

Division of AYR.

Those are requirements laid down by the group which is an intermediate division of the American Youth Reserves. The five hours work on each doll will go towards each girl's 25 hours of service work which will help qualify them to be civilian defense workers.

After the completion of five service units and two training units they will be qualified to be messengers or do other duties for their block captains. They meet every second Friday afternoon in Cine hall, 2516 Devon avenue.

Jean Springer, 6227 North Rockwell street, is president of the group. Other officers are Nancy McCabe, 6513 North Washtenaw avenue, vice president, and Cynthia Gordon, 2855 Rosemont avenue, secretary. The 20 girls come from Stone, St. Margaret Mary, Clinton, St. Hilary, St. Henry, and St. Timothy schools.

Librarian Is Sponsor.

Miss Bernice Perley, children's librarian at Northtown branch library, is sponsor of the club which until October was a dramatic club, known as the Northtown Library club.

Several of the girls have completed a service unit by knitting squares from scrap yarn for blankets and scarfs. They have been instructed to bring tin cans, old nylon and silk hosiery and toys for the OCD office at their next meeting.

Collect Dolls for Refugees

Cynthia Gordon, 2855 Rosemont avenue, left, and Nancy McCabe, 6513 North Washtenaw avenue, are collecting dolls which 20 girls are dressing from scraps at home for English refugees. The club, an American Youth Reserve group, is sponsored by the Northtown branch library.

ROYAL LEAGUERS TO SPONSOR USO FETE WEDNESDAY

A crowd of 700 soldiers, sailors, and marines are expected to attend a Christmas party Wednesday evening in the U. S. O. club, 21 Green Bay road, Highland Park.

The program, arranged by Ingold Pedersen and Arthur Eichel, will include a patriotic quiz contest for the service men with winners selected by officials of the Grand Crossing council of the Royal league, sponsoring group. Lieut. William C. Ferguson, 1321 North Wells street, will be quizmaster.

Alex Trostrud of the Royal league is chairman for the evening. Other north siders assisting are Frank A. Romano, 1054 Thorndale avenue; Mrs. Nellie M. Voss, 3745 North Lakewood avenue, and Edward Korth, 4710 North Western avenue.

Nobel Parents' Night.

Nobel school parents' night will be celebrated with a Christmas program by the school children at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the school, 4127 Hirsch street.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

MISS AMELIA PETERSON, 5437 Wayne avenue, was honored last week at a reception given by the board of directors of the Chicago Fresh Air hospital. The event marked 30 years of service by Miss Peterson in the hospital. She now holds the position of superintendent of nurses.

Robert Woodcox, son of Vance C. Woodcox, 5555 Sheridan road, has been elected to the Glee club of the Peddie school in New Jersey.

EIGHT north side girls who are students at Ward Belmont college, Nashville, Tenn., are home for their Christmas vacation. They are Miss Ramona Cooke of Glencoe; Miss Harriet Goss, 5555 Sheridan road; Miss Anne Callahan, Miss Gwen Jardine, Miss Elaine Wack, and Miss Martha Richardson of Evanston; Miss Ruth Ann Cook, 509 South Wabash avenue, and Miss Mary Jane Clausen of Highland Park. The girls are due back at school Jan. 6.

About 40 friends of M. A. Dauber, 3318 Sheridan road, gathered recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Remus, 1716 Balmoral avenue, for a farewell party in his honor. Dauber, who has left for the army, was presented a camera. He formerly was manager of a grocery store at 1628 Montrose avenue.

As a member of the alumnae advisory council of New Jersey College for Women, Mrs. Norman B. Newton, 857 Buena avenue, has been given additional duties. She has been appointed counsellor for local high school students who want information about scholarships the college offers.

Miss Lucille Seemann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Seemann, 7029 Greenview avenue, was a busy student at Rockford college last week. But not with her studies only. She was a member of the "date" committee for the annual Christmas formal dance.

John Kinsey Snobble, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Snobble of Highland Park, last week was elected to Palaeopitus, senior governing council at Dartmouth college, N. H. Snobble, a member of the class of 1944, is active on the ski team, the Outing club, the Ledyard Canoe club, the Cabin and Trail club, and Green Key, junior honorary society.

Yule Greetings by V Mail

Typical of the thousands of photostated V mail Christmas cards that are pouring into Chicago from foreign ports is the one Corp. Jack Cahill sent his friend, Bob Hartman, 61 East Goethe street. His mother, who resides at 1311 Madison Park, received one, too, as well as his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Cahill, 1157 North La Salle street. Proving that Corp. Jack's spirits are in first rate order was the message to his sister-in-law—"great gobs of nauseating love!"

26 NORTH SIDERS FINISH WOMEN'S CHEMISTRY WORK

Many Already Employed in War Industries.

With the graduation of the third all-woman's class in industrial chemistry from the Illinois Institute of Technology, last week, a total of 26 north side women are prepared to fight the war with test tubes and beakers.

So urgent is the need for women in industrial chemistry, the students—most of whom are now at work in war jobs—were trained at government expense. The only cost to them was for textbooks and materials.

Three other full time war courses also are offered for women in the Illinois Institute, according to Director Paul O. Ridings. They are engineering drafting, metallurgical techniques and ordnance inspection.

The north side industrial chemistry graduates are Miss Giovanna Baumann, 1103 North Dearborn street; Miss Doris Bockius, 4607 Sheridan road; Miss Cora Gault, 4736 Magnolia avenue; Miss B. J. Hoelzer, 3605 North Bernard street; Miss Janet Koziol, 1253 North Hoyne avenue; Miss Mary Krumbach, Highland Park; Miss Gloria F. Loeffler, 1462 Balmoral avenue; Miss Louise Mellquist, 6418 North Richmond street; Mrs. Bernice Marshall, 1821 Lincoln Parkway; Mrs. Lillian Mason, 2970 Sheridan road; Mrs. W. H. Monsson, Evanston; Miss E. L. Montgomery, 5255 North Bernard street, and Miss Ruth Opdal, 3657 Whipple street.

Others are Miss Mary M. Parkes, 356 Dickens avenue; Miss Ada Rew, Evanston; Miss Sally Ripley, Niles; Miss Clara D. Rahn, 3546 North Wolcott avenue; Miss Mary Elizabeth Rogers, Fort Sheridan; Miss Helen Ryerson, 1455 West Carmen avenue; Miss Doris Smith, 421 Melrose street; Miss Pearl M. Smith, Wilmette, and Miss Anne M. Stelzer, 2759 Arthur street.

Other graduates are Mrs. Mary C. Supple, Highland Park; Miss Helen Thornton, 1705 West Jonquil terrace; Miss Elinor Tolpin, 6325 North Mozart street, and Miss Ruth Whipple, 6337 North Kenmore avenue.

FRED BOSWORTH WINS GOLD WATCH FOR 50 YEARS WITH COMPANY

Fred H. Bosworth.

Fifty years of service to one company won for Fred H. Bosworth, 1910 Ainslie street, a gold watch. It was presented to him recently by Edward G. Seubert, president of the board of directors, who is the only other 50 year veteran in the Chicago general office of Standard Oil company of Indiana.

Bosworth has been a buying specialist in the purchasing department since 1923. He started out in 1892 as a 14 year old office boy and was promoted to clerk and then purchasing agent.

Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth have three sons, all working in defense plants, and one daughter, Mrs. Harry Reasor of Downers Grove. They also have six grandchildren. The sons are Marshall of Miami, Fla., Eugene of Portland, Ore., and Lowell of Chicago. Bosworth is a charter member and former president of both the Stanolind Golfing association and the Stanolind Bowling league.

NEIGHBOR BOYS MEET AGAIN ON SOIL OF AFRICA

Two boys who once lived around the corner from one another on Chicago's north side a few weeks ago met quite unexpectedly in North Africa.

News of the meeting came last week when Mr. and Mrs. J. Ira Hartnett, 1927 Estes avenue, received a letter from their son, Ira. The friend, who had also been his schoolmate in St. Jerome's grade school, is Jack Malone, whose parents live at 1820 Greenleaf avenue.

Hartnett went to England some months ago with a medical unit. Maline, a sergeant in the quartermaster corps, also was ordered to England after a short training period. Both units ended up with the American forces in Africa.

U. OF C. DEGREES ARE AWARDED TO 11 NORTH SIDERS

One hundred ten Chicagoans were among the 225 candidates who recently received degrees at the University of Chicago's 211th convocation in Rockefeller Memorial chapel. Eleven of these were from the north side. The convocation, second of four in the university's academic year, brought the total to 642 students who have been graduated since the beginning of the summer quarter. Candidates for degrees were presented by Arthur H. Compton, Nobel prize winner and dean of the division of physical sciences.

The north side candidates for degrees were Jack Axelrood, 448 Arlington place; Richard A. Kronenberger, 3260 Lake Shore drive; Esther Emma Novick, 3852 Southport avenue; Joseph Fortnoy, 1060 Balmoral avenue; Marie W. Ullmann, 701 North Michigan avenue, and Elizabeth Jane Waters, 2109 Jarvis avenue, all bachelors of art, science, or philosophy.

Those who received master of arts or science degrees were Mrs. Shirley Jane Bill, 2716 Sunnyside avenue; Mrs. Thelma Payne Powell, 6210 North Throop street; Everett Alfred Price, Highland Park, and Calvin Parker Sawyier, 847 Chalmers place. Raymond Edgar Weston, 1856 Lincoln avenue, received the doctor of philosophy degree.

Moose Party.

The south side chapter of the Women of the Moose and the Jackson Park lodge will hold a Christmas party Tuesday evening in Moose hall, 426 West 63d street.

SALUTE LOYOLA ACADEMY TODAY ON CITIZENS HOUR

Boys' School Broadcast Over W-G-N at 1 P. M.

Loyola academy, near Devon and Loyola avenues, a Catholic school for boys, will be saluted at 1 o'clock this afternoon in W-G-N's half hour recorded program, "Citizens of Tomorrow."

The Rev. Ara F. Walker, S. J., principal, will be introduced by Philip Maxwell of the Tribune editorial staff, master of ceremonies. Father Walker, who became principal of the academy in September, 1941, will tell about the school's academic and athletic programs.

Loyola Academy Glee club will sing the school song, "Cheer for Loyola," Romberg's "Stouthearted Men," and the traditional melody "Adeste Fidelis." There are 45 boys in the chorus directed by Dr. Graciano Salvador.

Present Honor Student.

William H. Madden Jr., 7000 North Bell avenue, honor student, will talk about extracurricular activities in the school. His name consistently has appeared on the school's honor roll and he is president of the senior class, the student council, and Torch club, a loyalty organization whose purpose is to support and advertise school activities. He writes a column for the school paper, recently was appointed business manager of the yearbook, and has won major monograms in football and track.

Another honor student who will be introduced on the program will be Helen Jeanette Perry of the Benton Harbor High school, Benton Harbor, Mich. She is secretary of the Jane Addams chapter of the National Honor society and editor of the school yearbook, "The Greybric."

Jack Curry, Lambert Deegan, and Charles Gries, cheer leaders, will be presented by Maxwell who also will conduct a quiz program among six academy pupils, Robert Starrs, Harry Adamson, Byron Rouse, Maurice Owens, Carl Merschel, and Lawrence Hayes.

Recorded in School Gym.

The recording of the program was made last Wednesday afternoon in the school's gymnasium. Guests present were the Rev. Joseph. M. Egan, S. J., president of Loyola university; the Rev. Stanley C. Stoga, assistant superintendent of schools of the archdiocese of Chicago; Michael J. Long, president of the Loyola Acadamy Fathers' club, and Thomas C. Keegan, former president of the Loyola Fathers' club, and leader in Scouting and OCD youth activities in Rogers Park.

Loyola academy was founded in 1909. The enrollment has increased from 88 students to 575 students. Primarily a college preparatory school, its program of studies is based upon the Jesuit system of education. Much stress is put on languages, including English, Latin, Greek, French, and Spanish.

The academy shares with Loyola university the facilities of the Elizabeth M. Cudahy Memorial library, the new Madonna Della Strada chapel, the alumni gymnasium, stadium, practice field, and extensive grounds.

Amateurs Hold Party.

The annual children's Christmas party will highlight the Amateur hour over WENR at 5 p. m. today. Santa Claus will be on hand, along with Charles Lyon, master of ceremonies. The program will originate in the Chicago Civic Opera house.

Retired Druggist Wed 50 Years

Walter Kyle, a retired north side pharmacist, and his wife recently celebrated their golden wedding at a reception in their home, 728 West Sheridan road. Except for four years when the couple operated a drug store in Delhi, Ind., they have resided on the north side. They have one daughter, Mrs. George Simmons, 4878 Magnolia avenue, and a son, Paul of Los Angeles, Cal.

Win Silver Pilot Wings

Lieut. Hayslett.

Lieut. Naldrett.

Staff Sergt. Spencer.

Lieut. Tighe.

Four north siders graduated recently in one of the largest classes to receive silver pilot's wings from the seven schools of the army air forces gulf coast training center. Lieut. Daniel D. Hayslett, 6049 North Talman avenue, fighter pilot, was graduated from Lake Charles, La. Lieut. Richard A. Naldrett, 5200 Sheridan road, will be getting into the fight in a twin motored bomber. He was trained at Brooks field, Texas. Staff Sergt. Raymond W. Spencer, 229 East Superior street, and Lieut. Dru A. Tighe of Wilmette who graduated from Lubbock Flying school, Texas, also will be bomber flyers.

SANTA TO GIVE GIFTS TO STARS OF TOMORROW

Santa Claus will be on hand in W-G-N's main audience studio to present gifts to the participants in the "Stars of Tomorrow" program from 8 to 8:30 tonight. All of the amateur contestants will be talented youngsters under 12 years of age.

Ranging in talent from violinist to tap dancer and in age from 3½ to 12, the children will be competing for three wrist watches. All the contestants will receive War Stamp boutonnieres and will be eligible for an all-winner program in which the amateur voted best will receive a $500 War Bond on January 24, 1943.

Leading off the program will be Jean Peart, tap dancer. Le Roy Sklodowski, boy soprano, will sing as will Pat Czechanski, of Calumet City, and soprano Patricia Ellen Timm.

The violinist will be Joseph Golan, and the youngest participant, Mary Alice LaMon, who is 3, will sing and recite.

Kostelanetz Plays Carols.

Wilbur Evans, baritone, and Albert Spalding, violinist, will be guests of Andre Kostelanetz at 3:30 this afternoon over WBBM-CBS. Music includes "The First Noel," "Adeste Fidelis," "Ave Maria."

RED CROSS BLOOD UNIT WILL VISIT SKOKIE JAN. 7-9

Mrs. O'Connell Renamed Donor Chairman.

Skokie will play host to the Red Cross mobile blood donor unit for the second time Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Jan. 7, 8, and 9, according to Joseph H. King, chairman of the donor service in Chicago.

At the same time Mrs. Thomas J. O'Connell was reappointed blood donor chairman for Skokie. Residents wishing to give blood may make appointments with Mrs. O'Connell.

Plasma Reduces Deaths.

King said many more blood donors are needed if the Chicago area is to maintain its quota of 3,500 blood donations a week. Use of the dried blood plasma has reduced deaths from wounds to 1 per cent in the Solomons according to Rear Adm. Ross T. McIntire. The normal expectancy in war is 5 per cent.

The appointment of Mrs. George L. Macha, 7301 Sheridan road, as Red Cross home nursing chairman for the Rogers Park-Clark street community was announced at Red Cross headquarters. Mrs. Macha will organize home nursing classes in her community in coöperation with the OCD.

Supervise First Aid.

Dr. Ona Mae Rose, 1553 North Clark street, will act as Red Cross first aid chairman for the near north side community. She will supervise first aid instruction and assign instructors when requested by the office of civilian defense workers.

BECKER MOVES SPORT SHOW TO 3 P. M. SUNDAYS

Bob Becker will interview Mrs. Dorothy Eagles, director and founder of the North Side Animal Shelter, on his "Sportsmen's Spotlight" program at 3 p. m. today on W-G-N. The program, formerly heard on Tuesdays, will now be a regular Sunday feature.

Mrs. Eagles will tell of her organization and its job of placing homeless dogs in homes. Many of the dogs at the shelter will be Christmas gifts this year. Mrs. Eagles will explain. She also will tell how many service men are taking their dogs to her before they go into the army or navy and asking her to find homes for the animals.

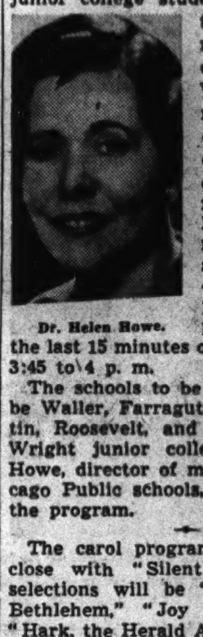
FIVE HUNDRED SINGERS FROM SEVEN SCHOOLS TO JOIN W-G-N CAROLS



Dr. Helen Howe.

Five hundred high school and junior college students will join in their seventh annual carol sing on W-G-N next Wednesday afternoon. The carolers will be guests during the broadcast of the Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry, regularly presented from 3 to 4 p. m. The carol program will be presented during the last 15 minutes of the hour—from 3:45 to 4 p. m.

The schools to be represented will be Waller, Farragut, Steinmetz, Austin, Roosevelt, and Lake View and Wright junior colleges. Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago Public schools, is in charge of the program.

The carol program will open and close with "Silent Night." Other selections will be "Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Dr. Howe will be interviewed by Jack Brickhouse on "What High School Students Like to Sing at Christmas Time."

The choral directors are: Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, Waller; Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson, Farragut; Willard L. Groom, Steinmetz; Erhardt Bergstrasser, Wright Junior college; Hazel Lloyd, Austin; John Hamilton, Roosevelt, and Naomi Sweet, Lake View.

'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' MOVES TO MONDAY PERIOD

"Mightier than the Sword," W-G-N program revealing the importance of a free press in helping the allied nations to win the war, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. Mondays.

A dramatic parallel between the Battle of Russia in 1812, when Napoleon was storming Moscow, and the Battle of Russia in 1942, when Hitler was attempting the same thing, will be told by Stanley Johnston, noted war correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Robert Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra provide the musical setting for this program which is produced by Jack LaFrandre. A cast of outstanding actors is employed and Marvin Mueller is the announcer.

Helen Hayes to Appear on Radio Reader's Digest

Helen Hayes will appear in a dramatization of "Fred Harvey Girls" on the Radio's Reader's Digest at 8 o'clock tonight over WBBM-CBS. Conrad Nagel will act as narrator on the program, with Lynn Murray directing the music.

Quiz Kids Await Santa

Ruthie Duskin, 8, and Joel Kupperman, 6, the youngest Quiz Kids, and Joe Kelly, chief quizzer, hang up their socks. The Quiz Kids are heard over WENR-Blue at 6:30 p. m. Sundays.

CAROLS TO RING OUT OVER W-G-N EVERY EVENING

Amplifiers to Waft Music Into Streets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Once again carols and other holiday music will ring out from W-G-N the week before Christmas. Beginning tomorrow a half hour of choral music will be broadcast over W-G-N for radio listeners, and amplifiers hung high over Nathan Hale court will send the joyful music pealing out over the city so that homeward bound shoppers and office workers may hear it, too.

This will be the 11th consecutive year for the observance of this custom. W-G-N will broadcast the music from 5:30 to 6 p. m. and the entire Mutual Broadcasting system will carry the music for the final 15 minutes.

Five Groups Will Sing.

Five outstanding choral groups from the metropolitan area will be heard on these song sessions which will be presented to organ accompaniment by Len Salvo. On the first program tomorrow St. Mary's High School Glee club, under the direction of Sister M. Matilde, B. V. M., will be heard.

On Tuesday the Edgewater Evangelical Mission Covenant church's mixed choir will give the program. The Kenwood School chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Waser, will be heard Wednesday.

Christmas Eve Program.

The Christmas eve program will be presented by the adult choir of the Monumental Baptist church under the direction of Forestine Neal Bostick.

On Christmas day the Holy Trinity Russian Cathedral choir will be heard. All of the programs will be presented from W-G-N's organ studio which is particularly suitable acoustically for this type of music.

'THREE STRIKES, YOU'RE OUT' ON N. U.'S PLAY SHOP

June Otley.

The Northwestern university Play Shop will broadcast "Three Strikes—You're Out," a story about a young piano tuner with ambitions at 2:30 p. m. today over WJJD. June Otley, 1118 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, is in charge of the production. She is a senior in the school of speech. Miss Otley was chosen "Queen" of the Syllabus, Northwestern's yearbook last year. Leading rôles in the play will be taken by Betty Ranstead and Paul Liggett.

FIRESIDE PARTY TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N TODAY

A new half hour Sunday afternoon show featuring music by Louise Massey and the Westerners and drama by Chicago radio actors and actresses will be introduced over W-G-N under the sponsorship of the Loyal Order of the Moose today.

The program to be called the "Moose Fireside Party," will be broadcast from 5:30 to 6 p. m.

The dramatic cast for the first show will include Art Kohl, Dick Holland, Norma Jean Ross, and Alma Platts.

Originally, the Westerners were known as the Massey Family. There was "Dad" Massey, Louise, Curt, and Allen, and Louise's husband.

Metropolitan Auditions to Present an Operatic Duo

Metropolitan Opera Auditions will present a soprano and a tenor at 6 p. m. today over WENR and the Blue network. The soprano, Virginia Card, will sing "Una Voce Poco Fa" and the tenor will offer "La Donna E Mobile."

'AMERICA LOVES MELODY' NEXT ON THEATER OF AIR

Prize Operetta Will Be Aired Saturday.

"America Loves a Melody," the prize winning operetta in W-G-N's $10,500 Great American Operetta Quest of last season will be presented on W-G-N and Mutual's Theater of the Air from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire, prima donna of the operetta series, and Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will sing the leading rôles.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, will be the speaker of the evening.

This operetta, written by Ross Hastings, young Los Angeles composer, was selected as the best of 2,232 entries received from 46 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the competition. "America Loves a Melody" has already been performed twice on the Theater of the Air. As "Operetta No. 3" it was presented Last March 28, when the public was asked to vote for the best of three operettas that had been selected by an advisory board of distinguished musicians.

The public cast the greatest number of votes for the Hastings' operetta, and it was presented as the grand prize winner on April 11 at the Civic Opera house, with Miss Claire and Allan Jones in the starring rôles.

Hastings was awarded $6,000 for writing the best operetta, while the remaining $4,500 was divided among other contestants and members of the listening audience who wrote the best letters telling which operetta they liked best.

Next Saturday's production will be under the direction of Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production. Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under direction of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Mitropoulos to Conduct New York Philharmonic

The New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra will be under the direction of Dimitri Mitropoulos at 2 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. The conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony will present Krenek's "Variations on a South Carolina Folk Song," the B minor Prelude and Fugue by Bach, and the "Symphonic Dances" by Rachmaninoff.

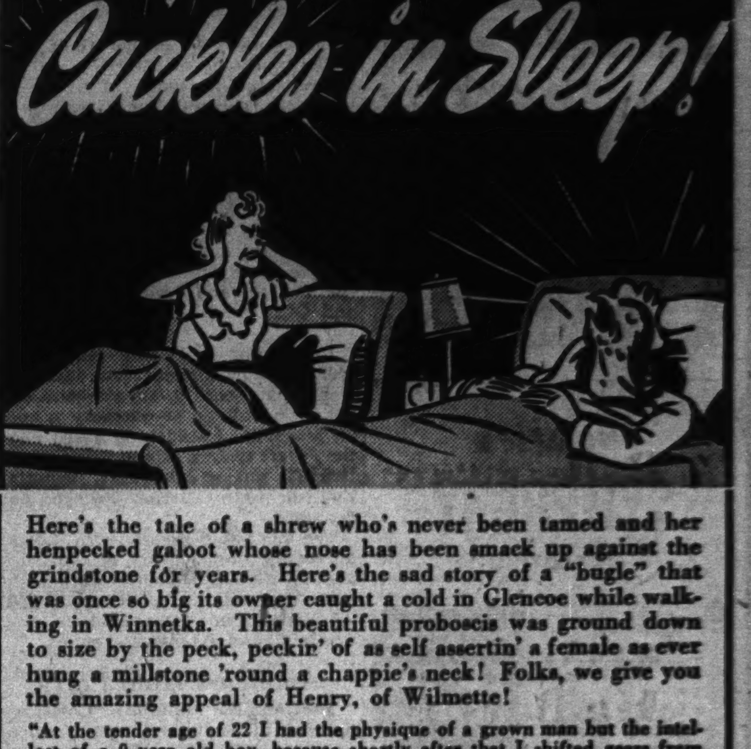
SUNDAY W-G-N 12:30 P. M.

Henpecked Man Cackles in Sleep!



Here's the tale of a shrew who's never been tamed and her henpecked galoot whose nose has been smack up against the grindstone for years. Here's the sad story of a "bugle" that was once so big its owner caught a cold in Glencoe while walking in Winnetka. This beautiful proboscis was ground down to size by the peck, peckin' of as self assertin' a female as ever hung a millstone 'round a chappie's neck! Folks, we give you the amazing appeal of Henry, of Wilmette!

"At the tender age of 22 I had the physique of a grown man but the intellect of a 9 year old boy, because shortly after that I shifted gears from celibacy into matrimony. The first month our honeymoon was smick-smack; the 2nd month hither & thither; the third was thwick thwack; the 4th, The Devil take the fates that brought us together. I was a man then, but now after twenty years I'm just a henpecked mouse! I started this state of connubial bliss with a joint checking account, but all I've ever done is put the money in. She's taken it out! It's HENRY, where've you been? It's HENRY, why have you been? It's HENRY, what have you done? It's Henry, Henry, Henry, until I'm so henpecked I cackle in my sleep! How do I know I cackle? Well, every morning 'bout two a shrill voice yells in my slumbering ear, "HENRY! WILL YOU STOP THAT CACKLING?" But I just turn my head and keep right on cackling, and what's more I wanna keep on cackling 'cause it's the only way I have of gettin' back at my wife without having my head bashed in with a belaying-pin (she's from a seafaring family). So I'm appealing to you not to publish any cure for snoring, because my wife may use it on me, and then what fun would I have during my last few miserable years!"

Here's a pretty kettle o' fish. But while we stew in it have you tried Skokie's Gorgeous Sun-Glo yet?

DOLLAR A YEAR NEGRO BOOMS SALE OF BONDS

Maj. C. Udell Turpin Is World War Vet.

Proud of his claim of being the first Negro "dollar a year" man in the federal government, Maj. C. Udell Turpin is prouder still of having sold more than $800,000 in bonds and stamps. As director of the Negro division of the Illinois war savings staff of the treasury department, he has sold this much to the Negroes of Chicago by direct sale, bond rallies, corporation purchases, and the establishment of pay roll savings plans.

Maj. Turpin.

Tho responsible for the sale of bonds and war stamps to all of Illinois' 387,446 Negro citizens, most of his preliminary efforts have been limited to those who live within the district bounded by streets 2600 north and 6700 south, 200 east and 200 west. How much he has sold indirectly thru booth sales at stores, motion picture houses, and public buildings he finds difficult to estimate.

$100 a Plate Dinner.

Rallies, organized by him with the assistance of south side business leaders, have been conspicuously successful. Several months ago, when James Cagney appeared on behalf of the war bond drive, in a meeting at 47th street and South Park way more than $43,000 in bonds were sold. At an Armistice day $100 war bond a plate dinner at the Du Sable hotel, 764 East Oakwood boulevard, 125 guests bought almost $75,000 in bonds.

Encouraged by the sales at these rallies, Maj. Turpin is now organizing another $100 a plate dinner. It is to be held at the Park Way ballroom, 45th street and South Park way, the night of Jan. 22. Six hundred to [illegible] and the quota for bond sales during the evening is $1,000,000.

Served in World War I.

Maj. Turpin was born in St. Louis, Mo. He attended public school and high school there, graduating from Sumner school in 1914. He was a student at the University of Illinois until January, 1918, when he volunteered for military service. Completing officer candidate school at Camp Grant first in a class of 300, he left for France in June of that year; was made a second lieutenant and regimental intelligence officer of the 365th infantry in the following August. He served in the Metz and Argonne sectors before the armistice and was discharged in the fall of 1919.

Returning to civilian life, he entered Columbia university in 1919; graduated with the B. S. degree in 1920, and the M. S. degree in 1921. Since then he has been, at various times, engaged in insurance, banking, and real estate.

Took Law Degree.

Only in 1931 did he leave private business long enough to return to study. Then he undertook the law course at Northwestern university, from which he was graduated as doctor of jurisprudence in 1933. Since that time and until he accepted last June the position he now holds, he was assocated in an administrative capacity with the Illinois National Guard, rising from lieutenant to major.

A member of the board of directors of the Chicago Urban League, the Wabash branch of the Young Men's Christian association, and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Turpin lives at 420 East 45th place with his wife, Mrs. Swersie M. Turpin, and two children, Swersie J., 16, and C. Udell Jr., 17.

COUNTRY CLUB'S WOMEN BOWLERS AID SERVICE MEN

(Picture on page 4.)

Members of the South Shore Country club women's bowling league—130 strong—recently completed six weeks of personal contributions of food for Christmas to the service men's center, 176 West Washington street. Contributions totaled 98 cakes, plus doughnuts and cookies, The idea of Christmas boxes was originated by the Chicago Women's Bowling association service men's wheel, of which the South Shore group is a "spoke." In addition to the food, boxes contained 209 bars of soap, 835 razor blades, 116 tooth brushes, 86 cans of talcum powder, and 346 packages of cigarets. Members of the group also have contributed $191.50 to the purchase of a bomber, sponsored by National Women's Bowling league. Women bowlers over the nation are contributing to this fund.

Children's Theater at Ross School to Give Yule Play

Members of the Ross Children's theater of the Betsy Ross school will present "In Quest of Santa Claus" at 2 o'clock tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday in the school gymnasium. The play portrays the triumph of good over evil. It is directed by Mrs. Brunetta Mouzon.

Sub Chaser's Chore a Thrill to Eager Crew

Hitting hard and fast, navy sub chasers are helping to lessen the Atlantic's undersea peril, according to Raymond J. Toner of Michigan City, Ind., who is commanding officer of one of the patrol convoy ships in the Caribbean sea.

"Our ship has more than justified the cost of her building and that of many of her sisters in the accomplishment of tasks for which she was designed," he reported in a letter to a friend. "To date [the number is censored] depth charges have rolled from her racks."

Lieut. Toner is the author of two juvenile books based on the war of 1812, "Midshipman Davy Jones," and "Meeheevee."

Tells of Typical Chase.

In his letters he describes the typical chase of a submarine—"There's a strange excitement and eagerness that instantly prevails either in broad daylight or in the dead of night when the screeching howl of the general alarm sounds. There's a hurry of orderly confusion, the quick sounding of buzzers, and the sound in the dark of disembodied voices as all stations report their readiness.

"After the tactical problem of the approach is completed and the charges are dropped, every one listens intently for the detonation of the first charge. When they begin to detonate, one is impressed again by the tremendous power of the explosion.

Blow Raises Morale.

"It feels as if a huge fist suddenly smashed against the bottom of the ship. The morale of the men goes zooming up and trigger fingers begin to itch.

"When one has seen ships go up in roaring flames that tower hundreds of feet into the sky and light up the night, it at last begins to feel that a few runs are coming in for our side when those tons of TNT begin to rip the ocean apart."

After he had completed the course for sub chaser commanders, he was flown to his first command and immediately sailed. "It was something—I imagine—like meeting a girl, then leaving on a honeymoon with her an hour and a half later.

Sleep in Peace.

"The men have learned to sleep anywhere at any time. I have seen them sleeping peacefully on a vibrating deck, with thousands of horse power throbbing beneath them and needlelike spray whipping past."

During his tours of duty Lieut. Toner reports that he has seen the following Michigan City men: Lieut. Alfred Kahl, Lieut. Col. Norman Riebe, John Erickson and Bill Angrick, who are on Col. Riebe's engineering staff.

Gifts for Yanks.

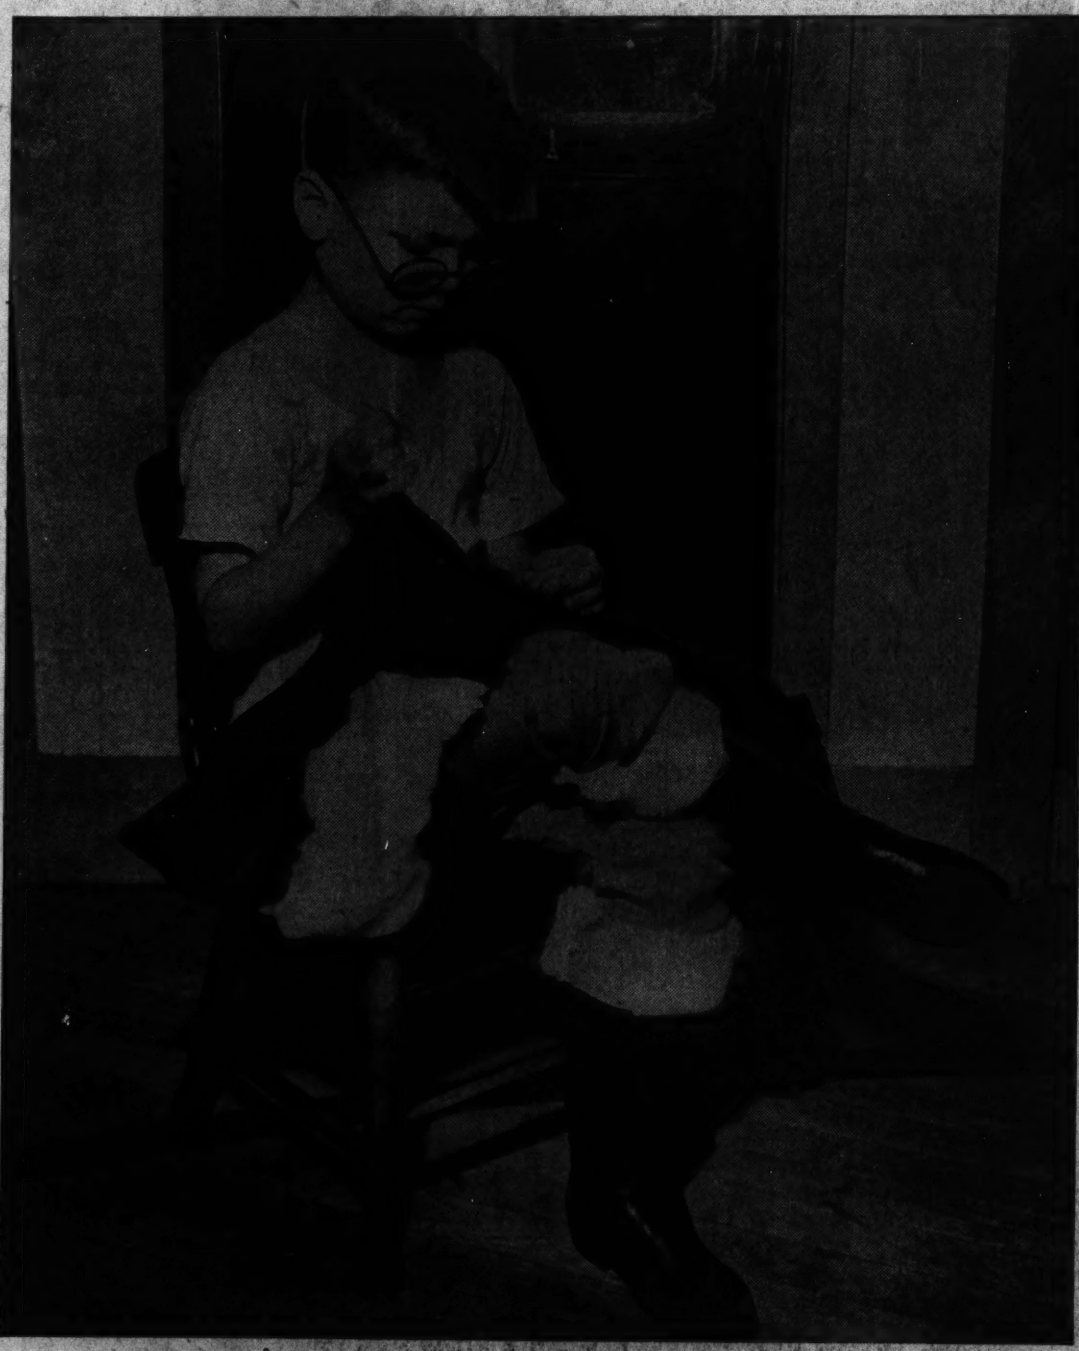
Employés and students in East Chicago, Ind., public and parochial schools have filled 650 stockings with gifts which will be sent to men in military service.

Children of Many Races Join to Greet Christmas in School Pageants



Needle and thread in hand, little John Reithmaier, 5, of 7558 Calumet avenue, fixes his suit preparatory to portraying Santa Claus in the Ruggles school play, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas," to be presented Tuesday. Santa's toy shop is scheduled to come to life in the play.

Ray school, where children of 13 nationalities are pupils, will present "Children of All Nations" as its holiday program. Contance Ann Fey, 6, of 5738 Kenwood avenue, as the Red Cross nurse, right, introduces Santa Claus, in the person of Nickolas de Zavadow, 6, of 5749 Kenwood avenue, to Estrella Ravella, 6, of 5537 Maryland avenue, and Rudolph Rivera, 6, of 5648 Harper avenue, both Filipino children, and Stanley Kan, 6, of 5538 Blackstone avenue, and Jane Lee, 6, of 1205 East 55th street, Chinese children. All are in the first grade and will take part in the program Tuesday.

Dolores Dunn, 9, of 5508 Kenwood avenue, a fourth grade pupil at the Ray school, puts finishing touches on her painting of the Nativity which will be used to decorate her classroom during the holiday season.

[Board of Education Photos.]

There's no malice in these snowballs. The snowball makers, Jay Mitchell, 7339 Indiana avenue, and Sonia Jacobson, 7920 Prairie avenue, will portray skating dolls in the Ruggles school program, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas."

Two 5 year olds are prepared to bring fun and laughter to Ray school pupils when they portray doll clowns in the school program, "Dolls of All Nations." They are: Joanne Abraham, 5, of 5730 Maryland avenue, left, and Janice Arden, 5, of 5400 Kimbark avenue.

Toy soldiers come to life in the persons, left to right, of Charles Armstrong, 609 East 76th street; Richard DeKoning, 8030 Calumet avenue; Bobby Lee, 7720 Langley avenue; Eugene Weil, 7541 Vernon avenue, and Ronald Larsen, 7830 Vernon avenue. These youngsters, all 5 years old and in kindergarten, will take part in the Ruggles school program, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas."

Marks Nathan Aids Plan Party to End Fund Drive

Members of the Esther Clamage auxiliary of the Marks Nathan Orphan home will end its annual fund raising activities with a victory party this evening at the Hamilton hotel. The program will include an amateur show staged by the members.

Slovak Federation Bond Drive May Total $150,000

During the last week of its war bond drive, the Slovak Federation of American Defense in Whiting and Robertsdale, originally keyed to reach $100,000, has exceeded its goal by $10,000 to date and "is on its way to greater heights," according to John D. Durick, chairman of the bond drive committee. Final pledges will make the grand total of the drive $150,000, he predicted.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

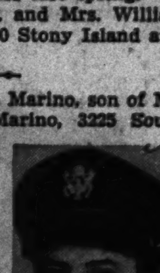
William J. De Witt, former holder of the Col. Robert R. McCormick scholarship at the Citadel, Charleston, S. C., recently was promoted to 1st lieutenant at Edgewood arsenal, Maryland, where he is stationed as an instructor in the chemical warfare service. A graduate of Bowen High school, he held the scholarship for four years and was graduated 2d in his class last spring. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. De Witt of 8500 Stony Island avenue.

Lieut. DeWitt.

Lieut. Joseph D. Marino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Marino, 3225 South Wells street, recently was assigned to the medical department at Enid, Okla., army flying field. A graduate of Loyola university medical school, he also studied at Crane Junior college. While in college he participated in baseball, basketball, and swimming. Before coming to Enid flying field, he was stationed at Robins field, Georgia. He was commissioned Sept. 17.



Lieut. Marino.

Arthur W. Ainsworth, 6822 Michigan avenue, has been appointed warrant officer, junior grade, at Seymour Johnson field, North Carolina, a branch of the army air forces technical training command. He entered

MIDNIGHT RITES THURSDAY WILL BE HIGH POINT

South Side Industry to Hum as Usual.

Ushered in with traditional music and ritual, south side churches today will begin their Christmas services before anticipated large congregations. Services will be held thruout the week, coming to a climax Christmas day. School children will begin presenting seasonal programs tomorrow, preparatory to the holiday which begins Wednesday. South side industry, as has been the case since the war began, will observe a policy of "business as usual" over the holidays.

High point of many of the church Christmas programs will be midnight services Christmas eve. Most Catholic churches will have midnight masses. Christmas masses will be celebrated Christmas morning.

Members of the choir of First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue, will sing "Christ Is Born" at 8 o'clock this evening. This will be accompanied by a pageant, presented by the young people of the church, depicting the Christmas story. The choir will be under the direction of I. W. Prosser, organist and director of music of the church. The pageant is directed by Jeanne Wilhelms, president of the Young People's council.

Dr. Harold Leonard Bowman, pastor, will preach on "A Christmas That Hath Foundations" at the morning service.

Organist Writes Anthems.

At 11:15 o'clock Christmas eve the candlelight service will be held, a service of Christmas poetry and music. The church choir will sing. Mr. Prosser, the organist, has written two carol anthems especially for this Christmas season. Dr. Bowman will speak on "Let Us Realize Christmas."

Christmas services of the Kenwood Community church will be held today. There will be special music at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the "Christmas Carol Vesper Service." Carols will be selected from various countries. Participants will include: Olive June Lacey, Ethel Jones, William Miller, and Reinhold Schmidt and the junior and treble clef choirs of 50 voices. The Rev. Alfred Lee Wilson is pastor.

The annual "white gifts service" of the Park Manor Congregational church will be held at morning worship service. Members of the congregation will take gifts of food wrapped in white to the church. Later in the week they will be distributed by women's organizations of the church to needy families in the neighborhood.

The annual Christmas party will be combined with the monthly family night program Wednesday. At 7:30 o'clock Christmas morning holy communion will be celebrated. Members of the church will sing Christmas carols Christmas eve, both at home and in the street.

Chatham Fields Services.

A children's service will be held at 7:30 o'clock Christmas eve at the Chatham Fields Lutheran church with a program given by the children. At 11:30 will be the "midnight adoration service." Services will be held at 10:45 o'clock Christmas day. The Rev. Laurance A. Boseck is pastor.

Dr. E. Myers Harrison, pastor of Woodlawn Baptist church, will speak on "Shall We Keep Christmas?" at the morning service of the church today. There will be special music. At 7:45 o'clock all choirs of the church, directed by George Ellers, will present "The Messiah."

Two services will be held today at the Hyde Park Methodist church. At 11 o'clock there will be special music and a sermon by the pastor, the Rev. J. Richard Drees, on "The Spirit of a Little Child." There also will be infant baptism and reception of new members. At 8 o'clock this evening church choirs will present a Christmas carol service.

Children to Give Play.

The Christmas program at St. Paul's Episcopal church will begin at 3:30 o'clock Thursday with a children's service, which will include a play by Miss Rita Benton. The midnight service will start at 10:45 o'clock with a program of traditional carols. Communion will be at 11:15 o'clock. Holy communion also will be at 10 o'clock Christmas day. The Rev. F. C. Benson Belliss is pastor.

Carols will be sung at 11 o'clock Christmas eve at the Episcopal Church of Messiah. Midnight mass will be said at 11:30 o'clock with sermon by the Rev. Richard D. Taylor. Two services will be held Christmas day at 8 o'clock and 10 o'clock.

Special Christmas music will be sung at the morning service of Hyde Park Baptist church this morning. A pageant, depicting the message of a shepherd who returns to the ancient and the modern Bethlehem after the night of Nativity, will be presented at 4:30 o'clock today. The Christmas eve midnight service of candlelight and music, scripture readings, and prayer, will begin at 11 o'clock.

White Gift Observance.

Three services will be held today at the United Church of Hyde Park. The annual "white gift Christmas"

19,000 NEGROES HELPED ON WAY BY BIG BROTHERS

Organization Cites Big Cut in Court Cases.

More than 19,000 Negro boys—in trouble with "the law" or victims of broken homes—have turned in the last 17 years to "big brothers" who have helped them find ways to be better citizens. Sponsor of the work is the Colored Big Brothers, 4564 Indiana avenue. Activities of this organization have brought about a 52 per cent decrease in court appearance of Negro boys in the five year period ending in 1941.

Pioneers in the field of preventing juvenile delinquency in the Negro communities, the big brothers were the first to establish vacant lot playgrounds. These playgrounds, 36 in all, serve 3,000 boys a year. Another important first of the organization was providing supervision for Negro boys in Boys court. They also were the first in their community to provide juvenile delinquency prevention education, and they also were the first to provide a supervised home for boys.

Owned 17 Barber Shops.

Direction of the work of the organization rests with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Bryan, who founded the Colored Big Brothers. Born in Georgia the son of a Baptist minister, Mr. Bryan later went to Alabama where he owned a string of 17 hotel barber shops catering to white trade.

Later he came to the north as a manufacturer. He invented several scrubbing brushes for which he now holds patents. Until priorities made his work impractical he operated a manufacturing business in Milwaukee. Mrs. Bryan, also born in the south, is a graduate of the University of Minnesota school of social sciences.

Court work of the organization is done by Mr. Bryan who appears each morning in Boys court on behalf of Negro boys in distress. In many cases the judge turns them over to the big brothers for correction and supervision.

600 Volunteers.

In order to prevent juvenile delinquency the organization was set up a "delinquency prevention institute" at which representatives from the various colored neighborhoods discuss delinquency problems of their areas. Organization is based upon volunteer workers, of which there are more than 600. More than 53 colored communities are represented by 166 leaders. Effectiveness of this system is emphasized when Mrs. Bryan reports that there has not been a Negro boy in court from these 53 localities during the 14 months ending in September.

Mrs. Bryan explained that most of the boys helped by the institute come from broken homes. Headquarters of the organization, in addition to being a recreation center and meeting place, serves as living quarters for many who have encountered difficult times.

Not All Law Breakers.

Not all whom the big brothers help are at odds with the law. Many who are broke and out of work come to the center. Mrs. Bryan greets them and feeds them.

"They talk better after a meal," she explained. "They feel better. The cause of their difficulty is discussed." Mrs. Bryan has a test of their sincerity.

"I send them for a walk about the block," she explained, "if they come back, they are given clean clothes and a place to stay until they get on their feet." After she determines what work they can do, she sends them where they may obtain work. Usually in two weeks they are earning their own living. About 60 boys a month stay at the guest house, as it is now called.

Has $1,800 in Bank.

Mrs. Bryan tells of the boy whom they referred to a trucking job. Now, she added, he has a bank account of $1,800 and two trucks operating. She cited the example of another for whom they obtained a job and who now owns a fish market.

The organization has just launched a $30,000 funds campaign, most of which officials hope to raise from memberships. With this money, enlargement of the headquarters is planned. The Colored Big Brothers were founded 17 years ago when church leaders invited Mr. and Mrs. Bryan to do juvenile delinquency prevention work. More than 200 churches now sponsor the organization.

Big Brothers Launch $30,000 Drive

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davis Bryan are founders of the Colored Big Brothers organization which gives assistance to Negro boys. Mr. Bryan is the Negro representative in Boys' court.

Volunteers with the Colored Big Brothers recently launched a drive for $30,000 to improve facilities at headquarters, 4564 Indiana avenue. Seated are, left to right, Dr. T. C. Henderson, Lake street area counsellor of the organization; the Rev. B. H. Hawkins, president of the Baptist Ministers conference of Chicago and vicinity; Maj. A. E. Patterson, president of the group; the Rev. T. E. Brown, first vice president, and the Rev. S. A. Grayson of St. Luke's Baptist church; standing, Dr. Leroy M. Williams, Mrs. Sarah Williams, the Rev. D. Z. Jackson, Liberty Baptist church; George W. Lawrence of the state department of labor; Mrs. R. M. Turner, and George E. Wallace, boys' counsellor at the center. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

WABASH YMCA ENROLLS 1,400 IN MEMBER DRIVE

Near End of $35,000 Remodeling Project.

With the completion of a recent campaign—during which 1,400 members were enrolled—the Wabash Y. M. C. A. obtained the leadership of all Negro Y. M. C. A.s in the nation. At the same time they are completing a $35,000 program of remodeling of their entire plant at 3763 Wabash avenue.

Much of the credit for the increase in membership was given by officials to the Century club, a group of 176 men whose objective is to improve the Y. M. C. A. When the membership campaign began there were 2,800 members; now there are approximately 4,200. New figures put them several hundred ahead of the Negro Y. M. C. A. in St. Louis, former membership leader. The success of the drive gave them the president's award, given for the greatest production in the city-wide Y. M. C. A. member drive.

Remodeling Is Under Way.

Remodeling of the center's headquarters began last March. Officials hope to complete the work in February. This program includes modernization of the cafeteria; installation of new showers and wash rooms on the second and third floors of the dormitory section; working over the gymnasium; remodeling the heating system, and placing new beds and other equipment in the dormitory. At present they are completing work on the shower rooms of the athletic plant.

Officials believe that with the leadership in membership and with the improvements on their building they now rank among the top 10 Y. M. C. A.s in the nation.

List Future Goals.

Goals for the near future, outlined by O. O. Morris, executive secretary, include an annex to the present building; raising $15,000 in a subscription campaign; continuing the rebuilding of Camp Arthur, maintained by the center, to accommodate a minimum of 200 campers a week; to make a study with existing agencies of crime and delinquency in relation to the war situation, and to continue a program of technical training for Negro boys and men. In regard to this last goal, more than $4,000 was spent on training this year. General completion of all goals, with emphasis on the annex, is for 1944—centennial of the national Y. M. C. A.

SURVEY REVEALS BACTERIA DANGER IN WATER SUPPLY

Official Urges 79th Street Plant Completion.

The United States public health service has reported that water coming from the Dunne crib in the lake off 68th street contains a large percentage of bacteria which is neutralized only when good fortune smiles upon the city's antiquated chlorinating system.

Tests conducted by the United States public health service in conjunction with the Northwestern university department of bacteriology and the Chicago board of health between March 18 and Aug. 28 of this year revealed that 27.6 per cent of the Dunne crib raw water samples had a coliform [bacteria] content of 500 or more per 100 cubic centimeters.

Coliform Count High.

"A content of more than 50 coliforms per 100 cubic centimeters means that chlorination may not always kill all the bacteria in the water," said John R. Baylis, engineer for the water purification division of the public works department. "With good luck such water is germ free upon chlorination."

Bayliss said the tests were taken after the public health service had been requested by the city to verify its claim of urgent necessity for completion of the filtration plant at 79th street and the lake.

The government bureau, Baylis declared, decided to make its own tests in coördination with the university and the board of health. Two members of the stream pollution investigations service were sent here. During the tests 484 routine samples of raw water were subjected to approximately 8,000 bacteriological examinations and 48 lake survey samples were studied. At the same time, the Chicago board of health collected 342 samples for examination by their routine procedure.

Calumet Plants Increase Need.

The findings of the survey substantiated the previous work and findings of the Chicago board of health, Baylis reported.

"Now, more than ever," he said, "Chicago needs an operating filtration plant. The sudden expansion of manufacturing in the Calumet area, which is due to the national emergency, makes our water purification problem even greater. The completion of the filtration plant should not be delayed."

Baylis said the plant, which is 55 per cent complete now, would require a year of work to be ready for operation.

2D DISTRICT CLUB WOMEN TO PLAN MORE WAR WORK

Confer Tomorrow with the State Committee.

Members of the war service committee of the 2d District Federation Women's Clubs will meet with members of the state federation war service committee at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow at federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street. Following the general meeting members of the 2d district will discuss the war work of their respective clubs.

Mrs. Ivan Henderson is chairman of the 2d district group. She reports that members of 2d district clubs have sold $135,000 worth of war bonds and $5,000 worth of stamps. Sales are still in progress, she added.

One of the principal projects of the clubs is work with the Bundles for America organization. At present they are preparing Christmas stockings which will be distributed to service men. They also have provided Christmas cards for service men and do work at the service men's center at 1249 South Wabash avenue. In addition, in coöperation with the YWCA, they have made lists of available living quarters for relatives of service men who come to the city.

Woodlawn Study Club.

The Christmas meeting of the Woodlawn Study club will begin at 11 o'clock tomorrow at the Plaisance hotel, at which time Mrs. J. K. Piety will give a history of American carols. In the afternoon children will give a Christmas playlet. Members of the club will hold their annual shower for the Sarah Hackett Stevenson home at the same time.

Park Manor Junior Club.

The annual Christmas tea and membership party of members of the Park Manor Junior Women's club will be given this afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. J. Miller, 9149 Oakley avenue. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. B. A. Dixner, Mrs. J. P. Sundeen, Mrs. W. G. Wheeland, Mrs. C. A. Cheevers, and Mrs. D. J. Lynch.

The club has contributed to the Christmas fund for the Park Ridge School for Girls and has filled 36 stockings for service men to be distributed thru the Bundles for America organization.

Chesterfield Junior Club.

A Christmas party for their children will be given by members of the Chesterfield Junior club from 3 to 5 o'clock today at the home of Miss Arlene Sablotny, 710 East 89th place, club vice president.

GRIESHABER NEW HEAD OF SOUTH SIDE FORESTERS

George Grieshaber, 6115 South Justine street, was elected president of the South Side Associated Courts of the Catholic Order of Foresters at a meeting of delegates representing the 6,000 south side members in the parish hall of Sacred Heart church, 70th and May streets. Joseph B. Rosner, 1405 West 72d street, is the retiring head of the organization.

The new president will be assisted by an executive board which includes Frank Bishop, 5539 South Hamilton avenue, vice president; James McNamara, 1505 East 65th place, secretary; Edward Moran, 612 West 47th place, Joseph Weidlich, 1525 West 71st street, and John Piecki, 5530 South Paulina street, trustees.

James J. Doody, 9153 South Ada street, a trustee of the high court of the order, announced plans for the celebration of the organization's 60th anniversary. From Jan. 1, 1943, to May 17, the anniversary date, merit awards will be given to courts and members for their work in connection with soldiers and sailors relief, war bonds, and assistance to Foresters in the armed services.

Wins Class Numerals.

Miss Nita Coffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Coffman, 5206 University avenue, recently was awarded her class numerals at Rockford college for earning 100 points as a member of the hockey team. She is a freshman.

Feted on Golden Day

MR. AND MRS. JAMES PETRU.

A golden anniversary party was planned recently by friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Petru, former west side residents now residing in Union Pier, Mich. Among the 250 guests present were one son, two daughters, four grandchildren, and one great-grandchild. Another great-grandchild was too young to attend. Until his retirement 17 years ago, Mr. Petru was in the grocery business on the west side. A son, James, and one daughter, Mrs. John C. Seidel, reside in Berwyn. Another daughter, Mrs. E. N. Granquist, makes her home in Hinsdale.

3 NEIGHBORHOODS PLAN CENTER FOR NAVAL TRAINEES

Quarters Near 87th, Anthony Open Soon.

Three south side communities have combined efforts to have a service men's center in operation by Christmas day. The center will be located near the naval training station, 87th street and Anthony avenue, and the personnel there is expected to form the principal clientele. Last week representatives of community organizations named Richard Vail, South Chicago manufacturer, to head a permanent committee for operation of the center.

Vail heads a committee of 30 representatives of church and civic organizations from the communities of South Chicago, Avalon park, and south shore. Study of the possibility of establishing a center has been in progress since October when community organizations named an investigating committee of nine, headed by Bert Boerner of the South Chicago community center.

Fund Campaign Launched.

Members of the committee immediately launched a campaign to raise from $7,000 to $10,000 to finance the center. Negotiations are in progress for the headquarters of the center and officials believe it will be in operation by Christmas.

The center will be operated by the communities, independent of any other organization at first, but spokesmen said in the future it might become affiliated with the USO.

Recreation Rooms.

Facilities will include recreation rooms where men from all services in the area may meet. The center will act as a clearing house for those who wish to entertain service men and as a distributing point of information concerning living quarters for relatives of service men in Chicago on visits.

At the meeting at which the operating committee was named the glee club of the naval training school presented a program. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the station, which is in the Chicago Vocational school building.

Holiday Bride

Some time during the Christmas holidays, Miss Helen Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Peterson of 1745 East 83d place, will become the bride of Ensign K. D. Swander, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. D. Swander of Muncie, Ind. Miss Peterson was graduated from Morgan Park Junior college and her fiance received his degree from Purdue university.

SIX SOUTH SIDE RESIDENTS GIVEN RED CROSS DUTY

Appointment of six south side residents as Red Cross chairmen in south side communities has been announced at the central office of the organization. They will be in charge of organizing classes in their respective areas. Three accident prevention chairmen were named. They are: Miss Dorothy Fautl, 5439 Cornell avenue, for Hyde Park community; Mabel N. Starin, 6345 University avenue, for Woodlawn, and Jean Bennensohn, 6706 Clyde avenue, Jackson Park. Nathan M. Lofton, 6234 Prairie avenue, was appointed first aid chairman for Washington Park. Mrs. Oneita M. Anderson, 3860 Calumet avenue, of the Douglas community, and Mrs. Eli E. Fink, 6829 Chappel avenue, of Jackson Park, were appointed home nursing chairmen.

A BLOCK SHOWS WHAT IT THINKS OF SERVICE MEN

Residents Donate Food Galore to Center.

More than 4,000 rolls, 570 pounds of frankfurters, 30 gallons of mustard, and 20 gallons of piccalilli should feed a lot of hungry service men. Multiply these figures by four and you have the approximate amount of food sent by residents of one south side block to the service men's center, 176 West Washington street, in the last month.

The block is bounded by 53d and 54th streets, Hyde Park boulevard and Lake Michigan. Little more than a month ago residents of the block, most of whom live in hotels, began contributing food thru the OCD organization, headed by R. E. Langford. Food is taken to the lobby of the Del Prado hotel and the block organization purchases food when money is donated.

Candy and Books, Too.

In addition to the materials for "hot dogs" donated recently were 200 pounds of candy, about 100 cakes, 20 cartons of cigarets, and magazines and books. Mr. Langford said this was about the average for a week and added that the total was increasing each week. The food drive was started off with a benefit party.

At first residents were asked to give cakes. Cards, on which the block residents could pledge so much food each month, were issued. They were circularized, explaining the need for food and how it would be used. Trucks pick up the food every Thursday from the hotel.

Plan Yule Treat.

Mr. Langford and members of his organization are now working to accumulate food to be sent to the center for Christmas. Circulars have been sent out to the some 400 residents telling of this drive and they are asked to give in excess of their usual weekly donations. Mr. Langford is assisted in organizing the collection by Mrs. Henrietta Moore.

South Shore Red Cross Plans Nursing Classes

Eight new classes in home nursing, one of which will be exclusively for men, have been announced by Mrs. Helen Austermann, Red Cross Home Nursing chairman for the South Shore district. Registrations will be taken tomorrow night between 7:30 and 9 o'clock at both the South Shore branch library, 2505 East 73d street, and South Shore Home Nursing headquarters, 2451 East 75th street.

SENIOR VARIETY SHOW TO BE STAGED JAN. 15 AT HYDE PARK HIGH

Jeanette Loving.

Jeanette Loving, 6145 St. Lawrence avenue, will star in the Senior variety show which Hyde Park High school graduates will present at 8 o'clock Friday, Jan. 15 in the school auditorium, 6220 Stony Island avenue. She will give tap, acrobatic, and jitterbug dance numbers.

This 17 year old dancer has been recruited for all school productions during her four years at Hyde Park and has been often sought by talent scouts to take part in loop shows. She performed in the "Freshie Frolic Shows" and starred in this year's production of "Let's Face the Music." She also has headlined programs for the "Pan American Shows" and a cappella concerts.

In addition to her talents as a dancer, Miss Loving is an honor student. She is a member of the a cappella choir, captain of the volleyball term, a member of the Pan American club, Bridle and Boot club, Senior Girls' and Letter Girls' associations.

36 SOUTH SIDERS FINISH COURSE IN MAP DRAFTING

Personnel Trained for Government Work.

Sixty-nine Chicagoans were among the 73 students who last week completed two government sponsored courses in mapping at the University of Chicago. The courses—topographic map drafting and photogrammetry—were given tuition free. Because of the urgent need for men and women trained in map making the United States geological survey in Washington has made jobs available for all students completing the course.

Applications are now being received at the university for new courses in mapping which will begin Jan. 6. The only prerequisite for enrolling in topographic map drafting is graduation from high school. Those who wish to enroll for photogrammetry, the making of maps from aerial photographs, should have two years of college training with major study in engineering, architecture, physics, chemistry, mathematics, forestry, or geology. Two years of civil engineering experience also will be accepted, or three and one half years of college if the applicant has had trigonometry and mechanical drawing.

Majority in Topographic Work.

A total of 36 south side residents were graduated from the two courses, the majority of them being in topographic map making. Of the 29 completing this course, 20 were women. There were seven who received certificates in photogrammetry.

Those from the south side who received certificates in topographic map making were: Barbara Albrecht, 7456 South Shore drive; Thomas B. Avery, 6322 Evans avenue; Ruth K. Barrett, 6847 Cornell avenue; Merle Blair, 751 East 63d street; Dora Charniak, 6236 Harper avenue; Esther M. Comstock, 8109 Dorchester avenue; Lois C. Daily, 5541 Everett avenue; Erna Faust, 7028 Cregier avenue; Della Friedlander, 1321 East 54th street; Alix C. Graves, 7425 South Shore drive; David Green, 5205 Woodlawn avenue; Henrietta J. Harris, 6649 Rhodes avenue; Mary E. Harris, 1135 East 45th street; John P. Jensen, 8000 Merrill avenue; Muriel T. Laden, 4612 Greenwood avenue; Beatrice Levy, 1504 East 57th street.

Others were: Evelyn P. Lewy, 2051 East 72d place; Viola Lindblom, 7325 Chappel avenue; Dolores E. Long, 6608 Kenwood avenue; James T. Mason, 6410 Eberhart avenue; Eulalia McLaughlin, 8448 Michigan avenue; Elizabeth G. O'Brien, 8200 Evans avenue; Florence L. Platt, 7114 Clyde avenue; Saul Seltzer, 4408½ Drexel boulevard; Ava Turcott, 7931 Vernon avenue; Albert A. Wells, 217 East 53d street; Dorothy C. Wells, 217 East 53d street; Gaylord F. Wilkinson, 5541 Everett avenue, and Amos A. Woodson, 4228 Michigan avenue.

List Photogrammetry Grads.

South siders who received certificates in photogrammetry are: Fritz A. Adler, 7145 Ridgeland avenue; K. G. Orr, 5704 Kenwood avenue; Gordon D. Gibson, 1223 East 57th street; Elman R. Service, 5608 Kenwood avenue; Elizabeth Smiley, 6017 Harper avenue; Eleanor C. Waples, 5130 Kenwood avenue, and Alice M. Wesche, 6223 University avenue.

Reach Golden Year

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Alexander.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Alexander of Trenton, Mo., former south side residents, celebrated their golden wedding recently with an open house at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Greenwald, 9827 Avenue H. They resided in Chicago for about 40 years and moved three years ago. Mr. Alexander, who is 70, and Mrs. Alexander, 71, were born in Dowington, Pa. He was employed as a foreman with the Rock Island railroad and is now retired.

TECH FRATERNITY BANS HAZING FOR LEADER TRAINING

Pledge Master Declares Move a War Measure.

No longer will the fraternity pledge of Sigma Alpha Mu at Illinois Institute of Technology be subjected to the meaningless tasks and the hazing which customarily belongs to any fraternity pledge. The often fantastic and painful initiation process has been ousted with the announcement from Earl Sherman, pledgemaster of Illinois Tech's chapter of the national social fraternity, that a leadership training program was being substituted this year instead of the annual hazing.

A war measure, the plan was adopted because the fraternity felt that any nonconstructive use of even a pledge's energies during wartime was a shameful waste. Now, according to Sherman, only essential duties will be performed by pledges during their neophyte days.

Pledges to Be Schooled.

Crux of the leadership training plan for pledging is a class which will be held every two weeks. All pledges will be required to attend these sessions, at which various alumni of Sigma Alpha Mu will speak on the qualities of leadership necessary for success.

Because the Illinois Tech "Sammies" are all engineers and are scheduled to enter some phase of war service, speakers at these classes will be either executives of war industries or officers of the military services, Sherman said. Sessions will be held on Monday nights at the chapter house, 3128 South Shields street.

Engineer Shortage Critical.

"The war man power commission has stated that engineers are America's most critical shortage," Sherman asserted, "and so we feel that rather than make our pledges perform satisfactorily to our whims, it is more important to help make them satisfactory leaders."

BOWEN HIGH CLUB TO CENTER PLANS ON WAR EFFORTS

Under the direction of its new officers, the Senior Girl's Council of Bowen High school is planning to devote all its 1943 efforts to war work by contributing funds to various service organizations, according to Helen Paun, president. Other new officers of the council are Kathryn Davis, vice president; Jean Joy, secretary, and Mildred Novak, treasurer. They have announced that a graduation party for 4-A members will be held in the school gymnasium on Jan. 14.

Retiring Du Sable Principal Will Address History Club

Chancy C. Willard, retiring principal of Du Sable High school, will speak at a meeting of the Du Sable History club at 8 o'clock on Dec. 22 at the George Cleveland Hall library, 4801 South Michigan avenue. Willard, who has been 20 years at the school, will talk on "The Appraisal of Negro Youth." Mrs. Annie E. Oliver is chairman of the program.

CLINIC BUSINESS FALLS AWAY AS WAR WAGES RISE

Patients Turn from Free Service; Pay Old Bills.

The much publicized American habit of paying the doctor last seems to be on the way out in Chicago at least. Doctors thruout the city report a minimum of requests for charity treatment, and all the free clinics have had a sharp drop in the number of patients asking for medical aid in the last year.

Many doctors say that their collections of old bills is 25 to 30 per cent better than it has been in past years. The payment of fees at one clinic is 25 per cent higher this year than last, in spite of the fewer number of patients requesting treatment.

Clinics Lose Patients.

As long as production in the great war plants is booming and the workers tuck fat pay checks into their pockets each week, the clinics will lose patients, in the opinion of Dr. J. Roscoe Miller, dean of the Northwestern university medical school.

At the Northwestern clinics there has been a drop of almost 25 per cent in the number of patients applying for admission to the free clinics this year compared with the applicants at the start of the war, according to Dr. Miller.

At the start of the war, and shortly before the war plants began their climb to maximum production, these clinics had 112,082 visits from patients over a year's period. During a corresponding period this year there have been only 86,093 visits.

Observe Immediate Effect.

"This is a heartening indication that the American people will refuse to accept charity if they can possibly avoid it," Dr. Miller said. "For the first time we have had the opportunity to observe the immediate effects of a sudden increase in the earning capacity of the average worker. Usually these increases come slowly, but in this case almost overnight a man with nothing before is making a livable income.

"From the experience in our clinic it would seem that the first thing this worker does is begin paying for things that he had been receiving for nothing—even tho he could still do so. There has even been a 25 per cent increase in the number of patients who, tho still unable to afford a private doctor, ask to pay a voluntary fee for the clinical service."

9,000 Fewer Cases.

At County hospital there was a drop of almost 9,000 in the number of patients treated during September of this year, compared with September, 1941, according to Dr. Ole Nelson, superintendent of the hospital. Last year there were 48,005 treatments during the month, while this year the number of treatments dropped to 39,074, the lowest in some time.

Dr. Nelson attributed this decline to the reluctance of Americans to accept charity, and to an increased interest in health brought about by the war.

The clinics operated by the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois, and the Mercy Free Dispensary of Loyola university all have experienced similar drops in the number of patients treated without charges.

Child Doctors Taken.

In one case, however, only a very slight drop has been noticed. The Children's Memorial hospital had a decline of only 2,508 in the number of treatments given this year over last. This, perhaps, is explained by the fact that a great number of pediatricians have been taken into the armed forces, and parents take their children to a specialty hospital after this doctor has gone to war.

Sociologists also report that many more children from homes in which both parents are working have required hospital care because their parents do not see them enough to notice evidence of illness in its early stages.

War Makes Staff Inroads.

The cut in clinical patients has helped the hospitals meet another problem brought on by the war. Northwestern has lost 175 doctors to the armed services from its regular staff of 399 full and part time men. While some of these men have been replaced with older physicians, all of the medical school graduates for the next few years will be taken directly into service.

At the Children's Memorial hospital the same situation is true. In the last year the hospital has lost 37 per cent of its staff to the armed forces, most of them pediatricians whose specialty is the treatment of children up to 13 years of age. The University of Chicago has lost 41 men from its full time staff of 150 physicians and research doctors, and expects to lose several more in the next few months.

BOYS' CLUB GROUP TO HEAR TALK ON TEEN AGE CRIME

A talk on "Facing Juvenile Delinquency in Wartime" will be given by Dr. Ernest Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Chicago Boys' Clubs association tomorrow noon at Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Dr. Burgess will discuss the rapid rise in teen age crime, as traced to wartime tension, and also will include some of his findings in the study of recreation and delinquency.

Newly elected officers of the association are: Stewart W. Knarr, president; Sol Boskin, vice president, and Helen Coatsworth, secretary-treasurer.

The association has in its membership all staff workers of the Boys' clubs of metropolitan Chicago as well as the boys' departments of settlements.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 21.

A good covering of snow is about the best protection that outdoor plants can have. It is not so heavy that plants are smothered unless soft, melting snow is followed by freezing weather, and even then most plants will survive in good condition. Hardiness depends largely on soil conditions. Many plants will survive in a sandy, well drained soil which winter would kill in a heavy soil. Giving protection simply prevents plants from heaving and exposing the roots to frost during thaws.

Tuesday, Dec. 22.

Watch that rabbits and other rodents do not girdle the trunks of outdoor plants, especially young apple trees. They do immense damage if in need of food. One way to protect the plants is to place fine meshed wire around them; heavy tar paper is also good. Rabbits will gnaw the bark of sumac if in a starving condition. It is a good plan to place traps, eradicate them, and save the plants.

Do not neglect to place bird feeding stations, for many die if not fed.

Wednesday, Dec. 23.

Water the potted amaryllis sparingly until it shows activity. The flower stalk appears before the leaves and makes a rapid growth. As growth increases give more water. A little plant food applied as the buds show color will give better blooms.

The home gardener usually is interested in the aquarium with a few fish and aquatic plants. If there are too many fish in a small bowl none will survive for long. Overfeeding is to be avoided at all times; feed once each week and just enough that the fish will consume all of it without difficulty and wait until they show signs of hunger before feeding again.

Thursday, Dec. 24.

There are many plants which should interest the home gardener in his desire to grow something a little different. Take the Dumb Cane, a dark green leaved plant with blotches of white. It grows readily without much care, but should stand in subdued light, not in direct sunlight. Old plants can be reduced in size and the stem cut up and rooted in sandy soil. It is a most accommodating sort of plant, for it will grow for a long time when placed in a tall glass container. Roots will form and all the luxuriant growth of the tropics enjoyed.

Friday, Dec. 25.

Flowering plants that are presented as gifts will require care if their period of most attractiveness is enjoyed over a maximum time. They must be kept moist, otherwise they are certain to wither. If they once lack moisture they begin to fade. Primroses and other densely fibrous rooted plants wither more rapidly than heavy, strong rooted plants. Place the plants on the floor in a cool room over night. Do not place them in a draft, but give them fresh air daily.

Saturday, Dec. 26.

Protect young evergreens with burlap or a windbreak of boards. Stake fall-planted trees to prevent them from being loosened during storms. Clear snow away from evergreens and especially evergreen hedges, or the branches may be broken by the weight.

Keep the soil in window boxes planted with low evergreens moist at all times, for if the soil dries out the plants will suffer. Cut back weak, straggling branches of indoor plants like the coleus to cause stronger growth and better shaped plants.

LIST HOME SAVER PRODUCTS; GOOD SCOTCH CUSTOM

Oil Paint Penetrates, Prevents Rust.

[For further information on materials discussed in this article, please send stamped, addressed envelope to this department.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Save what you have!
It's an old Scotch custom.

To make possible such savings there are penetrating, protective products which will insure longer life and usefulness to a host of articles and equipment around our houses.

One such product, of real value at this time, is a penetrating, rust-preventive oil paint. You can use this to stop rust at its source since it seals in and around the rusted particles to form a hard, durable film and to prevent further rusting.

Paint Has Wide Coverage.

This paint comes in a light gray which closely approximates aluminum in color and light reflection, but is without metallic sheen. It also can be obtained in other colors. One can save considerably by use of this type paint since it has a coverage of 800 to 1,700 square feet per gallon, and because labor need not be expended on removal of the rust before application. Is your hardware, your fireplace equipment, etc., as well as all other metal accessories, in shape to last the duration?

There are different formulas to meet different needs. There is one for damp surfaces and one for metal that is heavily rusted. One type dries in from eight to 12 hours, one in four hours and there is one which will dry in about two minutes.

The manufacturers of this penetrating paint offer stains and coatings for concrete floors. These can be applied according to manufacturers' directions over new or old basement concrete floors. The stains and coating come in club green, tile red, chestnut brown, and machine gray. It will penetrate the concrete and only tie up the floor overnight, and will even resist a certain amount of dampness.

Covers Bleeding Stains.

Another product of interest in many homes as soon as the holiday season is over is a flat white sealing paint with interior finish coat, and yet it can be applied over stained wood to stop bleeding stains.

CAROLS TO RING OUT OVER W-G-N EVERY EVENING

Amplifiers to Waft Music Into Streets.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Once again carols and other holiday music will ring out from W-G-N the week before Christmas. Beginning tomorrow a half hour of choral music will be broadcast over W-G-N for radio listeners, and amplifiers hung high over Nathan Hale court will send the joyful music pealing out over the city so that homeward bound shoppers and office workers may hear it, too.

This will be the 11th consecutive year for the observance of this custom. W-G-N will broadcast the music from 5:30 to 6 p. m. and the entire Mutual Broadcasting system will carry the music for the final 15 minutes.

Five Groups Will Sing.

Five outstanding choral groups from the metropolitan area will be heard on these song sessions which will be presented to organ accompaniment by Len Salvo. On the first program tomorrow St. Mary's High School Glee club, under the direction of Sister M. Matilde, B. V. M., will be heard.

On Tuesday the Edgewater Evangelical Mission Covenant church's mixed choir will give the program. The Kenwood School chorus, directed by Mrs. Clara Waser, will be heard Wednesday.

Christmas Eve Program.

The Christmas eve program will be presented by the adult choir of the Monumental Baptist church under the direction of Forestine Neal Bostick.

On Christmas day the Holy Trinity Russian Cathedral choir will be heard. All of the programs will be presented from W-G-N's organ studio which is particularly suitable acoustically for this type of music.

FIRESIDE PARTY TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N TODAY

A new half hour Sunday afternoon show featuring music by Louise Massey and the Westerners and drama by Chicago radio actors and actresses will be introduced over W-G-N under the sponsorship of the Loyal Order of the Moose today.

The program to be called the "Moose Fireside Party," will be broadcast from 5:30 to 6 p. m.

The dramatic cast for the first show will include Art Kohl, Dick Holland, Norma Jean Ross, and Alma Platts.

Originally, the Westerners were known as the Massey Family. There was "Dad" Massey, Louise, Curt, and Allen, and Louise's husband, Milt Mabie. "Dad" retired in 1930 and turned his job over to Larry Wellington, accordion player, and thereupon the group took a new name.

Metropolitan Auditions to Present an Operatic Duo

Metropolitan Opera Auditions will present a soprano and a tenor at 6 p. m. today over WENR and the Blue network. The soprano, Virginia Card, will sing "Una Voce Poco Fa" and the tenor will offer "La Donna E Mobile."

'THREE STRIKES, YOU'RE OUT' TO BE AIRED ON N. U. PLAY SHOP TODAY

The Northwestern university Play Shop will broadcast "Three Strikes—You're Out," a story about a young piano tuner with ambitions at 2:30 p. m. today over WJJD. June Otley, 1118 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, is in charge of the production. She is a senior in the school of speech. Miss Otley was chosen "Queen" of the Syllabus, Northwestern's yearbook last year. Leading rôles in the play will be taken by Betty Ranstead and Paul Liggett.

FIVE HUNDRED SINGERS FROM SEVEN SCHOOLS TO JOIN W-G-N CAROLS

Five hundred high school and junior college students will join in their seventh annual carol sing on W-G-N next Wednesday afternoon. The carolers will be guests during the broadcast of the Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry, regularly presented from 3 to 4 p. m. The carol program will be presented during the last 15 minutes of the hour—from 3:45 to 4 p. m.

Dr. Helen Howe.

The schools to be represented will be Waller, Farragut, Steinmetz, Austin, Roosevelt, and Lake View and Wright junior colleges. Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the Chicago Public schools, is in charge of the program.

The carol program will open and close with "Silent Night." Other selections will be "Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Dr. Howe will be interviewed by Jack Brickhouse on "What High School Students Like to Sing at Christmas Time."

The choral directors are: Margaret Gallagher and Mildred E. Tess, Waller; Marie Ehrenwerth and Marie S. Johnson, Farragut; Willard L. Groom, Steinmetz; Erhardt Bergstrasser, Wright Junior college; Hazel Lloyd, Austin; John Hamilton, Roosevelt, and Naomi Sweet, Lake View.

BECKER MOVES SPORT SHOW TO 3 P. M. SUNDAYS

Bob Becker will interview Mrs. Dorothy Eagles, director and founder of the North Side Animal Shelter, on his "Sportsmen's Spotlight" program at 3 p. m. today on W-G-N. The program, formerly heard on Tuesdays, will now be a regular Sunday feature.

Mrs. Eagles will tell of her organization and its job of placing homeless dogs in homes. Many of the dogs at the shelter will be Christmas gifts this year, Mrs. Eagles will explain. She also will tell how many service men are taking their dogs to her before they go into the army or navy and asking her to find homes for the animals.

Discuss 'Creative Evolution' on Invitation to Learning

Lyman Bryson, Prof. George Boas, and Irwin Edman will be presented in an analysis of Henri Bergson's philosophical treatise, "Creative Evolution," on Invitation to Learning at 10:30 a. m. today over WBBM.

RUSSELL SQUARE CHILDREN AWAIT BIG YULE PARTY

St. Michael's Club Adopts 200 for Evening.

Fifty fathers will bring Christmas cheer to some 200 children of the Russell Square community they will "adopt" for an evening's party Wednesday. Hosts are members of the St. Michael's Father's club.

Festivities will begin at 6:30 o'clock in the rooms of the St. Michael's Boys' club in St. Michael's school. A movie will open the party, followed by refreshments of candy, sodas and ice cream. Later in the evening Santa Claus will arrive with gifts for all. Gifts will be suited to the age of the child and will include clothing and pen and pencil sets, as well as Christmas toys.

Tree is Central Decoration.

The traditional Christmas tree will be the center of decorations in the club rooms, which include workshop, game room, and assembly rooms. There will be other decorations of seasonal greenery. Following the distribution of gifts there will be singing and games.

For the last several weeks lists have been drawn up of children who will attend the party. The club was designed to enable the fathers, most of whom work in the steel mills, to get better acquainted with their children. However, at their annual Christmas party they decided to invite, in addition to their own children, those who otherwise might have a bleak holiday.

Committee Buys Gifts.

A committee of four from the club was appointed to buy all presents after the names of those who attend were selected. The age of the child was considered in order that an appropriate gift might be purchased. Funds for the party were raised by a dance held by the club.

Officers of the club, recently elected, are: John Starcevich, president; John Annaszewicz, vice president; John Kowalkowski, secretary, and Clem Guzinski, treasurer.

LOYOLA ACADEMY WILL BE SALUTED ON CITIZENS HOUR

Loyola academy will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today.

The Rev. Ara F. Walker, S. J., principal, will tell of the many activities of the school in the war. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell.

The Academy glee club, under the direction of Dr. Graciano Salvador, professor at Loyola university, will sing two numbers: "Stouthearted Men" by Sigmund Romberg, and the traditional hymn, "Adeste Fidelis." The entire student body will sing the school song, "Cheer for Loyola."

"Jimmy" and "Jerry," popular comedy team on the program, will discuss high school from its lighter aspects. Holland Engle is the announcer.

'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' MOVES TO MONDAY PERIOD

"Mightier than the Sword," W-G-N program revealing the importance of a free press in helping the allied nations to win the war, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. Mondays.

A dramatic parallel between the Battle of Russia in 1812, when Napoleon was storming Moscow, and the Battle of Russia in 1942, when Hitler was attempting the same thing, will be told by Stanley Johnston, noted war correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Robert Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra provide the musical setting for this program which is produced by Jack LaFrandre. A cast of outstanding actors is employed and Marvin Mueller is the announcer.

Gift from Firm

DON LAVETTE.

Don Lavette of 8243 Ellis avenue, petty officer and radio technician, third class, grins happily as he opens his Christmas box from the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, where he was formerly employed. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Webster E. Lavette, 1745 Burr Oak, Homewood. Similar remembrances from the company were sent almost 2,000 former employés now in the army and navy.

Dorothy Burtch Joins the WAVES

Miss Dorothy Burtch, 5338 Hyde Park boulevard, has been called to active duty in the WAVES and is now in training at Stillwater, Okla. She left a position on the staff of a Chicago advertising agency to become a member of the WAVES. [Merrill Chase Photo.]

OPEN CHRISTMAS WORSHIP TODAY ON SOUTH SIDE

Industry to Keep War Output Humming.

will be observed in a union service of all departments of the church school at 10 o'clock, to which gifts will be brought for distribution to the needy. Dr. George M. Gibson, pastor, will speak on "Come All Ye Faithful" at the 11 o'clock service. There will be special music by the choir. At the vesper hour at 4:30 o'clock a pageant, "The Light Still Shines," will be presented under the direction of Mrs. Philip L. Mathisen.

"The Savior's Birth," a Christmas cantata by Florence Ednah Chipman, will be presented by the choral society of the Woodlawn Methodist church at 7:30 o'clock this evening. "Keeping Christmas" will be the sermon theme of the pastor, Dr. W. E. Bradburn, at the morning service of worship at 11 o'clock today.

Combined Choirs to Sing.

The combined choirs of St. John's Methodist church will present "The Holy Nativity," a pageant on the birth of Christ at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening and at 6:30 o'clock Christmas morning. The Rev. Almer M. Pennewell is pastor. The pageant will be preceded by a candle lighting ceremony.

Christmas morning the traditional Swedish Lutheran early matins service, "Julotta," will be held at 5 o'clock at Augustana Lutheran church. This service will mark the climax of the Christmas season at the church. This evening children of the church will present an original pageant.

Theme of the majority of elementary school programs to be given this week is "children of all nations" and "the good neighbor." Classes will be dismissed Wednesday afternoon, to convene Jan. 4. Carols will be sung this week in the corridors of most of the schools in addition to the formal programs, pageants, and plays. Others will have art exhibits in keeping with the season.

Indiana City Group Plans PostHoliday Bond Meeting

East Chicago women plan a war savings bond luncheon following the Christmas holidays, according to Mrs. Harold Weaver, chairman of the women's division of the city's war saving staff. Mrs. Oscar Ahlgren of Whiting, Ind., women's chairman of the state war savings staff, will tell the women how they can help the war by financial assistance.

'AMERICA LOVES MELODY' NEXT IN THEATER OF AIR

Prize Operetta Will Be Aired Saturday.

"America Loves a Melody," the prize winning operetta in W-G-N's $10,500 Great American Operetta Quest of last season will be presented on W-G-N and Mutual's Theater of the Air from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire, prima donna of the operetta series, and Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will sing the leading rôles.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, will be the speaker of the evening.

This operetta, written by Ross Hastings, young Los Angeles composer, was selected as the best of 2,232 entries received from 46 states, Washington, D. C., and Canada in the competition. "America Loves a Melody" has already been performed twice on the Theater of the Air. As "Operetta No. 8" it was presented Last March 28, when the public was asked to vote for the best of three operettas that had been selected by an advisory board of distinguished musicians.

The public cast the greatest number of votes for the Hastings' operetta, and it was presented as the grand prize winner on April 11 at the Civic Opera house, with Miss Claire and Allan Jones in the starring rôles.

Next Saturday's production will be under the direction of Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production. Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under direction of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Indiana U. Extension Work Planned for 2d Semester

Classes for the first semester in the Calumet center of Indiana university extension division will close Wednesday, it was announced by W. H. Norman, in charge of the center. Courses of special value to industrial workers will be offered the second semester. # CURVE WARNING SIGNS ERECTED ON DICKEY ROAD

Other Traffic Corrections Planned, Says Club.

Curve warning signs have been erected on Dickey road between East Chicago and Whiting, the Lake county area council of the Chicago Motor club has announced. Several other traffic improvements will be made in Lake county as soon as the necessary materials are available.

The curve on Dickey road has presented a hazard for motorists using the road between Front street in Whiting and the city line, club officials reported. Dense smoke from Pennsylvania railroad trains, which parallel the road, decreased visibility of the motorists. The situation was especially dangerous at night, according to club officials.

Three Other Jobs Planned.

At a recent meeting, the Lake county area council announced that improvements at Industrial highway and Cline avenue in Gary, 150th street and Calumet avenue in Hammond, and the Nickel Plate railroad intersection with Ridge and Grant roads in Gary have been authorized and will be completed when materials are available.

The Nickel Plate railroad has consented to the installation of traffic signals at the crossing at Grant and Ridge roads in Gary and the signals will be installed as soon as materials are available. Ridge road will be given the right of way except in peak hours when traffic is heavy on Grant.

Altho the chief danger at the crossing is in collisions between automobiles, records show that accidents involving trains are frequent enough to justify coördination of the new signal with the railroad flash signals. All lights will automatically turn red at the approach of a train.

Guide Posts Planned.

F. E. Bernoske, state highway district engineer, reported that the state will install channelization at the intersection of Industrial highway and Cline avenue in Gary. He added that he would investigate the possibility of installing guide posts on Cleveland avenue where the road narrows from two lanes to a single lane just outside the city limits of Gary.

Traffic signals will be erected at 150th street and Calumet avenue as soon as signal controlers are available.

The council gave a vote of thanks to the state highway commission for its traffic surveys in Hammond and Gary in coöperation with the local Office of Defense Transportation.

FLAGS OF UNITED NATIONS TO FLY IN KENWOOD RITE

Flags of 42 nations who are fighting against the axis will be carried by children at the dedication of a block flag at 48th street and Lake Park avenue at 3 o'clock today. The block, in the Kenwood community, is bounded by 48th and 49th streets, Lake Park and Dorchester avenues. The flags were made by women of the block, and include the Free French, for details of which the local OCD had to write to London. Theodore Saunders is the block captain. Judge Daniel P. Trude will speak. There will be a parade around the block before the dedication.

South Shore High School Scrap Drive Nets 12 Tons

Final tabulation has shown that students of South Shore High school collected more than 24,000 pounds of scrap metal and rubber in the salvage drive in which school children recently participated. Funds raised in this fashion—totaling $32—are being used to send gifts to former students now in military service.

Yule Greetings by V Mail

Typical of the thousands of photostated V mail Christmas cards that are pouring into Chicago from foreign ports is the one Corp. Jack Cahill sent his friend, Bob Hartman, 61 East Goethe street. His mother, who resides at 1311 Madison Park, received one, too, as well as his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Cahill, 1157 North La Salle street. Proving that Corp. Jack's spirits are in first rate order was the message to his sister-in-law—"great gobs of nauseating love!"

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

W. ELLIS STEWART, chairman of the board of the Wabash Y. M. C. A. for the last several years, was recently elected to the board of managers of the Metropolitan Y. M. C. A. of Chicago. He is the first Negro to receive this honor, it was announced.

Under the leadership of Stewart, the Wabash Y. M. C. A. has reached a membership of 4,000 and has one of the largest secretarial staffs of any association in the country.

MR. AND MRS. OSCAR VOGLE, 9730 Winston avenue, wished friends "Merry Christmas" with a new kind of greeting card this year. It was a penny post-card, decorated with a patriotic stamp and inscribed with the following poetical explanation:

With economic restrictions and a son overseas,
We are facing this Christmas mingled with unease.
Yet we send you greetings and best wishes galore,
A little less costly, but as sincere as before.

Miss Marion Pille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ceaser Pille of 8255 Langley avenue, is called the Flag Dedication Queen in a number of south side communities. She has sung at eight local flag raisings and is scheduled on many more patriotic programs. A few weeks ago she was winner of first place on the Stars of Tomorrow Sunday program over W-G-N. She is a student at Hirsch High school.

Mrs. Bernard J. Blandford.

Mrs. Bernard J. Blandford, the former Miss Lorraine McKeon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McKeon, 7823 Cornell avenue, and her husband, Technical Sergt. Blandford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Blandford, 6204 South California avenue, are residing in Wichita Falls, Tex. They were married recently in Our Lady of Peace church, 79th street and Jeffery avenue. Mrs. Blandford is a graduate of Mercy High school, while her husband was graduated from St. Leo's High school. He is with the quartermaster division assigned to the army air forces at Sheppard field, Texas.

DANNY BAER, 13, PLAYS SANTA TO HELP THE NEEDY

Bret Harte Scrappers Collect Toys.

Santa Claus—a merry eyed, 13 year old young gentleman—stops off every afternoon for a busy two hours at the Hyde Park salvage depot, 1741 East 55th street. Each day he collects used toys which the Bret Harte scrappers—children of the Bret Harte school—and other boys and girls from that area have donated to less fortunate children for Christmas.

There are dolls with leaks in their sawdust, tin soldiers with broken arms and toy automobiles minus wheels. But they are all repaired, painted and made new again for distribution to needy children, under the direction of this youthful Santa Claus and his helpers.

Alias Danny Baer.

Santa's other name is Danny Baer. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley F. Baer of 5444 East View Park. An eighth grader at Bret Harte school, Danny is credited with suggesting and carrying out the toy salvage idea.

In other salvage drives, Danny is also actively coöperating. He and Herbert Nahoff, Clifford Hoffman, and Michael Olson, schoolmates at Bret Harte, repaired and painted the red, white, and blue "Blitz Buggies" in which school children bring loads of scrap to the salvage depot.

The depot is conducting a contest for the best slogan to be painted on the buggies, it was announced by Mrs. Ben W. Lewis, manager. Any student of Bret Harte school is eligible for the contest as soon as he turns in five pounds of scrap. First and second prizes will be war stamps. The contest will close Christmas.

Each week, children who have brought in scrap and sorted it under the supervision of adult volunteers, are rewarded with war stamps, Mrs. Lewis said. To date, they have collected 100 tons.

RICHARD LENIHAN NEW HEAD OF SOUTH SHORE BUSINESS MEN'S UNIT

R. M. Lenihan.

Richard M. Lenihan recently was named president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce at the 33d annual election of that body. Other officers named include: E. J. Ryan, Elmer M. Schneider, and Morgan L. Fitch, vice presidents; J. Leslie Rosenblum, Edward J. Donnellan, Arthur C. Clemensen, and Fred W. Patterson, directors; John E. Wolf, secretary; Stephen V. Ronkaley, treasurer; Norman N. Elger, counsel, and E. J. Schnackenberg, advisory counsel. At the same time the group announced the opening of a "Shop in South Shore" campaign and all civic organizations in the community will be asked to participate.

House Coats of Tailored, Sophisticated Inspiration

A—This hostess gown, like something out of a Hepburn costume play, is of heather mixture, simulated knitted material, trimmed with scantily ruffled bands of velvet ribbon. ● B—Gay house gown with gathered dirndl skirt, gaily striped, and dark velvet top to contrast. ● C—Sleek, warm, and sophisticated house coat of simulated knitted fabric crossed in colored threads to make a striking plaid. Belt and button match one of the stripes. ● D—The 1942 version of sophisticated leopard skin house robe, of printed, sleek velveteen accented with jungle green or crimson crepe. ● E—The best buy of the season (under fifteen dollars) is this new and swankily tailored and detailed house coat of cozy fleece in red and other colors, certain to be an effective chill-chaser. Pockets and tie belt are borrowed from the lines of your pet polo coat. All models illustrated will be found in a smart Chicago shop for women.

‘The Merry Widow’ Coming to City After 10 Years

Local History of Operetta Dates to 1907

By Cecil Smith.

When a revival of Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow" is displayed at the Selwyn theater for three weeks beginning next Sunday evening, it will be a novelty to more theatergoers than one might suppose. The fashion in sophisticated theatrical circles is to pass off "The Merry Widow" as a tired old turkey, as exhausted by overexploitation as "Blossom Time" or "The Student Prince."

The facts in the case, however, do not support such an attitude. Ten years have passed since Lehar's tuneful piece last graced a Chicago stage. In its entire local history, stretching back 35 years, "The Merry Widow" has been played in only five engagements here, and there have been only two revivals in the past 20 years.

• • •

What a stir this artfully contrived operetta created back in 1907! For months before Henry W. Savage compounded a stellar company for Chicago's delectation, reports of its intoxicating qualities had poured in from New York and the European continent. On the occasion of the Chicago première, on Dec. 2, 1907, at the Colonial theater [the successor to the ill-fated Iroquois, now long since replaced by the modern structure containing the Oriental], an advertisment in THE TRIBUNE claimed that the operetta was "now being sung in over 100 European cities and in Australia."

Lina Abarbanell.

The first Chicago cast and production evidently satisfied the public completely, for "The Merry Widow" held the stage of the Colonial for five and a half months, a very long run in 1907. Our first Sonia—the widow—was Lina Abarbanell, then fresh from the Metropolitan opera. In recent years Miss Abarbanell has made valuable contributions to the stage as a skilled and tasteful stage director. The original Prince Danilo here was a Chicagoan, George Damerell; apparently he combined dashing looks and deportment with a good voice, for he achieved an extended success in the rôle. In addition to these principals, the performance, according to an advertisment, was glorified by "Augmented Orchestra of 32 Pieces, Full Hungarian Band, and Cast of Consummate Excellence."

• • •

W. L. Hubbard, then drama reviewer for THE TRIBUNE, lavished more than a column upon his report of the première. Over half this space was devoted to an ecstatic description of the effect of the famous waltz upon the audience. A couple of lyric sentences are worth salvaging from limbo:

"The audience has sat absolutely tense as tho spellbound," he wrote, "and yet the being of every man and woman in the house has felt the languorous rhythm and beat of that irresistible music and has responded to it. The whole theater is silent and yet a-sway, and when the two dancers on the stage disappear the spell is broken and the applause that bursts forth is deafening."

There can be no doubt that "The Merry Widow" was the most sensational musical entertainment of its immediate time. A tremendous vogue of "Merry Widow" hats, fashions, and gadgets sprang into instant being, and any one who was not conversant with the operetta was obviously a social liability.

• • •

Right on the heels of the first production, without the lapse of a single evening, Joe Weber and his "all-star company" took over the Colonial with a burlesque version of "The Merry Widow." Altho it had been described in advance as something hysterically funny, Burns Mantle—who by then [May 18, 1908] had begun his distinguished career on THE TRIBUNE—complained that "everything had been expended upon it except brains." To prove his point he quoted the following passage of dialog:

"The widow and the prince had waltzed one set. The orchestra was playing an interlude.

"'I hope,' said the widow of the prince, referring to the position he held at Maxim's, 'I hope you are a better waiter than you are a waltzer.'

"'I told you,' replied the prince, who was likewise a comedian, 'I told you I could not waltz without my overshoes.'

"'I am sorry the stores are closed,' observed the widow, sarcastically.

"'O well, you're not such a fine hootcher cootcher yourself,' retorted the prince. And then they waltzed the second set."

• • •

As may be imagined, this travesty did not prosper long; but before it bowed out it had competition from something probably worse at a regular burlesque theater called the Trocadero—"The Merry Window," featuring Nat Fields, Carrie Seitz, and Sam Hyams.

Since 1908 no further attempt has been made to kid "The Merry Widow." Subsequent revivals undertook to present the operetta seriously, and all of these except the last one in 1932 were evidently cast and mounted with due care and intelligence.

Despite its run of nearly a half year, the original "Merry Widow" production was able to return to the Colonial the following season, with most of the cast intact. A lapse then followed until 1921, when Mr. Savage spent "a cool $150,000" on what must have been an extremely lavish and good looking revival. Dorothy Francis, who had appeared with the Chicago Opera association in 1920, sang Sonia; James Liddy was Prince Danilo, and Jefferson de Angelis played the comic rôle of Nish.

Not until 1930 did Chicago see the Prince Danilo of Donald Brian, who had sung and danced the part 23 years earlier in the first New York production. Despite the actor's additional years, Charles Collins was happily able to say that "Donald Brian is not merely in quest of his youth; he seems to have found it." Two years later Mr. Brian came back to the Majestic theater in one of the last attractions at that handsome house which has stood grimly dark for nearly a decade. It was a shabby cut-rate staging, and the rôle of the widow was none too engagingly taken by Virginia O'Brien. Since then "The Merry Widow" has not been professionally presented in Chicago at all.

ALDRICH IN THE ARMY

Ezra Stone, known to millions of radio listeners as Henry Aldrich, is connected in the dual role of stage director and leading performer with "This Is the Army," the brilliant all-soldier show opening at the Civic theater on Jan. 4.

Ballet Russe to Open Here Friday Night

By Claudia Cassidy.

That shiny bauble on top of the Christmas entertainment tree is the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, which shines up the Civic Opera house Christmas night and lingers for 13 performances, closing Sunday night, Jan. 3. For the balletomane nothing more need be said. He will be peering at ballet bills and making his choice, or, if he can maneuver such a luxury, he will be gleefully on hand at every performance. Ballet, to the balletomane, means not only connoisseur's pick of the best dancer for each major rôle, but also an uncontrolable curiosity as to how every interesting dancer will dance every possible rôle.

Few things are more chameleonic than the dance scene. Some beloved dancers slump technically, or suffer a personality seachange into less attractive stars. Others improve almost beyond recognition by hard work, and still others undergo a kind of second blooming in the warmth of approval. Alexandra Danilova's was a second blooming. When the Russians first returned to our grateful shores, after rebirth in Monte Carlo, the baby ballerinas, fiery Toumanova, beautiful Baronova, and feathery Riabouchinska, stole the limelight, while Zorina herself spun on the fringe of glory. Danilova was recognized as a superior technician but not, immediately, as box office.

Milada Mladova.
[Seymour Photo.]

Yet she stems directly from the great ballet tradition, having come under Diaghileff's direction in his later days when Balanchine the choreographer and the dancer, Tamara Geva, also were chosen. She is a magnificent dancer and she has the most beautiful legs in ballet, which is quite an achievement. But, somehow, she was obscured by younger favorites.

• • •

Then ballet began to crack up on the rocks of temperament, with fragments going off in a huff to start another troupe. Riabouchinska went with a company now vanished from circulation, Toumanova tried musical shows and various ballet troupes, Baronova went into the movies and now is a Ballet theater star, Zorina became a Broadway favorite and was hoaxed by Hollywood into shearing that beautiful mane of dark pulled taffy hair.

But Danilova, the incomparable, went on dancing with the Ballet Russe. Experts in increasing numbers began to pick her out as worth watching, and her every entrance was greeted with delight. She began to bloom like a long stemmed Russian rose [I hope there is such a thing] and today she offers the fastidious precision, the brilliant abandon and the technical splendor of a dancer vividly alive in the great tradition.

• • •

Mia Slavenska, almost the only red haired ballerina, also returns with this troupe. A Jugo-Slav of unusual beauty, she has studied with the almost mythical Egorova, Kchessinskaia, and Preobrajenska. She was prima ballerina of the Zagreb National Opera, a favorite in many European theaters, and the star of the motion picture, "Ballerina." There is about her dancing a creaminess that adorns many rôles.

Now that Leonide Massine has gone over to Ballet theater, the Ballet Russe has two major male dancers, Igor Youskevitch and Frederic Franklin. Youskevitch is another Jugo-Slav, a dark and brilliant classical dancer who got his early training as trapeze artist, bareback rider, tumbler, and general acrobat in a circus. He studied ballet with Preobrajenska and was a leading dancer with the Russian Opera company at Paris and with Woicikowski's troupe before joining the Ballet Russe.

• • •

Franklin is the dynamite of the company, a blond Englishman trained in children's pantomimes. He was a vaudeville hoofer, briefly the partner of Mistinguette [who liked his jazz improvisations as well as his dancing], and did his first ballet work with the Markova-Dolin troupe in London. He studied with Nicholas Legat.

Space is too brief to sketch the careers of all the leading dancers who will appear during the holiday engagement. However, Agnes de Mille will not dance as anticipated in early performances of her new ballet, "Rodeo." She may come on later, but the engagement is not definite.

• • •

The following casts have been announced:

Opening night—"Carnaval"—Slavenska as Columbine, Youskevitch as Harlequin, Starbuck as Pierrot. Gregor Fittelberg conducting; "Rodeo" [new here]—Vlasoff as caller, Kokitch as head wrangler, Franklin as champion roper, Roudenko as cowgirl, Milada Mladova as rancher's daughter. Franz Allers conducting; "Gaite Parisienne"—Danilova as glove seller, Franklin as Peruvian [Massine's old rôle], Guerard as the baron.

Saturday afternoon—"Swan Lake," with Slavenska, Youskevitch, Guerard, Roudenko; "Rodeo," with above cast; "Beau Danube," with Youskevitch as the hussar, Krassovska as the daughter, Danilova as the dancer. Franz Allers conducts.

Saturday night—"Chopin Concerto" [new here], with Danilova, Krassovska, Youskevitch. Fittelberg conducts and piano solo is played by Rachel Chapman; "Scheherazade," with Slavenska, Franklin, Yazvinsky; "Rodeo," with above cast.

Sunday night—"Giselle," with Youskevitch, Toumine, Rostova and a Giselle to be announced; "The Afternoon of a Faun," with Zoritch and Rostova, Mladova, Roudenko; "Beau Danube," with Franklin as the hussar, Allers conducting.

Ballet Schedule

Friday at 8:30—"Carnaval," "Rodeo," "Gaité Parisienne."

Saturday at 2:30—"Swan Lake," "Rodeo," "Beau Danube."

Saturday at 8:30—"Chopin Concerto," "Scheherazade," "Rodeo."

Sunday, Dec. 27, at 8:30—"Giselle," "The Afternoon of a Faun," "Beau Danube."

Monday, Dec. 28, at 8:30—"Snow Maiden," "Rodeo," "Chopin Concerto."

Tuesday, Dec. 29, at 8:30—"Les Elfes," "Nutcracker," "Rodeo."

Wednesday, Dec. 30, at 8:30—"Snow Maiden," "Rouge et Noir," "Scheherazade."

Thursday, New Year's Eve, at 8:30—"Chopin Concerto," "Rodeo," "Classic pas de deux," "Gaité Parisienne."

Friday, Jan. 1, at 8:30—"Giselle," "The Afternoon of a Faun," "Rodeo."

Saturday, Jan. 2, at 2:30—"Snow Maiden," "Nutcracker," "Beau Danube."

Saturday, Jan. 2, at 8:30—"Les Elfes," "Seventh Symphony," "Gaité Parisienne."

Sunday, Jan. 3, at 2:30—"Carnaval," "Seventh Symphony," "Prince Igor."

Sunday, Jan. 3, at 8:30—"Chopin Concerto," "Scheherazade," "Classic pas de deux," "Rodeo."

Notes of the Theater

"Junior Miss" will end its Harris theater run after four more weeks, on Jan. 16. When it leaves it will have had the season's longest run at full prices—18 weeks, 162 performances. The comedy will then head for the Pacific coast, stopping off at Des Moines, Denver, and Salt Lake City on the way. It will open at the Geary theater in San Francisco on Jan. 24, for an engagement of eight weeks. Los Angeles, Sacramento, Portland, Seattle, and Spokane will follow, and in May "Junior Miss" will probably end its season in Milwaukee.

• • •

The cast of "Porgy and Bess," now at the Studebaker, will have been together for a full year on Dec. 29. Not a single performance has been lost. One member of the chorus joined the army and a few other minor rôles have changed hands. The only major change took place in the rôle of Bess; midway in the New York run Etta Moten replaced Anne Brown. The Gershwin opera opened in Boston. After three weeks there it moved to New York, where it proceeded to break all records for a revival by remaining 37 weeks.

• • •

"Lady in the Dark," starring Gertrude Lawrence, may return to New York at the close of the Chicago engagement beginning Jan. 19 in the Civic Opera house. Because it is a heavy production requiring six baggage cars, touring is rapidly becoming both difficult and hazardous. If the Center theater decides to abandon its profitable ice show, Miss Lawrence and her associates may take over that big theater.

• • •

Ed Wynn, whose last vehicle was "Boys and Girls Together," has been signed to appear in Peter Arno's new show, formerly known as "Peter Arno's Cartoon Revue," but now without a title. Mr. Wynn will write his own material for the revue, which otherwise will employ sketches by Mr. Arno and Matt Brooks. The rest of the cast has not been engaged, but Frances Williams and Harrison and Fisher are prominently mentioned in connection with it.

• • •

William Saroyan's "Get Away, Old Man" has been abandoned by Eddie Dowling, and George Jessel is now reading the script. Not that Mr. Jessel has any thought of appearing in it; he would be the producer, presumably out of the proceeds of his success in "Show Time," the vaudeville revue which currently commands his talent in New York.

ALTHEA'S LITTLE GIFT

tremely sensitive about those little matters.

"I merely lent them the money," she explained. "The father will repay it."

"The result of being an heiress, I suppose," said Henry D. But he dropped the subject and forgot the incident.

Althea had many opportunities to do little kindnesses. "Christmas gifts the year around," Mary called her benefactions. The ramifications of such actions are surprising. Take Joseph Sr., for example. Althea was not popular with him. But he repaid the loan for the shoes at the end of the month. He knew something about "30 days on the island" and had a deep dislike of the prospect.

Althea had long had a habit of calling on Jimmie one evening a week. Now five new books stood proudly on his shelf. On evening in early November Dr. Carl Boyesen was there when she entered. He was a tall, blond young man in his early 30s, and he had a nice face. He shook hands with surprising heartiness.

"I've wanted to meet you," he said. "How do you come to know so much about boys?"

"I don't know anything about boys, except that any boy in Jimmie's condition would deteriorate in character if he hadn't something interesting to think about."

"I'm afraid we doctors forget that sometimes," the physician admitted. "Any other protégés?"

"None to speak of."

That was correct. Althea never spoke of her protégés. Boyesen nodded.

"My car's at the door," he said. "I'll take you home if you like."

Althea looked at the disappointed faces of Jimmie and his mother.

"O, but I've come to call," she said quickly.

"So have I."

Evidently Dr. Boyesen meant it. He stretched out comfortably in his hard chair, clasped his hands behind his head, and proceeded to prove that he knew exactly how to talk to a boy.

When Althea got up to go an hour later, she knew that Jimmie had been given a bigger treat than she could ever offer him. Sea stories, it appeared, were Boyesen's favorites. Natural enough. He had been born and brought up on the wild North sea. He didn't say much as he drove Althea home. But he already knew from Jimmie and his mother what her work was and where she was doing it and where she lived.

"I don't dare to make many engagements," he said when they were parting at the door of her boarding house, "but I'm fairly safe in making them for Saturday nights. I usually go to the theater if I'm free. Will you go with me next Saturday night?"

It was all very casual and informal. Althea found herself assuring him that she'd be delighted. Social engagements with Dr. Boyesen had not seemed a possibility till he suggested one.

"Tell me about this charity work of yours," the doctor said as they started for the theater when the night came.

Althea frowned.

"I don't know what gave you the idea that I'm doing charity work," she said. "I'm not."

"But Jimmie thought——"

"Jimmie doesn't understand. Occasionally, when some one like Jimmie enters my life, I take a human interest. That's all there is to it. I'm poor as a church mouse myself, so I can't give charity. I can't do anything worth while. I can only give a few little presents—something my friends need and couldn't buy themselves."

Dr. Boyesen nodded.

"You feel that you must do something. I like that," he added. Althea was touched.

"You must know something about it," she said. "I know you do things for people yourself. See all you've done for Jimmie."

"Professional things, yes," Boyesen said with an odd, new gentleness. "Those are among our jobs. Most of us are decently humane. That's partly professional, too. But we don't stop to think of the little things that mean an awful lot. For example, it never occurred to me to find out that Jimmie liked reading and to give him books."

"O, the little things——" Althea began and then stopped. She had wanted to get away from the subject of little things lest she betray herself. Now she suddenly realized that she was with some one who understood and whose good reason for not concerning himself was that he was constantly busy with the big things of life and death.

"I don't go out looking for them," she interpolated hurriedly. "I just see them when they come before me."

"And that in itself is almost a miracle," her companion told her, very gently indeed.

"You're exaggerating," Althea spoke almost impatiently. "You're used to looking at big things, so your tendency is to think my little things are bigger than they are."

"I can tell little things from big things," the doctor admitted. "That's one of the first lessons I had to learn. The trouble is that I got the habit of altogether losing sight of the little things. Take Jimmie's case. He's getting well twice as fast now that he's got his mind off himself and on books. I should have realized that."

"O, is he, really? That does make me happy!"

Althea spoke so enthusiastically that the doctor laughed. But under the stimulus of the knowledge she talked on, more confidentially now. Before she realized it, she was even telling him about Aunt Agnes' legacy.

"And you're going to spend it all on others?" he asked almost incredulously. "What about your own needs? What if something happened to you—an accident, an illness?"

"I'm prepared for that. I carry accident insurance and illness insurance and I've always saved some of my income. I could weather a lay-off of a year with strict economy."

"So your philosophy doesn't include taking any kind of help yourself?"

He spoke soberly and she answered as soberly.

"No financial help, ever, if I can avoid it. But the help of human companionship and inspiration and understanding—that help I value very much."

"I don't suppose you'll ever talk to me again as frankly as you're talking now," the doctor said regretfully. "So tell me—before we get to the theater—about how many people have you helped in this individual and understanding way of yours? How many do you give 'little gifts' to?"

But she shied from the subject.

"O, I don't know," she said hurriedly. "I've no idea."

"You're not going to spend that fifteen hundred all at once, are you?" he pressed.

"Good heavens, no! I expect it will last two or three years. Probably longer. I do such little things and for so few. I've never spent more than three hundred on my protégés in any one year."

Didn't Mean to Divulge Figures

She stopped and bit her lip. She had not meant to give any figures. But to her vast relief he seemed not to have heard them.

"It's only in the last seven years that I've been earning an income," she went on. "At first it took most of it to pay the actual expenses of my living. But I began with Henry D. [that's what we call Mr. Stickney] when I was 18, and he's very fair. As he piled more work on me he paid me more for it. I've had a raise every year and a bonus every Christmas. Most of my lame ducks only date back five years."

"What all this means is that you pay your living expenses, put aside a few hundred for insurance and your savings account, and spend most of the rest of your salary on these small benefactions of yours. Is that it?"

Althea didn't have to answer this final question. They were at the door of the theater and the doctor had helped her out of the cab and was paying the driver. The curtain went up just as they took their seats and when Boyesen again tried to introduce the subject of Althea's protégés she evaded it so firmly that he finally dropped it.

Indeed it was not brought up again till a month later, when Christmas was upon them. In the meantime, Althea had paid for a needed operation on a worker who could not afford it, had replaced the amputated leg of a girl worker in her club with an up-to-date artificial one, had sent a tubercular young member of the club to the south and had found her a light job there, had replaced the wardrobe of another girl who had lost it in a boarding house fire, had paid the dental bill of a young fellow clerk who had lost his front teeth in an auto-bus accident, had bought a baby's layette for another girl worker who had married unwisely, and had given tickets for the symphony winter series of concerts to a fellow boarder—a sewing woman who loved music and rarely heard any. Christmas was almost here with its demands. Althea had many plans for her protégés. But the Aunt Agnes fund in her savings bank account was showing the strain. Althea was worried.

"It won't last much longer than a year at this rate," she admitted to Dr. Boyesen. "I suppose I'm branching out a bit too much. But a lot of needs came right under my nose and they wrung my heart."

"It's a wonderfully kind little heart," the doctor told her comfortingly. He had taken her to the theater every Saturday night he was free. Also Jimmie was still a common interest. In six months more Jimmie could begin to use his own legs.

Their talk this night was over one of their rare dinners. Quite properly it occurred on Christmas eve They had met too late for the theater, and they were lingering over their coffee. Boyesen went on now, quite casually, after his tribute to Althea's kind little heart.

"It's so kind that I'm going to offer you a new job," he said. "You'll make an ideal wife for a doctor. Besides, I love you. Moreover, it's the season for presents. You're always giving presents to others and I want you to give me the biggest present of all—yourself. I want you to marry me and look after me and my patients. My practice has a dozen lame ducks in it. They are what I hope will tempt you."

He stopped and lit a fresh cigaret in a would-be careless fashion, but his hand shook. Althea sat looking down at the tablecloth for a long moment. She was not surprised by his words. She had known for weeks that they would come some day. What surprised her, and even overwhelmed her so much that she could not speak, was their effect on her. She hadn't known it would be like this.

"Take your time," said the doctor. But his voice was anxious. Althea spoke under her breath, with a sudden rush of feeling that amazed him.

"You know I love you," she said. "You'd known it for weeks. I—well, I got so I couldn't hide it."

"I saw it," the doctor gravely admitted. "I wasn't sure it would last."

"Well, I like that!" Althea flashed, outraged.

"But now I'm quite sure it will last," the doctor went on, "especially if I let you look after the needs of my poor patients. How about tomorrow—Christmas day—for the wedding? I can get a special license. It's a bit abrupt, but we could get off for the week-end, anyway. It may interest you to know that I've been too busy to make friends except among my patients. I don't expect a single Christmas present except a few boxes of cigars from them. Althea——" his voice shook—"say you'll give me the one Christmas present I want——you—you—you!!"

Althea looked at him and the look was enough. He didn't need to hear words.

Boyesen leaned forward and kissed Althea. He didn't care whether others saw him do it, but very few did.

Althea spoke at last, as shakily as he had done.

"Darling," she said, "be reasonable. Of course I can't marry you tomorrow. I've got to give Henry D. three months' notice and teach his next secretary the job. But if Easter will do——"

Boyesen picked up his glass.

"O. K." he said, buoyantly. "I'll wait! We'll probably live to be 85 or 90. We'll have 60 years together and we'll be givers to life as well as takers from it. Let's drink to that!"

HILLS OF FEAR

hadn't been any one near it since I'd gone. And he's honest as the day is long. I've known him for over 10 years."

"And the prisoners don't know you've got it?" Sheriff Barton asked. Hay shook his head.

"Nobody knows excepting Pete, and Watson, and you."

"By the way," Watson interrupted, "there was a long distance call for you some time ago, sheriff. They said it was urgent. Sorry I forgot. There's a phone booth in the hotel across the street."

Barton rose slowly and departed. Watson was restoring the sack's contents. Hay looked the picture of misery.

The telephone call was from Steve, and when Barton got the tavern on the line he listened to the tidings which Beulah Smith had left. After the conversation was completed he stood in the booth for some time. The situation was slow in coming to him because the weight of that peculiar revelation which he had gotten in the restaurant was heavy on his mind. But when it did begin to unfold it took form quickly. He saw three things clearly then.

One of these was Beulah Smith at Gold Center. Another was Henry Piper at Gold Center. And, when the third revealed itself, the juxtaposition of the first two became alarming.

An Accessory Before the Fact

The identification of his Gold Center deputy as an accessory before the fact to armed robbery was not altogether astonishing. The exigencies which a country sheriff has to contend with are many, and Barton had struggled against his good share of them. He hadn't fancied Piper's appointment from the beginning, but it had been, as he would have put it, "one of those things."

The possibilities which opened with the presence of a third man in the crime rather delighted him at first. But, when he began to think of what might happen with Beulah Smith and Piper colliding at Gold Center, then the need for fast action on his part confronted him. He was one of those good officers whose habit of thought is orderly. He remained where he was until he had sorted out these items properly, and after that until he had assorted future probabilities with the same meticulous care.

Among the latter were the payment of two high-pressure lawyers who were going to want cash down; the presence of two prisoners who had every reason to believe that none save themselves knew where that leather sack was hidden; the unpleasant but inevitable exposé of a deputy working under him as a crook; and Beulah's very possible danger. He thought—and this was provided things worked out neatly—that he saw a way to solve all the problems arising from these contingencies. But he knew he had to work fast.

When he returned to the booth in the restaurant he nodded placidly at Andy Hay.

"Cheer up," he said, and turned to Watson. "Can you get the local justice of the peace and turn these fellows loose within the next half hour? Or sooner, maybe? Quicker the better.

"Time," the sheriff went on, "means a whole lot to me right now." The young man from the district attorney's office looked puzzled.

"There won't be any trouble on that point," he said.

"And you can keep the sack out of sight for me until I want it?" Barton asked.

"Unless they learn I've got it and try to replevin it," Watson told him. The sheriff smiled.

"They won't." He shook hands with the two of them. "I'm on my way," he announced. "Don't let any one know I was here. Not a soul."

With their assurance of silence, he departed. Like Beulah Smith, he had a liking for bets where the odds were long against the bettor. And this was one bet that he had to win, or else——

He shut that ugly possibility from his mind and drove away.

Oasis wasn't a town in any sense of the word, it wasn't even a wide place in the road. It functioned as a postoffice, to which a few prospectors, small mine owners, and sheep men came from the surrounding hills and as a supply point for such occasional necessities as these desert dwellers happened to run short of between their rare trips to Owens Valley. It consisted of one small building which housed postoffice and store.

The building was a tiny speck in the midst of the wide flat which is known as Fish Lake Valley. It was a landmark from afar by daylight, but when the sheriff drew near that evening the store was closed. The ranchhouse across the road was screened behind a thick grove of cottonwoods and there was no light showing. The headlamps of the sheriff's car picked up the little store, and a moment later they revealed the state boundary sign beyond it.

Almost immediately afterward the shabby old car in which Benny and Oscar, the bandits, had driven away from their rendezvous with Henry Piper early in the afternoon came into sight. The sheriff braked down to a stop, and Pete emerged out of the darkness beside the road.

Sheriff Barton drew a deep breath of satisfaction when the headlights picked up his assistant.

"I'm going to deputize you, Pete," he said. "Looks as if I'd have to use you tonight."

When the brief ritual of induction to the forces of the law was finished, Peter asked a single question.

"What do I do?"

"Wait till we get this car out of sight," the sheriff bade him, "and I'll tell you." They parked the car on the side road which led to the ranchhouse and sat side by side on the running board. A pair of headlights which looked no larger than two pin heads appeared on the mountain range west of them, while Barton was outlining the details of his coup.

"I think," the sheriff said, "these are our parties now."

The driver of the hired car which was coming down the grade to Fish Lake Valley had no interest in this nocturnal excursion beyond the fact that he was picking up $10 easy money. He had eased off the brakes and he was tooling across the level lands at 50 miles when a voice from the rear said:

"Hold it, chum. This is the place." The car slowed down and came to a stop in front of the tiny store. Two of the passengers got out. The one who remained admonished them quietly.

"Remember, boys, count the bills before you bring them here. I don't want to see any other money—and I don't want to know where this came from."

Uneasy Feeling Comes Over Him

Benny and Oscar did not take the trouble to reply, they were on their way before the voice had finished. The headlights of the car bathed them as they walked up the road. The radiance was so bright that the driver and the man in the rear seat could read the sign beside the oiled gravel roadway, and because the latter was a lawyer who knew his business, a feeling of uneasiness came over him as he watched his two fellow passengers passing that white painted board whose black lettering marked the interstate boundary. He wanted to call out then and warn them, but it was too late.

The two forms which rose among the weeds were not visible until they began to close in behind the pair in the roadway. They came from the two ditches and their backs were toward the headlights. Even if the watcher in the car had known them well, he couldn't have recognized either of them. But he did not hesitate now, he leaned forward and he bade the driver,

"Get going, fellow. Turn around and head for town."

The sheriff had learned to step quietly and Pete had never needed any education along that line. The sound of the starting car was the first alarm that Benny and Oscar got. They halted abruptly and turned to see what was taking place back there.

"Don't move." The sheriff's voice was businesslike. "First man that starts to run gets shot. You're under arrest, the two of you."

The car which had brought the three here was speeding westward across the valley with one passenger. A few moments later the sheriff's sedan was tooling eastward, with Barton at the wheel and Pete in the back seat with two prisoners seated upon the floor in front of him. Their legs were intertwined; their wrists were fettered, the wrists of one beneath the other's knees.

"First man that starts to run gets shot."

What Has Gone Before

Marian Farley drives out to Gold Center, Nev., to settle the estate of her brother Bill, killed in an auto accident. En route she stops at a hotel in Tonopah, and, looking out of her window, she sees Red Warrington in the street below. He looks up and throws her a kiss. Altho she does not know it, he is her brother's friend and has come out to Nevada to investigate Bill's death. At the hotel she also hears voices of three men, plotting a robbery, floating up from the floor below. Later she sees the men on the elevator and recognizes them by their voices. Continuing on to Gold Center, she stops by Beulah's tavern, and while there two of the men she heard plotting the robbery hold up the tavern and escape with a mail sack containing a $20,000 pay roll. At Gold Center she meets Herbert Billings, crooked promoter, justice of the peace, and administrator of her brother's estate. He tells her Bill's property is a worthless mine at Contact Hill, but he offers to buy it from her for $500. She refuses. He directs her to an auto camp run by Henry Piper, deputy sheriff, who also runs a snake farm. Piper turns out to be the third man she heard plotting the robbery. Piper, with the aid of his wife, has intercepted the bandits, switched sacks on them, and has hidden the money at Contact Hill. Billings, anxious to get rid of Marian, gets one of Piper's most dangerous snakes and puts it in her bed. The snake strikes at her. She screams. Red comes to her rescue and kills the snake. Red learns from Skeet Rand, garage owner, that Billings had Piper drive Bill's car over the garage pit and that Bill caught Billings in the pit the day of Bill's accident. Altho Rand didn't know it, Billings filed Bill's brakes' lining, causing the accident. Marian, sure that Billings is crooked, drives out to Contact Hill to investigate Bill's mine. Billings follows her. She takes a wrong road and Billings reaches there first. Piper, fearing Billings has gone after the stolen money, decides to even things with Billings, recover the money, and he and his wife make a getaway. He takes a dangerous snake in a sack, gives it to his wife, tells her to pack, take their baggage and the sack, and meet him at a certain stone house near the mine. In the meantime Red takes Sam, a prospector friend, out to the mine to see what motive prompted Billings to kill Bill. Beulah, the tavern owner, fearing for Marian's safety, also decides to go on to Contact Hill. Sam has a fluorescent lamp to discover the amount of tungsten in the rock. Billings, seeing the lamp and knowing his murder motive is being discovered, shoots and kills Sam. Marian arrives in time to see the shot fired. Then Red appears and she learns why he is there. The two go to Bill's office and find papers revealing that Billings had sold Bill the mine, thinking it worthless, and afterward learned that it contains a large supply of tungsten, valuable in defense work. Billings finds them in the room and shoots at them but misses. While they are hiding from Billings, Piper finds him, and, thinking he has the stolen money, handcuffs him and tries to make him tell where the money is. As Piper and his prisoner approach the mill they come upon Red rushing out. Piper knocks Red unconscious and starts out for the stone house. Marian finds the stolen money and the unconscious Red. Taking the money with her, she starts driving to town for help. But her car slips down an embankment, she sprains her ankle, and, seeing a light in the stone house, goes there. Mrs. Piper answers her knock. Marian drops the money sack on the front steps and goes inside.

INSTALMENT X.

THE air was smothering. Marian's head was pounding, and she felt as if she were going to be sick. She thought the sack behind the stove was stirring. It was like the stirring of Mrs. Piper's locks when she had stood in the doorway with the light upon them from behind.

The bad ankle was throbbing, every pulse beat was like a blow on the bruised flesh. I've got to get to that car, she reminded herself again, and I've got to think fast. This last necessity was suddenly emphasized when Mrs. Piper asked:

"How come you're back in this part of the country?" And before Marian could answer she shot another question, "Where was it your car went off the road?"

"Up the canyon." It seemed to Marian as if her mind wouldn't work, but kept going off on odd tangents. As a matter of fact it was working faster than she knew. There wasn't an appreciable interval before she went on. "I got lost. I took a side road. I think I must have been in too much of a hurry when I started back. I went off the bank at a sharp turn. If it hadn't been for spraining my ankle, I'd have been here sooner."

"Last time I saw you, you told me you was leaving this part of the country," she said.

"You told me I was lucky to be able to leave," Marian managed to keep up a show of composure. "I wish I'd gone."

"Why didn't you?" Mrs. Piper asked.

It occurred to Marian that this was taking semblance of the well known third degree. The light was shining in her face. It came from an old glass lamp and the air was heavy with kerosene fumes.

Sink or swim, and she was already in deep water. She might as well go on. Marian breathed a silent prayer that truth might prove mighty enough to carry a little falsehood and took the plunge as unhesitatingly as a good diver in a tiled pool.

"I had business. I thought maybe I could finish it before I left. I've some property across the mountains—at Contact Hill. That's where I was going."

Voice Betrays a Flicker of Interest

"Yes?" Mrs. Piper's voice was hard and smooth, but it betrayed a flicker of interest which did not escape the girl in the chair.

"It belonged to my brother," she went on composedly. "He died and it was left to me. I understood it was worth a great deal of money. It's some sort of a mine." Mrs. Piper brought her up with a jerk.

"Your brother?"

"You've probably heard of him," Marian said. "Bill Farley. He was killed when his car went off the road."

"I've seen him," Mrs. Piper admitted. The wariness was not so evident in her eyes now.

"Billings is handling the estate," Marian continued. "I don't know anything about him. I never saw him before today. He didn't seem to want me to stay here. Maybe I was too suspicious. I wouldn't know, but it didn't look just right, the way he talked. He wanted to buy me out for $500 and he wanted me to sign on the dotted line immediately. He was very anxious for me to leave. And then that snake——"

She broke off abruptly. The interruption had come from behind the stove where the canvas sack was lying. There wasn't any doubt about the movement in the sack now. She knew it held a snake.

"Well?" Mrs. Piper said. Marian looked her in the eye.

"Some one put it in my bed. I'm sure of that. It could have been Billings."

"It could," Mrs. Piper said drily. "So what?"

"So I made up my mind to look over Bill's papers before any one else could get to them. I thought they might explain why Mr. Billings had tried to hurry me out of town." Marian was talking fast. She didn't like the way Mrs. Piper kept glancing at the window, as if she were listening—for a car perhaps. A car with the bearded man at the wheel.

"That side road in the canyon," Mrs. Piper said. "Where is it?"

"All I can remember," Marian told her, "is that it is a mile or two up the grade. It's a dangerous road. It ends under a cliff. There is some sort of a hole there—it looks like an old well. I suppose it's a mine. Or was. There's an old wooden windlass."

"Prospecting hole," Mrs. Piper nodded. "And you don't like Billings. Billings!" It was evident that the name had suggested something. She turned to Marian and she would have spoken if it had not been for a sharp hiss behind the stove. Marian was staring at the sack. Mrs. Piper spoke with sudden sharpness.

"Ain't any telling when I'll go back to town. It might not be till morning. I'm waiting for my husband." Her eyes went to the window again and she was listening intently as tho she had caught the sound for which she had been hearkening.

"He's out here in the hills," Mrs. Piper went on. "He's looking for a couple of highway robbers. I got word from the sheriff for him. And I'd just as soon there wasn't anybody else here when he shows up. Fu'thermore, there ain't a place for you to sleep anyhow——"

"I didn't ask to stay," Marian reminded her. "I wanted to borrow that car."

Mrs. Piper did not appear to be paying much attention.

"Billings!" She spoke the name thoughtfully, then she roused herself abruptly.

"My husband could drive me home. I hadn't thought of it." Her eagerness was beyond disguise. It was as patent as the eagerness which the little justice of the peace had shown when he had invited Marian to visit the snake farm. Mrs. Piper nodded. "Okay. You may as well get going now."

The pain in her bad ankle was like the deep thrust of a dull knife when she got to her feet. She had never been as anxious to leave a place as she was to get this room behind her, with its smell of burning kerosene and its intolerable heat and the sack behind the stove. She had forgotten for the moment about the leather sack on the doorstep. She remembered it when she saw Mrs. Piper's hand on the doorknob. Mrs. Piper was a pace ahead of her. Marian managed to catch up by the time the door swung open, but the ankle was punishing her so badly that she had to lean against the wall. She heard Mrs. Piper saying:

"What's this?" And steeled herself to answer.

"My overnight bag. I dropped it before you came . . ."

"Your overnight bag." Mrs. Piper was back in the doorway. She was holding the leather sack before her. She was looking it over. "You keep it padlocked." She slammed the door behind her. "You're going to stay." She flung the sack into a corner and a prolonged hiss came from the other sack back of the stove.

"Where did you get it?" Mrs. Piper demanded.

There was no need to answer. The sound of the approaching car had got all of Mrs. Piper's attention. Her thin nostrils were flaring, her eyes were poisonous. The car was drawing up before the house now. Mrs. Piper turned back to Marian.

"You are a smart girl," she spoke listlessly; her voice was toneless. "You pretty near made it stick."

Footsteps Sound: Two Pairs of Feet

The sound of footsteps came from outside the door. Two pairs of feet. Mrs. Piper's face twisted with surprise and alarm.

"Now what?" She was staring at the door when it swung open and Herbert Billings entered. Piper was a pace behind his prisoner. He was replacing his gun in its shoulder holster. He was saying:

"Look who——" Then his opaque eyes rested on Marian and he fell silent. He glanced at his wife. She nodded in the direction of the leather sack. Piper stepped to the door and turned the key. He had given the sack one swift glance, he was paying it no further attention. He took his stand before Marian. He was stroking his corn colored beard. He drew a deep breath at last.

"Now," he said, "I remember. It was in Tonopah. In the hotel. Well, well." His voice was as soft as thick velvet. "We should have a little talk. Us two."

Marian didn't know it, but something was going on just across the California boundary which was to bring this whole ugly affair to an abrupt and unexpected end within a short time. She had started the new development herself when she told Steve about the man with the corn colored beard. Steve unwittingly had timed it toward a dramatic finale by forgetting to give Marian's message to Beulah Smith until well along in the afternoon. This byplay, which was to bring its own startling effect in a very short time, had taken a peculiar turn before Marian reached the stone house.

Goldfield's businesslike sheriff who didn't look as if he carried a gun was sitting in a booth in one of those quiet little lunch places which one can find along the California highway which runs from south to north under the eastern wall of the Sierras. He was destroying a good sized segment of pie and putting away his second cup of coffee, but that did not hinder him from discussing his business with a tall young Owens River Valley deputy sheriff, whose fresh complexion would have gone well in an advertisment for any toilet soap.

Sheriff Barton was beginning to feel like a man whose day's work had only begun.

The deputy's name was Andy Hay. His brows were puckered like those of a puzzled boy, but the verdancy of youth was merely external.

"We've got 'em," he said. "Yes. And they're the men you want. That part's all right. But I don't think we're going to hang on to them."

"Going to fight extradition, are they?" Sheriff Barton raised his eyes.

"They ain't going to waste time waiting for extradition," Deputy Sheriff Hay announced. "I think they've got us over a barrel."

"I smell a lawyer," Barton murmured and finished his coffee.

"You'd be surprised," young Hay told him. "I hate to say it, but I am the man that pulled the boner." Sheriff Barton shook his head.

"So that's it? Sounds like a writ."

"I should have taken 'em down to the county seat," Hay went on. "But the way I figured it, it was saving you a lot of driving to hold 'em here until you got a look at 'em. That was the second time my foot slipped."

"Well," the sheriff informed him placidly, "it won't be the last time. Not unless you're a better man than I am. What say we start at the beginning? That way I'll get the picture quicker."

Hay sighed. "Okay. I picked 'em up over at Oasis."

"On the state line," the sheriff smiled sadly. "I see."

"And worse than that," the other was gloomy now. "You know Oasis. A little store on one side of the road and a ranchhouse on the other. I'd driven over there as soon as the office phoned your message. I'd a sort of idea that if they were coming this way, I might meet 'em on the Deep Springs grade; the road's narrow and it would be a swell place to stop a car on one of those sharp turns.

"Well, I didn't run across any one there and I thought I'd go on and give the description to the woman at the Oasis store. And, when I pulled up, here they were. They'd burnt out a bearing and they were looking for a telephone, but there isn't one nearer than Big Pine, and they were coming out of the store when I stopped my car.

He went on morosely. "If it hadn't been that they acted suspicious the minute they saw me, I wouldn't have noticed 'em. I took 'em for a pair of mechanics in those coveralls. But they kept turning their faces away and started to their car.

"It was half a mile back on the road. I thought I'd better have a talk with 'em. Then I happened to catch sight of the clothes one of 'em was wearing—his coveralls were unbuttoned at the chest and they'd slipped open. I grabbed the two of 'em first and started questioning 'em after I'd got the cuffs on 'em. Well——" he threw out his hands, palms upward. "It was on the California side where I first saw 'em, but it was on the Nevada side where I picked 'em up. And I never thought of it. Worst of it is, there were two witnesses, the woman that keeps the store and a miner by the name of Pete who works up in Cottonwood canyon."

"And when you took them over here," the sheriff said, "they got hold of a lawyer."

"From Independence," Hay said. "I'd left 'em in the local calaboose. I knew somebody was on the line when I went up the street to call you. I could have used the constable's phone, but I was trying to play it safe; didn't want anybody to know who these parties were until you got here. I think it was the constable that had the line while I was waiting. And called up that lawyer for them. Anyhow, here came a little shyster from the county seat within half an hour. And swore out a writ. And that isn't all. A while ago two more lawyers dropped in. They were from Los Angeles. They came by plane."

Young Man in a Business Suit

A young man who wore nose glasses and the only business suit in the place walked into the restaurant and saw the pair in the booth. He hurried to their table. He was carrying a leather sack with two handles.

"This," Hay said, "is Mr. Watson, our assistant district attorney, Sheriff Barton. He says we haven't a chance." Watson shook hands with the sheriff and slid into the seat beside him. He placed the leather sack upon the table.

"There was a case a little while back," he announced, "and it raised quite a muss—where the man had been picked up on the Nevada side of the boundary. Even at that, if it was a local lawyer defending these fellows, it wouldn't be so bad, but this pair from Los Angeles are big shots, I'd say," he patted the sack as he was speaking. "This must have been a pretty good haul, or they wouldn't have shown up in such a hurry."

Sheriff Barton wasn't saying anything. He was examining the sack. He looked it over thoroly before he spoke.

"Not a mail sack. The company always uses their own and sends it out by the stage from Las Vegas. And that $20,000 is good evidence. Mind if I take a look at it?" He pulled at the metal chain and brought a ring of keys from his pocket. He selected a peculiar looking bit of steel on the ring and looked inquiringly at the assistant district attorney. Watson nodded.

It took a few moments' manipulation before the padlock yielded. The sheriff reached into the sack and brought forth a bundle of white paper. It was neatly bound with an elastic. He reached in again and produced another. He up-ended the sack and shook out several more.

"So that's it!" he said.

"There goes our evidence," Watson remarked dispassionately. "Doesn't look as if we'd hold 'em five minutes after court opens tomorrow morning. Not even with the fugitive crossing the state line law. Not now."

"Now I wonder," the sheriff murmured, "who pulled this one?"

"The sack," Hay was looking flustered, "was under the seat cushion. I left that Indian Pete watching the car when I took these two across the hill. After I got thru calling you on the phone I went back and searched their car. Pete said there

Critic Reviews History of Grand Opera in Chicago

Trend Toward Shorter Season, Deficit Cut, Lower Standards

By Claudia Cassidy.

The complete case for, or against, grand opera in Chicago would require a set of fat volumes, plus the reporting instincts of a ferret equipped with the tenacity of a bulldog. Since the collapse of the Chicago Civic Opera under the combined weight of depression and a $1,000,000 deficit back in 1932, it has had a sketchy career in which an occasional uptilt has punctuated a steady decline in talent, resources, and reputation. Also, since that day of substantial guarantors and published audits of opera finances, it has become increasingly difficult to get hold of figures for comparative analysis.

However, few things could be more misleading than the current trend toward the belief that in the days of sumptuous grand opera deficits of $1,000,000 were the habitual result of extravagant mismanagement, now being put to shame by the wizardry of a season which emerges a mere $28,000 in the red. For one thing, operatic habits—and expectations—have changed, and not for the better. For another, there have been in the history of grand opera in Chicago precisely two deficits that reached the $1,000,000 mark.

Mary Garden.

One of them was Mary Garden's at the Auditorium; the other was the late Samuel Insull's at the Civic Opera house. Miss Garden was made general director of the Chicago Opera association for the season of 1921-'22, and one of her first remarks was that the previous season's deficit of $350,000 had been too high and must be cut. Instead, she multiplied it by three, and the story goes that when the guarantors [notably the late Harold F. McCormick and Edith Rockefeller McCormick] paid it off, they said it was a pleasure. Looking back on that fabulous season in yellowed but endlessly fascinating press clippings, I can understand their feeling from the artistic, if not the checkbook point of view. I doubt that a music critic could have been dull, with such gala goings on to write about.

• • •

However, deficits in seven figures have a way of ending an era. The Chicago Opera association folded up, turning over all assets free of charge to the newly organized Chicago Civic Opera, Samuel Insull, president. That in itself was a munificent gesture, involving scenery, costumes, and other properties valued at $1,000,000.

The Chicago Civic Opera then set about trying to secure its future on a business basis. In 1926 it announced pledges of $520,000 for each of the next five seasons, a handsome guarantee more than sufficient to pay the average deficit of that grand scale era. It planned, and built, the huge structure at 20 Wacker drive, which houses the magnificent opera plant, and which was intended, in time, to support that opera with rentals from the office building.

Depression struck and a dream of empire crashed. The season of 1930-'31 ended with a deficit of $1,079,473, of which Mr. Insull paid some $360,000. Things were better in 1931-'32. But Mr. Insull had resigned and there was no longer what one trustee called a "magnificent angel" to balance a budget with a deficit of more than $500,000. So grand opera on the grand scale disappeared from Chicago, even as with the death of Louis Eckstein it disappeared from Ravinia.

• • •

A year passed without resident opera, then the late Paul Longone appeared with the Chicago Grand Opera, which later turned into the Chicago City Opera. These in general were threadbare seasons manipulated on a shoestring, a kind of marking time which represented the gradual disintegration of standards. The season of 1937 managed to present 36 performances of sorts at a deficit of no more than $17,000. This was the era when some people said it was better to have any kind of opera than no opera at all.

In 1940 the Chicago Opera company was organized with Henry Weber as artistic director. It bagged some guarantors, and got to work in an honest effort to rehabilitate the sadly down at heels condition of grand opera in Chicago. It staged 40 performances of grand opera, which included a brilliant "Salomé" conducted by Artur Rodzinski and a "Rosenkavalier" with Fritz Reiner at the helm. It introduced Ballet theater to Chicago not only with the opera performances, but in a series of 11 notable ballet performances.

The deficit for the 1940 season was approximately $100,000 for the 51 performances, as against $28,000 for 26 performances in 1941 and 1942. The 1940 season incurred certain expenses which aided the seasons that followed. For one thing, it spent more than $10,000 renovating valuable costumes that were falling apart from neglect. For another, it spent more than $50,000 training a young chorus. Many of those young singers have disappeared from the company, some because of war, some for other reasons. But a few remain, and the idea was constructive.

• • •

Fortune Gallo.
[Blackstone photo.]

Because the deficit of $100,000 seemed crucial in difficult times, the Chicago Opera company again changed hands. In 1941 Fortune Gallo was made general director. Mr. Gallo had made opera pay for many a trouping season with the San Carlo Opera. For two seasons he has given Chicago 26 performances at a loss of slightly more than $1,000 a performance. Again this season, he announced a deficit of about $28,000, and remarked that Civic Opera house attendance was 90 per cent of seating capacity.

That word seating is important. It means that all the empty seats could have been the $4.40 ones, and so it works out to about 80 per cent of money capacity. If you enjoy this type of figuring, money capacity of the Civic Opera house at the $4.40 top is $10,038.50; at the lower Friday night scale it is $6,100. On the basis of 26 performances at 80 per cent of money capacity, the opera's income amounted to about $200,000. Add to this the $28,000 deficit and you strike an average cost of about $9,000 per performance.

Yet if you had taken some of these performances out of Civic Opera house settings they would have been of San Carlo rather than Chicago opera caliber, and the San Carlo opera used to make money playing the Auditorium at $1 and $1.50 top. Don't misunderstand me. I like the San Carlo opera, but I don't think Chicago should pay $4.40 to see it, or even $2.20.

• • •

Operatic values are hard things to put a firm finger on. It might interest you to know that Ravinia opera used to spend more than $65,000 a week on its seven performances with the great singers of the world on the stage and with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the pit. But operating costs have mounted with union scales, and Ravinia's tiny stage was a drop in the stagehand bucket compared to the Civic Opera house's mammoth stage towering 14 stories into the astonished air.

However, sticking to Civic Opera house costs, in many operatic instances they have come down. This season Chicago had 26 performances of 17 standard operas. Even "Halka" cost nothing extra because it had been given here repeatedly by the Poles. It was in no sense a new production. Back in the time of Mary Garden's sensational deficit there were 81 performances of 35 operas [not counting the tour] and many of them were expensive novelties. In the year of the huge Insull deficit there were 90 performances, again with the expected number of new productions.

• • •

Take, too, the item of taxes, which at least involves the production of opera. Back in 1931 Samuel Insull sought a reduction of nearly $5,000,000 in assessed valuation, claiming tax exemption on the opera house proper and the land it occupies on grounds of being an educational institution. The property has been given special consideration and a cut of 30 per cent on the whole building because it has the opera house. Today, this saves the building about $100,000 each year in taxes—the assessors consider the opera house a white elephant stable.

But lots of us like our white elephant and would be sorry to see it without a stable. Granted that the era of angels with checkbooks has vanished, and that guarantors are scarce; but subscribers are multiplying thru the land. Many people like to have a season of entertainment salted away in advance. The History and Enjoyment of Music series packs the Civic Opera house for its persuasive season of concerts, and this year the Theater guild had to add an extra week to take care of Chicago subscription demands. The blunt truth about Chicago opera is that many people who enjoy opera have ceased to subscribe for that very reason. The quality of performance is painfully inconsistent. They decided to pick individual performances rather than be stuck with subscription tickets for something second rate.

• • •

The 1942 season had, on the whole, a good standard of stellar performance based on the best voices available, a low standard of ensemble caused by opportunist casting and lack of rehearsal, and an almost nonexistent standard of conducting. It had, too, a consistent shortage of playbills, which deprived many a disappointed customer of a souvenir of his visit to grand opera.

However, it is true that the season was handicapped by last minute preparation and by an exchequer so bare it threatened to change the nursery rhyme to Papa Gallo's cupboard. It had serious losses from Lily Pons' cancellations and from her Soldiers' field failure to draw the expected crowd and thereby put a few bones in that cupboard. It had some excellent performances and some shockingly poor ones—more about those performances next Sunday. But it failed to establish a standard that would give hope for restoration of Chicago's dwindling prestige as a home of opera.

'RODEO' ON BALLET BILL

This may not look Russian, but it represents the major success of the 1942-'43 season of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, which opens an engagement of 13 performances at the Civic Opera house Christmas night. It is a scene from Agnes de Mille's "Rodeo," and is danced by Dorothy Etheridge and David Thimar.

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

Fritz Reiner.

On the heels of Gregor Piatigorsky's success at the Civic Opera house last Sunday comes his new album of Richard Strauss' "Don Quixote," recorded with Fritz Reiner and the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra Columbia M-506, five 12 inch records]. This is a set of such authority and brilliance that it immediately challenges the earlier recording by Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia orchestra with the late Emanuel Feuermann as soloist. I particularly like the dignity of Mr. Piatigorsky's playing, which has depth and tenderness, too. Mr. Reiner understands the swirling brilliance of Straussian orchestra, and gives the score point and precision.

• • •

Another Columbia success is the darkly vivid performance of Mozart's Quintet in G minor [Köchel 516], played by the Budapest Quartet with Milton Katims, violist [M-526, four 12 inch records]. This was played at Ravinia in 1941 with Milton Preves of the Chicago Symphony orchestra added to the Budapest four. On records, as at Ravinia, the performance is magnificent, with a glow, a spirit, and a poignancy that mesmerize the ear. Don't listen to the first side unless you mean to succumb.

• • •

Victor has a Bostonian feather in its recording cap, having celebrated the signing of a peace treaty between the Boston orchestra and the musicians' union by capturing Serge Koussevitzky and his brilliant crew on exclusive contract. Victor also will record the Boston "Pops" under Arthur Fiedler.—C. C.

Current Music News

Lily Pons.
[De Bellis Photo.]

The Metropolitan Opera company opens the fifth week of its New York season Monday evening with "Lucia di Lammermoor," starring Lily Pons, Jan Peerce, Leonard Warren, and Nicola Moscona, with Frank St. Leger conducting. Bidu Sayao will sing "Manon" Wednesday evening, with Charles Kullman, John Brownlee and Norman Cordon. Thursday offers Jarmila Novotna in her first "La Bohême," with Frederick Jagel and Salvatore Baccaloni. Friday night brings "Aïda," with Stella Roman, Hertha Glaz [debut], Lawrence Tibbett, Arthur Carron, Lansing Hatfield, and Nicola Moscona. Saturday afternoon's broadcast will be "The Magic Flute," with Josephine Antoine, Jarmila Novotna, Charles Kullman, Ezio Pinza and others. Saturday night is "La Traviata," with Licia Albanese, Jan Peerce, and Leonard Warren.

• • •

This afternoon's concert by the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra [broadcast from Carnegie hall over CBS at 3 o'clock] features Dimitri Mitropoulos as guest conductor in his arrangement of Bach's Prelude and Fugue in B minor, Krenek's variations on a folk song, "I Wonder as I Wander," and Rachmaninoff's symphonic dances. At the concerts next Thursday, Friday and Sunday, José Iturbi will play his own fantasy for piano and orchestra, and Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue.

• • •

The Indianapolis Symphony orchestra under the direction of Fabien Sevitzky is playing Verdi's Manzoni requiem today at the Murat theater, assisted by the Indianapolis Symphonic choir of 200 voices, and by Frances Cassard, soprano; Georgia Graves, contralto; Donald Gage, tenor, and John Macdonald, bass. At its concerts Jan. 9 and 10 the orchestra will play a revised version of John Alden Carpenter's music from "The Birthday of the Infanta." Alexander Brailowsky will be soloist, playing Rachmaninoff's concerto in C minor.

• • •

Leopold Stokowski's version of Shostakovich's seventh symphony will be heard at the United Artists theater starting Wednesday. The sound film was made at Camp Young in the California desert when the conductor led the 100 piece Los Angeles symphony in a performance for soldiers. Introductory speeches and narration are by Mme. Ivy Litvinoff and Edward G. Robinson.

• • •

The St. Louis Symphony orchestra under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann has Samuel Mayes as soloist this afternoon at the Municipal auditorium, playing Haydn's Concerto in D major for violoncello. The program also holds Kilpatrick's Four Ozark Dances and Bruckner's "Romantic" symphony. Next week will present Harry Farbman in Tschaikowsky's concerto for violin.

New Broadway Drama Is Built on an Old Theme

'Willow and I' Has Exciting, Tense Moments

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—Good sisters and bad sisters have been making drama for a good many years, beginning a couple of centuries before Goneril and Reagan drove their poor old pappy, King Lear, out into the storm. They inspired literally thousands of plays by being mean to Cinderella. Just a few years ago they were busy in "Seventh Heaven," and after that in "The Old Maid." And now they are back again in "The Willow and I," with Martha Scott and Barbara O'Neil.

Martha Scott.

John Patrick wrote this play some time before he joined up and was sent to Africa to assist with the landing operations. His only remembered previous play was one called "Hell Freezes Over." That, as it happens, was good enough to receive a couple of kind words from its critics, but not strong enough to live in the Broadway competition.

With "The Willow and I," Patrick writes of Bessie and Mara Sutro, who were in love with the same man. Bessie wasn't really a bad sister, but she was younger and sprightlier than Mara and she usually got what she wanted, even to all of Mara's favorite dresses. Which is to say she was possessed of all the common characteristics of bad sisters.

Bessie and Mara were both unmarried and well in their twenties when young Robin Todd came to their town to start a medical practice. Mara saw Robin first. He was tall and handsome and she knew right then that he was the boy for her. "I've been waiting for him all my life," she said the first day he called. "And he has been waiting for me to open the door."

• • •

Mara and Robin soon became engaged, which nettled Bessie terribly. At first she didn't show it so much, but when she saw Mara looking exceptionally lovely in her white satin wedding dress—this was back in 1900—she just couldn't stand it and went to get a gun with which to kill herself.

That was the inception of a tragedy that played hob with several lives. First Robin found Bessie in tears, tried to sympathize with her and finally wrote her a check for a year's art work in order to take her out of her depression.

Then Mara came, found the gun, saw the check, and demanded an explanation. Bessie would give none. There was a struggle, and the gun went off. Nobody was hurt, but Mara fainted. When she was roused from the faint she had lost her mind completely.

For 30 years after that Mara was no more than a walking automaton. Can you imagine! Bessie took care of her, trying to ease her own conscience. Bessie also married Robin and bore him a son who grew to look so much like his father that they could both be played by the same actor.

One night, when she was sitting by the window looking out upon the willow tree that her father had planted the day she was born, Mara recovered her memory. There was a crashing electrical storm at the moment, and that probably had something to do with it. At any rate, she immediately took up life where she had left it on her wedding day. She thought Robin's son was Robin. Couldn't understand why, or how, she had grown old and gray. Thirty years, of course, is a big jump for any actor.

An overplotted play, but one containing several exciting and moving dramatic moments. Miss Scott is lovely as Mara and Miss O'Neil dramatic as Bessie. Gregory Peck plays the two Todds, father and son. He is, I think, a promising young leading man and certain to win a generous popularity if the war doesn't get him.

• • •

It appears also that several stage workers are to be saved to the theater by the recent ruling that all volunteers 38 and over are to be politely returned to civil life. This served to free Ray Bolger, the dancing star of "By Jupiter." Ray's employers had been granted a 90-day deferment for him when his show was in rehearsal. By that time they figured they would have their original investment back. The three months are about up, and Bolger was growing eager for service when the 38 year limit went thru. Ray is 39.

Herman Shumlin and Oscar Serlin, producers, were also about to shoo off for their basic training. Shumlin had staged "The Great Big Doorstep" and announced it as his last play for the duration. Serlin had turned his business office and the direction of his "Life with Father" companies over to his wife. But they, too, are both past the limit and will probably be returned to Broadway.

Drama Notes

Tickets for "This Is the Army" go on sale at the Civic theater box office Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. From that time forward the ticket windows will be open daily from 10 in the morning to 9 in the evening. Experiences in other cities indicate that the early birds will be the ones to get seats. Neither mail nor telephone orders will be accepted under any circumstances.

The entire cast of Irving Berlin and 300 soldiers, the brilliant production, and the famed Berlin musical score will be intact. The company is now touring the principal cities of the country, and everywhere it has been the engagement has been a complete sellout. The show earned $625,000 in three months in New York and has garnered another $750,000 in its tour thus far. The Chicago engagement is limited to two weeks, beginning Jan. 4 and closing Jan. 16. Seats will be priced [for evening performances] at $4.40 and $3.30 for orchestra locations; $2.75 in the dress circle, and $2.20, $1.65, and $1.10 in the balcony. Matinée prices, for Wednesdays and Saturdays, range from $3.30 to $1.10. On opening night the seats which ordinarily sell for $4.40 will cost $11; the lower prices will be unchanged. All proceeds go to Army Emergency Relief.

"Priorities of 1942" will take a four day lay-off after today's schedule of three performances [at 2:30, 5:30, and 8:30]. The stellar variety show at the Erlanger will be closed from tomorrow thru Thursday, and will reopen with a special Christmas matinée on Friday. Only two more weeks of the engagement remain. The last Chicago performance will be given on Sunday, Jan. 3. The company will then visit the following cities: Dayton [Victory theater], Jan. 4 and 5; Louisville [Auditorium], Jan. 6; Indianapolis [English theater], Jan. 7-9; Milwaukee [Davidson theater], Jan. 10-16.

• • •

An extra New Year's day matinée has been added to the Blackstone theater schedule of "Good Night, Ladies." This makes three attractions offering special performances on the afternoon of Jan. 1. The others are "Junior Miss" and "Priorities of 1942."

• • •

No performances of "Jason" will be given by the Actors Company of Chicago on Wednesday or Friday this week. There will be performances tonight, Saturday, and next Sunday. Business at the little playhouse on the fourth floor at 218 South Wabash avenue is so rushing that "Jason" will probably continue thru most or all of January. "Guest in the House" will be presented about Feb. 1.

ALTHEA'S LITTLE GIFT

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

(Copyright: 1942: By Elizabeth Jordan.)

(Posed by Barbara Britton.)

Althea looked at him, and the look was enough. He didn't need to hear words.

EVEN her name was wrong, Althea told herself bitterly as she looked at Henry D. Stickney's check. Althea Howard! What did that mean to anybody? It was merely a pretentious name held by a plain girl of 25 who had been told that her only charms were her common sense and her fresh complexion.

They couldn't know that her dead father had named her for an actress he had once admired in his youth. But Henry D. Stickney, her employer, had told Althea she had good judgment; and Mary Grant, her only close girl friend, had once referred admiringly to Althea's complexion.

Now they were friends — real friends who discussed life and their acquaintances confidentially. Althea was rarely critical of any one, even at those moments. A nice feature of their association was that they were not jealous of each other. Althea was Henry D.'s private secretary. [Henry D. was what his staff called him.] Mary was merely the office secretary, writing the letters for the office manager, whose name was Cook, and for two young lawyers named Hall and Brown, who hardly realized that Althea was in the offices. They knew Mary was, and occasionally took her out to dinner. The principal thing on their minds was that they expected to be partners of Henry D. some day.

In the intervals they worked hard, and often worked Mary so hard that she complained of it to Althea. Althea sympathized with Mary about this, when she had time. She didn't often have time. Henry D. alone worked her much harder than Cook, Hall, and Brown worked Mary. Henry D. sometimes even made Althea stay at the offices till 8 or 9 o'clock in the evening.

Steak, Potatoes, and Pie for Dinner

If he realized that Althea would be kept very late, he ordered dinner sent up to her. It was the same kind of meal he ate himself and it consisted of steak, potatoes, and pie. It was a great improvement on the dinner Althea got at the boarding house where she and Mary now lived in connecting rooms on the third floor.

When Mary had an evening free from the attentions of her admirers, which was several times a week, she and Althea passed it together.

This was the way their lives were following the morning Althea received her check. It came from an aged grandaunt, who had died and left Althea her savings bank balance, less her debts and funeral expenses. When these were paid the balance of the account was $1,500, and Henry D., who had attended to the details of the little matter for Althea, had handed her the check that morning with a grim smile and a reference to her as "the heiress to this estate."

Althea took several dozen letters, but interrupted the writing of them that noon to take Mary to lunch.

"Why the treat?" Mary asked as they were unfolding their napkins.

"I'm an heiress," Althea said briskly. "I've just got Aunt Agnes' legacy."

"At last?" Mary grinned. "How much is it—clear?"

"Fifteen hundred."

"Really? Fifteen hundred dollars?"

"Yes. Aunt Agnes must have economized a lot to save so much. She had no bills and she had enough for all her funeral expenses, even a stone. I wish she had spent that money on herself for comforts," Althea added wistfully. "I don't know what to do with it."

"You - don't - know - what - to - do - with - fifteen - hundred - dollars?" Mary stared at her goggle eyed.

"The last time I visited Aunt Agnes," Althea explained, "she told me she was leaving me what she had saved, and she said she wanted me to spend it in the way that would give me the most pleasure in the way of good times."

"Good times!" Good heavens!" Mary's eyes were even bigger.

"Yes. Wasn't that odd? When she never spent anything for good times in her life!"

Mary nodded. For a long moment she was wordless. Then she rallied.

"What are you going to do with it?"

"I don't know yet, in detail. The first thing is this luncheon. What will you have?"

"You choose it." Mary was still dazed. "Did she say what kind of good times?" she added almost in a whisper.

"No. That's the rub. If she had, I wouldn't have any problem."

Mary watched and listened curiously as Althea gave the order. It was a good and sensible order—far beyond their usual one, but with nothing showy about it. Minced chicken, mashed potatoes, fresh peas, hot rolls, coffee, and apple cake for dessert.

"If I could have a luncheon like this every day," Mary sighed, "I'd be a better, nobler woman."

"You'd be a dyspeptic," Althea laughed. "The apple cake is good, but I wouldn't risk it every day if I had a million. What I really want to do with all this money," she added, "is to give a lot of people pleasure, not just myself. Aunt Agnes didn't say it must be my pleasure. It will have to be done in little ways, of course—and I'll credit each little meal or theater or concert or help in emergency to Aunt Agnes."

"Well, you've made a good start." Mary grinned at her. "Let me in on the future developments," she begged.

They talked as they ate. At last Althea paid the bill and gathered up her gloves and handbag. She grew serious.

"I'll tell you what I'm really going to do. I'll be glad to have your suggestions. But I have my plans fairly well shaped."

"I'll bet you have. And you've made a mighty good start. Besides, this is October and Christmas will soon be with us. What comes next on your list?"

Althea continued serious.

"A Christmas party in Aunt Agnes' home town. I'm going to have a girl I know out there round up all the youngsters Aunt Agnes liked and give them a gay little memorial party with lots of ice cream and cake and games. I'd do it myself if it weren't 400 miles away. So I'll ask Lily Carroll, my one close friend there, to do it at Aunt Agnes' expense. Lily will love it. She likes to entertain but can't afford it herself. This will be a simple affair. There aren't more than 20 youngsters in the village. Lily can invite them all."

"Good enough," Mary said without enthusiasm. "All the village children will be sick but happy. But it seems to me you'll be frittering away your money. You won't have anything to show for it."

"I'll have a group photograph of the children—gorging and playing games. They are mostly children of millhands. They don't have many pleasures. They'll have one good time."

Mary looked at her curiously.

"You're going to have a grand time planning!" she said reflectively. "I can see that plain enough."

"Don't tease me—but I am. I don't know whether I've told you about my pet hobby." Althea went on as they walked back to the office. "I'm going to now. I think we all miss a lot of chances to do little things for people. We can't find any small things that seem worth while, so we don't do anything. You see what I mean?"

"I guess so." But Mary spoke doubtfully.

"I've had generous impulses all my life," Althea went on. "Most of them were stillborn. Unless they were very small things, I couldn't afford them. I had one lesson three years ago I never forgot." She turned a quick glance on her friend. "Have you ever thought of the life Rosie leads?"

"Rosie — you mean our laundress?"

"Yes."

Mary shook her head.

"Well, Rosie came with my laundry one autumn night about three years ago. There was a big rainstorm and she was soaked thru. I made her take off her soaked shoes and stockings and her wet coat and I put them all beside my radiator to get dry, and I made tea for her and we talked. When her clothes were dry I sent her home in a taxicab. She has never forgotten that. She talks about it a lot."

"I should think she would." Mary was staring at Althea with sudden understanding.

"Rosie's a widow with one child, Jimmie, a boy, 13," Althea went on. "He has infantile paralysis, but he's getting better. Rosie got him a second-hand wheel chair thru a Dr. Boyesen, a nice young Norwegian who's treating the youngster. Now Jimmie can wheel himself around their two rooms. They have a bedroom and kitchen. The kitchen is their sitting room. I've been there to see them. The place is as neat as wax. So is Jimmie.

Learns Jimmie Likes to Read

"I found he loved to read," she continued, as Mary seemed interested. "So I made out a list of library books. Jimmie has read "Tom Sawyer" and "Moby Dick" and "Treasure Island" and "Little Men" and a lot of others. With some of Aunt Agnes' money I'm going to give him books of his own—"Captains Courageous" and other books—to read and re-read. He's a bright kid. Books have changed life for him. Dr. Boyesen, who looks after him, is wonderful. He's supplying him with medicines and braces and things. But he says the books I suggest are doing him more good than his medical aids. He says what the boy needed was a big new interest. Now he's got it."

"That's worth while!" Mary's tone was warm. Here was something she could understand. "I begin to understand where your money has been going," she said. "I've often wondered, for you spend so little on yourself. What else have you done?" she added eagerly.

"They're such trifles. Josie Warren, in our mailing department, has a mother who's an invalid. Like Jimmie she lives in a wheel chair and is alone all day. I'm going to give her one of those cheap little portable radios and keep up the battery for her. That's one of the first things I'll buy. I won't even wait till Christmas."

"You know——" Mary spoke slowly, an oddly serious look on her pretty little face, "these things you're doing don't mean just gifts you're giving folks. I suppose a highbrow would say they're developing influences. What else are you doing?"

"Well, have you ever noticed our landlady's daughter? She's mad about music—not canned, from a phonograph or even a radio. She wants to see the singers and musicians. She dreams about them afterward. She can't afford even the gallery at concerts. I've taken her to two concerts this season. Remember one night you couldn't go at the last minute? But the other night she was with us."

"I know. That was Kreisler's recital. She never opened her mouth all evening."

"She couldn't. Too thrilled. Her mother says she's never stopped talking about it."

"You're a peach, Althea," Mary said suddenly. "I've been selfish. But I haven't any legacy to distribute," she added with a grin.

Althea sounded a note of warning.

"Remember," she said urgently, "you're not to mention anything to a soul about my small gifts or my protégés. Whatever I do is between them and me and always will be."

There were soon two others in the secret. In the case of Henry D. the knowledge was an accident. Henry's office boy, Joe, whose mother was having her troubles with a drunken husband, was not able to keep Joe up to the sartorial standard of the Stickney offices.

"Why doesn't that kid's mother put some decent shoes on his feet?" Henry D. demanded of Althea one cold day in early November. "His toes are out of his shoes. That sort of thing doesn't look well in an office."

Althea investigated. Joe confessed that his mother's domestic budget wouldn't run to shoes for him till the end of the following month. The baby had been sick and medical bills had to be paid and his father spent most of their money.

Althea Takes Joe to Get New Shoes

Althea went to Joe's home that evening. Joseph Sr. was at home and happened to be sober. He had a job and was earning what he called "good money." But he had been on various little binges the previous week and had spent his month's salary. He offered Althea his I. O. U. for the shoe money and she took Joe to a shop that evening and bought the new shoes. Incidentally she suggested to Joseph's wife that Joseph might be taken to court and there allowed to make his choice between supporting his family and being sent to the workhouse.

Joseph Sr. was intensely annoyed by the enthusiasm with which this plan, a new one to her, was greeted by his wife. He referred passionately to "nosy females." But he was also frightened. He agreed to turn over his wages thereafter to his wife as soon as he received them. A new responsibility was added to Althea's life. Mrs. Joseph Sr. formed the habit of telephoning Althea about her troubles. Henry D. overheard one of the conversations.

"Was it you who gave Joe those new shoes he's sporting?" he asked. "I'll pay for them. We can't have you clothing the staff. How much were they?"

Althea's face burned. She was ex-

Good-Natured Giant of Woods Stalks Thru Historical Tale

"SIMON HASTINGS," by F. M. Tibbott. [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.50.]

Reviewed By Kenneth C. Kaufman.

Those who can take their historical fiction or let it alone will be richly rewarded either way by this warm story of Maine in the quarter century centering around the Civil war. For the historical element is felt, but it is so filtered thru a weft of personal and regional weal and woe that the war, its causes and effects, its draft evasions and its empty sleeves, dims out to a kind of unrealness, a far-off tale even while its events are going on. The flavor of an epoch remains, but its world shaking events are only eddies, rippling in a backwater.

It all began when a furious courtship, followed by a hectic 10 day honeymoon, followed in turn by a boardinghouse fire, left Cora a widow and an expectant mother, up in the edge of the lumber country. Her first husband was a great Viking of a man, mad about whisky and the big woods. Cora almost at once married slow, unexciting Temple Thurston, largely as a matter of self-preservation, and the two moved up north to Council Rock, to a lovely little Maine village and a good farm, where, theoretically, nothing would be known about the immediate past, and where no questions would be asked. Here was born Simon Hasting's son, named for his two-fisted father, and like him, seemingly, born with the love of an axe in him.

• • •

His mother determined that he should not follow in his father's steps, but nature or fate has a way of settling such matters. Cora and Temp had a family of their own; Wash, with an odd quirk in his nature, making him hate where he would have liked to love, and Parker, an ugly degenerate, plain bad thru and thru; and two or three girls, one of whom was to grow up and marry Simon's best friend.

The story falls into two parts: that of Cora and Temp and of Simon's boyhood, and that of Simon's leaving home, getting into the lumber business with a thoroly likeable roughneck for a partner, and finally waking up to the realization that one of the home town girls meant just a trifle more to him than the lure of the woods. It is no more than fair to say, however, that she won only after a falling log had crushed both his legs, slightly, but not permanently incapacitating him.

The situation is full of possibilities, some of which Mr. Tibbott handles in the conventional manner; there is the matter of the money Simon's father had left him, but so casually that the "wicked brothers" almost cheated him out of it; the hatred of the toadlike Parker and his preoccupation with arson as a mode of revenge; the danger and romance of logging and driving; and the dark undercurrents, even in this quiet village, of hate and greed.

• • •

These are used, one would say, just enough to keep up the tension, but Mr. Tibbot resists the temptation to melodrama, and settles down to a heart-warming story of village life with its small, but terrifically important problems and worries, its great kindness, wit and good humor, its spirit of neighborliness and coöperation. Simon Hastings might easily have been a double-jointed whirlwind of destruction, instead of a good natured giant with a head full of sense and a heart of gold, who had much rather help his fellow man in such crises as forest fire and devastating drought than to break his jaw in a brawl or steal a million in lumber leases. And when his fellow townsmen reward him by sending him to the state legislature with more than a hint of a seat in the United States senate in the offing, the reader gets a quiet glow of satisfaction rather than a sense of elation.

A thoroly satisfying tale, as homely as baked beans for Saturday night supper, and as flavorsome and tangy as Maine cider.

New Volumes for Lovers of the Outdoors

"NEW ENGLAND GROUSE SHOOTING," by William Harnden Foster. [Scribner's, $8.50.]

Reviewed by Bob Becker.

When an accomplished naturalist and ardent outdoorsman is able not only to write with authority and clarity but also illustrate his work, one may expect the result to be a sporting classic. That is exactly what Mr. Foster accomplished in this monumental work on the partridge or grouse, which rightfully has been called by many sportsmen the greatest of all game birds.

A hunter need read only a few pages of this remarkable volume to realize that into its text has gone a lifelong study of the subject, for the author has covered every angle of grouse hunting. There are chapters on the changed habits of the modern grouse, what constitutes the ideal grouse dog, sensible grouse loads and guns, and expert tips on how to shoot these fast, sporty birds of the forest. The author's sympathetic and authoritative discussion of the breeds of dogs for grouse hunting and how to train them will be of interest to every sportsman, even if he never has known the thrills of a "partridge" hunt.

Both the text and the many beautiful drawings indicate that this was a labor of love by a man who did not live to see his book published. Rich in detail, set against such a real atmosphere of colorful autumn woods, it should be a must on every sportsman's list.

• • •

"GUN DOGS AFIELD," by Horace Lytle. [Putnam's, $5.]

An enthusiastic hunter and authority on bird dogs has assembled in this book some of his most memorable hunting experiences over topnotch dogs. Thus the volume is an opportunity for the upland game hunter to take a number of exciting trips with an enthusiast who is widely known as an authority on gun dogs.

Mr. Lytle not only knows his setters and pointers, but he has owned some great ones. He relates his experiences with them in a vivid manner. Smada Byrd, the great Irish setter; Sam Illsey, and other topnotch bird finders are among the featured canine experts in this delightful group of stories. The group carries the sportsman from the Illinois prairies to the pine studded fields of Florida, where the author abandoned horses as a means of transportation to experiment with one of our favorite methods of hunting southern quail—by means of an old car that rambles thru the fields and pine woods behind the setters and pointers.

This is a book that will call up memories for every sportsman. Lynn Bogue Hunt's superb illustrations enhance its popular appeal.

Swiftly Moving Love Story Laid in New Orleans

"CRESCENT CARNIVAL," by Frances Parkinson Keyes. [Messner, $3.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly.

"Crescent Carnival" is a lavish, panoramic novel of New Orleans, rich and vivid, with colorful photographic detail. It moves swiftly with a story of three generations of men, grandfather, father, and son, all named Andrew Breckenbridge and all falling in love in turn with the mother, daughter, and granddaughter of the same family, lovely, petal-skinned belles of New Orleans' brilliant society.

The frank emotionalism and romanticism stands out against the bright swirl of the southern city caught in the celebration of the renowned Mardi Gras. The first Andrew Breckenridge, a dashing widower and man about town, fell in love with Estelle Lenoir, protected and domineered daughter of one of the town's most prominent families.

At the carnival ball, the first Breckenbridge gave his favored lady a small hand-mirror rimmed with diamonds. That mirror with its combination of frankness and brilliance was a symbol of his love. But because she feared the scandal connected with his name and because her parents had already promised her to another suitor, Estelle quelled the feelings in her heart and married another man.

Later Andy Breckenbridge was drowned at sea. His young son, Breck, grew up to marry a girl from Boston whose cold nature could not adapt itself to the warm pageantry of Louisiana. He came back to fall in love with Estelle's 17 year old daughter, Marie Celeste.

The tragic affair was brought to an end when Breck was drowned in the swollen waters of the Mississippi while trying to rescue his son, Drew. Marie Celeste entered the convent in sorrow but her insipid, dandy brother, Olivier, married and had a daughter, Stella, to carry on the tragic Breckenbridge love tradition with Drew.

"WISH I KNEW A GOOD BOOK TO READ"

WOMEN! Send for this FREE LIST of books of special interest to women

Would you like an up-to-the-minute list of new books of special interest to women?

So many good books come from the presses these days that it is difficult to keep up with them all. To help readers keep informed of worthwhile titles in fields which particularly interest them, the Tribune is offering a new free book list service.

Added this week to the lists previously offered in this series is a new one of particular interest to women. Entitled "Wartime Reading for Women," it classifies current books in three main divisions: Books of fiction books more or less frivolous, and books more or less practical.

All the books on this new list are not about war. Much of the fiction listed has nothing to do with war, while the purpose of many of the books in the practical group is to help you manage your home and personal affairs with greater success during these unusual times.

You are invited to write for this new list and take advantage of the Tribune's new service for readers. Note the coupon below. It includes the new list, together with previously announced lists of books covering varicus phases of World War II. Just tear out the coupon, check the list or lists you want, and mail with a stamped and self-addressed envelope. Fill in and mail today!

Dorben Dancers Win Plaudits at Edgewater Beach

Morgan Back on Bandstand for Long Run

By Will Davidson.

This is by way of presenting a typographical bouquet to Dorothy Dorben for her splendid new production, "China Nights," in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Russ Morgan. [Bruno of Hollywood Photo.]

Dorothy, in the years that she has danced with and directed the Beach's line, has always been outstanding. Her solo work was rich in imagination and feeling, and disciplined with a talent that bespoke long training. Her direction has been always effective, and faced with a relentless two week timetable, she has evidenced a versatility in producing routines that is little short of amazing.

Never has Dorothy done a more spectacular or satisfying job than on this new production, however. I am no authority on Chinese dance forms, but in their simplicity and their beauty these seem obviously faithful and authentic. At least they are tremendously pleasing. Costuming is superb. The gowns were hand embroidered in Hongkong, and are rich with hand-sewn sequins. Two ceiling-high drapes in rich Chinese design flank the orchestra and provide a tremendously effective atmosphere.

The Dorben dancers do two numbers—a temple dance, and a sinuous one to Shostokovitch's "Golden Age." The girls never were better.

• • •

To Russ Morgan, whose band has just returned for a long run, must go credit for playing the difficult music richly and easily. And to the anonymous electrician, a bow for some most effective lighting.

An integral part of this revue is the singing of Richard Gordon, long a Chicago favorite. Dick sings a wide variety of numbers, ranging from the inevitable "Rio Rita" medley to the stirring Chinese army marching song.

The Wen Hai Chinese acrobatic troupe is the flash act in this show. Expert tumblers and gymnasts, they are amazing. And entertaining.

The Morgan music is as solid as ever, and I don't know any single number that is more exciting than his show version of "Johnston Rag." Russ' affable manner on the floor adds to the pleasure of this revue, too. Old King Coal, who was a miner back in Scranton's anthracite fields, is a major in the music field.

What happened to the Drake and Blackstone over last week-end shouldn't, as Jackie Miles puts it, happen to a dog. A big dog—a little one couldn't handle it. All unsuspecting, the Blackstone booked the Revuers, a group of five young persons who had built themselves some tremendous publicity and some good New York dates, on a Greenwich Village idea of smart satire. Either New York has a unique yardstick for talent, or the kids hit a slump, for Renée De Marco is now back in the august Mayfair room, and Gali Gali, the gentle magician, filled in all this week. Up at the Drake the mugging Murtah sisters burst in upon the sedate splendor of Camellia House, and the gasp hasn't quit echoing thru the lobby yet. Camellia House can well enjoy robust humor and corny singing, if it has a touch of subtlety, but these undergowned young facial contortionists ruin what might be some pretty fair harmony singing by not realizing that it is well, in Rome, to do what the Romans enjoy.

A grand chance is being offered Chicagoans to help bring real Christmas to service men who will not be able to get away from their stations on the holiday. The amusement and recreation division of the Chicago commission on national defense has placed barrels in most of the city's main theaters, and we are asked to drop in them packs of cigarets, razor blades, chewing gum, candy, and any such little item that will please a soldier or sailor. These will be distributed on Christmas eve to the three Chicago service centers and to the camps and stations in this vicinity. In addition, the commission is arranging for programs of music and carols, and probably could use any money you might want to send in. Hal Halperin of the executive board of the amusement and recreation division, will be glad to accept contributions, I'm sure. The commission's address is 174-176 West Washington street. . . . Merry Christmas!

Notes of Music and Musicians

The Apollo Musical club, now in its 71st year, will appear at Orchestra hall this season in two major performances, both under the direction of Edgar Nelson. The first is Handel's "The Messiah," to be sung Monday evening, Dec. 28, with members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and soloists including Louise Hoe Moller, soprano; Mona Bradford, contralto; Lucius Metz, tenor, and John Macdonald, bass. On April 6 the club will present Beethoven's Missa Solemnis with Esther Hart, Virginia Auyer, Charles Sears, and Mark Love as soloists.

Christmas week means a holiday for the Chicago Symphony orchestra, which returns to Orchestra hall Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 29, when Artur Rubinstein plays Tschaikowsky's concerto for piano, B flat minor, under the direction of Hans Lange. Mr. Rubinstein also appears at the midweek concerts, playing Brahms' concerto in B flat major on a program which features the first performance of Arne Oldberg's fourth symphony, and David Van Vactor's second Overture to a Comedy, conducted by the composer. Next week the Thursday concert, New Year's eve, will start at 8:45, and the Friday concert, New Year's day, at 3:30.

• • •

The Saidenberg symphonietta, conducted by Daniel Saidenberg, will appear at Thorne hall [Lake Shore drive and Superior street] today at 3 o'clock in a concert to benefit Russian war relief. The program:

Prelude and Scherzo..............Shostakovich
Sinfonietta, opus 32, No. 2....Miaskowsky
Serenade in C major for string orchestra ........................Tschaikowsky

• • •

The Swedish Choral club, one of the outstanding organizations of its type, will appear at Orchestra hall today at 3 o'clock in a performance of Handel's "The Messiah" under the direction of Harry T. Carlson. Soloists are Kathryn Witwer, soprano; Ruth Slater, contralto; William Miller, tenor, and Mark Love, bass. Accompaniment will be furnished by 45 members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and Stanley Martin, organist.

Chicago musicians are mourning the loss of Mrs. Archibald E. Freer, who died at her home here a week ago today. Mrs. Freer, who composed under the name of Eleanor Everest Freer, was particularly interested in opera in English and had written a number of operas, including "The Legend of the Piper," "The Brownings Go to Italy," "Little Women," and "The Masque of Pandora." She also set many poems to music.

Good Morning!

The misunderstood and incredibly hapless Henry Aldrich, who counts his radio fans by the thousands, mixes with arson in this movie and gets his tail feathers burned.

"Small Town Boy Makes TOO Good" would be an apt title for the piece because Henry, as editor of his high school paper, turns out a remarkable bit of imaginative and attention-compelling reporting that starts all the ruckus. His ambition to be a great news chronicler causes him to see more in the ashes of a fire than is discernible to other human eyes. . . . His lurid story lays blame at certain doors and brings furies charging down upon his father and his school with libel and other suits. . . . He gets yet deeper in the mire thru the ministrations of his friend Dizzy.

• • •

The latter, cornered, also has a brainstorm. He wishes a dying father on Henry. . . . Sam Aldrich [really in the best of health] is quite a prominent man in town affairs, as you know if you follow the radio serial, and the news of his imminent decease focuses on the Aldrich ménage no less important eyes than those of his honor, the mayor. . . .

Fire after fire of mysterious origin starts in the town. . . . Henry's truthful tale about a little man named Nero, who carries a violin case, nearly lands the narrator in the booby hatch. But God's in his heaven. . . . The audience leaves laughing—with a shade of commiseration in the laughter. Because Henry, well out of one fire, faces a new frying pan as the action ends.

• • •

Jimmy Lydon, skinny and wistful, wowed the audience who loved everything about him, especially his "changing" voice. . . . Charles Smith is a grand Dizzy, and other players—especially Francis Pierlot as Nero—are tops.

The yarn is hokum, of course—but it's nice, clean, amusing hokum.

See you tomorrow.

Aviation Movie Solves Problem for Director

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 6 (AP).—In the dear dead days before the advent of sound, the movie director had a lovely time. He could yell and scream at his actors while they were going thru a scene. He could play mood music for temperamental actresses. He and his cast could chat like mad, regardless of the fact that the camera was grinding.

But, came sound. And motion picture production put a warning finger across its lips. It bound and gagged any one who dared to breathe while a scene was in progress.

Richard Wallace, after many years of frustration, has finally found himself in a spot where he can again instruct his players orally as they read their lines.

He is making "Bombardier" for RKO, and, of course, the actors' costumes include flying helmets. Into each of these, Wallace has had built what is laughingly called a "hush phone" receiver, by which his actors can hear him but the sound track microphone cannot.

It works beautifully. So beautifully, in fact, that he directed Pat O'Brien, Randy Scott, and Robert Ryan in one of the longest uninterrupted scenes on record the other day. Whispering sweet nothings into their ears, Wallace let the cameras grind for over six minutes. And that, for pictures, is comparable to filming "Gone with the Wind" in one day.

Ancient Fire Engines.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—(AP).—Three fire engines of the 1860 period were obtained from a museum for a conflagration scene in "Dixie," a picture of early days.

SECOND RUN

This is Edward G. Robinson as he appears in a scene from "Tales of Manhattan." The film's having a second run at McVickers.

Movie Song and Dance Man a Flop as Acrobat

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. (AP).—As an acrobat actor Jack Carson says he literally is a flop. Appearing recently at a Philadelphia theater, Carson thought he'd clown a bit with the allez-oop boys in an acrobatic act. But he fell, injuring his back so badly he had to temporarily postpone his song and dance numbers for his current picture, "Thank Your Lucky Stars."

Injured Stunt Man Now Imitates Wooden Indians

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. (AP).—Duke York was a movie stunt man before he broke his back in an automobile crackup. Now he impersonates such things as cigar store Indians and statues.

Beards Study Moral Quality of U. S. Rise

THE AMERICAN SPIRIT, by Charles A. and Mary R. Beard. [Macmillan, $5.]

Reviewed by John Abbot Clark.

In his latest, and in many respects most valuable and certainly most timely, addition to their "Rise of American Civilization" series, the Beards point out that whereas in the earlier volumes they dealt largely with the outward aspects of our civilization, in this book they emphasize "the intellectual and moral qualities that Americans have deemed necessary to civilization."

After reading this 700 page study of the idea of civilization in the United States, to borrow the words of the subtitle, only a rank ingrate would raise material doubts as to the authors' success in doing admirably — if not always brilliantly, fairly, or altogether adequately — what they set out to do. And what it is they do, the reader, in justice to everybody concerned, ought to find out for himself.

• • •

This volume deserves to be judged by the highest critical and intellectual standards. Even an attempt to describe it fully would call for another book — and not such a small one at that. "The American Spirit," we believe, will take its place on the shelf that already holds Bryce, Babbitt's "Democracy and Leadership," Parrington, Santayana's "Character and Opinion in the United States," Beard, Miller and Johnson's "The Puritans," and Clive Bell's "Civilization."

For quite some time now hardly a week has gone by that we haven't had at least three books exposing the Nazi terror, and at least two praising democracy. We fear, however, that neither exaggeration-proof denunciations of Hitlerism nor vague, starry-eyed incantations to democracy, just democracy, will save us. It is also true, moreover, that American civilization will hardly be preserved by multiple definition. Nevertheless, "The American Spirit," which consists mainly of long, sustained quotations from hundreds of Americans who had something meaningful to say about the nature of civilization, will stand us in good stead in the dark days that are surely in the offing.

• • •

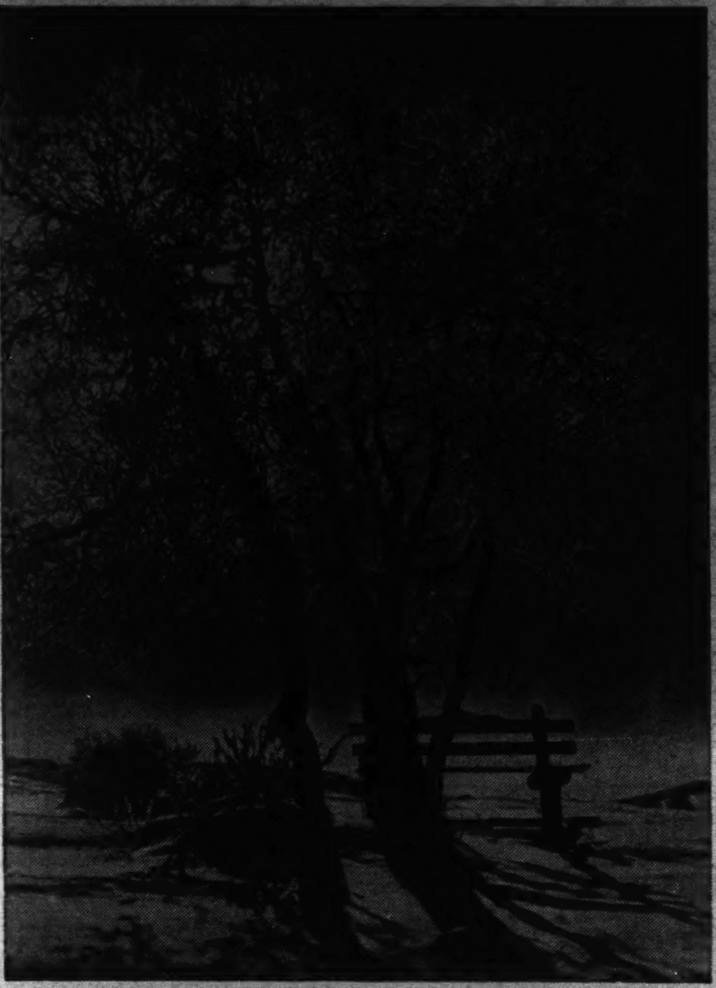
After a not too close or leisurely reading of this book — and not many volumes of recent years are more deserving of study and meditation — we noticed a few things that appeared to us, anyway, as defects: Altho the authors had every right, if not every good reason, to begin their study around 1776 instead of 1607 or 1620, the book would have been the stronger for at least a cursory survey of Puritan and colonial contributions. We question, too, the advisability of trying to bring the record right down to the present moment. The newspapers and magazines often order those matters more appropriately, if not better, than the historians.

In the chapters on foreign criticisms there are a number of serious omissions, as well as a tendency on the part of the authors to take patriotic umbrage a little too quickly. Several other sections of the book have an air of provinciality about them, too — not necessarily because of too much empirical native foreground, but because of too little humanistic and religious world background. Also, certain concepts of civilization, and we are thinking particularly of the chapter "In the Sectional Struggle," are not always espoused by their ablest spokesmen. Nor are those same concepts always opposed, either, by their most serious and searching critics, as witness Mark Twain's diatribe on Sir Walter Scott and southern culture, which is good fun, but hardly worthy of the uses to which the Beards put it.

• • •

Many of the writers quoted in this volume, often with the tacit approval of the Beards, seem to confuse the idea of progress — which idea the last war was supposed to have killed and which the present one hasn't exactly resurrected — with the idea of civilization. Too much space is given to "progress" books like "Whither Mankind?" and too little to "civilization" books like Benda's "Treason of the Intellectuals." In other words, there is too much George Dorsey, too little George Santayana.

But enough of fault finding. In one of the most interesting chapters, the one dealing with the origins both of the word and the idea of civilization, we are told that Dr. Johnson refused to include the then fairly new word "civilization" in his dictionary. He insisted upon settling for "civility." And the more we think about it, remembering Hegel, Spengler, et al., the less sure we are that before we get thru with Hitler & Co., and before the over-all planners get thru with us, even the word "civility" may not strike all of us as being a pretty grandiose, pretentious, visionary term. But whether or no that time ever comes, we should be grateful for such a book as "The American Spirit," which serves to remind us that an ideal cannot wait for its realization to prove its validity."



"Soleil d'Hiver" (Winter Sun), by Arthur Neustadt from "Photograms of the Year."

"Listen, Hans" Is Pretty Mild for Bellicose Miss Thompson

"LISTEN, HANS," by Dorothy Thompson. [Houghton, Mifflin, $2.50.]

Reviewed By Dr. Melchior Palyi.

We all know Dorothy Thompson's penetrating persuasiveness in calling men to arms. This time, she asks men to lay down their arms and does so without her customary aggressiveness. She used to blow trumpets; now she plays the flute. The fiery orator who formerly covered her opponents with accusations and invectives talks to the enemy with an almost apostolic mildness.

Frankly, the new Dorothy Thompson is very strange. She expands the four freedoms to an all-embracing humanitarianism. [We Americans, she says, might have to raise our moral standards and lower our standards of living.] The Germans should join the federation of socialistic republics she propagates, and pronto they will get freedom from fear and want, and more freedoms.

Are such promises to Germany, at the present juncture, wishful thinking that ignores all the antagonism and distrust, the interest conflicts, and other realities? Or is it just propaganda? And how will "Hans," the German to whom the broadcasts collected in this volume were addressed, take it?

• • •

Of course, Dorothy Thompson hates Nazism passionately, but in her attempt to understand the perplexing German mind she goes a long way in condoning it. She swallowed the nonsense of Geo-Politics: that Germany's frontiers had not been "consolidated," due to geographic and historic reasons. Unfortunately, she knows little of German history—somebody should have corrected flagrant errors in her manuscript—and still less of German psychology and economic problems.

She does not realize that, having conceded the myth of the reich's historical and geographic misfortunes [in reality, it was growing to be the most progressive and prosperous country of Europe until it went haywire in 1914], she has accepted much of the ground on which the Nazis stand. Her arguments for socialism are the fallacies used by Hitler against "demo-plutocracy." Her theory that Europe must be united, or else, is an equally dubious item of the Nazi inventory. Miss Thompson tries so hard to be fair that she turns at times—unwittingly, of course—into a sort of "appeaser" in the realm of political theories.

• • •

The first half of the book explains and expounds the short-wave messages contained in the second. The whole is called "psychological warfare." As such, it is a stillborn attempt. German intellectuals do not need to be propagandized, and have no say anyway. To argue with the Nazi rank and file by reference to Hegel and Nietzsche, or on our ethical standards, is just as smart as trying to impress on a hillbilly the logic of Aristotle.

Jefferson's Life Revealingly Told

the British ambassador, Merry, and his shrewish wife waged war on the lack of established precedents at the Presidential table. Jefferson told them that "pele mele" was the rule and that no American would consent to attend a dinner where he had to occupy an inferior seat; he informed them they could no more dictate Washington social customs than an American could set them at St. James'.

A friend who visited Monticello has related his belief that Jefferson was a screwball. "What else could you say of a man who hated to have people pass him on the stairs and therefore built a narrow one in as a spiral?" he asked.

Mayo's work makes it plain that Jefferson was completely intelligent, even tho he left off his own directed epitaph the fact that he had been President. To him the Declaration of Independence, the Virginia statute of relgious freedom, and the University of Virginia, which he founded, were more important.

Probably as clear a description of Jefferson as could be had in any one volume—that's "Jefferson Himself."

THE ENJOYMENT OF ART IN AMERICA, by Regina Shoolman and Charles E. Slatkin. This great volume brings into your home 739 superb illustrations of the world's great art from pre-historic to modern times. It contains the cream of the great American public collections and is the first and only book that represents all of the great cultural achievements of mankind that have migrated to America during the last half-century. The illustrations are authoritative and accurate. The text is admirable in its scholarship and clarity. It would please Mother to receive such a sumptuous gift. $10.00

LISTEN, HANS! by Dorothy Thompson. In which America's outstanding woman columnist and radio commentator addresses a Nazi official, personally, telling him about the real United States which he never knew and contrasting it with the German situation. In this way, she gives us the clues to the German mind revealed for the reader to see for himself and also the lessons of German history and geography, society and culture, which we must learn. Dad will be proud to add it to his library. $2.50

THE THREE BAMBOOS, by Robert Standish. Told as fiction by a man who has lived for years in Japan and knows the country first hand, here is a story of how a Japanese family yielded to the influence of the industrial era and became one of the wealthiest and most powerful in Japan. This authentic novel sheds a clear, cold light upon the complexities of Japanese character, showing them as they really are with their fanatical hatred of the foreigner and their boundless ambition. An exciting gift for Uncle John. $2.75

THE RAFT, by Robert Trumbull. One of the finest epics of this war. Recounts the thrilling experience of three navy fliers who fought the sea for 34 days while they drifted in a rubber raft without food, equipment, and for sometime without clothes, yet survived to land weak and famished on a strange shore. As a desperate struggle against the sea, this tale far surpasses Capt. Bligh's famous voyage. An inspiring story, send it to that Ensign. $2.50

A MATHEMATICS REFRESHER, by A. Hooper. War work requires thousands of people to use their half forgotten knowledge of mathematics. Here is a book, simple and concise, that makes you feel at home among decimals, square roots, equations and ratios. Written by a famed R. A. F. instructor, it is practical and streamlined and presented in an interesting manner. For your friend Harry, now engaged in war work. $2.50

THE STORY OF PANCHO AND THE BULL WITH THE CROOKED TAIL, written and illustrated by Berta and Elmer Hader. The ever popular and clever Haders give us a new, gaily colored picture book which tells the story of the small Mexican boy who quite unexpectedly became a hero. A wild bull with a crooked tail was coaxing away the best cattle in the herd belonging to Don Fernando, richest man in the village. He offered a handsome prize for his capture, and how Pancho, the potter's son, who had no swift horse or fine lasso, turned the trick and won the prize makes an exciting story for children from ages 6 to 8. Little Georgie will have a lot of fun with it. $2.00

"THE PRICKING THUMB," by H. C. Branson. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]

Reviewed by Drexel Drake.

When the curtain rises on this story there seems to be a readily acceptable explanation of the triple tragedy revealed. It appears to be obvious, from the physical aspects as well as from the talk that has been going around the town for many months, that the wealthy Gouvion Holland shot and killed his wife, Marina, and Dr. Brian Calvert, while the two were together in the doctor's home, and immediately returned to his own nearby home and killed himself with a third bullet from the same revolver.

The members of both families, the police, and even the district attorney are in favor of accepting that explanation, and John Bent, private investigator and friend of Marina, has little to start with in his determination to break thru to the facts. Bent is a fictional detective to be applauded. He does not intrude his personality or affect mannerisms, but he displays brilliant thoroness in following minute details and putting pieces together to solve a puzzle. His work alone sustains interest. Which makes it difficult to understand why the author stepped down from an admirable plane of writing to add a fantastic, melodramatic finale. Exciting finish, but discordant with the more meritorious workmanship up to that point.

"MURDER ENTERS THE PICTURE," by Willetta Ann Barber and R. F. Schabelitz. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

Just as this work itself is jointly produced, so in the story do Sherry Storm, who narrates the tale, and her sketch artist husband, Kit, employ their combined talents to solve a murder that upsets the large Mint family, complicated with various generations and numerous branches. Kit always has pad and pencil with him and his sketches of scenes and clews are first aid in unraveling the mystery. Incidentally their reproduction brightly illuminates the book as well as improves the opportunity of the reader to follow the proceedings.

"THE FOURTH MYSTERY BOOK." [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.]

This annual contains six short mysteries, all of first grade quality and interest and representative of a wide range in background and characters. Included are "The Lipstick," by Mary Roberts Rinehart; "Deadly Is the Diamond," by Mignon G. Eberhart; "Troubled Waters," by Philip Wylie; "Cat and Mouse," by Hugh Pentecost; "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead," by Dana Lyon, and "Death Rides the Ski Tow," by Q. Patrick. Dana Lyon, newcomer among the authors, contributes an amazingly constructed story of murder, perjury, and vengeance. As a whole this volume is a generous portion of pleasure for any reader who enjoys detective stories.

"MURDER GOES ROLLING ALONG," by H. F. S. Moore. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

There is so much cattiness among officers' wives, sisters, and sweethearts in this particular cocktail set at Fort Bragg, and so many feuds are carried over from civilian life by some of the officers themselves, that by the time Capt. Stockton's second wife, Elaine, meets sudden death theories and suspects are abundant. The story becomes one of complicated weighing and discarding of circumstances until the correct answer to the puzzle is found. The personnel in the story is too large to become accurately acquainted, but interesting situations and snatches of bright dialog enliven the tale. The author admits that "a few minor liberties" have been taken with the Fort Bragg background.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

WE WERE invited to meet and have lunch with Lloyd C. Douglas, and we thought: "This is going to be pretty dull. He'll be puffed up with his own importance, and he'll probably spout sermons all over the place." . . . We were wrong—as usual. . . . The luncheon was far from dull, Mr. Douglas was not puffed up, and he didn't spout sermons. . . . Instead he told stories, gathered from his long experience as a writer and speaker, and all of them were sprightly and highly amusing. . . . The spinner of yarns proved to be about as human a guy as you'll run across anywhere.

• • •

It reminded us of the times when William J. Bryan used to come over to our fraternity house at the University of Nebraska and spend the evening telling stories—all of them clean, and all of them funny. . . . Many persons who knew Mr. Bryan only thru what they had read or heard about him classed him as more or less of a bigot. . . . They never saw the human side of him. . . . Away from the platform and the political scene, he was one of the most delightful of personalities. . . . It's something like that with Mr. Douglas. . . . He can be deadly serious when he's writing religious novels, but he doesn't take himself seriously when he's away from the limelight.

Lloyd C. Douglas.

• • •

All self-respecting interviews with authors must begin with the question: "How did you get started?" . . . Mr. Douglas told us, with no mock modesty, but with plenty of chuckles. . . . A native of Columbia City., Ind., he was a preacher, at a preacher's pay, when he became obsessed with the idea of writing "The Magnificent Obsession." . . . A big publishing house turned it down. . . . "There's too much religion in it," the editors said. "Cut out that part of it, and we'll print it, and maybe it will sell." . . . He tried another great publishing house. . . . "It's not a novel," the editors said. "Cut out the fiction part, and make it a series of religious essays, and we'll accept it." . . . In desperation, the author sent the manuscript to a comparatively small Chicago house. . . . It was accepted, and printed, and was greeted with few reviews and fewer sales. . . . Then the public began to discover it. . . . Booksellers sent in orders for two or three at a time, then eight or ten, then a hundred or so. . . . The book ran into the hundreds of thousands, and it's still selling. . . . One result: Mr. Douglas was transformed from a rather obscure midwestern minister into a national celebrity.

• • •

"Nearly every newspaper man I've ever known," we said, "is forever dreaming of the time when he'll write the Great American Novel. Once in a while one of them does get a book published, and he decides he can break away from the grind and make a swell living by writing novels. But the second one doesn't sell, and neither does the third, and, likely as not, he winds up by going back to his old job as a desk man or a leg man. . . . Did you quit your job as soon as your book started to take hold, Mr. Douglas?"

• • •

"I'd heard all about writers who had let the success of their first novels go to their heads," he said. "I continued my preaching for five years. By that time my second and third books were doing well, and I felt confident I could get along by writing instead of talking. I'm still doing all right, I guess."

There really isn't much guesswork about it. . . . Mr. Douglas' latest, "The Robe," has been heading many of the best seller lists ever since it was published last fall. . . . He has a beautiful home in a Los Angeles suburb, and the movie rights to his novels have made him wealthy. . . . But he doesn't boast about that. . . . He likes to recall the time when the publishers told him "The Magnificent Obsession" wouldn't get anywhere unless he cut the heart out of it.

• • •

"Every time I come to Chicago I promise myself that I'll get over to Tribune Tower and call on Clifford Raymond," he said. "We were fraternity brothers at Wittenberg. . . . But each time I'm so busy that I never leave the loop. . . . Please tell Mr. Raymond that some day I'll drop in on him for a visit, will you?"

We said we would.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

NEXT Friday will be Christmas, unless something very unusual happens, and so this week I shall try to be particularly helpful. On the off chance that somebody, weary of boars' heads, may be thinking of serving peacock—a kingly dish of old repute at the Christmas season—I have gone to some trouble to provide the medieval recipe for this delectable fowl. It is from Harleian Manuscript, No. 279, dated about 1430, published by Thomas Austin in his "Two Fifteenth Century Cookery Books," London, 1888. As follows:

"Take a peacock, break its neck, and cut its throat. And flay him, the skin and feathers together, the head still to the skin of the neck. And keep the skin and feathers whole together. Draw him as a hen, and keep the bone to the neck whole, and roast him, and set the bone to the neck above the broach [spit], as he was wont to sit alive. And when he is roasted enough, take him off and let him cool. And then wind the skin with the feathers and the tail about the body and serve him forth as he were alive, or else pull him dry, and roast him, and serve him as thou dost a hen."

I don't entirely understand these directions. The first injunction seems unnecessarily ferocious—and how, in any case, after his neck is broken, is it possible to keep the bone to the neck whole?—but housewives know now as much as I do about it, and must do the best they can.

The year 1942 should not be allowed to pass without a mention of Ambrose Bierce, the classic American short story writer, who disappeared in Mexico 29 years ago: June 24, last, was his centenary. Twenty-eight years ago this month I went to call on him at his home in Washington, D. C., and learned of his disappearance just a year earlier. The family's fears had not then been publicized, and I was enabled to score a news beat on the mystery; but the sense of frustration and disappointment I experienced on failing to meet one of my favorite literary gods remains with me to this hour.

Thereafter, for five years, rumors were numerous about Bierce; the legend grew apace. One story said he had gone to France to serve on Lord Kitchener's staff—an out and out fake—but the most popular story, varied in its several retellings, reported his execution by some bloodthirsty followers of the bandit Villa.

Probably the mystery never will be resolved. Whatever the truth may be, there is something tragically appropriate in the manner of Bierce's passing: the pattern of his life is that of one of his own macabre tales. His curious clandestine celebrity will be all the higher for the obscurity that masks his death.

One of the earliest Christmas cards of record is said to have been done for Sir Henry Cole by the English artist, John Calcott Horsley. Being particularly busy that Christmas season—1846—and unable to write and dispatch a large quantity of letters, Sir Henry asked Horsley to design a card that might be sent to his friends as a seasonal greeting; and Horsley responded with a charming design which was lithographed and then colored by hand.

The artist's drawing—a sort of triptych—depicted three generations of a jolly family at table, shedding the blood of the grape and all apparently very happy about it. The side panels revealed members of the family [presumably] engaged in notable acts of charity. Criticism of the card followed its appearance, and there were those who asserted that the central drawing was too flagrantly a celebration of the brimming bowl. As a result of this publicity, it is said, the following year saw an increase in the number of Christmas cards produced in England.

Thus is the story told, at any rate, in "1001 Christmas Facts and Fancies," by Alfred C. Hottes. The late A. Edward Newton, I believe, owned one of the surviving cards and wrote an essay about it a few years before his death.

• • •

A delightful specimen of Thomas Bailey Aldrich's letter writing is quoted by Ferris Greenslet in his "Life" of the once popular American author. "It was very pleasant to get a letter from you the other day," wrote Aldrich to Edward Sylvester Morse. "Perhaps I should have found it pleasanter if I had been able to decipher it. I don't think I mastered anything beyond the date [which I knew] and the signature [which I guessed at]. There's a singular and perpetual charm in a letter of yours; it never grows old, it never loses its novelty. Other letters are read and thrown away, but yours are kept forever—unread. One of them will last a reasonable man for a lifetime."

• • •

It would be a difficult but fascinating task to assemble all the little "human documents" of history and biography centering in the Christmas season. What were the great ones of earth doing to celebrate this holiday, along the years? Here are just a few revelations at random. . . .

By mid-December, 1818, the poet Keats was already irrevocably in love with Fanny Brawne. His biographer, Amy Lowell, believes they became engaged on the following Christmas day. Miss Lowell reached this conclusion by an ingenious deduction made from a letter of Fanny's, dated three years after the fact and nearly a year after Keats' death.

Thackeray died on Christmas eve, 1863, in his 53d year, leaving unfinished an historical novel, "Dennis Duval," that promised to equal his celebrated "Henry Esmond." One of its principal figures was to have been the American naval hero, John Paul Jones.

Charles Dickens caught a nasty cold in America, on his second lecturing trip. Part of Christmas day, 1868, was passed on a train between Boston and New York. He reached New York in the evening, fagged out, and found the gift he most wanted awaiting him—a letter from his daughter. "I wanted it so much," he wrote her, "for I was very miserable."

• • •

It was the custom of Henry Crabb Robinson, the barrister-diarist, for many years, to eat his Christmas dinner with the poet Wordsworth at Rydal Mount. Christmas 1843 was unlucky. He arrived at Rydal on Christmas eve, took lodgings for the night, and that evening could not find the book he had laid out for reading in bed. Going to the stairhead to call his landlady, he fell downstairs in the dark, and laid himself up for several days. It was this same Robinson who used to send Charles Lamb a turkey every year for Christmas—"What a genuine old Bachelor's action!" wrote Lamb to Wordsworth.

Headed our way are some new movies that sound interesting. Take "The Glass Key," for instance. . . . This co-stars Veronica Lake and Brian Donlevy and is from the pen of Dashiell ["Thin Man," "Maltese Falcon"] Hammett. . . . In the cast are Joseph Calleia, William Bendix, Bonita Granville, and some others, and the story is about political bosses and gambling men AND ye mayor's daughter. . . . As you will surmise there is excitement aplenty. . . . Excerpts from the dialog:

Veronica: "I've got weapons a man can't fight against, and, brother, I'm not bashful!"

Brian: "There ain't a man I can't break, or a dame I can't make happy . . ." [the old boaster!]. And so on.

Red Skelton comes starring along in "Whistling in Dixie." Whistling with him are Ann Rutherford and Diana Lewis. . . . The story is a comedy-mystery contraption. Red plays "The Fox," a master detective of the air who finds himself on a spot. His fiancée refuses to marry him till he can take her on a two week honeymoon . . . Wally's [that's his picture name] sponsor refuses him a vacation. . . . Enters—a scarab—received by fiancée from her sorority sisters, and bringing the message that the sender desperately needs help. . . . Go on from here with the picture. . . .

• • •

"Behind the Eight Ball" features the Ritz Brothers, Carol Bruce, Dick Foran, Johnny Downs, etc., and Sonny Dunham and his orchestra. . . . It's another comedy-mystery, but this time there's considerable music. . . . Among the songs featured are "Keep 'Em Laughing," "Mr. Five by Five," "When My Baby Smiles at Me," and "River Boat Jamboree." And, says a press note, "the Conserve-for-Victory theme in wearing apparel is being carried to a new high by Carol Bruce with the introduction of a bare midriff, knee length wedding costume." G'bye.

Hog Shortage.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—(AP).—Studio employés thought Cecil B. De Mille was trying to hoard pork when he offered to pay $100 each for 10 genuine razorback hogs, but he explained he merely wants them for a scene in a picture and, with the hog scarcity being what it is, he hasn't been able to find a razorback this side of the Rockies.

This Town Called Hollywood

. . . . . . . . By Philip Scheuer

Without so much as a single "b-b-boo-boo-boo," Dinah Shore has sung her way into boys' hearts as surely as Bing Crosby has sung his way into the hearts of their girl friends. For more than a year Dinah has been the sweetheart of service men everywhere. Except for her personal appearances at camps and bases and radio broadcasts, most of them have never seen her. But they love her anyway.

Dinah Shore.

Warner Bros. has just now set about correcting this omission. They've put Dinah into a musical picture and the boys will soon be echoing the sentiment expressed in its title—"Thank Your Lucky Stars." Meanwhile this column took the liberty of visiting Dinah for them—by proxy.

She's one of those friendly people you just naturally cotton to immediately. Straight nose, soulful brown eyes, shining teeth behind a wide, generous mouth—a face as open and inviting as the sheet music you've just hurried home to play. Her hair is auburn, but not too vivid, and there's nothing wrong with her figure, either. In fact—

"I'm a glamor girl," Dinah chuckled. "The Hays office killed two of my stills! Isn't that wonderful?"

It was obvious, I agreed, that she had arrived.

• • •

But Dinah wasn't so sure. She won't be sure until people concede she can act as well as sing. She signed the Warner contract—her first—because they said she'd be allowed to act. When she saw the rushes she was "frightened—like when I heard my first record! I swore then I'd never make another." But she did, of course.

Dinah, who's from Tennessee, says "I" almost like "Ah" and drops her g's. It doesn't sound affected because it isn't. Rather, it's part of a personality that the pundits haven't yet got around to defining, altho they suggest it's a quality that firmly convinces each male Dinah is singing to him alone.

Dinah's own explanation is that she's just lucky. "My songs say something that happens to strike a response in those of my own age," she adds seriously. "We are part of the same generation; we've been thru a lot and there's a heck of a lot more coming.

"I know. The letters from boys tell me—letters from boys all over the world. Yes, and from girls, too. They feel what I feel."

Dinah feels the war deeply. She has been tireless in her efforts to entertain the fighting men, traveling to countless army camps time and again even before war was declared. And this in addition to her two weekly broadcasts, phonograph recording [one release a month], Saturday nights at the Hollywood canteen, and now, of course, her studio work.

• • •

Her songs, she says, are evocative of a million romances, each a memory sacred to a time and place. The letters tell her this, too; behind each request is a memory. And Dinah understands. When she was in college [Vanderbilt] she fell in love. Both were freshmen. A girl, a boy, and a song, "Stars Fell On Alabama." They parted, finally, friends. He joined the army. Dinah was in New York when he wrote that he'd be having a leave soon.

Dinah couldn't resist scheduling "Stars Fell On Alabama" for her next broadcast. "We weren't in love any more," she said. "But—well, you know." Memories. Two days before the broadcast word came from home that the boy had been killed at Pearl Harbor.

Dinah never sang "Stars Fell" again. "I couldn't," she said.

Born Frances Rose [the Dinah is from her favorite song] Shore on March 1, 1917, she came by her talent naturally. After earning her B. A. degree at Vanderbilt, she went to New York to sing. Just that—sing. The going was tough; mostly sustaining programs and no salary. The break came when she was tried out on that top sustainer, The Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street, as a swing diva in 1940. [The same program later "made" Zero Mostel, the eccentric comic.] Then Eddie Cantor signed her as his soloist—"I owe him a great deal," Dinah said—and the unit moved to the coast.

Dinah went right along with Cantor to Warners and "Thank Your Lucky Stars."

CHICAGO Movies SUBURBAN

A Little About The Movies on City's Screens

"Springtime in the Rockies." Musical in technicolor with action occuring at Canada's enchanting Lake Louise. Cast includes Betty Grable, John Payne, Carmen Miranda, and Cesar Romero. Chicago.

• • •

"Cairo." Spy drama starring Jeanette MacDonald as a movie star who is stranded in Europe when war broke out. Robert Young is a small town newspaper reporter sent abroad to cover the war. They meet in Cairo and each suspects the other of being a spy. Others in cast are Reginald Owen, Lionel Atwill, and Ethel Waters. Apollo.

• • •

"Tish." Based on Mary Roberts Rinehart's beloved fiction character. Story is an account of the adventures of Tish, headstrong spinster and her two cronies who decide to do a little matchmaking. Marjorie Main plays title rôle, with Zasu Pitts and Aline MacMahon in supporting rôles. Apollo.

• • •

"Henry Aldrich, Editor." [See review in this section.] Garrick.

• • •

"The Major and the Minor." A sophisticated girl, disillusioned with life in New York, disguises herself as a 12 year old so she can travel back home to Iowa on a half fare ticket. While en route she meets a handsome major and many hilarious situations result. Co-stars Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland. Garrick.

• • •

"The Navy Comes Thru." Depicts the adventures of the men who battle the U-boats. Co-features Pat O'Brien and George Murphy. Others in cast are Jackie Cooper, Max Baer, Desi Arnaz. Palace.

• • •

"Now, Voyager." Bette Davis is starred as the daughter of a strict New England mother, whose only escape from her sordid world is a frustrated love affair. Paul Renreid plays male lead. State-Lake.

• • •

"White Cargo." Drama at a rubber plantation in the African jungles. It shows how white men succumb to the heat, primitive conditions, and sinister mysticism of the dark continent. Leading players are Walter Pidgeon, Hedy Lamarr, and Richard Carlson. United Artists.

• • •

"Secrets of the Underground." A young criminal investigator and his newspaper woman sweetheart solve the murder of a celebrated refugee French painter and track down a ring of axis agents. Virginia Grey, John Hubbard, and Nell Hamilton are the leading players. Criental.

• • •

"Gentleman Jim." Screen story of the life of Jim Corbett. Errol Flynn plays title rôle, with Alexis Smith in the feminine lead. Roosevelt.

• • •

"Peter the Great." Russian film. World Playhouse.

• • •

"Human Beast." Based on Emile Zola's "Le Bete Humaine." Story about the activities of a homicidal railroad engineer. Jean Gabin plays male lead opposite Simone Simon. World Playhouse.

• • •

"Dear Doctor." Most of the action takes place in the secret chambers underneath the floors of a Bowery mission, where a Jekyll-and-Hyde personality captures escaped criminals and forces them back into crime and then puts them to death. Stars Bela Lugosi. Others in cast are John Archer and Wanda McKay. Woods.

• • •

"The Hidden Hand." Mystery film in which an eccentric old woman uses her insane brother to terrorize her household. Craig Stevens, Elisabeth Fraser, and Julie Bishop head the cast. Woods.

• • •

"Tales of Manhattan." Story of a tall coat and the experiences of various persons who fall heir to it. All-star cast includes Charles Boyer, Rita Hayworth, Ginger Rogers, Henry Fonda, Edward G. Robinson, Charles Laughton, Paul Robeson, and Ethel Waters. McVickers, Southtown, Riviera, Varsity, Avalon.

• • •

"Careful, Soft Shoulders." A modern Mata Hari becomes involved in an axis sabotage plot and finds herself in love with the man she is supposedly trailing. Virginia Bruce and James Ellison co-star. McVickers, Southtown.

• • •

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois." Screen adaptation of Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer prize play. Co-stars Raymond Massey and Ruth Gordon. Cinema.

• • •

"Gambling Daughters." Depicts the evils of girls who try to enlarge their incomes by resorting to games of chance. Studio.

• • •

"Girls' Town." Story of the "goings on" behind the camera on a studio stage. Edith Fellows and Alice White are featured. Studio.

• • •

"Iceland." Romantic comedy about a cute Icelandic girl and two American marines who fall in love with her. Sonja Henie, John Payne, and Jack Oakie head the cast. Regal, Century, Tower, Paradise, Pantheon, Gateway, Belmont, Nortown, Norshore, Congress, Capital, Mont Clare.

• • •

"Somewhere I'll Find You." Drama about war correspondents in the far east. Co-stars Clark Gable and Lana Turner. Maryland, Crystal, Belpark, Central Park, State, Manor, Terminal, Biltmore, Senate, Berwyn, La Grange, Howard, Tivoli [Downers Grove].

IN "CAIRO"

It's Robert Young, the little mischief, wearing the irresistible expression he turns on Jeanette MacDonald in "Cairo." (Apollo.)

Illinois Man Completes Book on Swedes in Lincoln's Time

By Harry Hansen.

New York.

FOR years I have been hearing about Nels Hokanson's book. For a long time this business man, who is up to his ears in real estate activities in Evanston, Ill., has been toiling over archives, interviewing men and women, east and west, for a work on the Swedes.

He is himself Swedish born; he was brought to the United States as a little boy and taken to Minnesota; later he attended the University of Chicago, where I became acquainted with him. His interest in the historic background of the Swedes in America led him to research in Pennsylvania and Delaware, and there is little about them that he does not know. His labors are now at an end, and Harpers will publish the result, "Swedish Immigrants in Lincoln's Time," with an introduction by Carl Sandburg, late this month.

Hokanson once told me of an amusing encounter with Joseph R. Pennell, the artist and biographer of Whistler. Hokanson had obtained a print of an etching of an old Swedes' church [either in Philadelphia or Wilmington] and discovered that the whole scene was in reverse. He mentioned this to Pennell. Pennell, who had an irritable disposition, did not trouble to explain that if an etcher's plate is accurate, the print will be in reverse, and that to make a print accurate the plate must be drawn in reverse. He simply flew off the handle. Hokanson understood, but he didn't know why Pennell should get so heated over it. I have every expectation that Hokanson's book will be accurate to the last line; there won't be any poetic license about it.

• • •

Carl Sandburg always has been close to the Swedes, tho he was born in Galesburg, Ill. This actually has been an advantage in his writings. For Carl never has been completely saturated in the English literary culture that seeped into American expression thru Boston and Concord. Even the schools didn't level out his prairie words, and he kept right on expressing the language and thought of middle America. Just to sample "Storm Over the Land" is to give your own speech a tonic.

Lately Carl has been east so much that he seems more a New Yorker and Washingtonian than a Chicagoan. His most recent vocal excursion was on the Cavalcade of America program. He has given much time to the war effort. He wears a big oversized muffler that is the nearest thing to the shawl that kept Lincoln's shoulders warm. He doesn't like to give it up, even indoors. The other day a checkroom girl at a restaurant tried to divest him of it, but Carl resisted. Now that fuel was rationed, he explained, he never knew how cold it might be inside.

Bringing American Books to Colombia.

Take my word for it, editing a book of short stories every year is hard work. I did it for eight years, but I never faced the task that confronts Herschel Brickell, editor of the "Prize Stories of 1942," which is issued under the auspices of the O. Henry Memorial award and is known in the book trade as "the O. Henry." [Lots of people write it O'Henry, and that's probably how the future will view that famous author.

Soon after Brickell took over the editorship in 1940 he was sent to Bogota, Colombia, by the state department. He is a scholar in Spanish and excellent in helping cultural relations with the Colombians. But while doing that he also passed on the short stories of the United States, many of which were forwarded him by his New York editor, Muriel Fuller, tho communications were often interrupted and always difficult.

Among other activities Brickell has been translating Thoreau's "Walden" into Spanish. He helped launch the Spanish edition of the Reader's Digest a few years ago. He is lecturing on American literature in Spanish in Bogota. He says Bogota is a hive for poets; a poetry recital packs the largest theater there and all the intellectuals attend. One poet recites his verses and collects a substantial return at the box office. It's almost like Chicago in the good old days when Mrs. William Vaughn Moody was staking poets to meals and audiences.

In this connection I learn that the Literary Guild, the second largest book club, soon may issue the "Prize Stories of 1942" as a dividend to its members. The guild is doing nicely in the hands of the young executives of the house of Doubleday, reaching about 100,000 readers every month, a figure once considered tops for the Book of the Month club.

Elmer Davis Gives Some Secret Advice.

When Elmer Davis came from Washington to talk to booksellers, authors, editors and publishers under the auspices of the Council on Books in Wartime, the affair took on the aspects of a happy family party. With Richard L. Simon at the piano, the audience sang all the patriotic songs; Carl Milam came east to tell what the American Library association is doing to build up morale with books; Grace Zaring Stone appeared as Ethel Vance and spoke as Grace Zaring Stone; W. L. White explained how he came to use the word "expendable" in "They Were Expendable," and a veteran of Doolittle's raid on Tokio described the experience. But, of course, the main show, the big box office attraction, was Elmer Davis, home from the Washington wars.

There is external evidence why Mr. Davis is his own man. He wears a black bow tie, year in, year out. And when he appeared on the stage, he was seen to be wearing spats. A buzz of whispers revealed this to the awed New Yorkers. They haven't seen spats since the market crash. Except on Elmer. He simply didn't follow the crowd when others took them off and let their ankles get cold.

Now as to what Elmer said—I run a great risk in communicating anything at all. This is supposed to be off the record. He talked about military strategy. He said there was one author who had covered all the possibilities of the Mediterranean campaigns. His name was Thucydides.

• • •

Where "Expendable" Comes From.

As for the word "expendable," Bill White says that when a thing is expendable it is there to be used. He found the word in general use in the army. When he first proposed the title some of his editors thought it was too unfamiliar to be good; now they think it excellent. It has caught on; people understand quickly that these men who ran the PT boats were there to do whatever had to be done and could be used up in the effort; it makes us aware of the sacrifices involved. The word is being applied to nonmilitary matters, too; the other day a correspondent wrote from Washington that some members of congress thought Leon Henderson was expendable.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Charles Collins.

COMMENTATORS on the American occupation of French North Africa have thus far neglected to mention a poem that was familiar in every little red schoolhouse in the era when Friday afternoons were devoted to declamations by the pupils. It began, "A soldier of the legion lay dying at Algiers." Unfortunately for current application, this young hero came from Bingen, "fair Bingen on the Rhine." The author was Caroline Elizabeth Sarah Norton. If any old timer wants to refresh his memory, the full text may be found in "The Home Book of Verse."

• • •

"Head-hunting in the Solomon Islands," by Caroline Mytinger [Macmillan], deals with portrait painting rather than south seas savagery. It is the record of a two woman expedition to New Guinea and the adjacent archipelagos for the purpose of making a pictorial record of the natives.

• • •

Miss Mytinger was in Rabaul, the port of New Britain, now a Japanese base, when two volcanoes in the harbor erupted with violence. One of these days American bombers may drop their eggs into those craters to see what will happen. . . . Examples of Miss Mytinger's portraits of the Solomon Islands illustrate this work. The complete results of the "head-hunting" expedition have been exhibited in New York, Brooklyn, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Francisco, Sacramento, Seattle, and Tacoma.

The two man syndicate which calls itself Ellery Queen is holding its lead in the detective story market with an anthology of short stories called "Sporting Blood" [Little, Brown & Co.]. The field of choice has been restricted to tales with backgrounds in sports, games, and hobbies: Horse racing, golf, fishing, baseball, football, track and field, prize fighting, polo, boating, swimming, tobogganing, hunting, poker, pingpong, chess, butterfly collecting, stamp collecting, coin collecting, and book collecting. . . . What, no hockey? There is more promise of murder in hockey than in any other sports exhibition.

There are only two quotations on Japan in H. L. Mencken's new dictionary of memorable sayings. Here is one:

"The probability is that were a Japanese gentleman a devout adherent of any particular form of religion he would rather conceal it than make a display of it."

This observation, which now has a fine edge of satire, was made in patriotic innocence in 1905 by a certain Son of Heaven named Kencho Suyematsu.

YOUR LITERARY I. Q.

By Howard Collins.

CHRISTMAS STORIES.

The Christmas season has provided a theme for writers in all lands and ages. Briefly described below are five well known stories about Christmas. Can you remember the central character of each? You'll find the answers on page 20.

1. She sold her beautiful long hair to buy her husband a watch chain for Christmas, only to find that he had sold his watch to buy her a set of combs.

New Scrutiny of Jefferson Is Revealing

"JEFFERSON HIMSELF," by Bernard Mayo. [Houghton Mifflin, $4.]

Reviewed by William Shinnick.

In his slippered days, after he had become the Sage of Monticello, Thomas Jefferson made what he called a paradigma by clipping from the New Testament every line which he considered the authentic words of Jesus, and tossing away all that he rated the nonsense of Plato and the Platonists. His pasted-up book was printed later as the "Jefferson Bible"; it was an effort to prove that the ex-President, often accused as an atheist, was a real Christian.

Whether Mr. Mayo caught his idea for a Jefferson work from this exercise the reviewer does not know. The Mayo book is composed almost entirely of quotations from Jefferson, and the author has skilfully woven the materials from the great Democrat's letters and writings into a composite whole that is a picture of genius.

For Jefferson was as many sided a man as ever lived. He played the fiddle, he was an architect, a zoologist, an educator, a farmer, a city planner, an ambassador, a statesman, and one of the world's masters of limpid prose. And he was as consistent a pleader and a fighter for what he believed right as any one has the right to expect.

• • •

If he lacked anything it was a sense of humor. Mayo has taken excerpts from letters to his numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren — which almost certainly went over their heads; he admonished them rather than entertained them. Yet he had patently a deep affection for each of them and a warm attachment for many friends; he bore the drudgery of letter writing manfully for their sake.

The best of this book is that on almost every page an incident or an aptly phrased idea of Jefferson catches the attention. He met King George III. and wrote that he was a "mulish being." He met Alexander Hamilton, time and again, and distrusted him and his ideas. His odd summing up of the first secretary of the treasury was:

"Hamilton was, indeed, a singular character. Of acute understanding, disinterested, honest, and honorable in all private transactions, amiable in society, and duly valuing virtue in private life, yet so bewitched and perverted by the British example as to be under thoro conviction that corruption was essential to the government of a nation."

Hamilton had told him, Jefferson wrote, that the English government without dishonesty would be impracticable.

• • •

The Jeffersonian distrust of monarchy and its faults was absolute. He said that if there had been no queen in France there would have been no French revolution. He viewed with distate any introduction of royal formality, and any person who said—as many did during Washington's terms as President—that the constitutional American government was just a stopgap until something better could be found.

With acrid scorn he related the social defeat of Mrs. Knox, wife of the first secretary of war. She planned to have Washington and his lady sit upon a raised sofa at a levee, and for all the dancers to advance and bow low to them, while she occupied the reflected glow in front of them. It was her intention to be invited to sit with the Washingtons, but was foiled because the sofa on a dais was too short for three.

While Jefferson was President,

Dried Plants Make an Artistic Table Picture

Permanence Is Chief Feature of Decorations

By Edith Weigle.

For some years women who like flowers in their homes the year 'round, and who have become artists in their arrangement have found winter beauty in dried blooms and grasses saved from summer garden profusion.

A recent exhibition in a Chicago store was centered around the decorative use of more than 30 varieties of dried plants, shrubs, grasses, and flowers. Of course, many more are thus available than would be possible to gather in this midwestern area. There were huge, brown pods of the Indian lotus and the large, artistic leaves of this same imported plant. From Hawaii came little beige apples with their foliage, called the wood rose, and from California came eucalyptus pods, date stems, and lupin.

Vermont hills furnished the curly fern. Curious little thistlelike cones, called teasels, are used in Australia to comb sheep's wool. Dried bright green, they furnish accents in a dried flower arrangement.

• • •

Also from South America were the tall, plumelike white fronds of pampas grass. Other plants and shrubs which, dried and left in their natural state or painted russet or heather or green were included in these flower arrangements were: Spike grass, corn tops, millet grass, magnolia pods, cat-tails, artichokes, berries of the pepper tree, berries of the sorghum plant, and pine cones.

Containers for them varied. Some were low, shallow dishes of pottery, wood, pewter or copper. Others were bowls, or vases, or jugs, or cornucopias or urns of the same wares.

A great number of arrangements was displayed, offering suggestions on the possibilities of decorative treatment of these everlastings. In shallow bowls needlepoint holders or modeling clay held the stems firmly in place. Of course, no water is necessary.

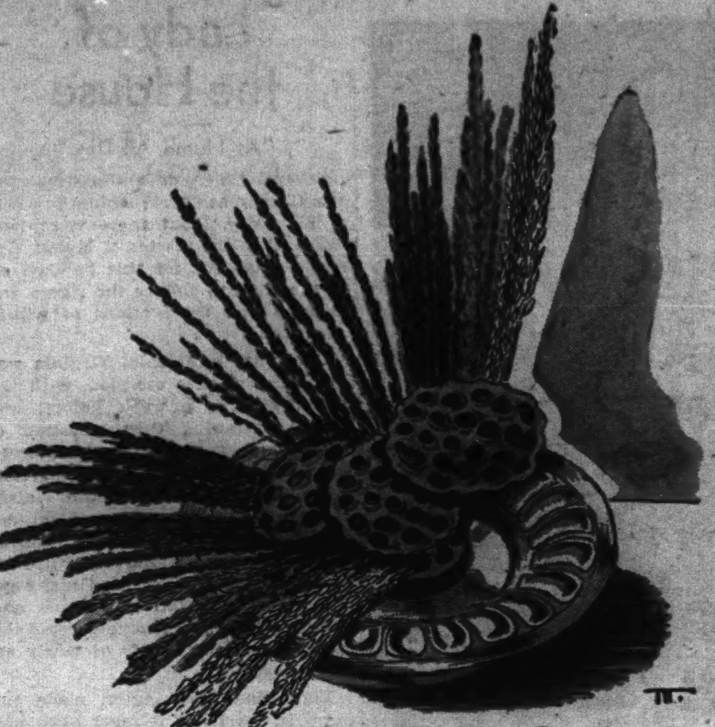
Tall plants such as the lupin, spike grass, curly fern or cat-tails were massed at the back, the foreground being filled by lower and larger blooms such as the lotus pod, or the wood rose, or pine cones. Some of the arrangements were in monotone, brown and beige being the natural color of the plants after they were dried.

• • •

Others combined brown and beige plants and grasses with ones that had been painted, thus getting an effect of color. Of course, there are as many ways of working with these objects as there are women who are interested. One's favorite bowl or vase will suggest an arrangement, as will the character of the plants, themselves — their height and form and color. And, of course, the table on which they are placed also will play its part in the picture.

The chief feature about these everlastings is, of course, their permanence. You can use them again and again in many different combinations.

When you tire of them in one bowl, put them in another, and move them from room to room. You'll find they are lots of fun to play with and that the results are usually most artistic and rewarding of the effort you expend.



Arranged in a heavy metal bowl dried lotus pods and grasses furnish an artistic decor for winter rooms. There are numerous varieties of dried plants and flowers from which to choose.

Alpha Phi to Have Annual Yuletide Party on Dec. 30

Members of the Alpha Phi International sorority will gather for their annual Christmas luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Dec. 30 in the Wedgwood room at Marshall Field's. The program will be given principally to a review of the sorority's participation in war service.

In addition to giving funds to both the Canadian and American Red Cross, equipping four complete surgical kits, and knitting more than 300 afghans, the group has instituted new war nursing scholarships for selected candidates. The scholarships provide training at the graduate schools of nursing at Yale or Western Reserve. Funds saved thru cancellation of the 1942 convention have been used to make the three initial scholarship awards.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, but not value. The column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The first exposition after 1930 which was provided with a postal station was A Century of Progress at Chicago in 1933. This station used a handstamp and a machine. In the former the station name was included in the circular townmark while in the latter it was introduced in the flag portion of the mark in a rectangular box. A third postmark was used at the Railway Postal Car exhibit near the Transportation building. This was a handstamp with a four bar killer and had the inscription "U. S. RY. POSTAL CAR EXHIBIT, CHICAGO, ILL." in the circular town mark and another inscription reading "Century of Progress Exposition" in four lines within a small box inserted in the four bar killer. In 1934 the same cancellations with new dates were used at the repeat performance of the exposition.

In 1935 the California Pacific International exposition at San Diego, Cal., provided the collector with four types of postmarks. These came from two machines and two handstamps. The machine marks show the full name of the exposition followed by the word "Station" in the flag portion of the marks. One of the circular townmarks is a double circle affair with a pronounced foreign effect. Strange things come out of southern California at times, as is known by collectors who have seen the German or Swiss machine postmarks from Santa Barbara. The San Diego mark is not the same type as the Santa Barbara which read crosswise to the direction of the postmark and envelope. The handstamps used at San Diego consisted of one old type mark with the pointed oval killer of horizontal bars and a new type mark with four short horizontal bars.

• • •

The Texas Centennial exposition at Dallas in 1936 had only two marks from the exposition station—a machine mark with the name of the exposition station in the flag and a handstamp with the pointed oval killer. In the following year the Greater Texas and Pan-American exposition was held at Dallas, perhaps in the centennial buildings, and provides collectors with a single mark. This is from a machine and bears the slogan "Pan American Station," in the flag portion of the mark.

It would be interesting to know just when people began to call 5 cent pieces by the name "nickel." There are not many instances where coins are named after one of the metals forming the alloy out of which they are coined. "Coppers" appears to be a literary term used for small coins of copper coinage but hardly a name which could be used in trade. Generally it is found in some story where the benevolent gentleman gives the beggar "a few coppers."

• • •

There seems to be no use of the words "silvers," "golds" or any names derived from the world war coinage metals such as iron, zinc, aluminum, brass, etc. The name nickel was not born with the use of the copper nickel alloy. Cents made of white metal came into being in 1856-'57, 3 cent pieces in 1865, and 5 cent pieces in 1866. Prior to the latter dates and for several years after 3 cent pieces and half dimes were coined of silver of the standard alloy. In the list of the coinage for 1866, as published in the American Cyclopaedia for that year, the 1, 3, and 5 cent pieces are grouped under the title "copper coinage."

Air Stamp Records by James C. Heartwell, an official publication of the American Air Mail society, has just been released by the publishers. It sells for 50 cents and may be obtained from The Airpost Journal, Albion, Pa. This third edition of Air Stamp Records contains 64 pages devoted to articles concerning air mail and air mail stamps. There are several pages of statistics on air mail stamps giving the whole number which have been issued by countries and by years. Air Stamp Records is a worth while addition to the library of every one interested in these stamps.

• • •

Air Mail Stamps is the title of a catalog and handbook which H. E. Harris & Co. has prepared for the collectors of those interesting stamps. This booklet of 120 pages not only lists and illustrates the major varieties of air mail stamps of the world but contains information of interest and value to every collector. Under the title "Men Against the Sky" will be found the story of man's long endeavor to master the navigation of the air and his ultimate success. There also are factual references to the outstanding pioneering flights thruout the world.

This valuable aid to aera philately will be mailed to any reader upon receipt of 4 cents in stamps to cover postage and wrapping. Address H. E. Harris & Co., 108 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass.

Symphony Plays Vital Cultural Role for City

By Cecil Smith.

In spite of the war and its attendant hardships, we can all count many blessings as we enjoy the warmth and cheer of the holiday season. Not only are we well fed and housed in buildings which have not felt the destructive power of enemy bombs, but we still possess, after more than a year of war, the means of feeding our inner lives. Another opera season has been successfully completed, with a deficit no larger than last year's; concert activity seems to thrive; the Russian ballet will be back with us again in a few days; and the city's legitimate theaters remain occupied in the face of the hazards of wartime touring.

But chief among our artistic blessings, I believe, is the continuing pleasure and surcease from cares the Chicago Symphony orchestra gives us. After 52 years the orchestra has become a part of the permanent fabric of Chicago's cultural life. The loss of it would be unthinkable, and fortunately there is no evidence that we are likely to have to face such a catastrophe.

• • •

The Chicago Symphony orchestra has survived two wars, and it will surely survive a third. It is a durable institution because its foundation is deeper than the shifting sands of everyday life. Essentially it never changes, for its reason for existence never needs to be changed or revised. The great world of music, which has an almost unique ability to stand outside and above politics and social turmoil, is the orchestra's sole preoccupation, as it is also the orchestra's source of inexhaustible strength.

The management of Orchestra hall, I should think, has less to fear from gasoline rationing and increased taxes than the proprietors of less substantial diversions have. As long as buses, street cars, and other forms of public transportation come near to Orchestra hall, and as long as taxes do not eat up every cent beyond the necessity for bare subsistence, orchestra patrons will keep attending the concerts. Thousands of people will continue to feel that their week would be barren if it did not include a Thursday or Saturday evening, or a Tuesday or Friday afternoon, at Orchestra hall.

• • •

This fall the orchestra is serving a valuable purpose by admitting service men to the Thursday concerts for the small admission fee of 30 cents. The large number of men who buy these tickets proves that an evening of music is a popular form of relaxation and stimulation. And when the war is over and these men are back in civilian life again, their interest in orchestral music will be all the keener because of the meaningful experiences they are having now, at the Thursday concerts. Many of these men come from smaller places, where they have never had an opportunity to hear a great orchestra. The nationwide musical audience of the future is being extended and educated thru the orchestra's cordial treatment of service men. Incidentally, I am convinced that the men value the privilege of attending the concerts more highly than they would if they were admitted free.

• • •

From the artistic standpoint the Chicago Symphony orchestra is growing rapidly these days. The death of Frederick Stock in October was a profound shock to a public to whom Mr. Stock and the orchestra seemed to be a single entity. Now, for the first time, concertgoers generally are aware of the orchestra's need for a future as well as a present. All sorts of questions are being asked about the probable line of development; and they are healthy questions because they come from those who love the orchestra and wish it well.

Ever since Mr. Stock's death Hans Lange and the orchestra have shown their mettle magnificently. Mr. Lange has revealed many qualities of leadership which naturally remained hidden as long as he was Mr. Stock's associate. He has rehearsed the orchestra with exceptional care, and the players have coöperated by giving performances of remarkable clarity and tonal beauty.

• • •

For the audiences, these weeks have been something of a test period. Reflecting Mr. Lange's tastes, the repertory has changed markedly. Eighteenth century music, which seldom appealed strongly to Mr. Stock, has begun to occupy a larger place in the schedule, and some of the overupholstered compositions which justified repetition only because of Mr. Stock's unique mastery of them have slipped from sight—in many cases, probably, never to return.

The very texture of the orchestra's sound also has become noticeably different. Mr. Stock enjoyed an ensemble of broad Brucknerian solemnity; and it was often an impressive ensemble indeed. Mr. Lange's conception of orchestral tone is more along the lines preferred by Toscanini and Koussevitsky. He has worked for, and achieved splendidly, a pure and lucid transparency of sound, effortless and lyric and rythmically sparkling. Climaxes do not sound as big and impressive as they used to with Mr. Stock, but the orchestra's playing has a lilting mobility which is quite new.

• • •

Chicago theater—In the spirit of the season, "White Christmas," a production in three scenes, centers upon the observance of Christmas by men of the army and navy. The show also includes Hubert Castle, tightwire expert; Ben Yost's Vikings, male chorus; Chester Fredericks and Kay Lane, comedy dancers; the Whitsons, acrobatic quartet, and the Chicago theater ballet.

• • •

Helsing's Vodvil Lounge—Nick Luca, singer of screen and radio, headlines the first anniversary and holiday show. Other entertainers in the new show are Jack Herbert, magician and master of ceremonies; Hope Lawrence, soprano; the Four New Yorkers, and Chet Roble, pianist.

N. U. Research Aided Seward, Author Says

By the Rev. John Evans.

The principal reason why the United States owns Alaska is because the Western Union Telegraph company's first cable to Europe was a failure. Also, William S. Seward, secretary of state, who negotiated the purchase, acted on scientific knowledge of Alaska. That knowledge of the Russian territory was given to Seward by Northwestern university's first museum curator.

All of this, together with a prediction that historians are going to be forced to revise their histories about the purchase of "Seward's folly," is made clear in a new book by Dean Emeritus James A. James of Northwestern university graduate school. Its title is "The First Scientific Exploration of Russian America and the Purchase of Alaska."

• • •

Instead of being foolish, as was charged against Seward, the $7,200,000 purchase of Alaska in 1867, the book states, was based on sound investigation. Historians have said that Seward made the purchase in order to swell his own popularity and to dismiss another European sovereign from North America.

To the contrary, Dean James' book demonstrates that the purchase was made chiefly on the basis of abundant evidence of natural resources. The assertion that little was known about Alaska, which was supposed to be a "frozen wilderness," is not in keeping with the trustworthy evidence at Seward's disposal at the time of the transaction.

"Careful reading of the three hour speech made by Sen. Sumner before the senate, justifiably referred to as 'a monument of comprehensive speech,' leads to the interpretation that his [Sumner's] primary interest in the ratification of the treaty was due, in large measure, to his belief in the economic and commercial importance of Alaska," Dean James stated.

• • •

Altho the nation's newspapers referred to "Seward's folly," and to "Seward's icebox," and to a "dreary waste of icebergs, glaciers, white bears, and walruses," Seward's action was based on studies of the territory made by two Northwestern university staff members, Maj. Robert Kennicott and Lt. Henry M. Bannister.

Kennicott, first curator of the Northwestern museum, explored the upper Yukon from 1859 to 1862, and died in a desolate mountain country 500 miles up the Yukon. Bannister, second curator of the museum, studied the economic possibilities of the Russian territory in 1865 and 1866. Journals of both men pointed to timber, fish, fur, coal, and whaling, and both suspected the presence of gold deposits.

The Kennicott expedition was sponsored by the Western Union Telegraph company, which, following the early failure of the cable attempt to reach Europe, studied the plan for a line to Europe by way of the Russian territory and the Bering strait. When the second Atlantic cable was found successful the Alaska studies were dropped.

A University of Michigan alumnus recently wrote such a learned book that even the lintoype operators gave up. The professor had to learn how to manipulate the machine or let his book go unprinted. It is now available from the press of the University of Washington. The author is Prof. William M. Read of the University of Washington, and the book is about a famous Greek manuscript of the four gospels in the University of Michigan library. The manuscript was so full of ancient Greek letters of peculiar formation that special matrices had to be made of some of them. When the printers gave up, Prof. Read stepped in and became perhaps the first author to set type for his own book. The parchment manuscripts of the gospels are believed to date back to an Albanian monastery in the 12th century. The university acquired them in 1922. Dr. Read's book is not recommended for popular reading!

The University of Chicago has issued a net-cost-to-donor chart on gifts to the university under the new tax bill. Under existing exemptions for charitable giving, members of the $5,000 a year income group can give $200 to the university at a cost of $157. The $15,000 a year donor can give $1,000 at a cost to him of $580, and the $50,000 income group can make a gift of $5,000 for a net cost to its members of only $1,568. The $200,000 income man can give $50,000 for an outlay of only $6,538.

Novel Mittens Easy to Knit

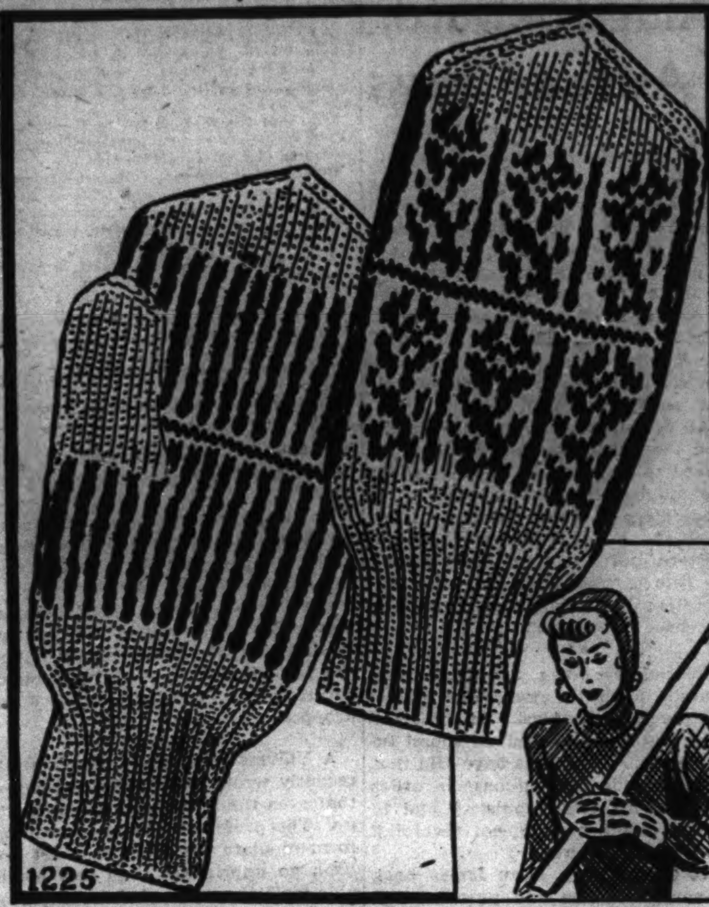
By Jean Macdonald



These two gay, knitted mittens done in floral and geometrical designs are easy knitting tricks and ones which add much to street or sports wear. They are not difficult, and the instructions contain details for working with two colors and inserting the necessary designs. Best of all, they are delightfully warm.

For instructions for knitting two pairs of mittens, No. 1225, send 10 cents in stamps or coin plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Antoinette Donnelly Reports:

It's Adolphe Menjou, he of the best-dressed list, talking about woman's charm: "Good taste in dress is important with the importance of simplicity always underscored. A woman should study her own type, know it, dress to, for, and by it. She should take on her shopping tour a will steeled against being coerced into things that were never intended or designed for her type. Style consciousness is of enormous importance, too. A woman must always be perfectly groomed."

Menjou has definite ideas of what detracts from woman's charm. "A slouchy walk," he says, "is the worst sin. A woman should have good shoulders and hold them proudly. If she hasn't been blessed with them, that's something her dressmaker can remedy with a little judicious padding.

"Beware of slovenliness, sloppiness, in walk, in speech, in posture, in carelessness in dress, in grooming, everything," concludes Menjou.

Double Duty Evening Scarf

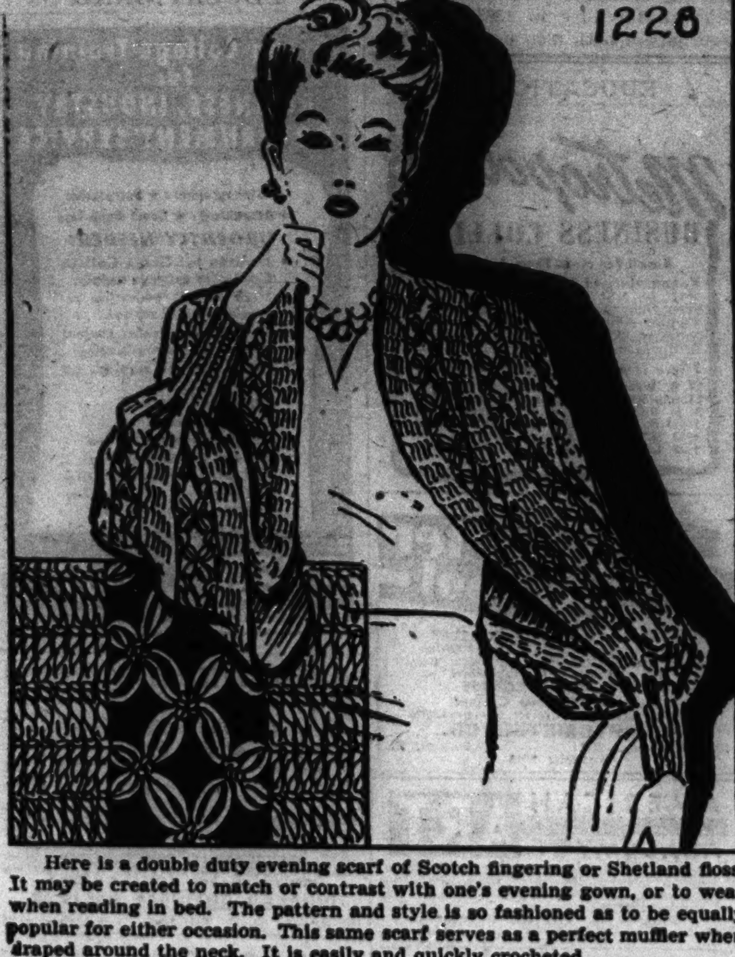
By Ellen Bruce



Here is a double duty evening scarf of Scotch fingering or Shetland floss. It may be created to match or contrast with one's evening gown, or to wear when reading in bed. The pattern and style is so fashioned as to be equally popular for either occasion. This same scarf serves as a perfect muffler when draped around the neck. It is easily and quickly crocheted.

For instructions on crocheting the evening scarf, No. 1228, send 10 cents in stamps or coin plus 2 cents to covering mailing cost, to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Enjoy Beauty of the Season; Do for Others

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A man and woman with grown children, one Christmas season, when they were all worn out with shopping, writing of Christmas cards, wrapping presents, festivities, and entertaining, made a pact with each other. They vowed that the next year they would have none of it. They would reduce their Christmas doings to practically nil and, as I remember, they even planned to have Christmas dinner in a hotel, or it may have been alone, at home, just a steak and a salad, perhaps.

So the next Christmas came, and they remembered their resolution. In the midst of all the gayety and glitter and earnest shopping of their family and friends and the general joyous contagion of before Christmas, they kept their pact. And in telling about it afterward, they said they never had such a miserable, wretched, unhappy Christmas in all their lives! So the following year found them knee deep in tissue paper, red ribbons, holly, fancy wrappings, shopping lists, family guest lists, Christmas card lists, dinner menus, tree trimmings, and all the "fixin's" of Christmas.

• • •

Now some people have an impulse to forego Christmas doings because of other reasons, of personal grief when a beloved member of the family is missing for the first time; or because of thinking, "We have no money to spend, so why bother?" Still others, in this year of war, may think they are too weighed down by its meaning, not only here but in the tortured, starved countries of the rest of the world to have any heart for Christmas celebration. And last, are all those who have a husband, a father, sons or a sweetheart away from home in the service, perhaps actually fighting somewhere.

To all of these I can say, I believe it is better and I believe you will feel better if you keep Christmas in some measure in your home this year.

Christmas is not a silly, senseless festival. It is a time of beauty. Its meaning is of deep significance. It is a festival of love. It celebrates the birth of the Prince of Peace. Surely love and peace on earth and good will to men give Christmas always a reason to be observed. And I believe it helps even the sad heart if some symbol of Christmas is visible in their homes.

• • •

If you decide then that you are not going to let Christmas down, but it is going to be unusually hard for you this year, in your heart or in your purse, you are not bound to observe it in every usual way. Neither, if you don't wish it, need your observance of Christmas be loud and clattery and crowded and rushed. But you can observe Christmas in some of the other ways which are of the very essence of the day. What that essence is may be this or that to you.

To me, the one way in which the Christmas spirit comes into a home is with its decorations—wreaths, holly [certified!], garlands, candle light, red "for sure" on the holiday table; and if trees are to be easily had this year, a Christmas tree. This tree may be actual and large or small, or symbolized and trimmed not at all, a little, or a lot.

To visit friends one loves and favorite relatives one hasn't seen in a long time, to invite them to one's home. This, too, is part of Christmas. So are carols and so is the Christmas service at church. So is doing something, a gift, a visit, to bring joy to the heart of some special child, a dear, very old person, or an invalid.

• • •

The Christmassy Christmas dinner table is another observance of Christmas that simply is to me an inseparable part of the day. A red cloth kept for this occasion, garlands, candles, little figures, for Christmas dinner isn't just food.

As for your children, almost no matter what may be holding you back, I don't believe they should see their home denuded of Christmas spirit. Christmas stands for loving and giving and beauty and peace. These verities and home are what we're working and our men are fighting for. Our children sense it. And certainly our boys and menfolk far away, to whom home is a warm bright spot, are not, as Christmas day draws near, going to visualize their own home in a Christmas dim-out. They won't want it that way.

Most of the other things I haven't mentioned, which veritably make Christmas for a child, should go on if possible. And I want to add that this applies very definitely to our boys and girls in their teens. War has come very close to them, and home should be as vibrant for them, and they should figure in the Christmas scene as much as the younger ones.

Patterns by Clotilde

A truly versatile pattern is a good fashion investment. Both these designs serve as daytime frocks and evening dresses, with the simple expedients of a change of fabric and lengthening of skirts.

Whether you're slim or not so slim, these models will flatter the figure lines. One has a rolled collar on a lovely V neckline. The shoulders are "easy"; the bodice, whether buttoned with one or several buttons, softly styled. Slimness is the skirt's second name. The other model is a jumper, and if you think the jumper frock can't lengthen its skirt and go out for gaie evenings, you have something to learn, for this version certainly does, and with grace.

Style No. 3300 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, and 52 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material for daytime length dress, with long sleeves; 4 yards of 39 inch for evening length with short sleeves.

Style No. 2692 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires for daytime dress 3⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric for jumper and 1⅞ yards for short sleeved blouse; evening length jumper, 3¾ yards of 39 inch fabric, and for blouse with three-quarter length sleeves, 2⅛ yards.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

On the House . . . .

By Louise Bargelt

Here's a practical Christmas present for your house—IF you have trouble with damp basements and musty closets, with mildew damp and rust mold and all the many ravages which come from too much moisture in closed places. . . . It is a conveniently packaged and harmless chemical which removes excess moisture and odor from closed places. . . . This unit comes in two forms: A white block form is designed to impart a pleasant odor in addition to absorbing moisture, and the gray block form contains an odor absorbing carbon which acts to reduce certain odors in addition to absorbing moisture. . . . The unit recommended for closet use retails for 69 cents and the one for basement use is $2.

The manufacturers of accordion like doors which are finished with fabrics of different colors, and which work like movable walls and fold back when not in use, thus making one room do the work of two, are now manufacturing new folding blackout partitions, also of fabric finish. . . . These are designed to meet wartime precautions where there is an entrance thru which no light must escape. . . . The accordion like principle employed in the folding doors has been used in the new partitions which consume no valuable space since they are folded into the wall when not in use.

Fewer Foods Available for Civilian Consumption

Majority Is Not Essential to Good Health

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We're cooking our Christmas dinners this year with many of the ingredients we've always thought so essential on the missing list, but they'll be good meals and substantial ones, nevertheless.

When sugar rationing came along, most of us agreed that it was a good thing. Americans had long been consuming a dangerously unhealthful amount of sugar, and this restriction was sure to improve our diets. It has done so, too.

The early scarcity of spices we didn't mind much, because most of us had good stocks on hand, and a program of domestic spice cultivation was undertaken promptly. Besides, spices aren't necessary, we told ourselves. They aren't necessary, but they're mighty nice!

Coffee and tea hit us a bit harder. These beverages aren't necessary, and they don't contribute anything in a nutritional way to the diet. But they're important morale builders. The coffee ration is a generous one, and no hardship upon any one except the inveterate coffee drinker, the person who is accustomed to two or three cups at each meal. He'll be better off to cut his supply. If we aren't able to chase the enemy out of the tea producing countries he's overrun, we'll be doing without that comforting beverage unless supplies continue to come from India and Ceylon, our two remaining sources.

• • •

The scarcity of many familiar kinds of canned goods has set us doing more cooking and using more fresh vegetables. This is probably a good thing. Many of us cooks were becoming lazy simply because the canneries had made things so easy for us.

Cocoa and chocolate have been growing scarce. We have long overeaten of chocolate, just as we have long gorged on sugar. Fewer chocolate candies, cakes, pies and puddings should improve our nutrition to a great extent. Especially in the case of growing children, this decreasing supply of chocolate candies will effect a distinct improvement in diet.

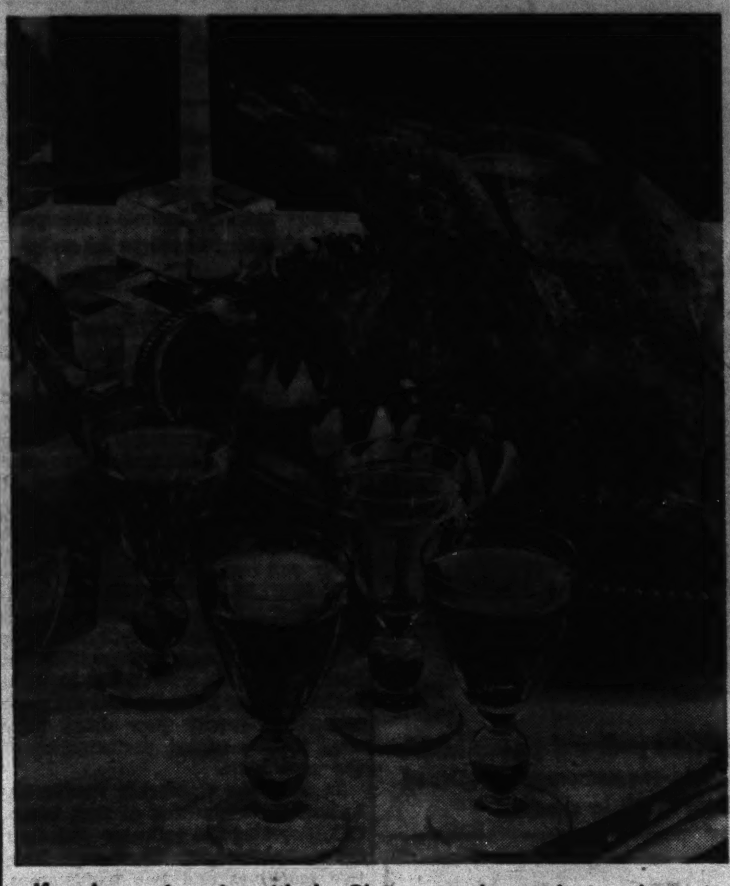
The meat rationing program involves for the first time a really important food. But any one who has studied the situation realizes that the prospective ration is sufficient for the needs of any family, for there are many unrationed meats as well as fish and poultry to choose from after the 35 ounce allowance has been used. I am perfectly aware that meat counters are exhausted of their supplies these days sometimes early in the day, and that it is impossible, often, for the homemaker to buy the cut of meat she intended to buy before she got to market. Actual rationing will no doubt take care of the first problem. As for the second, we must get used to the scarcity of steaks, roasts and chops, and learn to use more variety in meats. The nutritional value of the less choice cuts is as high as that of the steaks and roasts. In the case of unrationed liver and other organ meats, it is higher.

Meat rationing is going to mean more careful meal planning and more painstaking cooking, but should result in no lowering of the nutritional value of our meals, whatsoever.

• • •

Talk of rationing butter, cream and milk really hits us where we live, doesn't it? The ban on whipping cream is unimportant, for it means fewer rich desserts, in most cases. If butter becomes really scarce, we'll have to just grin and bear it. Meanwhile, we can save a lot of butter by using other fats in cooking and save scarce fats by preparing foods which don't require large amounts.

Some restaurants have cut the size of butter pats. Others decline to serve "seconds" on butter. The price of this important food is pretty stiff, so the homemaker would do well from the budget standpoint to use less. Margarines are an excellent replacer, and are less expensive, but there isn't going to be enough margarine to go around if we all take to using it. Margarine as well as butter is doing lend-lease business.



If you're serving wine with the Christmas turkey, make it a domestic wine such as California chablis, hock, sauternes or riesling. If you accent the turkey gravy with wine, make it the same kind you serve with the dinner.

Lady of the House

"At Home All Day."

Several times, on a Christmas eve or a Christmas day, Washington wrote in his diary. But there were long years when the master of Mount Vernon was absent for this holiday, off to the wars to endure the rigors and dangers and deprivations of winter campaigns.

Christmas in colonial Virginia was a gay and festive occasion, with the fun beginning a week before, and often continuing thru a round of balls, dinners, and hunts for a week after the feast. Holly and greens from the woods decked the stately rooms of the manor house. Field and stream contributed their luscious share to appease the appetites of host and guests. The hard highways rang with the clatter of hoofs and shouts of joyous welcome greeted the gaily dressed occupants of newly arrived coaches.

Each time Washington made the entry in his diary it must have had enriched meaning for him, and most of all on that Christmas of 1783 when, having resigned as commander in chief of the Continental Army, he returned home a private citizen . . . with vivid memories of that terrible Christmas at Valley Forge, and that other Christmas when with his little band he crossed the ice choked Delaware in the dead of night.

This year there are many reasons why we, too, shall be "at home all day" on Christmas. Perhaps alone.

Once again the ancient Roman feast of Saturn has become a very saturnalia of hate and fury and destruction, ushering in the season of "good will to men" . . . but even in the poorest home in America love can work a miracle with the common things of life . . . and there are no spectral faces of homeless, starving children at the simple feast.

So I hope that each home will be a little oasis of peace and rest where the multiple burdens of our battering, clanging other days may be dropped for a few brief hours . . . and if we are alone and longing greatly to have our loved ones about us, let us remember that always "the heart journeys home at Christmas."

I'd reverse the present system
And change a thing or two.

Instead of starting with the rich
And ending with the poor,
I'd visit first a LITTLE house
And open wide the door.

I'd leave fine gifts for every one
Who might be living there,
What I thought they wanted most,
The answer to a prayer.

I'd take the finest things I had
From out my well filled pack,
Till every sock was bulging,
And there would be no lack.

With all the poor ones' wishes met,
In the courthouse yard I'd dump the rest
And ask each rich little boy and girl
To come and be my guest.

"Don't you want us to sing for you Christmas eve?"

I had opened the door to encounter a group of small children—a little girl with blond pigtails, a chubby-cheeked 3 year old, and a slightly taller lad—all bright eyed and eager for my "yes."

So now, with my carolers engaged, I must see about those gingerbread men, the red apples, and the popcorn balls.

Buy Buy Baby

Here is a store that believes that the girl baby's first dress is more of a problem than is generally admitted. So it has done quite a little work on getting what it believes to be the best design for those early days in a girl's life when she sheds the flannel wrappers and kimonos that she has previously lived in. These dresses are handmade and are very short skirted, as you can see, with armholes deep enough to fit her chubby dimpled arms. There are several styles. The one illustrated has a series of little tucks down the front and a fullness to the dress to cover her kewpie figger amply. A dainty lace edging trims the collar and puffed sleeves. Comes in pink, blue, white, yellow, or peach. Sizes 4 to 14 months.

A boy who has reached the creeping stage will vote the cotton knitted rompers or creeper his favorite. It is thin, lightweight, washable, and unhampering to his busy life. The waistline is made snug by the ribbed effect which matches the cuffs and the finish around the crew neckline Under $3.

According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

When the average player makes a mistake, he usually lets the whole table know about it. Very often he tries to take back the card played in error, or in some other way makes it very clear that he has committed a blunder.

There is, I imagine, a sound psychological reason for this lack of poise. The offender is so anxious to forestall his partner's displeasure that he tries to "steal his thunder," by letting him know as soon as possible that the offender himself is quite aware of his fall from grace. This is understandably human, but at the same time it is very expensive. Even at bridge, a poker face is something to cultivate. Take the following hand for example. If the declarer had given himself away and revealed that he had inadvertently played the wrong card, the result would have been far different from what it was.

South dealer.

East-West vulnerable; 90 part-score.

NORTH
♠ 7 3

♣ A 9 7

EAST

♦ K J 4
♣ 8 6 3

SOUTH
♠ A 5 2
♥ K Q J 10 9 8

♣ Q J

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 heart | Double | Pass | 1 spade |
| 2 hearts | 2 spades | Pass | Pass |
| 3 hearts | Double | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

The bidding was reasonably sound, except for the penalty double of three hearts. West should have realized that he could not expect to collect much of a penalty from nonvulnerable opponents and that his side should have an excellent play for three or even four spades.

West opened the king of spades and South naturally played low. He intended to take the second spade trick if the suit were continued and then ruff his last spade in the dummy. West should have seen the danger of such a continuation and should have taken the ace of hearts at the second trick, following up with his low heart. But West was as shortsighted in the play as he had been in the bidding, and he led the queen of spades at the second trick.

It was at this point that South played the wrong card. Instead of taking his ace of spades, South inadvertently played the five-spot! He noticed his mistake as soon as he had played the card, but managed to remain impassive.

Now West, for the first time, did a little thinking. Apparently, East held the ace of spades. Hence, South must hold the king of diamonds in order to have had any semblance of an opening bid. West therefore decided to take out dummy's trumps and later give East the lead with the ace of spades for a diamond return. West therefore continued with the ace of hearts at the third trick and followed with his low heart. South drew one more round of trumps and then led the queen of clubs.

Sure that he was on the right track, West took the queen of clubs and returned his ten of spades. Much to his astonishment, South won this trick with the ace of spades. South then overtook the jack of clubs with dummy's king and discarded his losing diamonds on dummy's established clubs. South therefore made his contract, losing only two spades, a heart and a club.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

Hearts are trump and South leads. North and South are to win six tricks against any defense.

Solution. South leads spade three. West and North both duck and East wins. If East returns the diamond, South trumps, leads ace of clubs and his last trump. Now if West discards a club North can lead thru East's clubs. If West discards a spade, North makes a spade trick; therefore West must shed the diamond, North a spade and East a diamond. South now leads the spade and East's discard settles it. If East leads a club for trick 2, South wins and leads the trump. All three must discard diamonds and South leads another trump, bringing about the same ending as when East led the diamond.

Gift House Coats Certain to Win Women's Hearts

Gay Colors and Warmth Are Themes

By Rea Seeger.

Illustration in color on last page of this section.

House coats, lounging robes, hostess gowns, decorative pajamas consisting of slacks and fitted jacket tops, or the all-in-one-piece models, together with the most feminine of tea gowns, this year provide the surest way to the most capricious woman's heart as a Christmas gift. Color and warmth are the two themes played with a couple of dozen variations. The padded and quilted finds are as romantic and eye catching as the deliberately luxurious affairs of velvet, satin, silk, fringe, and ribbons, combined with lace.

Sleek tailored finds in flannel are, of course, more costly than in former years, wool being listed in the scarcity files, but those that are featured are the last word in supple fabrics, with the assurance of warmth, no matter how chilly the atmosphere. Coat models vie with the more dress parade affairs for popularity. The tailored affairs are well detailed, with at least one pocket and have swanky braid trim, buttons, and notched collar with turnover cuffs. The dress parade finds have contrasting accents of trapunto quilting, ribbon bindings, some effective braid work, and so on.

• • •

Also of warm wool are the many new and fetching finds of wool or of trick textures, some to simulate hand knits, others fine tweeds, still others smooth broadcloths. These are the newest arrivals, and have a demure and devastating charm reminiscent of old fashioned belles of the nineties . . . long sleeves, simply gathered skirts, fanciful trim such as shirred and fluted ruffles of ribbon or velvet. Or you will find the more sophisticated models streamlined like a dinner dress, long of sleeve, slightly flared around the hemline, and usually belted with a snappy leather belt and buckles.

Padded and quilted velvet and satin robes are quite the handsomest loot in town. They are unquestionably the gift par excellence, the dream of every woman young or not so young. Jewel colors, as well as pastels, are plentiful, and the contrasts of lining and exteriors vivid and gay. Chintz and challis robes, also padded and quilted, cost less, in some instances, but are just as decorative and, to some extent more effective as a breakfast robe. Other star finds this year are the trick fabrics, such as nylon and cotton fleece, materials that make unbelievably picturesque robes for any winter season. The cotton fleeces look as thick as wool, and are surprisingly cozy. The nylon beauties are higher in price, but when you remember the years and years of wear guaranteed for such fabulous stuff, the price is modest. Camel's hair shades, snow white, water color pink, blue, and other pastels, with, of course, plenty of Christmas reds, make a grand showing.

• • •

All those gossamer thin wools, cashmeres, and challis house robes, especially those in dainty pastels and white, and the few made of rare, imported woolens still are available, but they're going fast. These are the delightfully cozy finds for the temporary invalids on your lists, or the elders who will so appreciate such warm fabrics with long sleeves, some with lace frilled cuffs, others interlined for additional warmth. Tailored models and some more frou frou comprise a good assortment, if you shop early.

Lounging pajamas are more high fashion than ever, good, warm lounging costumes that assure warmth always. You'll find them in sleek tailored woolens, in satins padded and quilted, or plain in velvets and crêpes. Also always wanted, always picturesque, are the many crêpe hostess or house gowns that can double for decorative, informal dining dresses. These include the all-white beauties trimmed with sequins, the high shades swinging gallantly with long fringe, the thin wools and crêpes aglitter with gold kidskin, cut-out scrolls, and the beadwork motifs high on the chest.

They Got Their Deer.

Approximately 40 per cent of all big game hunters who went into the mountain country in New Mexico last season killed a deer apiece.

Thru the Looking Glass

If you are compact conscious this year, you're on the right track for presents that will be received with more than a little warmth. Compacts as we know them today, will, of necessity, be changing dress soon and one that will serve well and look pretty for a long time will make a thoughtful gift this Christmas. Here are a few to guide the shopper:

1. The woman who likes to carry a generous amount of face powder in her purse will appreciate this "for powder only" compact. A lucite lovely, it's convenient, oval size and more than a little handsome. A gold-tinted mirror shining thru the cover adds beauty to the piece and permits that reassuring peek so many women like to indulge in. More gold reflects thru the carved sides. $6.50.

2. A compact that packs all the essentials for a quick makeup in one neat little package. Loose powder compartment, cake rouge, standard size lipstick and a good size mirror are all contained in a good looking metal case with gold or silver finish. The makeup may be selected in harmonizing shades and the products are rated among those women have accepted as right for many years. $3.50.

3. Definitely modern in design, a stunning compact to capture any woman's heart. A beautiful cover design is engraved on the top, set off by the gold finish of the balance of the compact. It's the kind of piece that makes the owner proud to whip it out of her handbag. It boasts an excellent dry rouge and a compartment for loose powder. $7.50.

4. She'll carry this one for years and be forever pleased with it. Made of sterling silver, it is a classic among compacts. Utterly simple in design, it relies only on the metal from which it is made for distinction. There's a compartment in which to carry loose powder and a second section of dry rouge. The recipient of one of these will feel richly endowed and compact cozy for years. $12.50.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Many of us have encountered difficulty in keeping radio in condition, due to a shortage of parts available. Necessary materials are being devoted to the war effort, and the average person can easily accept such minor inconveniences. However, there are some cases in which the loss of the use of a radio is a severe blow. Invalids and shut-ins, lonely and cut off from the world, find time long in passing when they are unable to hear favorite programs and news broadcasts. We hope that readers who have extra instruments on hand will share them with those to whom such entertainment means so much.

A recent appeal came from a woman who resides in an old people's home on the extreme northwest side of the city, and anyone who reads her letter can understand her predicament.

• • •

"Dear Miss Brown: I am an old shut-in lady who will soon be 90 years old, and my only recreation is my radio. Now it is entirely worn out, and the repairman told me that he cannot get the parts for it because it is such a very old make. I thought perhaps some one of your readers would have a radio to spare. I will appreciate it very much. Respectfully, Mrs. E. F."

The address will be furnished upon request to any interested reader.

From a small town west of Chicago comes an appeal from a mother on behalf of her son, who has been an invalid since he was 13 years old. He is now 28, and altho becoming more helpless every day, he manages to have a bright and cheerful outlook. However, his mother is able to buy little for his entertainment, and games, such as checkers, dominos, etc., would be most welcome. He had a radio several years ago, but he can no longer get any reception on it. Since there is no electricity in the home, a crystal radio set with ear phones would be most suitable. The young man is not confined to bed all the time, but cannot leave the house. They are four miles away from town. If you have games or a radio to send, we will be happy to provide the address.

• • •

We are most anxious to obtain a small radio, alternating current, for Mrs. D., who has been confined to a local hospital for many years. Her husband is doing his best to fill her needs, but is caring for their 12 year old son, and earns only a small salary. Any reader who has ever been ill for any length of time can appreciate her situation, and we do hope that a radio can be donated for her.

• • •

We have a similar request from another hospital, for a patient who has been ill for many months and would like a radio to help pass the time. Her only relatives live a great distance from the city and are seldom able to see her and the majority of her friends are employed and cannot spend much time with her. Because of the number of powerful electrical machines at the hospital, reception on very small radios is not good, so if any reader has one of five tubes or better, it would be deeply appreciated.

Flattering Heart-Shaped Hat

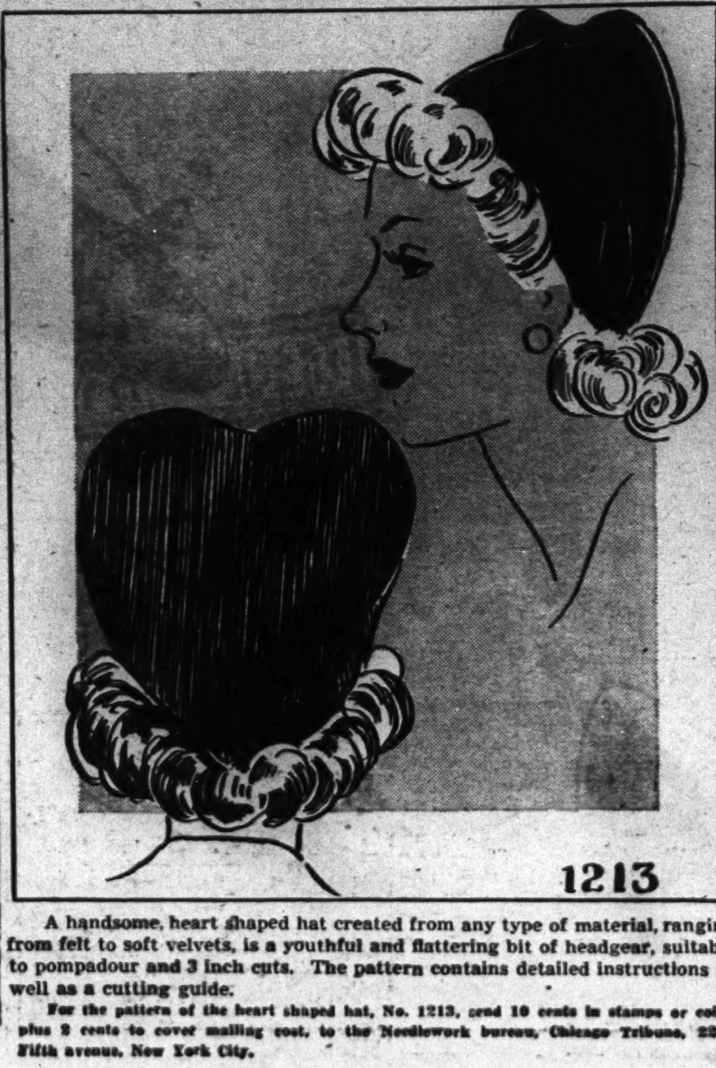
By Nancy Cabot



A handsome, heart shaped hat created from any type of material, ranging from felt to soft velvets, is a youthful and flattering bit of headgear, suitable to pompadour and 3 inch cuts. The pattern contains detailed instructions as well as a cutting guide.

For the pattern of the heart shaped hat, No. 1213, send 10 cents in stamps or coin plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Central Eleanor Club Plans Holiday Open House

The Central Eleanor club will hold open house for its friends tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Informal programs of carol singing and instrumental Christmas music will be given.

Etiquet of Hat Raising Custom Is Given Today

By Helen Bartlett.

A man extends, accepts, and acknowledges all courtesies to ladies by a gracious raising of the hat. A stiff hat is lifted by the brim, a soft felt hat by the crown. Simply tilting or tipping the hat will not do; it should be completely and unmistakably raised.

Below are some of the specific instances when the hat raising custom should be observed.

Need we remind you men that your hat should be raised whenever and wherever a woman addresses you, indoors or out, and when you meet and perhaps stop to talk to a woman on the street? You needn't keep your head uncovered all the time you are speaking to the woman, thus endangering your health by exposure to the elements, but you must raise the hat momentarily at least. If you are walking with a woman, and meet another man or woman who is known to either one or both of you, raise your hat.

• • •

You must do the same when you greet an elderly man of your acquaintance, a superior in rank or office, a clergyman, or a man of distinction. And again, when the American flag is carried by, when the national anthem is being played, when the cortège of a national figure passes, and in the presence of the dead.

Should a woman unknowingly drop an article as she is walking down the street, a man who notices the loss picks it up and returns it to her. She acknowledges the courtesy, he raises his hat, and immediately departs. If this woman is accompanied by a man, her escort also raises his hat to the other man in acknowledgment of the service. And when a man is taking leave of a group of women, or a group which includes a woman, he raises his hat.

• • •

The man who rises to give his seat in the bus, "L," or street car to a woman who is standing, lifts his hat. If this woman has an escort he also raises his hat in acknowledgment.

The matter of removing the hat when entering an elevator is the basis for much discussion. Some say "yes" and some say "no." The etiquet of it is this: In the elevator of a public building or office building it is not necessary to raise your hat unless a woman of your acquaintance or one with whom you exchange greetings and possibly casual conversation is present. In a club, hotel, residential hotel, or apartment building elevator, however, the hat should be removed.

What should you say when acknowledging an introduction? For the answer to this and other questions about making and receiving introductions in good taste, read "The Etiquet of Introductions," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower. Price 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

Georgia Birthplace.

In Savannah the state of Georgia was "born." The city was founded by Oglethorpe in 1733. As a quick refuge from Indian or Spanish attacks, squares were provided. These now are parks at street intersections.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

For the Man in Service

These camera cases of two different sizes also are recommended as utility or duffle bags for the men in service. The smaller one, which is about 4 by 6 inches, will amply accommodate all the toilet necessities of shaving equipment, etc. It fits neatly into the larger one, leaving room for extra sox or underwear. These cases are genuine leather—tough cowhide—with zipper closings and narrow straps for carrying. The army or navy insignia, plus the monogram, is given free with each purchase and put on while you wait. The little case is $1.95 . . . the big one $3.95. One or both would make an excellent Christmas present.

Clean House for Christmas? Here Are Helpful Suggestions

By Claire Winslow.

Making the house spic and span for Christmas? Here are aids that will help the work to go more quickly and easily.

For your hardwood floors, try a nonrub wax that you simply apply with a sponge or cloth. It's a liquid and its excellent features are that water won't spot it, once it's dried, and that besides being extra long lasting it seems to get brighter with use.

It may be necessary, at first, to put on two coats, being careful to let the first dry completely before applying the second. And, of course, the floor should be washed so that the wax goes on over an absolutely clean surface. It takes only about 20 minutes for a coat of this wax to dry. And you can use it on linoleum and composition as well as on hardwood floors.

• • •

If you'd like to make the leatherette seats of your breakfast chairs look like new, clean them with a paste made especially for the purpose. It removes dirt, grease, and stains quickly and without injuring the leatherette finish. Its makers claim, too, that it restores the original color and helps to prevent checking and cracking.

It's available in pint and half pint sizes and is not expensive.

Then, the home manager should have a general purpose cleaner on hand all the time, one that can be used on walls, painted woodwork, on linoleum, ice boxes, porcelain surfaces, Venetian blinds, and glass. An unusually fine one is put up in gallon cans and looks like coarse, pink granulated sugar. For most ordinary uses you simply place two tablespoons of this stuff in a gallon of warm water. No soap is needed. Use the resulting liquid for your cleaning.

• • •

By following special directions it can even serve as a cleaning agent for your rugs and carpets, as well as for upholstery and mattresses. Also, for fabrics such as rayon, wool, or cottons.

Provide yourself with two little first aids to damaged furniture. There's a product made especially to remove surface mars caused by water, heat, alcohol, or perfume. After using this efficient spot remover it's a good idea to go over the piece with your regular furniture polish.

The second item is called a "scratch cover," for it conceals disfiguring scratches on table tops and all wood surfaces. Like the first, it is inexpensive and easy to apply. And it does do the job beautifully.

• • •

During cold winter weather it's especially convenient to wash window panes as quickly as possible, without a lot of soap and water. There are several products on the market, liquids that you spray on the glass and then wipe off with clean cloths. These are economical to use and certainly are a boon to the housewife.

For information about any of the items we've mentioned telephone the Tribune Public Service office, Sup. 0200.

Here's an Idea! Make Your Own Christmas Gift

By Angela Petesch.

Deft fingers can make Christmas presents. Or perhaps there's a name on your gift list of a person who likes to sew or crochet. To her you could send the package containing all the necessary materials and instructions and let her have the fun of making them up.

F'rinstance . . .

You can make your own chenille hat for less than $2. Not more than four skeins of chenille will make a large beret, a high Russian turban, or a little ruffled behind-the-pompadour pancake. If you are in the city this store has skilled instructors ready to advise you. To out of towners they will send printed instructions with each purchase of chenille. And what lovely colors it comes in—rich velvety glowing colors. If chenille is not your medium, you can work up your idea in heavy wool or cotton yarn.

• • •

Then there's a package containing the necessary crochet cotton for making four luncheon mats, with a sheet of printed instructions, together with a pattern to be used as a guide in stretching the doilies, included in each package. These table doilies are made on the chain stitch principle—the simplest of all crochet stitches—which any one can learn to do with very little assistance. The pattern is open with a latticelike effect. Before being used the doilies are heavily starched and then stretched by pinning to a frame. Other colors besides the natural may be arrived at by mixing a bit of dye with the starch solution before it is applied to the cotton. Fifty cents buys the material and the instructions.

For another 50 cents you can select any one from a menagerie of eight different animals. They are the stuffed animals made of gaily colored calico prints. Each package contains the necessary calico, the pattern of the animal, the little bits of felt to line the ears or make the pony's mane, the stuffing, the thread, and whatever directions are necessary. The animals are about six inches in length except for the long neck of the giraffe, which runs out of bounds. There is a cat, a dog, elephant, pony, fawn, lamb, rabbit, and giraffe. And they're plenty cute. You won't be able to decide which one, so you'll take the whole menagerie.

• • •

In the same store but in the yard goods department is a whole table covered solid with bolts of tie silk for the women who prefer making the inevitable Christmas tie to buying it. Three-eighths of a yard of fabric which they cut on the bias for you is all you need for one cravat. There are dotted, and checked, printed, striped, plaids, plain fabrics from which to choose. Also a plain khaki colored silk for the service man in your family. Some of these materials are all silk, some rayon, others wool including a homespun weave. One-eighth of a yard of wool lining is available at the same counter. And right there, too, is the standard pattern for 25 cents additional. The cost of the tie will depend upon the quality of the fabric you buy.

Fashions . . . . . . . . By Angela

People who are in the know report that the shift in the shoe industry wrought by the exigencies of war will be seen in the lack of change in shoes. New designs will be limited, metal trim is out, and colors are restricted. But don't worry. Shoe designers are an ingenious lot and will manage to pull rabbits out of their hats. A varied collection ranging from tailored sport shoes to evening slippers is illustrated today.

• • •

The first shoe is an evening pump in black satin. It has a small open toe and a strap heel to adjust to the individual foot. A double fold of satin is gathered into a rosette on the toe.

Enough cannot be said for the moccasin toe which you can find in shoes of all types. You've seen this stroller in leathers, black, or light brown, or red. Now it comes in black or brown suede. It's a good shoe for comfort and a good choice to wear with tailored tweeds or with country clothes. Under $5.

If your color is navy blue you will like No. 3. It is available in that color only. There's a small platform sole and a high cuban heel.

• • •

No. 4 is built on what is called the new baby last. What it means is a shorter vamp, tho the high throat gives the appearance of length, and a full rounded toe. This low heeler comes in black or brown suede. A narrow looped bow of the suede relieves the plainness.

Low heeled dancing sandals are not always easy to find. Here it is in silver or gold kid or white satin. Dancing will be a pleasure. Under $5.

The afternoon shoe sketched last is a French heeled pump in black suede only. Small V-shaped opening in front and closed in back. The narrow platform is covered in faille to match the pair of swirling rosettes at the throat of the pump.

Model Rooms Illustrate Latest Decorating Ideas

One of the most interesting developments in the furniture world in recent years has been the increasing influence and importance of well planned model rooms in retail stores. The better stores today make a point of showing new rooms two or three times a year and maintain a decorating staff who plan such rooms with utmost care to display good furniture and illustrate the latest decorating ideas. The results speak for themselves in charming interiors, brimming over with clever ideas for the home.

For Health and Economy Keep Refrigerator Clean

Clean out your refrigerator at least once weekly with one tablespoon washing soda for each four cups boiling water required to fill a dish pan. Rinse with clear water applied on a clean cloth and wipe dry. For health and economy keep a clean refrigerator. Stains left in the refrigerator and molded foods are likely to contaminate foods.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

Dress the small fry in ordinary clothes, and you'll hear a concerted howl! But give the youngsters clothes much like those big sister has in her wardrobe, and juvenile faces will beam. The four patterns today are just what Cissy wants.

No. 3227 creates a jumper frock with its own shirtwaist blouse. The unusual pockets will enchant small wearers.

No. 2531 makes three small hats which go all out for hearts and flowers. Such sentimental trifles will get plenty of attention from the young daughters of the family.

No. 3138 fashions a practical suit which has plenty of tailored smartness. The skirt has suspenders, which make it attractive with a blouse or sweater. When the single breasted jacket is worn, the suspenders are concealed.

No. 3546 goes to parties. Its trimming, mother will be happy to know, is rickrack braid ingeniously used to outline paneling and trim collar and pockets.

Style No. 3227 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 35 inch material for jumper; for long sleeved blouse, 1¼ yards; for short sleeved blouse, 1 yard.

Style No. 2531 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10. Size 8 requires, for heart shaped hat, ¼ yard of 35 inch fabric when made of one color, or ⅛ yard of dark and ⅛ yard of light fabric for hat with contrasting crown; for round hat, ¼ yard of 35 inch.

Style No. 3138 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10. Size 8 requires 1⅛ yards of 35 inch fabric for skirt and 1½ yards of 35 inch for jacket.

Style No. 3546 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12. Size 8 requires 2⅛ yards of 35 inch material, with 3¼ yards of rickrack.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully), plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

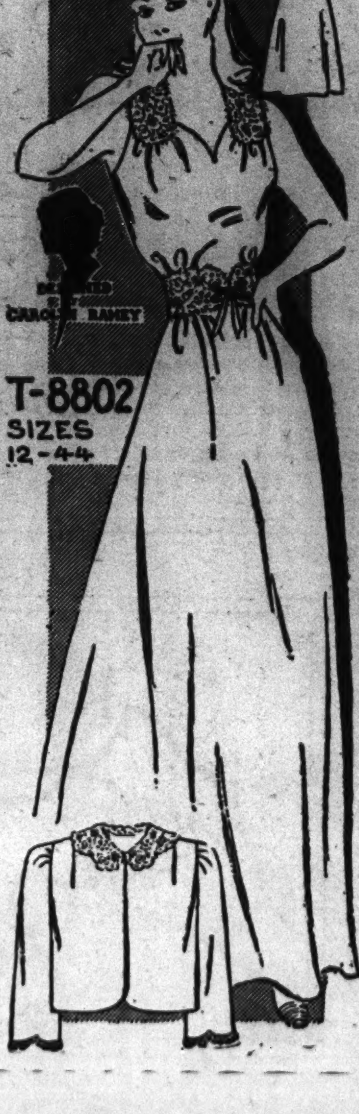
By Carolyn Ramey.



Girls whose working days, or classroom schedules, are long ones, appreciate especially frilly lingerie to give them the air of sybarites when their work is done. I'm no exception to the rule. Rather weary of tailored pajamas and commonplace nighties, I set about concocting a confection, which the artist has illustrated.

Just in case somebody becomes kind hearted and brings me my breakfast in bed, I've made a matching bed jacket, also trimmed with the lace, which fashions the collar and adorns the bracelet length sleeves.

Style No. T-8802 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20, and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 35 inch lace for the gown. For jacket, 1⅛ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of 35 inch lace for collar, and 1¾ yards of narrow lace for sleeves.

Work Helps Prevent Those Wartime Blues

By Doris Blake.

(Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

We are in grateful receipt of a communication from a woman whose younger sister is among the countless thousands of girls who face dateless week-ends and practically manless existence on account of the exigencies of war.

The older sister, Miss L. B., explains as her reason for inclosing a copy of a letter recently sent to her sister at college that service wives are not the only ones with the problem of how to utilize time and energy best to survive the trying ordeal of absence of the loved one. The same need of advice, cheer, and encouragement is felt by girls with a best beau in uniform.

• • •

Miss L. B.'s letter to her younger sister follows:

"Dearest Helen:

"Sis, already your first few months at college have made clear something that I tried hard to tell you before you left, that it isn't going to be the gay campus whirl I used to write home about; that a uniform has priority claims these days. In common with all the rest of the gals they left behind, you are going to have dateless week-ends and a practically manless existence. And for all of us accustomed to having a sturdy tweed shoulder to lean upon, this realization is a rather unpleasant jar.

"You could call it an algebraic equation, 'woman minus man.' Now, how's your mathematical prowess? Because whether the answer comes out with a plus or with the sign of subtraction it is entirely up to you!

• • •

"Suppose you chose a negative attack on the problem. Go into solitary confinement. Brood. Brood until the boys come back, trim, hard, serious, looking for companionship that is gay and stimulating. They'll want to know what you've been doing; what's new. A doleful answer, yours. And an 'F' for your efforts, m' pet!

"But I seem to remember that algebra was always your best subject. This modern equation is a fresh challenge. So get out the old rule book and start figuring, constructively!

"Woman minus man equals time hanging heavy on your hands. Aha! Apply fundamental No. 1, 'reduce answer to lowest terms.' By keeping busy! By so filling the day with action that there isn't a moment left for navy blue or army drab moods.

• • •

"Add. Multiply. Acquire new skills, new interests, together with the improvement of old ones; that tennis or bridge game you blush over. Now is the time to work on it. Take out your music again. Catch up on long neglected reading. Concentrate on up to the minute knowledge of current events. New dance steps, practice them. Experiment with a sewing machine. Or a recipe book. Begin a 'face and figger' beauty routine that will be of lasting value. And don't forget your quota of volunteer Red Cross or war service work. A group of you lonely hearts might get together to work for a common cause even if it is only a mend your old clothes session. Or a write the boys hour.

"Dateless evenings? There are night school courses in all those subjects you've never had time for. Long afternoons? Periods for still other phases of this self-improvement campaign.

• • •

"Do you see? The problem can be treated just like any of those on the pages of the old algebra book. It has a cardinal principle, 'purposeful activity,' radio, libraries, YWCA facilities, magazines, campus and community organizations readily available as texts. And for a lead pencil, your own sharpened initiative.

"Problem solving isn't easy. It takes work and concentrated effort, but it brings the thrill of achievement and, in this case, the end result is an alert all round personality belonging to the up on her toes sort of girl that our modern world demands. And, sister mine, isn't that worth striving for?

"Best of luck and all my love."

"Sis."

A nice Big Sister letter? We think so, too.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke.

At the Christmas carol sing given by the Girls Latin school the other night no one could have taken Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke and the slim, blonde, young girl sitting beside her for anything but mother and daughter. In addition to having her mother's slender face and coloring, the Paepckes' middle daughter, Paula, was dressed in unmistakable Paepcke style. Over a white blouse she wore a square-necked, peasant vest of red knit wool embroidered in large, gayly colored flowers. Departing with her mother, whose blouse was of white printed all over in small reddish flowers, Paula fastened a tiny pink triangle over the top of her head and under her chin. None of the children could have felt more pleased or proud of their pretty mamma than "Posey" and Potter Palmer IV. Mrs. Palmer III. was a symphony in gray-blue, a wool dress, a little pancake hat trimmed with a feather bird which was brightened by a hint of scarlet in its feathers, and a jacket of blue gray fox. A sturdy and composed young man of 10 accompanied his parents, the William A. Ryans, to hear sister Lynn join in the school's favorite Mexican carol. Lynn, who is 6, arrived at the school in a beautiful, apricot colored, wool coat and matching bonnet. The leggings, that were a shade, or two darker, were made of velvet. Lynn's mother was a picture of smartness in a beaver coat and hat over a bottle-green wool dress. The hat was a chopped-off, inverted cone that Mrs. Ryan wore slightly forward. Adding dash was a cording of red, wound once around the fur.

• • •

Doing her last-minute Christmas shopping at Freedom Fair at the Sherman hotel, Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr. was dressed as gayly as the booths at which she shopped for a doll for her young daughter. The tiny pill-box perched atop her blonde locks was of bright green and blue yarn, studded with blue and green sequins and large white pearls and swathed in blue veiling. The dress under her mahogany-toned fur coat was of an odd shade of sea green, and her slippers, designed for solid comfort, were black suede wedgies. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, who spent most of her time at the Fair near the French booth, wore a costume that might have been inspired by the Gay Paree of olden days. Her tailored, gray wool dress was relieved by a large bow, softly tied at the neckline. Cut from the same bolt of material was her gray wool crêpe bonnet, which was edged around the face in gray krimmer. Mayor Edward J. Kelly was accompanied to the opening ceremonies of the Fair by his wife, chic in a black Persian lamb coat and an infinitesimal hat which was nothing more than a large comma of white felt, molded to her head. Clustered at the front were orange, yellow and white feathers with a saucy, green felt bow tied to one side, matching her Dublin green scarf and gloves. Also in a handsome dark fur coat was another of the holiday shoppers, Debutante Alice Hooper, whose little hat was tipped in wine-colored ostrich plumes.

• • •

Mrs. Edward A. Leight.

To one of the Arts club's recent opening teas, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed wore a stunning costume combining black and brown to unusual and striking advantage. Her sleek, black crêpe gown was banded across the bodice with black satin, and the cuffs of the long sleeves disappeared within brown suede gauntlets. Her little toque was of soft feathers in bronzed pheasant shadings, and her smooth pompadour was covered with a stiff face veil over which fluttered bronze feather butterflies. French-heeled, black suede sandals with wide straps buttoned high across the ankles completed this feminine and Parisian-looking costume. Pouring at tea that day at the Arts club, Mrs. O. Victor McGrew wore a stunning two-piece suit of sheer, apricot wool, fastened down the front with covered buttons. To one shoulder was fastened a gold, amber and green jeweled spray. The crown of her small brown hat was swirled in rust and apricot ostrich plumes and a froth of brown veiling. Mrs. Carlo Peroni, whose husband conducted many of the Chicago Opera company's performances this year, was wearing a tobacco brown crêpe dress shirred across the shoulder and offset by a heavy necklace of beaten gold medallions studded with pearls and ruby jewels. Her coat was of taffy-colored skins, and her black jersey hat was cuffed in the same fur. Her companion, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, wore a smart tunic dress of mandarin red crêpe, stitched to the black crêpe skirt and sleeves by means of black jet beads set to resemble feather-stitching. Her high-crowned hat was trimmed with large pink and red velvet roses.

Household Forum

[Have you some favorite household help that lightens labor or conserves on materials? Is there some convenience you could enjoy? We'd be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Helen G., Kokomo, Ind. — Don't throw away those empty butter cartons if you make the kind of cookie dough that's to be stored in a refrigerator and chilled. Those cartons don't take much space, are already greased, and you'll have the dough all nicely molded and ready to slice evenly when you slip it out of carton.

• • •

Mrs. T. H. J., Chicago—I baste ties carefully before washing to prevent lining from slipping or the padding from getting humpy and lumpy. Then, of course, before ironing, I remove basting threads.

• • •

Mrs. Howard T., Evanston, Ill. — Think of the time and the temper and the table tops and the rugs that would be saved if only some one would design and market ink bottles that—if tipped—would close automatically, and keep the ink from spilling and spreading. I'd call them a comfort!

• • •

Mrs. Georgia M., Chicago—I have three boys, each with a desk of his own, and they like the way I tack small boxes to the desk drawer bottoms. They say these little boxes are swell holders for clips, pen points, pins, and all sorts of odds and ends.

• • •

Katharine B., Chicago—This year, by way of saving everything I can, I take special care to remove all breakable buttons and buckles from every garment before I wash it. One missing button can ruin a costume, and if you can't match it, you have to go out and buy a whole new set.

• • •

Mrs. Fred Smith, St. Paul, Minn.—If your children and your neighbors' children make snow forts in winter, make them a present of an old wooden barrel with its ends knocked out. My children use such a barrel as the entrance to such a fort. They can just "crawl thru" and walls don't totter and fall in.

• • •

Grace G., Springfield, Ill.—I keep a file of magazines I'm specially interested in and find I can keep the covers in better shape if I apply a strip of transparent cellulose tape lengthwise along the bound edge. I also apply tape on the corners.

Wishing for a White Christmas

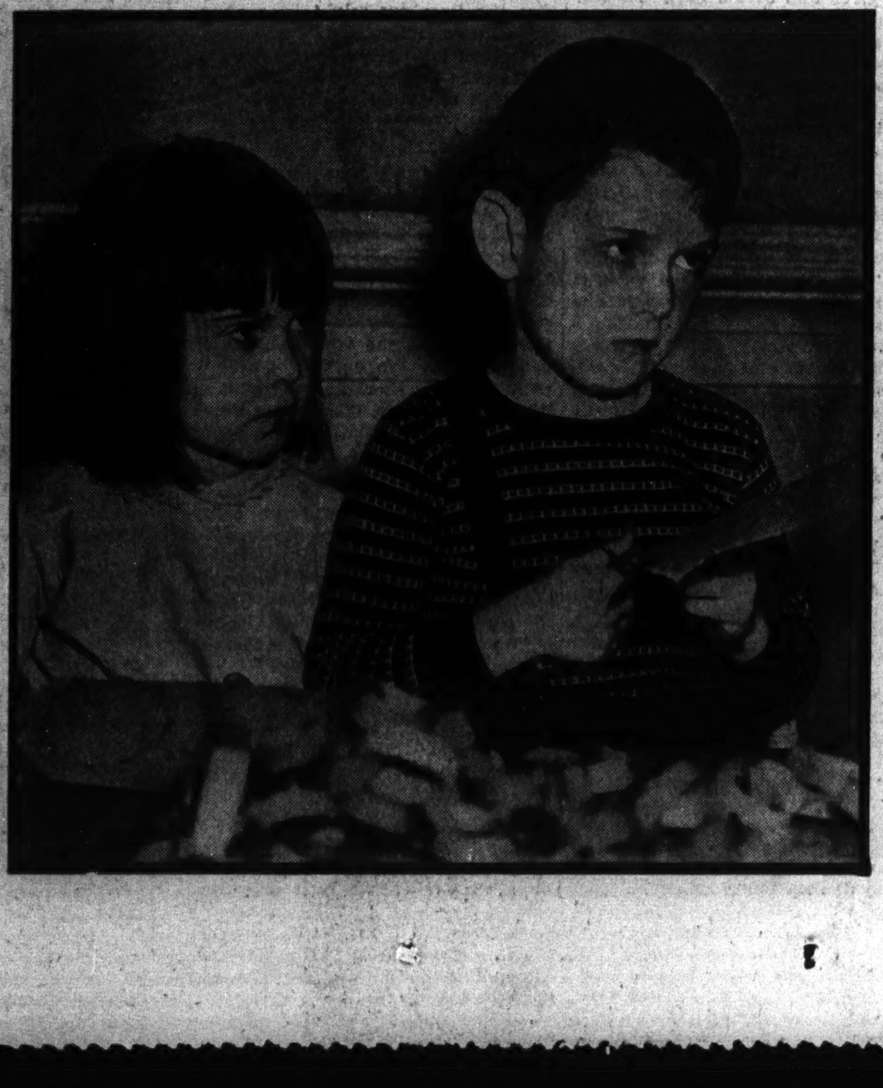
Above: Donald and Dorothy Freytag and their boxer, Kurt, are illustrating how millions of good little boys and girls—and dogs, too—are behaving themselves now that Santa Claus is about to pay his annual visit. They are the children and pet of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer M. Freytag of Highland Park.

Right: A pair of angels at the Drama league entertainment were Marie Mahder (left) and Carol Ann Snip. Members of the league brought their children and grandchildren to see the Children's Civic theater gay Christmas revue.

Below: Enthralled members of the audience at the Children's Civic theater show were Johnny Atz and Jacqueline Diane Thrasher. Jacqueline brought her doll.



Right: Making that Christmas gift for mummy is a serious problem to little Cynthia Mead and Peter Oram. They have been plying scissors and paste at the Boys' Latin school kindergarten and have made some surprises for Christmas.

Above: Playing the part of a "White Christmas" in the entertainment the Children's Civic theater gave for the Drama club recently was young Olga Schaller, who sang the currently popular "White Christmas." The Christmas revue was given at the Arts club.

Left: Thoughts of Santa's coming are uppermost in every child's mind, and little Jane Redgwick is waiting impatiently for next Friday. She and her sister, below, were in the audience at the Drama league party.

Chicago Busy Filling Socks for Fighters

By Cousin Eve.

Before another week drops away into space Christmas will have come and gone. In the few days left there is more than ever for Chicago to do this year in the Christmas line. Besides all of the service men passing thru who will be entertained at the various centers, we have many lads preparing to go to sea who are lodged here.

The figures on turkeys and cranberries are already apochryphal, not to mention the high ambition of Bundles for America, which aims at a Christmas stockings for all. They have been working at this problem for weeks, organizing stocking brigades into stocking fillers, packers and distributors, finally shipping in big navy trucks for the run to Great Lakes and Navy pier. The Christmas gift stockings are of heavy red net, and each should contain a notebook, pencil, candy, playing cards, a comb, razor blades and cream, also a personal note from the sender, which the sailors like best of all.

Mrs. John J. Cohane is the young and handsome Chicago chairman of "Bundles" and personally supervises the filling of many of these socks at 75 North Wacker drive. Some of the gift socks are most extravagantly endowed—and have wonderful little mending kits, pens, knives, handkerchiefs, according to the fancy of the sender.

• • •

There will be a ceremony at Navy pier at 6 o'clock Wednesday, when nine great Christmas trees will be lighted at once. Mrs. John Crerar and ladies of her honorary committee will be present with Mrs. Cohane to give out the socks to the boys on the pier. Coast guardsmen from Chicago and Wilmette and sailors from our local aircraft carrier are included in the celebration.

The Salvation Army always stresses Christmas and the holidays. Who can resist the Salvation Army's appeal for cash to buy a Christmas dinner for "your unseen guest"? Out of the bleak cold and dark night some out-of-luck stranger will perhaps wander in and, having dined and been warmed at your expense, find courage to carry on again. Of the usual run of Christmas gift swapping there will be far less this season—and in Christmas and New Year cards, a great dropping off.

• • •

Bobsey Goodspeed, who is practical, is sending her good wishes on a penny postal. Other women of my acquaintance who run large establishments are intimating tactfully that a couple of pounds of granulated sugar wouldn't be amiss. Or that a round tin of coffee would make the nicest present in the world on Christmas morning.

Grand opera is over until the fall of 1943—a holiday matinée of Hansel and Gretel in English yesterday was the finish. Director Gallo gave three operas in English to please those of his clientele who have that phobia, Martha, Tales of Hoffman and the last matinée, Humperdinck's charming fantasy which children love.

I have never found that the English lends itself to French or Italian music, but these three English spoken operas served as pieces of mouse cheese to attract extra large audiences of enthusiasts.

There is a streamlined version of "Tales of Hoffman" as given in France which is utterly fascinating. Chauvet is the director who produces it, and he is supposed to be in Mexico City at the moment, and therefore not available for our purposes. His first act is in the toy shop — a huge ballet—where the toys are wound up and do their dancing to the most charming of all Offenbach music. As a coda the stage is suddenly invaded by many white toy kittens, mewing, jumping, and wagging their tails.

The unexpected happened this season when Director Gallo secured a Scarpia worthy of the name for Grace Moore's lovely and appealing Tosca. Rumor says that Grace herself chose Alexander Sved from the Metropolitan as an ideal Scarpia, and since the days of Scotti we haven't had a better. Others have sung the rôle well, but for real devilment the Hungarian born Sved was tops.

• • •

As to Grace Moore—she and her voice are both lovelier than ever this year and she has acquired the manner of opera stage authority, so that one compares her with other divas of the past who have thrilled—Milka Ternina, Muzio, Mary Garden—with the splendor of their art. Garden's costume in the Roman church of St. Andrea della Valle was black velvet, a longtailed Empire coat with tails, narrow skirt, and dashing feathered hat, quite marvelous. In this act Mme. Moore wears a one piece frock of cadet blue, and a Salvation Army bonnet rampant, not a costume that an 18th century opera singer would wear. Neither is her pale blue evening wrap in the final scene, according to tradition. Tosca wears a long dark mantle, preferably purple, when she hurls herself from Castella St. Angelo.

Mme. Jarmila Novotna, beautiful and exotic, an exquisite Hungarian, sang only once for us, in Traviata. Her costumes were designed and made in Paris by Lanvin and are magnificent, and Helen Jepson also dresses her rôles superbly and is a great favorite with the opera going public.

The Polish tea Sunday afternoon given by Dr. and Mrs. B. J. Mix at 1500 Lake Shore drive was a charming gala, like something out of grand opera. It was held in honor of the Polish committee of Freedom Fair, and the hostess and her two beautiful young daughters, Mary and Catherine, wore Polish national dress. Mrs. Mix was robed in ruby satin edged in ermine and the girls wore the traditional muslin aprons and guimpes over full skirts with the jeweled ornaments for hair and neck, which are from Poland's long historic past. Quite a number of beautiful Polish girls were present in variations of this same national dress. The Mix apartment is wainscoted in dark oak with vaulted ceiling and had an old world look with its holiday flowers and wreaths, and these delightful freshly beribboned costumes.

The hostess is one of the greatest organizers for Red Cross in Illinois and had enlisted 15,000 Polish Americans in the cause. Among the many guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, who are both national officers of Red Cross, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, the latter being hostess for Polish day at Freedom Fair. Mrs. Kirk was pouring tea for Mrs. Mix at a long table in the dining room, a table decked in holly and evergreen and replete with Polish refreshments, the best ever. Besides coffee there was steaming hot borsch, which is a bouillon, colored with red beet juice, most delectable. Poles are famous the world over for their many cakes, pastries, and sweets, and for their high living in general. Mrs. Kirk, who is the most soignee and beautifully dressed woman, always perfection, was dressed in dark red with sables, a small chapeau of red and pink roses perched well back on her ash blonde hair. Mrs. Howard Fenton, Fortune Gallo, and Mr. and Mrs. Benetatos of Greece were others among the guests.

• • •

Freedom Fair died a natural death late Friday night in the exposition hall of the Hotel Sherman. We went the first day after the opera matinée, which chanced to be Russian day, and found it rather sparsely attended, but all the pleasanter for the patrons who were there.

Downstairs at the entrance were the bar and tearoom and the twin booths of Mrs. Robert J. Dunham and Mrs. Frederick Preston for cigarets and floral gadgets. Robert Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Preston, the Rostislavs, Mrs. Loyal Davis, and Mrs. William H. Bush were on duty here below. Upstairs in the commonwealth of nations there was a little stage at one end, a few chairs, and a ring of 12 booths full of fancy articles.

It was very nicely done, well thought out and agreeable. The fair ended with a grand gala in the Sherman ballroom on Friday evening with dancing, and a floor show. Tickets $3.30. Mrs. Thomas Connors was chairman of Freedom Fair and Mrs. John A. Carpenter chairman of the committee of hostesses. Mrs. Carpenter is about to wing away with her husband to spend the early winter in Arizona.

The holiday dances are late in beginning this year. On Tuesday, Dec. 29, at the Casino Mr. and Mrs. John L. Cochran will give a tea-dance for their daughter, Nancy. And Wednesday night, also at the Casino, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley's dinner-dance for Barbara McClurg will seat 200 guests, half of whom are friends of Eleanor McClurg, who made her debut a couple of years ago. Eleanor's coming out ball at the Blackstone was the last word—Ruby Newman's orchestra flown out by private plane, a hot buffet going all night long in the upper gallery, anl ballroom decorations, a pine forest in snowtime! all diamanté.

Our little holiday celebration in Chicago sounds very simple in comparison with the splendors of the Washington season, the magnificent dinners, receptions, luncheons at the Sulgrave club, weddings without end, cocktails of large size, dinners for ambassadors, dances and routs of all kinds.

• • •

A friend, a popular widow, has just returned from a week in Washington, and the recital of her social activities was quite fantastic, even breath taking. There was a dinner for 70 in the ballroom of the lovely Cuban embassy in 16th street in honor of the president of Cuba. This dignitary spent a night at the White House, then moved over to Gist Blair house, guest house of the nation.

My friend sat with M. Litvinov on her left, Sumner Welles at her right, "Edward" just opposite, as the high flying British call Ambassador Halifax. Then the Ecuadorians had their president here and a party for him. Jimmy Cromwell was celebrating at a vast cocktail party; the bar association blew out in the smartest dinner of the year at the Sulgrave, and the Butler Wrights' daughter was married with great pomp and circumstance to an army officer in the huge Washington cathedral. There were dinners with dancing for the Greek minister and Mme. Diamantopolos, for the Egyptian minister and Mme. Massaù, and for the Chinese, Dr. and Mme. Wei Lao-Tang.

• • •

Here at home we have a few holiday guests. Mrs. John Crerar has a popular New York woman, Mrs. Robbins Strong, over the holidays, and Mrs. John Liddell of Shanghai has taken an apartment near the Drake for the winter. Mrs. Liddell is a member of the Hellyer family of Riverside and was staying in Honolulu with her young widowed niece, LaVerne Louer Hellyer at the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor. Mrs. Hellyer and her two children are living in Des Moines, Ia., this winter with Mrs. Lewis Louer, her mother. Mrs. Louer, who was in Chicago for the last week-end, is a beauty of a dazzling type, blue eyed with black hair and fair skin. As the daughter of the late Sen. Porter McComber of North Dakota she had a great whirl in Washington and people there still remember her for her unusual beauty.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Leander J. McCormick were of the guests at the luncheon last Sunday given for Adm. and Mrs. John Downes by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cohane. The charming Renee had been in New York for a fortnight and had an aura of travel about her, as of one who has been places and seen things. Hatless she was on the bitter day and clad French fashion, in the simplest of black frocks. This was, however, an ideal background for her new Christmas present from her husband, bought in Manhattan, one of the most chic little glass handbags we ever have imagined, but never before seen. The handbag was on straight lines, and almost before Renee had got her breath everybody had pounced upon it and upon her to hear all about what was doing in the great world beyond.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Margaret Marquardt's engagement to Walter Gunkel is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence William Marquardt of Oak Park. Miss Marquardt attended Rosary college. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gunkel of Long Beach, Ind., attended Loyola university and is awaiting his call from the army air corps.

TO BE MARRIED

Miss Jacqueline Kulwin, whose engagement to Richard S. Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Hoffman of 3740 Lake Shore drive, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Kulwin of Pratt boulevard. Miss Kulwin and her fiance attended the University of Illinois. He now is at the signal corps school in Milwaukee.

Sorority Undergraduates to Hold Annual Luncheon

Special guests at the annual luncheon of the Kappa Delta sorority for undergraduate members at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Georgian room of Carson's will be Mrs. Ada Schumacher, chairman of the chapter house committee, and Mrs. Herbert Mueller, Zeta Province president. Mrs. Schumacher and Mrs. Mueller, both national officers, will conduct a discussion of the defense programs of the Kappa Delta chapters. A representative of each chapter will outline the defense activities of her group. Plans are being made now to launch a national war service project among the chapters for providing recreational equipment for service men's centers.

Art Galleries Enhance Cheer of Yule Season

By Eleanor Jewett.

Merry Christmas!

The various art galleries about town are decked in their brightest to enhance the cheer of the holiday season. At the Chicago Galleries association, 215 North Michigan avenue, is one of the most brilliant of the December exhibits. Each painter has been allowed one canvas, so the exhibition is splendidly representative of what many of our strongest painters are doing. From California Anna Lee Stacey has sent a decorative flower piece, "Matilija Poppies," and Jessie Arms Botke has invoked a bit of her particular magic in the study of birds, "White and Gold."

Orrin A. White, another California resident, contributes the very lovely "California Hills," cadences in brown. One of the most stunning of the paintings is "An Old Landmark" by Louise Kelly. Karl Ouren shows a beautiful landscape "Birches in Moonlight at Orkla River in Spring." Karl Plath, who is curator of birds at Brookfield zoo, shows an exquisite panel of three exotic birds in "Birds of a Feather"; their feathers are warm and soft and gleaming. Another unusual and interesting picture is the beautiful "Still Life Before a Still Life" by Julius Moessel, whose murals are installed in the Field museum. Charles P. Killgore offers a magnificent glimpse of Mexico in "Pottery Market, Taxco." Mr. Killgore has visited Mexico several times and each time he has brought back brilliant paintings of the country.

Rudolph F. Ingerle shows "Veiled Moon," a typical Ingerle landscape, poetic and sensitive. Edward K. Williams brings a touch of impressionism into the show with his misty "A Church House in the Highlands." Bessie Helstrom, famous for her flower paintings, contributes "Pink Peonies." Mrs. Helstrom is in Florida again this winter. A gorgeous still life is the effective "Blue and Gold" of Leslie B. Buck. Big, loose, and lovely in color is the study "Peonies" by Nina K. Griffin. Merlin Enabnit has one of the most unusual paintings in the show, his "The Melting Pot" is the story in brief of a tenderfoot ranch out west. It is clever, amusing, and extremely well painted.

Averil Courtney Conwell shows a striking "Fall Flowers" and Gianni Cilfone a brilliant "New England Autumn." Among the fine portraits are the charming painting of a boy, "Otto," by Oskar Gross; the effective "Portrait of Howard Weller" by Richard A. Chase; the young "Adolescent" by Shirley Friend, who does such charming portraits of children; the striking "Lady in Green Jacket" by Antonin Sterba, and the strong "Portrait of Colonel Edgar S. Gorrell" by Joseph P. Nash.

• • •

The humorous water colors by Peggy Palmer Burrows at the Findlay galleries, Michigan avenue at Van Buren street, have taken to doing a vanishing trick which is very hard on the visitors. It is first come, first served. Mrs. Burrows started her show some 10 days ago and in that time the body of it has changed several times. People insist upon buying the attractive little pictures and taking them away at once, which is splendid from the artist's point of view but not so splendid for the exhibition. Mrs. Burrows sends down more pictures to replace the ones that are taken, and they vanish. When we dropped in on the exhibit more than half the original pictures [we were told] had gone to new homes. There were still, however, some adorable sketches of "Muffin" doing various bits of mischief, and caricatures of several well known modern paintings, some with a distinct hangover of Matisse, Cezanne, and Gauguin.

Peggy Palmer Burrows is clever, able, imaginative, and witty. Her portrait of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in a London restaurant gazing at a menu on which the word mutton appears on line after line, is a gem. There probably are additional paintings on view this week, so take a chance and drop by and see them.

The beautiful group of recent paintings by Hovsep Pushman is still on view at the Findlay galleries and will be thru Dec. 31. To satisfy the many persons who want to enjoy these gorgeous pictures, the galleries are staying open until 9 o'clock in the evenings and on Sundays from 3 to 6 o'clock. A Pushman painting is truly a joy forever and the present show gives him at his best. He can do more with gold paint, muted greens and blues, terra cotta figures and jades, bowls, cups, saucers, and tapestries than any artist who ever lived. His work is marvelously perfect; in it one can plunge into depth after depth of delight.

• • •

Downstairs at the Findlay galleries is a representative showing of paintings, water colors, drawings and sculpture by Katherine Eckstein. It is an animated exhibit; the work is modern in character. There is one bay scene which is scintillating—rocks, water, weeds, sky—the whole landscape blends into a colorful, exciting episode. The many studies of mother and child are rather on the tragic side. Not much sunshine has fallen into the lives of Mrs. Eckstein's models; they are woeful, mournful ghosts who haunt her countrysides, with a preference for winding, lonely roads. The modern, dégagée, manner of making anatomy an inessential is found in the pictures, but the one sparkling harbor painting makes up for any number of tragic impressions.

An exhibition of camouflage, including models and charts, combined with an exhibit of paintings in tempora by Xanti Schawinsky, is on view at the School of Design, 247 East Ontario street.

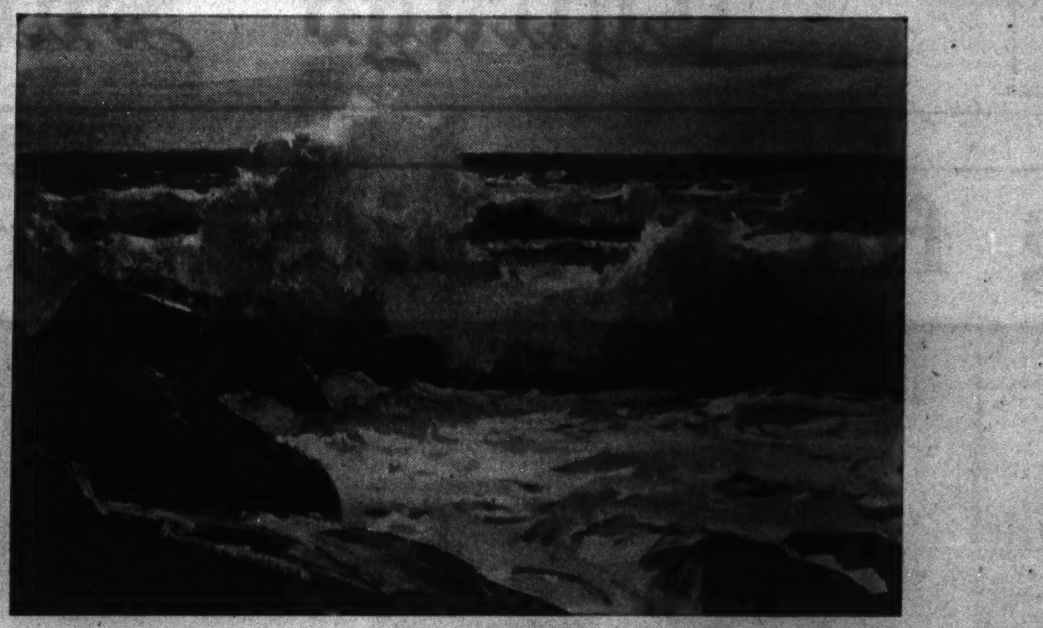
The Outdoor Artists association is holding an exhibit and sale of paintings at 20 East Congress street.



"GLEAMING SURF"

Frank H. Myers, having just concluded a one man show of marine paintings at the Chicago galleries, is represented in the current artist associates' exhibition in the same galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, with another brilliant interpretation of the Pacific—"Gleaming Surf." His marine paintings rank among the finest of our day.

Windsors Pay a Short Visit to Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

Uncle Sam, Edward Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, and his wife all arrived in Palm Beach at the same time. The visitors from the Bahamas tarried but a few days, but Uncle Sam is here for the duration at least.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Governmental recognition of this area as the nation's great sun parlor was seen in the establishment here of hospitals for convalescent, wounded men. Famous resort hotels will be used for this purpose, and first on the list to be announced officially was the Breakers hotel. This mammoth, ocean front hostelry has sheltered celebrities from all over the world.

This transition of a great resort hotel to an army hospital marks the beginning of a new epoch in the life of Palm Beach. It also tends to make oldsters here grow nostalgic.

The present Breakers hotel was built in 1926 to replace the older structure that burned in 1924. The original Breakers was a yellow frame building with wide verandas, cupolas, and all the architectural gimcracks of the era in which it was built, 1895. Like its companion hotel, the Royal Poinciana, now razed, the old Breakers was carpeted in soft green and furnished in white wicker. Wooden grille work ornamented the doorways, and its elevator moved in a most leisurely fashion. Hundreds of rocking chairs, inartistic but thoroly comfortable, formed long lines on the verandas of both hotels.

There is nothing plain and simple about the present Breakers. It is in Italian Renaissance style, but with modern trimmings. Huge, almost overpowering in size, it is considered by many as the world's grandest grand hotel. It was modeled after the Villa Medici in Rome, only on a much more elaborate scale. The hotel is approached by a broad boulevard lined with flowers, shrubs, and palms. An imposing Florentine fountain is at the hotel entrance. The great hall, or main lobby of the Breakers, is beautiful and impressive with frescoes, oil paintings, and long, barrel-vaulted ceiling.

• • •

The gardens in the patio are planted in a scheme of terraces, paths, balustrades, and fountains. To the east of the patio and facing the sea is the grand loggia, inspired by palaces in Genoa. Walls of this loggia are of stone and the floor is laid in colored marble. The ceilings are elaborately frescoed. The main lounge is modeled after a room in the doge's palace in Venice. The ceiling is in green and gilt fresco, while around the room directly under the niched ceiling are oil paintings that tell symbolically the history of Florida.

Halls, galleries, and lounges of the Breakers contain an endless array of rare art objects. There are heavy brocades, oil paintings, antique chests, richly carved cabinets, and numberless lovely tables. Volumes could be written on the history of many of these articles, as great houses in Europe were stripped of treasures so that the Breakers might be a show place in Palm Beach.

No loud laughter echoed thru the halls of the Breakers. In spite of the fact that the hotel was usually full, comparatively few people were seen in the lounges. As a hotel it was formal and elegant. Many tourists walked thru its corridors and lounges as they would visit a museum where art treasurers were on display.

The hotel came to life in the late afternoon when the cocktail hour drew the gay set from the cottage colony and nearby resorts. There were tables on the verandas, out of doors and in the cocktail bar, gay with pink leather and chromium. There was a dance floor out of doors and one on the veranda which could be closed in case of chilly weather.

• • •

The Windsors seemed to enjoy their sojourn in Palm Beach. No large parties were given for them, but there were a number of small affairs in their honor. Mrs. Windsor shopped on Worth avenue, wearing a smart yellow sports suit. She inspected the Volunteers for Victory Canteen, and she and Gov. Windsor were also honor guests at a luncheon at the officers' club at Morrison field, given by Col. and Mrs. Paul E. Burrows. Mrs. Windsor wore a blue and white print frock with a waist-length jacket of navy blue. Her hat was one of those calots she likes so well, with a face veil. Her ear clips were centered with sapphires that exactly matched her eyes. The governor wore a light gray flannel suit with a yellow slip-on sweater.

Gov. and Mrs. Windsor were guests of Herbert V. Pulitzer and his stepdaughter, Miss Grace Amory. Mrs. Margaret Emerson gave a small dinner from them on Monday night.

Orville E. Babcock Jr., stationed at Camp Croft, Spartanburg, S. C., spent a few days with Mrs. Babcock and their children, Orville E. Babcock III, and James Greenleaf Alexander Babcock.

Mrs. Norman Merrett of London, who has spent the last few months in Lake Forest with her mother, Mrs. Hambleton Kirk, has taken an apartment in Palm Beach for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hughitt have as their guest for the season Mrs. Hughitt's sister, Miss Lillian Grace Scheer of St. Joseph, Mich. Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Stephens of Chicago are at Brazilian Court.

George Skinner of Chicago, always the first guest to register at the Breakers, is now in Palm Beach. Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, widow of the famous oil tycoon, was also in the resort last week.

Garden Club of Illinois Will Decorate Service Centers

Maybe the tree at home this year will have the appearance of an angel who has been hustled into her shimmering robe and wound up with her halo on eskew. But the busy members of the Garden Club of Illinois are determined that Chicago's service men's centers and every fort and station in the vicinity will present a Christmas picture of holly wreaths and evergreen garlands and beautifully decorated trees guaranteed to banish the last vistage of a homesick feeling dimming a soldier's or sailor's holiday spirits.

All last week, from morning until night, the women were occupied with the gigantic task of decorating the downtown centers and still will be working tomorrow on the finishing touches. Most of the Christmas decorating on the north shore will be done this week.

• • •

Directing the entire project is Mrs. George S. Parker of Winnetka, northern regional chairman of the club. On the north shore Mrs. Parker delegated Mrs. Hill Blackett to direct the volunteer decorators for Great Lakes Naval Training station, Mrs. Harry Kerr to have charge at Fort Sheridan, Mrs. William Bacon to supervise at the Glenview naval air base, and Mrs. Roy Piehl to manage the project at Camp Skokie. Twenty-eight garden clubs are actively participating in the work on the north shore.

Mrs. Berthold Cronson of the Kenwood Garden club is chairman of the volunteers from 24 clubs, Chicago groups and others from the west and southwest suburbs, who are working in the city.

The decorating has intrigued the interest of the men, and Mrs. Cronson declares that many of the "boys" have demonstrated mechanical ingenuity not short of genius in getting the gigantic, heavy garlands in place.

• • •

More than 140 evergreen wreaths, measuring from 18 inches to 5 feet have been made for the service men's center at 176 West Washington street and service men's center No. 2, the old Auditorium. More than 400 evergreen garlands have been made, many of them large 8 inch swags. Festooning between the lights in the canteen of the latter center alone required 72 yards.

Chicago school children made the ornaments for the Christmas trees, which the men and girls at the centers will trim.

High school students in Lake Forest made scores of jolly Santa Claus posters that set a cheerful motif for the decorations on the north shore, and the 5th grade children at the Central school in Glencoe turned out handsome table pieces, long green boards studded with red candles and heaped with red berries, pine cones, and evergreens, that will adorn the Christmas dinner tables in the Great Lakes mess halls.

• • •

Mrs. Parker and her north shore volunteers have procured 80 trees for Fort Sheridan, Great Lakes, Glen View, and Skokie. They range from small table trees to 14 foot firs and spruces for outdoors.

Thirty-six mess halls are being decorated at Fort Sheridan. At Great Lakes the women are decorating 68 units, hospital wards, recreation rooms, and library. Fifty bedside bouquets and 2,000 bed tray favors are two of the items on Mrs. Parker's list. Particular attention is being given to the chapels at all four stations.

O. R. T. Leader Will Address Chicago Group

Pierre de Gunzbourg will be here from New York today to address Chicago council of the American O. R. T. federation at a rally culminating a membership drive. The meeting will be held in the Morrison hotel. Member of a titled French family which figured prominently in Jewish circles in Europe, De Gunzbourg is a refugee in this country.

Son of one of the founders of O. R. T., De Gunzbourg long has been a leader in the organization's work of rehabilitating Jews thru training in trades and crafts. He is president of the World O. R. T. Reconstruction fund, heads the European Friends of O. R. T., and formerly was president of the Committee to Aid Eastern European Jews in France.

• • •

It was largely thru the efforts of the De Gunzbourg family that the school for women refugees was organized in New York.

The principal speaker at the rally will be Louis Fitch, member of the Canadian parliament. A leader in the O. R. T. movement, he has made possible the teaching of trades to Jewish refugees in the internment camps in the dominion.

Morris L. Polin, chairman of the Chicago O. R. T. council, will preside. The membership drive has been directed by Sol Fisher.

• • •

The junior organization is gathering at 3:30 o'clock today in the Morrison for a musical program by Henri Rose, pianist. Plans will be completed for a dance which is to be given at the hotel early next month.

Today also will find the youth division of the American Jewish congress assembled at the Morrison for a district meeting, with Joseph R. Friedman presiding.

Frederic C. White, editor of Congress Beacon, will deliver an address entitled "The Congress Movement—a Solution to the Jewish Crisis."

City of Hope League Will Hold Its Benefit Tonight

Climaxing the 1942 benefit programs

Climaxing the 1942 benefit programs of the City of Hope league of the Los Angeles sanatorium will be the "holiday hop," to be held at 8:30 tonight in the Bar Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman. Entire proceeds will go to the Los Angeles sanatorium, a national, free and nonsectarian institution for the treatment of tuberculosis. Arrangements for the dance were completed by Bill Galter, president, with the assistance of Laura Fishman and Bernie Temkin, co-chairmen. It is estimated that needy Chicagoans received a total of 15,000 hospital days last year at the sanatorium.

Women are wanted to fill jobs in offices, stores, factories and other businesses which directly or indirectly aid the war effort.

If you can arrange your home affairs to step into one of these jobs, read the employment columns in the Tribune for openings which can use your experience, ability and training.

The selection of jobs in the Tribune is larger because the Tribune prints more than twice as much Help Wanted and employment Agency want advertising as all other Chicago newspapers combined.

Gala Christmas Fetes to Cheer Less Fortunate

By Irene Steyskal.

Short of live elephants, broncos, dancing bears, army jeeps, and P-40 planes, any of which might prove a bit awkward to house on the premises, the Christmas gifts most wanted by orphaned boys and girls in Chicago and suburban institutions are in the giant packs being taken by the Ladies of Isabella on their 30th annual round of holiday cheer parties. And, in addition to the thousands of individually selected presents, St. Nick's special fairy godmother corps has packets and stocking of nuts, candy, popcorn, oranges, and apples on its Christmas list.

Hospitals, infirmaries, and homes for the aged also share in the large scale Christmas festivities of the Catholic women's organization. The parties, 40 are being given, started last week and will continue well into January.

Two Protestant women's organizations, the Protestant Women's Service club and the Service Council for Girls, are holding celebrations for children and teen-age girls. Another, the Protestant Women's Protectorate, is preparing gifts for all the middle aged and elderly women whom it befriends.

• • •

Miss Marion Collins.

Miss Marion Collins is general chairman of the Christmas cheer parties of the Ladies of Isabella. The 46 councils comprising the Supreme council are all participating. At some of the larger institutions, several councils are pooling their efforts. The Supreme council, headed by Mrs. Anne M. Pontius, has taken charge of three, that held Friday at the Mission of Our Lady of Mercy, yesterday's party at Cordi Marian settlement, and the largest, an all-day celebration at the Oak Forest infirmary, to be held Sunday, Jan. 24.

• • •

Among other institutions being visited are the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium, the Parental school, the Little Sisters of the Poor homes for the aged, St. Mary's training school in Des Plaines, Angel Guardian orphanage, St. Vincent's infant asylum, St. Elizabeth's day nursery, St. Mary's settlement, St. Philip's community center, St. Rose social center and kindergarten, St. Joseph's Home for the Friendless, St. Elizabeth's school, the home for destitute crippled children operated by the University of Chicago clinic, St. Mary of Providence institute, Mother of Sorrows institute, the Carmelite orphanage, St. Hedwig's industrial school, St. Joseph's orphanage, Guardian Angel home in Joliet, St. Columbkille's day nursery.

• • •

Others are the Illinois training school for colored girls, House of the Good Shepherd, De Paul settlement and day nursery, St. Aloysius cottage for crippled children, Resurrection day nursery, Ephpheta school for the deaf, the Catholic Social center, Carmelite home for girls in East Chicago, Mount St. Joseph in Lake Zurich, Misericordia hospital and home for infants, and St. Benedict's home for the aged.

• • •

Mrs. Carlton Prouty.

The Protestant Women's Service has given several weeks of careful preparation to its Christmas party for dependent children, a gala luncheon and program which will be held Tuesday, Dec. 29, in the Wedgewood room at Marshall Field's. Twenty-one young guests are to be entertained and those too young to attend alone will be accompanied by their foster parents.

The club president, Mrs. Carlton Prouty, is making jaunty apple and marshmallow Santa Clauses as table favors. The youngsters wrote letters to St. Nick, and Mrs. Charles M. Austin, child welfare chairman of the club, and her 25 helpers on the party committee have scoured Chicago toy shops to fill each request. A troupe from the Billie dancing school and Tony Margo's marionettes are on the entertainment program.

Mrs. E. A. Weedfall, Mrs. Samuel P. Smurr, and Mrs. Arne Mauland have served as special assistants to Mrs. Austin in planning the party.

Eighteen of the children are assigned to the club's care by the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. Three others of the young guests are from the Martha Washington home for crippled children.

• • •

The Service Council for Girls is giving a dinner party tomorrow evening in the rooms of the agency at 343 South Dearborn street tomorrow evening for all of those who have received aid during the year. There will be entertainment and a gift for each guest. Mrs. J. Alex Brough is in charge of arrangements, with Mrs. Edward Brion and Mrs. Albert Held assisting. Mrs. Held is president of the council.

Members of the Protestant Woman's Protectorate will bring wrapped Christmas packages to a luncheon meeting tomorrow in the Top of the Town restaurant, 185 North Wabash avenue. It has been the custom heretofore for the members to deliver their gifts personally but Mrs. Fred W. Waterman, the president, has arranged for a general distribution this year because of the war transportation problem. The protectorate is a service organization for needy elderly women.

TO BE MARRIED JANUARY 9

Miss Alice Rohm, whose marriage to Lt. Richard G. Bowers, son of Capt. and Mrs. Russell Bowers of Fort Smith, Ia., is to take place on Jan. 9. Miss Rohm's mother, Mrs. William Rohm of Glen Ellyn, recently announced their engagement. Miss Rohm attended the University of Iowa, of which Lt. Bowers is a graduate.

Lectures Today

Dudley Crafts Watson, "Cathedrals and Altars," illustrated, 3:45 p. m., Fullerton hall, Art institute; free to service men and members, others, 28 cents.

Dr. Louis J. Tint, "The Spirit of the Grand Canyon," illustrated, 3 p. m., Chicago Academy of Sciences, Lincoln park; free.

Paul G. Dallwig, "Mysterious Night Riders of the Sky," on meteors, meteorites and satellites, 2 p. m., Field museum; free. [Advance reservations required.]

Club Will Distribute Gifts to Child Patients

Children in the orthopedic ward of the Cook County hospital will have visitors early Christmas morning. Laden with gifts, members of the Chicago and Cook County council of Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War will bring a generous Santa Claus pack of gifts for distribution among the young patients. Mrs. Ray Smith and Mrs. Arthur L. Hurd will head the Christmas cheer party. Mrs. Herman Schroeder is president of the council.

Widener Art Exhibit Opens in Washington

By India Moffett.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

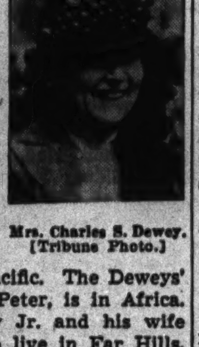
Chicago seems very far away as Christmas draws near. The distances between the capital and other places increase in every one's mind, if not in actuality, if one is living here for the duration, for home is where one wants to be on Christmas. Home is where one's loved ones are, is an old saying often repeated, but it's not altogether true. But how many families are there this year that have all their members together? Not many, we expect.



Mrs. Charles S. Dewey. [Tribune Photo.]

Going home for the holidays are Rep. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, altho they actually will spend Christmas in Detroit and not reach Chicago until the 26th. They are stopping in the Michigan city to spend the holiday with their elder daughter, Mrs. Frederick M. Alger Jr. and her children and her husband's family. Lt. Comm. Alger is in the Pacific. The Deweys' younger son, Lt. Peter, is in Africa. Charles S. Dewey Jr. and his wife and children, who live in Far Hills, N. J., will spend Christmas with her mother, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, in Chicago. The senior Deweys will have New Year's with the "Bud" Deweys and the former Louise Dewey and her husband, Edward Byron Smith, and their babies in Lake Forest.

Also going home for Christmas are Sen. and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg. Grand Rapids is home to the senator from Michigan and his wife, the former Hazel Whittaker of Chicago. Here from Chicago to spend the holidays with their son-in-law and daughter, Comm. and Mrs. Duncan Hodges, are the Walter S. Brewsters. They arrived in time for the opening this afternoon of the celebrated collection of paintings assembled by Joseph E. Widener of Elkins Park, Pa. Mr. Widener has given the collection to the nation and it is housed in the beautiful National Gallery of Art, the new Mellon museum.

• • •

The opening is to be celebrated this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and Mr. Widener and his family will be here for it. At luncheon they will be the special guests at a party given by David E. Finley, national gallery director, and Mrs. Finley. Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, ex-officio chairman of the gallery's board of trustees, and Mrs. Stone will be among the guests. Tonight a group of service men, some recently returned from overseas, will be special guests at a supper in the gallery and at a symphony concert to follow in the east garden court.

These courts in the great marble building are indescribably lovely, calm and peaceful. The gallery is a perfect place in which to spend hours if one can take the time from the many things that occupy one in this busy place, and we have given ourselves the pleasure of visiting the gallery many times since our arrival three months ago. Among the masterpieces we will see this afternoon are 14 paintings by Rembrandt, including "The Mill," regarded as one of the finest landscapes in the world; some Van Dyck portraits, Bellini's "Feast of the Gods," Raphael's "Small Cowper Madonna," three great works of Titian, two of Vermeer's, and sculpture by Donatello and others.

Other Chicago people who will be here for Christmas are Mr. and Mrs. John Merrell, who will spend the day with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Loud. For years the Merrells have had a noon eggnog party in their Lake Shore drive apartment, and since they will not be there this winter the Louds are going to carry on the tradition. It will have to be a much smaller party, however, than the one the Merrells always had, for the whole Georgetown house of the Louds would just about fit into the Merrells' living room. It's a chic little house, tho, with one of those enchanting tiny gardens that are such a boon to Washingtonians during the warm weather. It's high on a bluff overlooking the Potomac, and the view from the second floor windows is magnificent.

• • •

Nary a debutante bowed officially or formally to society here this winter, and altho the young set will be fairly busy during this holiday season, there is no round of parties such as is customary in the capital at this time of year. Some of the girls who would have been presented this winter are having small parties given for them, but in no case is the girl or her mother permitting the affair to be called a debut. For debuts are gone, if not forgotten, for the duration in Washington.

Young girls of an age to enter adult society are busy all day, every day, with work, volunteer or paid, and what little gayety they have after dark is likely to be fairly dull fare, for there just aren't enough beaux to go around. This in spite of the many young officers seen constantly in all public places.

• • •

The big debut party of the winter here was to have been Paulina Longworth's ball, but her mother, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, has cancelled plans for such frivolity. She is thinking of giving a small tea for Paulina when she is at home from Vassar, but at this writing no definite date has been set. Dec. 26, the date the former Alice Roosevelt had reserved long ago for her daughter's coming out, has been taken by Mrs. Demarest Lloyd for a small dance in her R street home for her daughter, Karen, who also is on this year's "casualty" list of debutantes.

Mrs. Emmet Gudyer's younger daughter, Gloria, is to have a dinner given for her on Christmas night instead of a debut party. Gloria is a Vassar student, also. Her mother will give the dinner at the Shoreham hotel, but she will be at home in her apartment in Crescent place on Dec. 26 and on Jan. 2 with both of her daughters receiving with her. The elder one, Elinor, always called Elin, has been a "Conover girl" ever since she was graduated at Mount Holyoke college last June. She just recently returned to New York after a long engagement with the "Conover Cover Girls" at the Book-Cadillac hotel in Detroit, but will come to Washington for a month with her family some time this week. Mrs. Gudyer is the former Genevieve Walsh, daughter of the late Sen. Thomas J. Walsh of Montana.

• • •

About half the girls who are being "finished" at Washington schools are spending the first part of their Christmas vacations working in department stores here. They look upon it as a lark in one way, but in another they consider they're helping out in a war emergency by giving their leisure time to making it possible for Christmas shoppers to obtain service.

Barbara Caldwell, subdeb daughter of Mrs. Irene Caldwell and a senior at the exclusive Madeira school, is one of those spending this last week before Christmas working.

Barbara's mother is one of the busiest women in Washington. She is kind and generous, and always willing to help in any worthy cause. She is active on a number of philanthropic committees, and when she is directing a drive or planning a campaign she works harder than any professional.

As Washington chairman of the Save the Children federation she just has finished a project to send Christmas packages to underprivileged children in the southern mountains. How many thousands of packages went to these children as a result of her work I do not know, but I do know that she herself packed and mailed 844 boxes. She made many of the garments that went into the packages, and some of the doll clothes. She utilized every scrap of material that was given to her, and the cleverest thing was the way she made discarded shoulder pads from women's clothes into ear muffs. As soon as the holidays are over Mrs. Caldwell will plunge into work for the President's ball for the Infantile Paralysis fund.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

Another woman to volunteer for a vital phase of war work is Mrs. Edward M. Tourtelot Jr. of Evanston, who is working at the new headquarters of the Pan-American Council of Chicago at 84 East Randolph street. Known as one of the most talented young matrons in the Junior League of Evanston, Mrs. Tourtelot has been active in the past in staging plays sponsored by the league, has worked with various charitable organizations, and in her spare time has painted in water colors.

Her present duties lie in many fields, first as chief assistant to Joseph H. Spear, executive director of the council. When she first signed up for its wartime program Mrs. Tourtelot's talent in the field of art prompted her to paint an informative map on the office walls, with the help of Kenneth Olson, Chicago artist. From there she went on to add the flags of the Latin-American countries and to paint the walls, woodwork, and even the floors in a spirited scheme of red, white, and blue.

Those extraneous little chores to achieve a pleasing background, were only the beginning of this young woman's program. She is in charge of all membership enrollments, talks to groups to promote a better understanding between the United States and the Latin-American countries, plans dinners and other functions, and otherwise is kept very busy in the rapidly expanding activities of the organization.

• • •

The work of the council is first and foremost an integral part of the war and it exists primarily to promote a better knowledge of our fighting allies to the south of us. It coöperates closely with the schools of the metropolitan Chicago area, publishes a monthly bulletin with particular emphasis on inter-American activities in this area, and maintains standing committees made up from the membership in a number of fields directly connected with its over-all program.

The council's trade relations committee, composed of industrial and civic leaders, disseminates information pertaining to Latin-American trade, encourages commerce and industry between the peoples of the Americas, works for the elimination of trade barriers, and advises council members in establishing and maintaining commercial relations with Latin America.

Mrs. Edward H. Tourtelot Jr. of Evanston, whose husband is a lieutenant in the navy, is giving her spare time these days to the Pan-American council of Chicago, as chairman of membership enrollments.

Officers of the council are: President, Dr. J. Fred Rippy; vice presidents, Russell Baker and Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Robertson; treasurer, George H. Redding.

• • •

The staff and volunteers at the U. S. O., 1122 South Wabash avenue, operated by the NCCS, are busy these days wrapping Christmas gifts for service men to send to the girls they left behind. More than 75 gifts have been wrapped so far. Miss Anne McKeever, assistant director of the center, said that the boys are a bit sheepish about requesting this help. "When the girls ask them how they'd like their gift wrapped," she said, "they blush a little and say, 'Just do it the best you can.'" The results of their best, she said, are very good and very festive. Some of the boys, too, have asked for suggestions and members of the center's staff have made purchases for them.

Many members of south side Negro churches remember the Rev. Irmah L. Moore as an evangelist with headquarters at 5948 South Park avenue. Last Sept. 9 Dr. Moore enrolled in the WAACS. She went to Fort Des Moines to begin basic training on Sept. 14 and recently returned to Chicago on a short leave. She described her training as a great educational opportunity.

Dr. Moore, who holds the degrees of A. B., B. D., and M. A., as well as an honorary D. D., said: "Every fine point in a woman asserts itself in the auxiliary training. The training in precision is invaluable. I think that it is an especially wonderful opportunity for Negro girls."

An auxiliary now, Miss Moore hopes to be a chaplain in the WAACS if a regulation establishing chaplains within the organization is set up. Miss Moore's master's degree in theology is from Butler university, Indianapolis. She says she is the only Negro woman to hold this degree and believes there is only one other woman who has it.

One of the first Christmas cards received by this department was from Lt. Mary Daily of the WAVES. It's a shipshape folder of white paper sprinkled with silver stars and decorated with a blue anchor and on it is the following message: "It may be 'Anchors Aweigh' this year, but it's always Merry Christmas and Happy New Year."

• • •

Loretta McCaffrey, recently enrolled in the WAACS, is the fourth member of her family to join the services. One brother is in the army air corps, another in the signal corps, and the third has just passed his physical examination for the army. Prior to her induction into the women's auxiliary army corps Miss McCaffrey was a manicurist at the Sherman hotel. One of her major contributions to women's war work was giving of her blood five times to the blood bank of the Red Cross.

• • •

The Red Cross unit of the Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is rounding out its third year of work on surgical dressings. In this period members meeting once weekly have made over 40,000 dressings. Quantities of knitting and sewing have also been done in members' homes. Miss Emma Lee Walton is chairman of the unit.

Annual Pueblo Fiesta to Take Place as Usual

TUCSON, ARIZ.

Good news has come to Tucson this week with the announcement that the annual Fiesta de Los Vaqueros, previously announced as suspended for the duration, will definitely be held in February. Preceded by 10 days of compulsory western dress for all citizens of the Old Pueblo, the rodeo events of the fiesta will be held on Feb. 20, 21, and 22. Master of ceremonies for the fiesta will be Sergt. Gene Autry, with Earl Thode, prominent Casa Grande cattleman and former national cowboy champion, as arena director.

Coöperating with the civic rodeo committee in staging the fiesta this year will be the Dude Ranchers' association, insuring winter visitors a more active part in the nationally famous rodeo parade and in the rodeo itself. Col. Lowell H. Smith, commandant of Davis-Monthan field, is also coöperating in the sponsorship of the fiesta on behalf of the army.

In recent years this city has been host to several motion picture companies on location. "Arizona," from the Clarence Budington Kelland story, was filmed here two years ago. Last year most of "Apache Trail" was done in the Tucson mountains. And next month Paramount will commence shooting its technicolor "Riding High" here under the direction of George Marshall. Dorothy Lamour is among the cast, which will make the Santa Rita its headquarters.

• • •

Constance Dunham, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Robert J. Dunham of Lake Forest, is attending the Potter school. Constance is being joined by her parents here for the holidays. They will stay at the Tanque Verde ranch, an idyllic spot nestled against the Rincon mountains and so remote from what used to be called civilization, that it does not have a telephone.

A number of Chicagoland folk were guests at an informal party a week ago this afternoon at Wildhorse ranch. High point of the party was the serving of the mysterious potion known out Cortaro way as the "wild-horse razoo." Among samplers of the razoo were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Exter of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Van Arsdale of Kenilworth, and Richard Lamport, Maurice Reinhart, and Jean Romine, all of Chicago. Frank Frost of Chicago is scheduled to arrive at Wild Horse this week.

Dr. Hugh T. Morrison, formerly of Chicago and currently of Springfield, Ill., is a recent arrival in town. He is the brother of Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century and highly influential in Protestant church affairs in the middle west. Dr. Morrison expects to spend the winter in Tucson and is making his headquarters at the Old Pueblo club.

Recently established in their own home on Silver Bell road are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kenneth Hoehler Jr., who were recently married in Tucson. Mr. Hoehler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Hoehler of Chicago and Cincinnati, O.

Mitchell, was graduated from the University of Wisconsin. [The Fair Photo.]

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, December 16, 1894.

Dear Julia: It is a quiet Sunday afternoon. Martha and Sandy and the children have just left the house, going for a walk to use up the excess spirits which seem to be particularly noticeable on the first day of the week when good little folks should be sedate and well behaved. As I watched them cross Rush street at Huron street, I had to sigh, seeing how tall they are growing to be, "little Esmond" trying to stretch to reach his father's shoulder; your namesake, Julie, growing like a weed, and the twins, bless them! no longer babies.

Florence Bartlett.

I am sending you tomorrow by express a small Christmas gift purchased the last week at the Service club's "Bazar of Four Seasons," held at the fashionable Lexington hotel on Michigan avenue at 22d street. I don't suppose you're exactly suffering for a handkerchief case, but when lovely young Florence Bartlett smiled confidingly up into my face, I couldn't help buying it. The object is a good one, for the girls are giving their earnings to the Home for Destitute Crippled Children, among other charities, and the little case is dainty, so I hope you can find a place for it on your bureau. [I never can remember to call it "dresser" as my younger friends do.]

The Service club, which is about five years old, is made up of girls from the best known south side families, and they are earnestly trying to live up to the name of their organization. I am glad to see the spirit of service becoming popular in our city. The members of this group will not be selfish society butterflies, I am sure. You remember pretty Kate Lancaster, who came with her mother to call on you when you were last here. She is a member of the Service club and so is Adelaide Hamilton. Helping at the bazar were Edith Hoyt and Ellen Walsh, favorites of mine. They made $600 for the club last year and hope to do even better this time.

Another evidence of the spirit that is taking possession of us is the opening of the Chicago Commons, a settlement recently established at 140 North Union avenue, which we visited last week. The house, an old red brick mansion of 27 rooms, stands in a dreary section of the northwest side of the city, peopled mainly by poor Italians. Dire poverty is in evidence on every hand, and looking from the windows there's not a bright spot in the landscape. Into this depressing place three students went last summer. One of them, Hermann Hegner, is now the head resident, serving his apprenticeship at Hull House.

The settlement has grown out of the sociological department of Chicago Theological seminary [Congregational], but while Prof. Graham Taylor is the head of that department and the moving spirit of the work, support from all churches is welcomed. Plymouth church, under the famous Dr. Frank Gunsaulus, is active in helping the new project; Oak Park churches are interested, and Tabernacle church, too, as its new minister, the Rev. B. F. Boller, is to be one of the residents of the Commons. Tho they are living in a poor neighborhood, they don't intend to live shabbily, and the place looks homelike, we thought. A three-legged table had a bright ribbon tied on it, as is done in many homes, and draperies adorned the piano and mantel.

Living there will be Mr. Boller, his wife and three children besides Dr. and Mrs. Wellman; Miss Mertz, Dr. Robinson and Mr. Reid, a seminary student. Classes are being organized. Women are eager to learn cooking, and I should think this would be helpful in keeping their husbands from the corner saloon. Nor are the children forgotten. They come Saturday morning for a "mercy class," where lessons from "Black Beauty" are taught. There will be musical evenings, too, for Mrs. Boller, the hostess, is a fine musician. The settlement is self-supporting, as residents pay for their rooms and the food is on the coöperative plan. What a blessing it will be to that neighborhood! With love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

The Service club is still one of the most important organizations of young women working for charity in Chicago. The Chicago Commons continues its beneficent work for the poor of the near northwest side, its present location being 955 West Grand avenue. Hermann Hegner, mentioned as a resident in 1894, has for years been connected with Pestalozzi-Froebel school, 410 South Michigan avenue. The Graham Taylor family moved to the Commons shortly after 1894 and has been the spirit of the settlement ever since.

Mrs. Maybrick.

Many letters have been received, with memories of Mrs. Maybrick. Mrs. Albert H. Veeder, Waukesha, Wis., writes: "In the summer of 1912, at the Moraine hotel, I came to know Florence Maybrick well. Much my elder, she was a fascinating character, and always something of a mystery. Slender, of medium height, alert, with a bit too much of white face powder, and an evident 'transformation,' she yet carried herself with dignity. I saw her several times in 1915. But she left Highland Park, going whither I knew not." . . . Mrs. William T. Houston, 1529 Fargo avenue, was on many Chautauqua programs with the famous woman, and found her "quiet, refined, cultured." . . . Anne C. Cairns, 2322 Commonwealth avenue, remembers that, as a child, while she was picking lady slippers in the ravine behind the Moraine hotel, a woman whose extreme pallor impressed her spoke to her. "Not knowing then who she was, she yet impressed me as distinguished" writes our reader. . . . John Bellew, 4024 Drexel boulevard, Chicago, sends us a poem written by Mrs. Maybrick in prison. See "Poem of the Week."

Dudes Take Over Phoenix in Usual Way

PHOENIX, ARIZ. The middle of December always marks the beginning of the resort season, and this year is no exception. Already the streets of Phoenix have taken on a different aspect. Brand new cowboy boots, multicolored shirts, wide brimmed Stetsons, and all the accouterments of what the well dressed cowboy should wear [but doesn't, since the "dudes" have taken over] are in evidence.

Arizona has a certain something, which is more than climate, making it the winter Mecca of so many easterners. There's a ruggedness in the grandeur of the country that appeals to the people of America, who, after all, are but a couple of generations removed from the pioneers.

Perhaps the secret of the lure of Arizona is best summed up in the Christmas edition of the Arizona highway magazine: "This land is a manner and mode of living. It is part of that philosophy of life for free peoples called democracy. It is a story in courage and a text in patience. You can't strut about in this land, because the land itself and the weather that is part of it tell you of the colossal jokes and the follies of others who came by long before you. This canyon is a lesson in humility. This plateau tells you how fleeting and transitory is man and his monkey business. There is no place in the scheme of things in this land for greed, power, smallness. Snobbery and intolerance are out of place, foreign to the bigness of the land. There is room for all creation in this land, a place for every person. Willing hands will find much to do, for the land is young and there is much to be done."

• • •

There's a real feeling of Christmas in the air. We can't expect a white Christmas, but we do look forward to a green one. The tall sahuaros flanking the entrance to Camelback have already been transformed into giant candles. Christmas trees may be scarce this year, but it is surprising how effective the various cacti look with lights intertwined and a shiny ornament on the end of each prickly spine. Down at the pool at Camelback will be a gorgeous tree, however.

Numerous old timers are returning for the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. James McHugh and their two sons, Jim and Jack, will arrive on Tuesday and also the William Boyingtons and their daughter, Patricia. Both families are from Beverly Hills.

The James Chamberlins and Jac, from Oak Park, will also be at the inn for the holidays. Unfortunately, Jac can't miss school indefinitely, so will have to return on New Year's, but his lucky parents will stay on for the month of January.

A horseback ride around Squaw peak and thru the arroyos and cacti covered desert is no soft ride, not even for a desert born and bred person, but the Allan Kemps from Lake Forest proved they were game and could "take it." However, chicken broiled out of doors, and hashed brown potatoes with plenty of onions in them, never tasted quite so good. They had well earned their dinner. The Kemps were the only Chicagoans who rode; the rest of the Camelback inn guests hiked up to the picnic grounds back of the inn to join them for luncheon. Courtney Kemp will enter the Jokake school for girls after the holidays.

• • •

At El Charro lodge the Ralph Robertses from La Grange are taking a pre-holiday rest to be in shape for all the festivities when they return next week. El Charro hopes to have its traditional Christmas barbecue, providing it can get the spareribs.

Ingleside inn will open next week and Mrs. Florence Blair Moorhead from Evanston will act as hostess. Neither the Ingleside inn nor the Biltmore will have any formal opening. Service will just commence, and it is hoped that transportation will enable all the expected guests to arrive. Miss Nora Carney and Miss Mary Louise Anderson will be, as always, the first guests of the season at the Biltmore. The David Strausses are staying at the Hotel Westward Ho in Phoenix but expect to move into the Biltmore shortly.

Not to be daunted by gas rationing and the difficulties of getting to town for Red Cross work, the residents of Arcadia are going into Scottsdale, which is but three miles away, and joining up with that branch of the Red Cross to continue making bandages and the like. They either take turns driving or take the bus from Jokake; some walk.

Mrs. Horace Newhall, Mrs. Burridge Butler, Mrs. Chester Chapin, and Mrs. Frank Baldwin spend several days a week at the Scottsdale branch. Mrs. Wirt Morton feels very elated this week, for two reasons. The first and foremost is that her son, Kenneth, is at home awaiting his orders in the cadet air force. Secondly, because she, in her capacity of chairman of public information of the Red Cross, has been able to get Mrs. Damon Runyon to speak over the Red Cross round table which is broadcast for 15 minutes every Thursday evening. Mrs. Runyon is studying in Phoenix.

The George Careys are in Santa Ana, Cal., where he is in cadet training school. The Careys hope to be fortunate enough to be transferred here after the first of the year.

Sugar Substitutes.

For best flavor in foods, replace with a sugar substitute no more than one-half the sugar in a recipe.

WED TO LIEUTENANT

Mrs. Arthur H. Hardy Jr. was Miss Jean Frances Chubb before her marriage to Lieut. (j. g.) Hardy, U. S. N. R. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Evans Chubb of Evanston was married on Oct. 3 in the Huguenot Memorial church in Pelham Manor, N. Y. Lieut. Hardy's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Hardy of Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Week's Events of Chicagoland Women's Clubs

In rooms garlanded with holly wreaths and evergreens and bright with lighted trees, members of the Chicago Woman's club will be gathered Wednesday for an afternoon of Christmas music. The Civic Music association of Chicago is sending the children's chorus from Grand Crossing park to the club, with Marx E. Oberndorfer to conduct and Helen Prothroe Baker to play for the young carolers. It was at the club that the idea originated for the training of children's choruses in the parks of the city, the work to which the Civic Music association is given.

The Mann trio will share the program. Its members are Erna Mann, pianist; Ruth Rubenstein, violinist, and Rose Thavieu, cellist.

• • •

Miss Regina White.

The Dyslexia guild, auxiliary of the Dyslexia Memorial institute, is giving a party for members and their guests tomorrow night at the South Shore Country club. Heading the committee on management is Miss Regina White. A program will be presented by Elaine De Sellem, soprano, and Edward E. Eichanbaum, reader.

• • •

The Woman's City club is festive with holiday decorations for the traditional Christmas party which will draw members and friends together again tomorrow for carol singing, Christmas stories, and a gala tea. Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy will read "The Bird's Christmas Carol," and Miss Grace Coulter of the Eleanor association will tell a story in the spirit of the season. Mrs. John Sharpless Fox, the president, will head the hostess committee; Miss Maude Tiffany will have charge of the program; Mrs. I. D. Patton is to be song leader, and Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribly has charge of decorations and tea.

• • •

Santa Claus is to be the special guest of the Organized Women Musicians at a Christmas program Tuesday evening in headquarters at 175 West Washington boulevard, and it is rumored that he will make his appearance with a generously filled pack of gifts. Twenty musicians from the Women's Symphony orchestra, leaving their adult sized fiddles and trumpets at home, will play Haydn's "Toy Symphony" on toy instruments and a brass choir, directed by Lillian Poenisch, will play carols.

• • •

Mrs. Winona E. Reeves.

Mrs. Winona Evans Reeves, who was one of the founders of the Illinois group of PEO, organized in 1889, will speak before the chapter at a luncheon meeting tomorrow in the Palmer House. Mrs. Reeves is editor of the PEO "Record." The sisterhood, which works for the advancement of education and student welfare, was founded in 1869 at Wesleyan college in Iowa.

• • •

The Chicago Culture club will meet for a Christmas program at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the Republic building. A board of directors' meeting is scheduled for 10:30 o'clock.

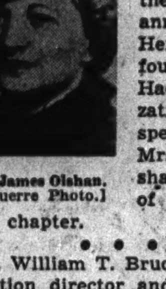
• • •

Marie Agnes Foley has invited northern Illinois branch members of the National League of American Pen Women to a matinée performance of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by her Jack and Jill players this afternoon. The children's company has its own theater at 180 East Delaware place. There is a restaurant in the building, and the group plans to have tea or dinner there after the play. Each will bring a trinket for a Christmas grab bag.

• • •

Dr. Fritz Bamberger will speak before Chicago section of the national council of Jewish women at a contemporary Jewish affairs class tomorrow afternoon on "Education for a World in Which Education Failed." Other meetings posted for the week at council headquarters are: Revisions committee, 10 o'clock tomorrow; Red Cross surgical dressings unit, 10 to 4 o'clock Tuesday; international relations class, 10 o'clock, and public affairs department, 1:30 o'clock Wednesday; English class for "newcomers," 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

• • •



Mrs. James Olshan. [Daguerre Photo.]

All groups of Chicago Junior Hadassah will be gathered this afternoon at the Hamilton hotel for a dramatic program marking the 82d birthday anniversary of Henrietta Szold, founder of the Hadassah organization. The guest speaker will be Mrs. James Olshan, president of the Chicago senior chapter.

• • •

Mrs. William T. Bruckner, general federation director and war service chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will present new plans for furthering the nursing recruitment program of Illinois clubwomen at a 10:30 o'clock meeting tomorrow morning in state federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street. Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, chairman of the home nursing service of the Red Cross, and Mrs. June Ramsey, executive secretary of the Illinois Nursing council, if unable to come personally, will send representatives to speak.

The actual work of recruiting in the nursing field is to be entrusted to the junior clubwomen, Mrs. Bruckner has announced. They will endeavor to enlist nurses for military service, women for civilian work as nurses' aids, and others to study home nursing. In directing the nursing recruitment campaign Mrs. Bruckner will be assisted by Dr. Adelaide Hoeffel, state federation chairman of public health and child hygiene.

ENGAGEMENTS

Elaine Lewin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lewin, 1030 Hyde Park boulevard, to Lieut. George L. Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Stone, Argo, Ill. Lieut. Stone is stationed at Keesler field, Biloxi, Miss.

Jeanne Bromberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bromberg, 5346 West Jackson boulevard, to Harry Silverstone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Silverstone, 4142 West Jackson boulevard. The wedding is planned for Jan. 17 at the Belden Stratford hotel.

Blossom Judith Rissman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Rissman, 6642 North Newgard avenue, to Howard H. Kovin, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Kovin, 3535 Douglas boulevard. Mr. Kovin is awaiting his appointment as an army air corps cadet.

Augusta Marisse Mendelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spivak, 1412 South Central Park avenue, to Bernard Spies, son of Mrs. Esther Spies, 3451 Douglas boulevard.

Marjorie Lippert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maury E. Lippert, 5110 Kenwood avenue, to Lawrence A. Callen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen, 5901 Rice avenue. Miss Lippert attends the University of Chicago, of which her fiancé is a graduate.

Rosemary Ann Goede, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Goede, 4953 Augusta boulevard, to Ensign Robert E. Kuntz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Kuntz, 6028 Grace street.

Mildred Edith Roe, daughter of Mrs. Harry N. Roe, 2726 North Pine Grove avenue, and the late Harry N. Roe, to Jerome F. Golding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Golding, 4186 North Clarendon avenue.

Regulars Are Returning to Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, FLA. Judging from Chicago arrivals in Miami Beach not every one is "dreaming of a white Christmas." More and more of the perennials show up every day, for the holidays, and the rest of the season.

In September or October, it's easy enough to say, "No, I don't believe I'll go to Florida this winter," but when those chill blasts sweep in from Lake Michigan and the snow comes, the regulars, whose systems are now synchronized to winter in the south, change their minds and leave on the first train they can catch.

Christmas is a state of mind, and many prefer a Christmas white with the sand of Miami Beach, instead of the snow of the north. Many, who used to have holiday family reunions at the fireside back home, now plan these celebrations at the seaside of Miami Beach, where palms sway in the breeze, where they can pick an orange instead of an icicle, where they can have a bush of poinsettias growing in the yard, instead of a lone potted one in the house; where they can trade in their galoshes for beach shoes, their fur coats for bathing suits. As a matter of fact, Florida climate duplicates the climate of The Nativity. Perhaps it is no accident that the only known town in the country named Christmas is located in Florida.

• • •

But Christmas is not the only entertainment on the week's program. Tropical Park opens tomorrow, and it will seem like "the season," when the horses start running. Chicagoans who have reserved boxes include Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright, R. J. Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Albert I. Appleton, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Denemark, who are returning to this area after three years' absence and who will race their stable at Tropical, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sabath, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Clark.

The Committee of One Hundred will give the second of its forums on Tuesday with Dr. No-Yong Park, Chinese scholar and diplomat, speaking on a subject that should interest all listeners: "How to Lick the Japs." The forums will be held every week, beginning Jan. 5.

Both the Bath and Indian Creek clubs will be gay during the holidays Tho war regulations have dimmed the streets of Miami Beach, inside the light shines at night as bright as the sun shines in the day, and even the Bath club, directly on the ocean front, has so screened its windows that the usual functions can be resumed. The Bath will have an old fashioned Christmas dinner at noon next Friday and will resume its Saturday informal suppers, Jan. 2 and the Thursday club nights Jan. 7. Robert H. Morse, who with Mrs. Morse is spending the winter at Palm Beach, and who is a member of the Bath and Tennis club of Palm Beach, was luncheon host to a group of winter colonists at the club recently.

• • •

The Indian Creek is becoming lively, too. Golf is the favorite diversion, but the swimming pool attracts almost as many, and the weekly bridge tournaments will begin after the first of the year. Dr. and Mrs. Clare L. Frame of Evanston, who are occupying their winter home in Bay Point, are new members this year, and were luncheon hosts at the club last Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dewitt of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Whiteman of Evanston. The Whitemans are in their home at Fort Lauderdale for the winter, and the Dewitts have taken an apartment near them for a month.

Mrs. George E. Crandell, who with Mr. Crandell is now residing in their winter home on Lagorce Island, entertained at luncheon at the Indian Creek recently. Mr. and Mrs. August B. Kochs are frequently there, also Mrs. Albert I. Appleton, who arrived recently to open her home in North Bay road, where she was joined this week-end by Mr. Appleton. Members already here also include Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush Dashiell, formerly of Chicago, who arrived several weeks ago from their summer home in Ridgefield, Conn., also Mr. and Mrs. James C. Cox. Mrs. Cox arrived just a few days ago to open their home on Lagorce Island, and Mr. Cox is expected on Tuesday for the holidays, to return in February for another visit.

• • •

Miami Beach, of course, must have its celebrities. The list for the week just closed was headed by Edward Windsor, governor of the Bahamas and his wife, who returned from their Palm Beach visit at the home of Flight Lt. Herbert Pulitzer, a flyer with the R. A. F., to stay at the Roney Plaza a few days and do some Christmas shopping before returning to Nassau. George Ade, that hardy perennial, arrived several weeks ago, stating, "Up north I was using so much fuel oil, the rationing board declared me a public menace." Another humorist and writer, Dorothy Parker, is here in a housewife capacity, sharing a small apartment with her husband, Alan Campbell, an army private stationed at Miami Beach.

Another army wife is Constance Bennett, who has taken a house to be near her husband, Gilbert Roland, who is acting in a new rôle, as an officer candidate in the AAFTTC. Clark Gable, now a graduate of the OCS, started the trek from the sets of Hollywood to the drill grounds of Miami Beach, and officer candidates who followed him include Robert Preston, William Holden, and Bryant Washburn Jr. Bruce Cabot enlisted in Miami.

A lone, white cape stood out in a swarm of khaki ones recently at the commencement exercises of the Pan-American Airways Navigation section at the University of Miami, signifying the attachment of the wearer, Peter Chuh, only nephew of Generalissimo Chang Kai-shek, to the Chinese national air forces. His guest, and speaker at the graduation, was Dr. Vincent Hoo, who came from Washington, where he served the last 10 months as personal aide to T. V. Soong, now Chinese foreign minister, and who was minister to Switzerland for 10 years, serving also as China's representative on the league of nations.

• • •

And, in case you've been wondering what happened to those pingpong balls that Harry Richman and Dick Merrill thought lent buoyancy to their plane during their trans-Atlantic flight, they're right in Miami Beach, in the attic at Richman's winter estate. That is, they were in the attic until, hearing from Mrs. Sailing Baruch that the Miami Beach army recreation pier needed pingpong balls, the well known entertainer produced them. He donated three dozen balls, each marked with the name of Merrill and Richman, the date of their flight, and a chart of the route, and promised to keep on sending the balls as long as they last and are needed.

An unusual party took place in Miami Beach recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown, when a high tea was given for visiting R. A. F. flyers. The Browns are English, and knew the boys would be pleased with the menu, which included English pork pie, those thin, English bread and butter slices, climaxed with delicious English trifle. Following the tea, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Volkhardt of Chicago showed their motion pictures of the lake section of the northwest.

Movies, too, were shown by Mr. and Mrs. H. Lloyd Williams of Akron at the buffet supper last Thursday at the home of Mrs. William F. Whitman. Picturing the scenes of current fighting, Mr. Williams' views of Egypt, Algiers, Africa, and the Mediterranean found an enthusiastic audience. The occasion was a double one, celebrating Mrs. Whitman's birthday, and honoring her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Stanley F. Whitman. Incidentally, the other two Whitman boys [all three are in service, stationed in or near Miami], were in the wedding party Dec. 6 when Alice Verine Guenther was wedded to Bour Brown. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alice R. Lannie of Coconut Grove and of Arthur W. Guenther of Chicago.

• • •

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John Timothy Stone, formerly of Chicago, are now occupying their winter home in Coral Gables, after spending the summer at their cottage in Estes Park, Colo. Dr. Stone formerly was president of Presbyterian Theological Seminary. Their children, John Timothy Jr., and George Thomas, are attending the Cushman school. Dr. Stone addressed the Century club of Coral Gables at their first social gathering of the season, a dinner for members last Tuesday, and he also was guest preacher at the First Presbyterian church of Coral Gables.

Miss Marguerite Grader is returning to Evanston this week-end after a visit with Lt. and Mrs. Paul H. Hughes at their home in Surfside. Mrs. Hughes is the former Estelle Atwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman L. Atwell.

WEDDINGS

Wedding and engagement announcements must be signed by a member of the family and must bear the address and telephone number of the signer. All names must be printed in full. Announcements must reach the society editor by Tuesday noon preceding the Sunday of publication.

Mary Jane Dougherty, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leslie D. Dougherty, 7001 Fullerton avenue, to Lt. Jess A. Larch, army air corps, son of Robert Elliot Larch, Cincinnati, O. The wedding took place on Nov. 7 in Ozark, Ala. The bride is a second lieutenant in the army nursing corps.

Jane Colquitt Devlin, daughter of Mrs. Robert Glenn Devlin, Chicago and Detroit, Mich., to Sergt. George Oliver Lindsay II., son of Mrs. George O. Lindsay, Battle Creek, Mich., on Dec. 5 in Detroit. The bride attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart in St. Louis. Sergt. Lindsay attended the University of Michigan before enlisting in the marine corps. He is stationed in Detroit.

Elsa Teller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton W. Teller, 5121 Kenwood avenue, to Lt. Harry J. Leir, United States army, son of Mrs. Gerson B. Leir and the late Dr. Leir, on Dec. 12.

Eleanor Fried, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fried, Lansing, Ill., formerly of Chicago, to Lt. Gordon M. Kibler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Kibler, Mendota, Ill., on Nov. 12 in Seattle, Wash. Lt. Kibler was graduated from Knox college, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and received his master's degree at Purdue university. He and his bride are living in Seattle.

Germaine Marie VanderLouis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James VanderLouis, 1144 Montana street, to George Kaspar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendel Kaspar, Forest Park, on Dec. 5 in St. Clement's church. Mr. Kaspar and his bride are living in the Lincoln Park Arms hotel until he leaves for the army air corps.

Carole Mae Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar R. Smith, 7618 Essex avenue, to Army Air Cadet Daniel George Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien W. Moore, Sherry hotel, on Dec. 12 in the army air base chapel in Chico, Cal.

Marion Theresa Rakow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Rakow, 4904 St. Paul avenue, to John H. Cornell, Washington, D. C., on Nov. 30 in the home of the bride's parents. After a brief wedding trip Mr. Cornell and his bride are living in Norfolk, Va., where he is stationed as a second class signal man in the navy.

Dorothy Green, daughter of Mrs. Emma Green, Evanston, to Elmer C. Ilker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ilker, 7254 North Bell avenue, on Nov. 26 in the Chapel of Memories of the Covenant Methodist church, Evanston. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Ilker will be at home in the Oak Crest hotel, Evanston.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

Arizona Trip Is Will's Idea of Christmas

By Will Davidson.

Kick the snow off your shoes, friend, and come in by the fire. I'll toss on another log and we'll shove aside that pile of gift wrapping tissue and the red ribbons and the scissors, and then I'll tell you what I'd like for Christmas.

I'd have to get it before Dec. 25, tho, because that's what the present is—Christmas in Arizona. It would include a fast trip out to Tucson, with the arrival set for a day or so before Christmas. That would allow time to wander around familiar haunts; the cactus forest to hunt up the Indian writings on the green-gray stones; to go out past Harold Bell Wright's, and up into the canyons where we used to topple dead saguaro cacti down into the little streams. Maybe we even could run down to Nogales, but if we did we surely would time our trip to get back to San Xavier del Bac, that most beautiful of all Spanish missions, on Christmas eve.

If you've never been in San Xavier you have missed one of the aesthetic and spiritual highpoints of your life. A gleaming white gem of architectural perfection, its great towers rising into clear blue sky, its age mellowed murals, its rich carvings and beautifully ornate altar, San Xavier is a sublime expression of all that is good in man; of the Christian spirit that has conquered ages and continents, and which found its way up from Mexico into the lives of the Papago Indians, whose descendants San Xavier still serves.

I have never been there on Christmas eve, but it isn't hard to picture the glory of its candle-lit service, humble, and simple, and devout. I think it would be a Christmas eve that would find one strengthened for as long as memory lives.

Probably on Christmas day I'd start north, past Casa Grande and its silent, provocative old Great House, a relic of ancient days. I'd be heading for the Grand Canyon, but I might detour out to Superstition mountain, just to have a look at the ghosts that haunt that storied, stony sphynx. If I could I'd go on up to Globe and Miami and then cut north thru the San Carlos reservation, up over the mountains to Fort Apache. Maybe I'd find Pete there, that lanky Texan who was friend, tutor, and boss during those healthy, strenuous cattle herding days on the reservation ranch.

There'd be a lot of snow up on the Tonto rim, beautiful heaps of white among the pines. There'd be snow on the way to Flagstaff, and there'd be snow at the canyon. I've seen that canyon in bad weather, when great masses of cloud filled it to the brim, and I can imagine that in winter, framed in an eternity of white, it would be a silent sermon on the greatness of God.

O, there are a hundred places in Arizona I'd like to go again, some that I never got to, but if I could say a prayer at San Xavier on Christmas eve and see the eternal one carved into the ages at the Grand Canyon, I think I could come back with a Christmas gift that I'd never wear out.

Hand me that log, will you?

Noel Holiday Savored for a Week in Quebec

Noel, celebrated in the French Canadian manner, is a holiday savored for a whole week. Even now the Quebec people are planning ahead for then Christmas festivities extending from Dec. 24 thru New Year's day.

Christmas trees from the forests surrounding the villages and cities are prepared for the big open markets, where pine, fir, and hemlock are sold. The farmers load their piles of fragrant greenery on little horse-drawn sleighs and, with exchanges of Christmas greetings along the way, bring their wares personally to the cities and towns.

By Christmas eve, Quebec, the ancient capital city of the province, is gay with trees. Some of them stand like sentinels in the snow outside houses, sparkling with colored lights. Many householders place trees in the windows, loaded with tinsel and ornaments, to share them with passersby. The interiors of the beautiful churches likewise are lined with trees.

In the gray roofed homes of the city, families gather after midnight services and partake of meat pies. This custom also is observed in the country, where a great amount of the pies is made before Christmas, then frozen and reheated and served as guests come in.

Deep snow usually lies over Quebec province by Christmas time, and Christmas week is the occasion of many outdoor sports parties and fêtes.

Many Flavors Contribute to Good Mexican Cookery

There's more to good Mexican cookery than chili. Americans who have been guests in Mexican homes, or have dined in justly famous eating spots, have learned that many spices are used for flavoring epicurean Mexican dishes. For example, Mexican gravies are colored and flavored with just a pinch of cocoa, to give them a delicious taste; cilantro, onion, and carrot often are used in the preparation of fish; lamb chops may be rubbed with marjoram, laurel, or just a little ground garlic. Among the unusual spices to be seen in the Mexican markets are comino, tomillo, cilantro, laurel, and lemon grass.

I have heard of a national park named for a priest named Millet. Will you tell me something about it? —A. N. P.

You undoubtedly refer to the Father Millet Cross National monument, situated on the grounds of the Fort Niagara military reservation. This monument was transferred from the war department to the jurisdiction of the national park service in August, 1933, and is a memorial to the work of Father Pierre Millet, a French Jesuit priest who came to Canada, then New France, in 1667.

Please give me a sketch of New Mexico's early history.—W. S. O'R.

The state's history dates from the quest of Coronado, Spanish explorer, for the "Seven Golden Cities of Cibola" in 1540. The deeds of Coronado were many. He discovered the Grand Canyon, the Rio Grande, Pecos, Canadian, Arkansas, and many other rivers. Highlighted among New Mexico's living routes are the trails of the conquistadores which cross and recross the state. Associated with these highways are the mission churches of the Franciscan fathers. Landmarks of history, reminiscent of their three centuries of tradition, they mirror the civilization of bygone kingdoms.

King's highway, oldest road in America from Mexico to Santa Fe, was blazed by Espejo, humanitarian explorer. The resort city of Santa Fe, long under Spanish and Mexican rule, holds three centuries of history. Early American exploits linking the east and the west began in 1846, when New Mexico came under the American flag. Fort Stanton, now an active military post, opened the military road to Fort Fillmore and Albuquerque. Over these trails, in covered wagons, went easterners to the gold rush in California.

Will the Toronto Skating club have its usual lavish show this season? —P. B.

A recent bulletin anent the show states that, rather than put on an exhibit below the standard established in 35 successive years of production, the Toronto Skating club has canceled its annual carnival for 1943. The war has cut into membership, with many star performers overseas, and others in war work, so that adequate rehearsal time is not available. Also, priorities make it impossible to obtain material and equipment for lavish settings.

Perpetual Ice.

Caves of perpetual ice are found under the lava flows along highway 66 in western New Mexico. Altho the summer temperature may reach 100 degrees, the ice in the caves does not melt.

Evergreen Shelter.

Quaking aspen is the nurse crop in the forests of New Mexico. After the forest fires, aspen groves quickly appear and provide shelter for the evergreens which follow.
